In that position, unable to move, with the weight dragging constantly at every muscle and tendon in his leg, he lay for two months. The pain was intense and constant; for days at first he could not sleep. Later he managed to obtain some restless naps. But he bore his sufferings with great fortitude and never whimpered.

His faith was justified. At the end of two months the leg was found to have been stretched to its normal length. Then his recovery was rapid, and now there is in his walk no evidence that he was ever injured.

STRANGE, BEAUTIFUL CAVES.

Wonderful Caverns in New Zealand Only Partly Explored.

New York.—The most beautiful natural caves in the world are in

One of the "Mystery Caves."

New South Wales. They are only partially explored, because many of them are remote from any railway. Those at Jenolan can be seen in part in a trip of three or four days from Sydney, but only a glimpse of their marvelous beauties can be obtained unless one has plenty of time at one's disposal and an extensive camping outfit.

One of the most beautiful, the River cave, takes its name from the presence of an underground waterway or lake 100 feet wide, which must be crossed in a boat. The cave itself is 400 feet long, and contains some of the most magnificent formation in the whole group. Its walls are chocolate-colored, and dotted over with transparent "mysteries."

The caverns are surprisingly beautiful, and are decorated from end to end. There are "shawls" eight feet in diameter, massive fluted columns 30 feet high; clear pools with crystal floors 15 feet in diameter, and "shawls" with translucent white bands, alternating with very dark bands. The variety of tints exhibited by the formations is not equalled in any cave in Jenolan. For mysterious beauty, variety and grandeur it is difficult to imagine anything to surpass the coverns of the new branches of the Lucas cave.

Captain Spencer of the Church army once asked a convict what he did for a living when he left prison. "Well, in spring I does a bit o' pea picking and in summer I does a bit o' fruit picking and in the autumn I does a bit o' 'op picking." "Yes," said the captain, "and what do you do in the winter?" "Well, mister, I may as well be honest with yer. In the winter I does a bit o' pocket picking!" Captain Spencer next asked, "And what happens then?" The convict replied, "Why, I comes 'ere and does a bit o' oakum picking!"—London News.

COL. COLLINS CHAIRMAN

Democratic County Committee Elect Officers at Annual Meeting.

A VERY TAME SESSION

Expected Clash Over Appointment On County Election Board Did Not Materialize.

Pronounced harmony and goodwill reigned at the organization meeting of the Union County Democratic Committee last night. The meeting was held at county headquarters, 78 Broad street, Elizabeth, and was largely attended. The large attendance was due to an expected clash between the forces of Walter L. Hetfield, Sr., of this city, and Robert McAdams, of Elizabeth, over the appointment of a member of the county board of elections, but the question was not even brought before the meeting, although some active electioneering was conducted by both sides before the committeemen convened. The contest will probably be settled at a future meeting.

The only ripple of excitement to block the machinery of business during the evening was due to the carelessness of Editor John Lane, of the Summit Herald. Editor Lane excused himself before the meeting was over to catch a train for his home. Before leaving the hall he took the floor and announced that his overcoat had disappeared. This caused a flutter among the delegates and Sergeant-at-arms John Corbett took his position at the door. Mr. Lane asked the members if any one had taken his overcoat by mistake, but no one responded. After a ten minute delay the search was resumed, Mr. Lane finally finding his coat under a desk covered with Democratic campaign literature.

The election of officers for the ensuing year was the principal business transacted, which resulted in the following unanimous selections: Chairman, Colonel D. F. Collins, of Elizabeth; vice chairman, George Cladek of Rahway; secretary, Fred Zior, of Elizabeth; treasurer, Judge E. Williams Crane, of Union; sergeant-at-arms, John Corbett, of Elizabeth. Colonel Collins, chairman-elect, succeeds Judge O. P. Mohan, of Elizabeth. The meeting was called to order by Fred Zior. Former County Clerk John R. Crowell, of Rahway, was chosen temporary chairman.

Colonel Collins accepted the chairmanship in a vigorous speech in which he predicted Democratic victory in the State at the next election. He asked for the active co-operation of the committee, declaring he would start in at once to map out plans for the coming gubernatorial campaign.

E. S. Cook, of Rahway, offered a resolution calling for an amendment to the bylaws, changing the time of the committee meetings from 8 p. m. to 4 p. m. In advocating this change Mr. Cook argued that the change in hour would enable the committeemen from distant parts of the county to attend the meetings. Mr. Cook's resolution was overwhelmingly lost.

The Plainfield members of the committee are requested to meet at the office of Walter L. Hetfield, Sr., Saturday night, when some important matters will come up for consideration.

Address to Sunday-school Workers.

Mrs. Smith, of Orange, who is prominent in Sunday-school work, addressed the members of the Plainfield Primary and Junior Sunday-school Teachers' Union at the Y. M. C. A., yesterday afternoon. She first taught the intermediate lesson, then gave an interesting talk on "How to Approach Children," concluding with a chalk talk on primary work and a short talk on the junior lesson. There was a large attendance of Sunday-school workers present who enjoyed Mrs. Smith's talk very much.

"Farthest North."

Commander Peary, U. S. N., who will give an illustrated lecture at the First M. E. church on Saturday night, January 26, under the auspices of the Brotherhood and Ladies' Aid Society, on the subject of "Farthest North," will tell the story of his daring expedition toward the North Pole. He will show sixty colored views. Tickets can be secured at Armstrong's pharmacy.

Circus Features.

Stellar attractions will be seen at the Y. M. C. A. circus February 11 and 12. It was announced this morning that the Newark Y. M. C. A. gymnastic team, which won the world's championship at the St. Louis fair, will be there. Ray Ewry, holder of six world's records for jumps and kicks, will probably be on the bill.

MR. COLBY GIVES $1,000

Senator and His Wife Endow Hospital Room in Their Daughter's Memory.

BALL NETTED $2,400

Dr. Norman Probasco Takes Place of Dr. W. C. Boone On Medical Staff—Meeting at Casino.

Senator and Mrs. Everett Colby, of Orange, have contributed $1,000 for the endowment fund of Muhlenberg Hospital in the name of Elizabeth Colby, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Colby, who died last summer. The sum is given as a memorial and one of the rooms for private patients in the administration building has been named "The Elizabeth Colby Room."

The contribution from Mr. and Mrs. Colby was received at a meeting of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, at the Casino, last night, and it was by a vote of the members that one of the private rooms was named in memory of Elizabeth Colby. Mrs. Colby was formerly Miss Edith Hyde, of this city, and she has always been interested in the hospital, as well as other charitable enterprises in this city. Mr. Colby has also shown much interest in Plainfield affairs and was one of the contributors toward the fund to purchase a parish house for St. Stephen's church.

One of the most important actions at the meeting last night, was the vote by which Dr. Norman H. Probasco was transferred from the position of pathologist and bacteriologist in the medical board to the place in the medical department of the visiting staff of the board left vacant by the resignation of Dr. W. C. Boone in July of last year.

The treasurer reported that he had received from the committee in charge of the charity ball, $2,400, and that the committee confidently expect to make the total net receipts of the ball $2,500.

A vote of thanks was tendered to J. Dunbar Wright fo his illustrated lecture given at the Casino on Saturday night for the benefit of the hospital.

The report of the medical board for December showed patients remaining at last report, 28; admitted, 57; dsicharged cured, 41; improved, 6; not improved, 1; died, 4. Total number of patients treated, 85; remaining, 33; operations, 49; hospital days, 998; dispensary patients, 49; visits, 165; operations, 14.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Miss Elva Force Entertains Company of Friends.

Mrs. Charles L. Force, of Mercer avenue, gave a party yesterday afternoon for her daughter, Miss Elva Force, who celebrated the twelfth anniversary of her birthday. The afternoon was spent playing games and one of the features was the donkey game. Miss Flora Krausse won the first prize and Roy Force received the booby prize.

After the games refreshments were served and the young people had a general good time. Miss Force received a number of useful and pretty gifts in remembrance of the occasion. Those present were the Misses Catherine Day, Emma Ryno, Dorothy Martin, Flora Krausse, Edith Richards, Hazel Patrick, Elva and Roy Force.

Lecture Adjourned One Week.

Owing to the small attendance at themeeting of the Men's Club of the First Baptist church, last night, the president, S. St. John McCutchen, suggested that the meeting be postpone for one week, when it is hoped that more of the members will be present. It was decided to extend a general invitation to the women of the church and congregation to attend. Prof. H. C. Krebs will lecture on "Stonewall Jackson," and it will be especially significant at that time as the day marks the birthday anniversary of Gen. Jackson.

W. C. T. U. Musicale.

Under the auspices of the Women's Christian Temperance Union a musicale will be held in the Y. M. C. A. Hall on Thursday night, for the benefit of the union. These artists will appear in an exceptional programme: Miss Louella C. Harris, soprano; Miss Florence Wohlfert, violinist; Ladies' Chorus Seventh-Day Baptist church; Miss Lillian A. Force and Miss Jessie Utter, accompanists; H. Warren Rankin, magician, and the Vivo Instrumental Trio, Martin A. Korff leader.

Aluminum Plant Cuts Hours.

CAR STRIKES WAGON; TWO MEN HURLED OUT

BOTH RECEIVE SLIGHT INJURIES AND ARE ATTENDED BY PHYSICIAN.

A delivery wagon belonging to D. Demolli & Co., who conduct the French bakery on West Front street, was being driven across the car tracks on West Fourth street at Central avenue shortly before 6 o'clock, last night, when a trolley car bore down upon it. The vehicle was struck near the rear end and thrown with a crash that could be heard for blocks.

Joseph Milani, a member of the firm, who was driving, and Allen Walter, Jr., of Mountain avenue, an employee seated beside him, were hurled to the roadway and narrowly escaped getting caught beneath the vehicle. The horse was also thrown and made things lively for a moment or two by tring to get loose. Matters were straightened out by the crew of the car and the two men were taken to the office of Dr. Currie. Milani escaped with a few cuts and bruises, but Walter was badly jarred. He was removed to his home in a carriage and is still confined there.

In a statement made after the accident, Milani said he thought the car was a block away when he started over the tracks but that it was travelling at such a high rate of speed it was upon him before he realized the danger. One wheel of the wagon was wrecked but otherwise it was uninjured.

CHURCH UNION REMEDY FOR SOCIETY'S ILLS

MRS. ISABELLE DAVIS DELIVERS STRONG ADDRESS TO PARISH CLUB.

With a plea for the affiliation of all the Christian churches for concerted action against the destructive forces at work in society, Mrs. Isabelle Davis, temporary field secretary field secretary of the movement, appeared before the Men's Club of Grace P. E. church last night at the monthly open meeting. She spoke earnestly and at length.

Many evil forces were at work under the surface of society in this country, Mrs. Davis said, and the danger from them was great. Among the forces of terror, she instanced the struggle between capital and labor, and in connection with it she declared that the great thing in considering such questions was the comprehensiveness of both points of view. She had come in contact with members of the anarchistic society, she said, and was impressed with their sincerity of purpose. The movement was worldwise, and the spirit that actuated the anarchists of St. Petersburg was at work in New York. That aggressive, sincere and dtermined purpose of the anarchists was one of the great dangers to the country.

The only adequate measure of correction against the threatned evils, she held, was the united effort of all Christians bodies to educate and uplift. She told of the wonderful work done by those in the affiliation movement in New York, started by a Protestant Episcopal clergyman.

J. H. FULLER DEAD.

Father of Mrs. Barrows Had Been Ill a Long Time.

James H. Fuller, who after a lingering illness died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Elliot T. Barrows, last evening, was born at Hyannis, Mass., March 14, 1826, and was a direct descendant of Samuel Fuller and John Howland, who came over in the Mayflower. Early in life he went to Cambridge, Mass., and later engaged in the hardware business until 1873, when he moved to New York.

In 1898 Mr. and Mrs. Fuller celebrated their golden wedding at the home of Mrs. Barrows, and after the death of Mrs. Fuller in 1899, he made his home in Plainfield, where up to within a year he enjoyed unusual health and pleasure in life. Though a regular attendant at the Crescent Avenue church, he retained his membership with the Prospect Street church, of Cambridge, of which at the time of his death he was the oldest member.

Secretary Michner Will Speak.

C. C. Michner, international secretary of the Y. M. C. A., will speak at the Y. M. C. A. dinner, Tuesday night, January 29. As has been announced, Dr. A. V. V. Raymond, president of Union College, will be the chief speaker.

—The Cherokees and Mohicans will play in the local basketball league tonight.

—Fancy Indian River grape fruit at Neuman Brothers. Seventy-five boxes just received will be sold at $4.50 each.

JURY COMMISSION BILL

Union County May Have One If Measure Introduced in Legislature Passes.

OTHER IMPORTANT ONES

To Limit Campaign Expenses; Public Utility Commission; Voting Machine; Municipal Water Contracts.

Many important measures were introduced in the Senate and House at Trenton, last night, some of which effect Union county, particularly the one providing a jury commission of three members in all counties of over 100,000 inhabitants. Following are its provisions and the provisions of other important measures introduced in the Assembly:

H. 14. Mr. Hendrickson. Provides that in all counties having over 100,000 the justice of the supreme court holding the circuit therein shall appoint a jury commission of three residents of the county; term, three years; salaries to be fixed by such justice, not exceeding $500 annually. Each jury commissioner shall keep a jury list of at least 500 persons and shall prepare therefrom a grand jury list of 48 names, from which the said supreme court justice shall strike 24 names and the remaining 24 shall be the grand jury for the coming term. From the same list a petit jury list containing twice the number of names required for service shall be submitted to the supreme court justice who shall strike therefrom one-half the names and the remaining names shall constitute the peit jury for the coming term. In the absence, or at the request of a supreme court justice, the county judge shall select. (Judiciary.)

H. 6. Mr. Alexander. Limits the amount which a candidate for office may expend for campaign purposes to the following amounts: Senator of the United States, representative in congress, or governor, $5,000; presidental elector, mayor of a city and county offices, $1,000; state senator, $500; member of assembly, town, city and borough officers, $250; all other offices, $100. Only a treasurer or political agent named by a candidate shall pay any expenses of an election. The bill designates lawful expenditures and requies publication of the amount expended within twenty days after the election by filing with the secretary of state or county clerk. (Judiciary.)

H. 42. Mr. Sullivan. Authorizes cities to establish electric light plants, and fixes the limit of cost in accordance with the ratables of such cities. Provides for the issue of bonds to run not less than 20 years nor longer than 30. (Municipal corporations.)

H. 36. Mr. Blohm. Creates a public utility commission to be composed of three members, to be appointed by the governor, for terms of three years. Commission is empowered when complaint is made of more than one rate or charge or subject matter, to order hearings, and when they believe any rate, fare or charge to be unreasonable, or any service inadequate, or the quality of any gas, water or light not what it reasonably should be, it may investigate. Whenever such rate or service is found to be inadequate or discriminatory, the commission shall determine and fix a reasonable rate, fare, charge or standard of quality. The commission shall have authority to inquire into the management of the business of all public utility companies, and shall ascertain the amount of money in the construction and equipment of such companies. (Judiciary.)

29. Wr. Wright. Amends the act relative to the purchase of sites for armories, and provides the method by which counties may issue bonds to meet such share of expense as shall be necessary for the county to pay. (Militia.)

H. 11. Mr. Hendrickson. Authorizes boroughs to make a contract with any municipality or with any water company for a term of five years or less for a water supply. (Boroughs and borough commissions.)

H. 12. Mr. Hendrickson. Authorizes first class cities to contract to supply water to certain other municipalities in this state. (Municipal corporations.)

H. 1. Mr. Holcombe. Repeals the act for the purchase of voting machines. (Judiciary.)

H. 2. Mr. Holcombe. Empowers the governing bodies of cities to fix the times and dates within which taxes shall be assessed and become due, the date of the session of the county board of taxation, the date for the return of delinquents. All provisions of law effecting such city so far as they fix such dates shall be suspended. Cities are empowered to assess and collect state, state school and county taxes by the same officers as municipal taxes. (Municici-

SOUTH PLAINFIELD BOROUGH BILL AGAIN

INTRODUCED IN ASSEMBLY BY MR. DRAKE; DRAWN BY JUDGE NEWCORN.

Another attempt to make South Plainfield a borough was started in the Assembly last night. Assemblyman Drake, of Middlesex county, introduced a bill for the incorporation of the village. It was referred to the Committee on Boroughs and Borough Commissions.

It is expected that the bill will be reported back shortly. It is supported by the Good Government Club, of South Plainfield, and by the general sentiment of the village. Practically every voter in South Plainfield is in favor of its passage.

The bill was drawn by District Court Judge William Newcorn. He was in Trenton last night to see the measure launched, and will speak in its favor if a hearing on it is held. The bill is drawn on the lines of the one that was killed at the last session of the Legislature.

Assemblyman W. W. Smalley, of Bound Brook, introduced a bill for the village of South Bound Brook as a borough. That measure was also referred to the Borougs and Borough Commissions Committee. There is said to be an independent movement on foot for the consolidation of Bound Brook and South Bound Brook.

ACKERMAN PROTECTS PROPERTY OWNERS

HIS BILL RESTRICTS RIGHT TO DISFIGURE PUBLIC STREETS.

Senator Ackerman introduced two bills in the State Senate last night. One authorizes the president of the Senate and speaker of the Assembly to appoint annually a lawyer to draft bills, examine and revise proposed bills, and advise as to proposed legislation. The president and speaker will fix the compensation.

The other bill is an act relating to telephone, electric light, heat and power companies. It makes it unlawful to erect poles or string wires without first obtaining permission of the local governing board, and also the consent of the property-owner affected.

Senator Hillery introduced a bill which provides for signifying of preference of candidates for United States Senate by direct vote of the people at primary elections. At the same time Mr. Eppinger introduced a bill in the House which provides that for the purpose of affording the members of the Legislature information as to the preferences of party voters for candidates for United States Senator, the names of candidates for the position of United States Senator may be printed upon the official ballots of the respective parties. All candidates for United States Senator shall file a petition with the Secretary of State setting forth such candidacy twenty days before the general election, and the election officers shall include the number of votes cast for such candidates for United States Senator in their return.

Death of Mrs. Nevius.

Mrs. Catherine V. F. Nevius, well known to many Plainfielders, died at the home of her niece at Readington, Hunterdon county, on Wednesday, January 9, following a stroke of apoplexy. She was in the eighty-seventh year of her age. She was born at Readington, where she lived for many years. The funeral services were held on Sunday, and the interment was at the church-yard cemetery, Readington, among many members of her family who had gone before.

Incorporate Squab Farm.

The Longmead Squab Farm, capital stock $15,000, just incorporated, names Piscataway township as its pleace of registered office. J. Dunbar Wright, who lectured at the Casino Saturday night, is one of the incorporators. Henry C. Adams and G. F. Thomson are the others. Mr. Adams is the agent in charge.

Silk Company Elect Officers.

These directors were elected at the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Watchung Silk Company, yesterday afternoon: J. Fred MacDonald, William R. Codington, Eugene M. Laing, A. B. Laing, Frank Coriell, Willis Vail, Henry Liefke. The directors will meet next week and elect officers.

Letters of Administration.

Letters of administration were granted to Charles Adair yesterday by the Surrogate of Essex county for the estate of his father. The estate is valued at about $4,000. William G. DeMeza appeared for the administrator.

F. H. SMITH RE-ELECTED

Registerer of Deeds Succeeds Himself as County Commitee Chairman.

HARMONY PREVAILS

County Clerk Continues As Vice Chairman—New Members Take Their Seats.

The Union County Republican Committee held its annual meeting in the Dix building at Elizabeth last night, the principal item of business being the election of officers. Frank H. Smith, of this city, was again made chairman, James E. C. Calvert, of Elizabeth, vice-chairman; John Warner, of Cranford, secretary; Durwald S. Smith, of Elizabeth, treasurer, and James White, of Elizabeth, sergeant-at-arms. The selections were unanimous. The set committees were not appointed but will be within a short time.

The attendance was large and included two of the new members from Plainfield, Duncan Taylor and Arthur Murphy. Mayor Fisk and R. E. Hall were not present. They were welcomed by the chairman and informed that they would be expected to give their views on any matter relating to the committee freely and frequently and that an exchange of ideas would be beneficial to all. The newcomers responded with "harmony" speeches.

In the general discussion of affairs, the committee's work for the coming year was touched upon but no definite action was mapped out. The members were urged by Chairman Smith to attend all meetings and to use their best efforts in the interests of the party.

Beside Messrs. Duncan Taylor and Murphy, the Plainfielders who attended the meeting were former Mayor James F. Buckle, Amos Andrews, Andrew McCardell and Herbert Buxton.

Hamilton F. Kean, former chairman of the County Republican Committee, when interviewed regarding Senator John F. Dryden's prospects of election, said last night after the annual meeting of the committee:

"In my opinion Senator Dryden's chances have improved. The criticisms of the newspapers, many of them decidedly unfair, have caused a reaction in his favor."

When asked whether he or his brother, the Senator, had in any way interested themselves either in behalf of Mr. Dryden or against him Mr. Kean declared that they had absolutely nothing to do with the announcement recently published by the Union County legislators, nor had they in any other respect sought to influence any member of the State Senate or House of Assembly to vote either for or against Mr. Dryden. With reference to the possibility of a deadlock and the postponing of the election until next year Mr. Kean was inclined to a contrary view. He said that he thought the matter would be settled this winter, inasmuch as the leaders would regard it as a risk to wait until next year, when the Democrats might have a majority in joint session.

Supplementary Proceedings.

William Grannatt, Jr., a real estate agent, has instituted supplementary proceedings against Mrs. Bertha Allegar in the District Court. The action is based on a judgment recently obtained by Mr. Grannatt against Mrs. Allegar for commission due on a sale of property. The judgment was for $61. Mr. Grannatt levied on household goods, but could not find property enough to satisfy the claims. The present action is to discover what property Mrs. Allegar does possess and what has become of the money she received for the property. The hearing is set for next Tuesday. F. J. Blatz is Mr. Grannatt's counsel; W. J. DeMeza represents Mrs. Allegar.

Hebrew Association Ball.

The Young Men's Hebrew Association has made arrangements to give a first annual ball in the Plainfield Dancing Academy, on the eve of Lincoln's birthday, February 11. The committee appointed to take full charge consists of Max W. Goldstein, chairman; Jacob W. Moledszky, Herman Kahn, Hyman Richard, Meyer D. Moledezky and Samuel Rothberg.

Appointed Door-keeper.

William Kline, colored, of this city, has been appointed door-keeper of the Senate at the State Capitol and entered upon his duties last night. The appointment was made through the good offices of Senator Ernest R. Ackerman.

Senators' Apartments.

Senators Hillery, Wakelee, Frelinghuysen and Ackerman will be found quartered in a suite of apartments in the Bloomfield, opposite the State House, at Trenton. Governor Stokes lives in apartments there.

PROBING CONSOLIDATION

Corporation Counsel Marsh Discusses Legal Aspects Before Commission.

CHAS. A. REED'S VIEWS

Borough Corporation Counsel Talks On Subject—He Will Appear at Next Week's Meeting.

Further enlightenment as to the measures necessary to secure a union of Plainfield and North Plainfield, and as to the condition surrounding the question as it now stands, was obtained by the Joint Consolidation Commission yesterday afternoon, when the body held its second meeting in Maryor Fisk's office. Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh appeared before the committee to advise it as to the legal aspects of the proposed union.

Chairman Alexander Gilbert called a full committee to order. The session lasted for more than an hour and a half, and the discussion of the major points involved was earnest and exhaustive. Mayor Fisk, of Plainfield, and Mayor Smalley, of North Plainfield, both took prominent parts in the council.

Mr. Marsh outlined the legal steps necessary to bring the two municipalities together, after explaining how the question stood under the law at the present juncture. Five years ago two measures were passed by the Legislature, one authorizing a vote on annexation, and the other referring the question of consolidation to the electorate. The annexation measure is dead, but the consolidation referendum is still in force. Action under it might be taken whenever the municipalities see fit to take advantage of it.

The corporation counsel, it is said, explained the state of affairs, so far as municipal government was concerned, that would be brought about by consolidation. County lines would still hold, and there would be no change in the boundaries of the school districts. That and the other flows in perfect unification of municipay interests attendant on consolidation alone.

Measures by which those things might be straightened out were explained. Annexation is, of course, the speediest and most effective method of corrections. Special legislation might be enacted, saving the county line and Somerset's pride, but constitutional difficulties threatened along that path.

Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed, of the borough, is expected to appear before the committee at its third meeting next Monday afternoon. Mr. Reed spoke frankly on the question yesterday.

"In community of interests the two Plainfields are identical," said Mr. Reed. "That which benefits one benefits the other, and, conversely, that which injures or retards the growth of one injures and retards the other. That we now have two separate municipal governments is owing solely to the fact that Green brook, the county line which originally separated Somerset county from Essex county, and since its creation in 1857 from Union county, in which Plainfield proper is located, runs parallel with the main business thoroughfare of Plainfield and only about two hundred feet away. As Plainfield grew it necessarily spread over the county line, which now divides the community nearly through its centre.

"At the time is was created, about two hundred years ago, when no one but the farmer, the woodsman and the trapper occupied the country, this brook furnished a natural and convenient boundary, easily located and requiring neither survey nor monument to mark its location. That the county line was not long since changed to serve the convenience and promote the welfare of the city which has come to stand astride this purling stream has been owing largely to two reasons. First, because what is everybody's business is no body's business. Second, because it is characteristic of human nature to take little thought of the morrow, but to look chiefly at the immediate present. Incidentally the tendency to travel in the old rut is a factor never to be left out of our calculations. There may be said, perhaps, to be a third reason, politics; but if the first two were overcome the third would be powerless to prevent the union.

"The question of the union of the two towns is one that should not be viewed from the standpoint of today, not even of the immediate future. The question is not, 'How will it affect me or my individual plans? Will it put a few dollars in my pocket or will it take out a few?' That is not the question nor the point of view which should prevail.

"Broadly stated, the real issue is, 'How will it affect the town in the

The Kinsman Block Signal System, A Valuable Industrial Investment.

The Kinsman Block System Co. offers for sale 375 shares of its Preferred Stock, par value 100 per share.

The Company own all the patents of F. E. Kinsman for the control of steam and Electric Railway trains, including those under which the Automatic Stop in the New York Subway is licensed.

The extraordinary value of this stop is shown by the now more than two years perfect operation on the Express tracks of the New York Subway and on the Boston Elevated Railway, where there has never been a collision, or the loss of a dollar's worth of property by the failure of the device, and further by the admitted fact that it has practically doubled the safe capacity of the roads thus equipped. The prospective use of this system in the additional subways and tunnels now under construction or already authorized, to say nothing of its probable ultimate adoption on the elevated railroads in New York, Brooklyn and elsewhere, justifies the Company's claim that the stock of the Company is cheap at par. In addition to this the Kinsman Block System Co. own many valuable patents on practical apparatus for similar control of trains on the surface electric and steam railroads of the country, some of which they are now equipping.

The collision on the "Southern R. R." in which President Samuel Spencer and his associates lost their lives is evidence of the need of such an apparatus. The only difference between that collision and others which occur almost daily is the prominence of the individual victims. The Kinsman Block System Company's apparatus is to the engineer what the air brakes are to the brakeman with the difference that the engineer is a far more important factor to the traveling public than the brakeman. His failure to observe signals or tendency to misunderstand train orders results in destruction of life and property, on the other hand, with the brakeman delays or inconveniences are generally the most serious consequences following negligence. It is only by substituting mechanical precision for human falibility that security can ever be secured.

Engineers do and will continue to run past visual signals set at danger. "Surprise checking" and other disciplinary methods have been in use for many years but still the Inter-state commerce commission's annual reports continue to startle the public and alarm the traveler. The Kinsman Automatic Recorder also owned by the Company meets this difficulty by furnishing the Railroad Management with an irrefutable record of train operation while running over the road, by automatically registering the conditions of all signals each time a train passes, thus correcting the present inspection methods and causing increased diligence and closer obedience on the part of the engineer. Signals either visual, audible or telephonic in the engine cab are no improvement on outside visual signals, in fact they give an engineer or motorman an excuse for neglecting to observe the outside conditions affecting the progress of his train, such as obstructions on the track at grade crossings or elsewhere, or to see the flagman whose duty it is to signal an oncoming train with a red flag or lanterns. In short, the present automatic visual signals as used by many of the principal roads are about the limit of human ingenuity in signalling, the only remaining improvement is in the direction of automatic control now so well covered by the pioneer patents owned or controlled by this Company.

Mrs. M. A. Nutt, of Springfield, Ill., is the guest of Mrs. McMurtry on North Bridge street.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The bank opened this morning. Its opening was brighter than the weather. From 10 o'clock on there was a steady stream of visitors who called to congratulate the officials, to wish for success and to admire the trim woodwork and the businesslike banking counter, with glass panelled partitions above it. The 7,000-ton safe stands in an exposed corner, raised from the floor, so that all parts of it are seen. Press readers are familiar with the description of the safe. The bank staff is made up, for the present, of Cashier A. J. Hamley and Teller Paul Brakeley. The reception will last until 4 o'clock.

The officers of Friendship Council were installed last night. A sociable followed the meeting. Refreshments were served.

of having one's credit good possibly at this time of the year, is a little more noticeable than at any other. Perhaps yours is in excellent shape, but you have already used it as far as you care to go, and are still a little short. Then step in and let us assist you. We're taking care of winter's needs for hundreds whose credit is good, but who hesitate to obligate themselves any further to their friends, and particularly for a loan of a little cash. We loan any sum for any time and accept return payment weekly, semi-monthly or monthly.

We give you a written statement showing the exact cost of a loan, also the exact discount we allow every month the loan is paid before contract time. You will find us always willing to give you facts at our office. If you cannot call, write or 'phone us, and our confidential agent will call and give you full particulars.

The possession of household goods, piano, organ, horses and wagons are sufficient evidence of your ability to pay.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

The selection of Mrs. N. P. Rogers, of this city, as the head of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association, is an excellent one. Mrs. Rogers is particularly active in the game and her administration is sure to be an aggressive one.

Considerable business of importance will be taken up at the annual meeting of the Plainfield Country Club in February, and the coming season promises to be the best ever.

The annual meeting of the Park Golf Club will be held within a few weeks, when plans for the coming season will be formulated.

The Westfield Golf Clubhouse has been painted outside and out and many other improvements made. An addition is also to be built before the active season opens in the spring, and plans have about been completed for making the course an eighteen-hole one.

There will be several changes in the makeup of the officers and committees of the Plainfield Country Club this season, but the same excellent policy of the club will be continued.

DIAMOND DUST.

"Lou" Wiltse has once more had his application for re-instatement denied by the National Baseball Commission. His case was not one half as bad as that of Heyden, also of Baltimore, yet the latter got back.

"Billy" Gilbert for many years the fast second baseman on the Giants, has been sold to the Newark Eastern League Club, and will cover the middle station for the Sailors nxet summer. He is considered a great find.

A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush, which means a .250 pinch hitter is worth two .300 sluggers.

William McCormick, the sightless owner of the Uniontown (Pa.) club, saye he enjoys a ball game as much now as before he became blind.

The Harvard baseball folks want Deacon Phillippe to coach their pitchers for the coming season.

If this Bill Sweeney, who goes from California to the Cubs next season, is as gifted as he has been reported to be, he is too fast for any except the Superhuman League.

Cusack, who umpired for the New York State League last season, is to be on Pat Powers' Eastern League staff.

Fred Clolius, manager last year of the Lancaster Tri-State League team, is thinking of retiring from the game, and he would not accept the management for another season.

Mr. Railing, of Texas, will pitch for the Boston Americans next season. He is a six-footer and left-handed.

Among the important changes in the baseball world this season is the jump of Jack Dunn from the management of the Providence team to that of the Baltimore Eastern League Club. Jack made a success of it at Providence and is confidently expected to do so in Baltimore.

"Phil." Smith has not made any arrangements yet for playing baseball next summer. It appears to be out of the question that he will join one of the big league teams, owing to the opposition of his parents to his leaving home. He will probably be seen pitching for some nearby team.

William Hogg, who caused a sensation last fall by pitching remarkable ball for the New York Americans, sends word to Owner Frank J. Farrell that he now weighs 180 pounds and is as hard as nails. Hogg was twenty pounds lighter than this when he quit at the end of last season, but he insists that his increase avoirdupois is not in any way due to idleness or lack of exercise. There are many baseball experts who predict that Hogg this year will become one of the greatest pitchers in the American League.

AND WHY MR. DRYDEN?

Probably no better summary of the reasons why the people of New Jersey are opposed to the re-election of John F. Dryden has been been written than the one in last night's edition of the Newark Evening News. The practical politician only has one argument in favor of the Newarker. It is that "Mr. Dryden has been good to the party and it owes him a lot." For such generosity the great state of New Jersey is asked to let him have the greatest honor that any man could receive, excepting that it be the Presidency.

These are the reasons why he should not get it:

"Must New Jersey be represented in the United States Senate by John F. Dryden for six years more? If so, why? The voters of this State have already answered this question. A majority of 12,000 or more have declared by their ballots that John F. Dryden must not be re-elected. In obedience to this imperative command of the sovereign people three Republican Senators and six or eight Republican Assemblymen have declared their opposition to the man whom the voters overwhelmingly repudiated at the polls.

"And yet John F. Dryden remains a Senatorial possibility. Why? For exactly the same reason that he was elected to succeed William J. Sewell, deceased, five years ago. Simply and solely because of the power of wealth and corporation influence. As against Dryden in 1902 were John W. Griggs and Edward C. Stokes. The former had proven his qualities of statesmanship. He had been Assemblyman, Senator, President of the Senate, Governor and United States Attorney-General. The latter had been Assemblyman, Senator and President of the Senate. Both had records in the highest degree creditable.

"John F. Dryden had nothing in the way of statesmanship to commend him. He had not been active in politics. He had no record except that which he had gained as the wealthy head of a gigantic corporation. Yet John F. Dryden was elected over all other competitors. Why? This question has never been answered explicity, but no man of intelligence in this State hesitates to frame an answer suitable to his own judgment and conscience.

"John F. Dryden is once more a candidate for United States Senator. Why? Has he in the past five years manifested any noteworthy quality of statesmanship? Has he ingratiated himself with the people of New Jersey? He has not, for they have declared as emphatically as possible that if he is re-elected it will be without their consent, and in the face of their protest. Mr. Dryden is today exactly what he was five years ago, a candidate by the sole virtue of being the wealthy head of a gigantic financial institution, now allied with several others scarcely less gigantic, wealthy and influential. Are the same tactics to be employed now that were employed in 1902, and are they again to be successful in spite of the demands of the sovereign people?

"There are no formidable rivals to Mr. Dryden now; and it is therefore claimed that he is the regular Republican candidate and should be re-elected. Why had he, until very recently, no opponent of the qualities of statesmanship? Governor Stokes gave his reasons only a few days ago, and they were sufficient. Former Governor Griggs gave his reasons several months ago, and they, too, were both enlightening and sufficient. He declared that he had 'had enough of running against Dryden's money.'

"Without his money what would have been Mr. Dryden's strength in 1902? Without his money what is Mr. Dryden's strength today? If Mr. Dryden must be forced upon the people of New Jersey a second time, why? Is it because there is no other statesman worthy to be United States Senator? or is it because, as former Governor Griggs intimates, no one wants to run against Mr. Dryden's money? The Republican caucus is soon to be held, if held at all. The eyes of all the people of this State are turned upon the Republican members; eyes that are full of questioning; eyes that have in them the fire of determination. If Dryden must be re-elected, why?"

T. N. McCARTER QUITS THE PRUDENTIAL LIFE.

Will Give All His Time to Duties of President of Public Service.

Thomas N. McCarter, president of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, has retired from the directorate of the Prudential Insurance Company. At the annual election of directors of the company held yesterday at the home office at Newark, N. J., the name of Mr. McCarter was not presented. In his place John K. Gore, actuary of the company for many years, was substituted. The other directors elected were John F. Dryden, Dr. Leslie D. Ward, Theodore C. E. Blanchard, Seth A. Keeney, Frederick C. Blanchard, Edward Kanouse, Forest F. Dryden, Jerome Taylor, William T. Carter, Jacob E. Ward, Anthony R. Kuser, Uzal H. McCarter, Wilbur S. Johnson, Richard V. Lindabury.

Mr. McCarter assured inquiring persons that his withdrawal had no significance. He said the duties of the presidency of Public Service have been growing to such an extent that he has found they required all his attention and time, and to the end that he may devote himself entirely to the task of his position he has decided to relinquish all business obligations that are not incident to his presidency. It was in line with this decision, he said, that he resigned from the directorate of the Essex County Trust Company last week. He purposes, he said, to get out of all the other directorates he now holds outside of Public Service as soon as his terms shall expire.

It was announced that the directors had ratified several important changes in connection with the business of the company. One of these is a three-cent rate per week for industrial insurance, the premiums for which will call for payments of three-fifts of the amounts now paid on the five-cent weekly policies.

Another innovation is the decision that hereafter no premiums will be required from insured persons after they have reached the age of seventy-five years. Hereafter all policies will provide for paid-up values after three years, including infant policies. These changes relate only to industrial insurance.

Modifies Brownsville Order.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—President Roosevelt sent to the Senate yesterday a message freighted with empty shells, cartridge clips and ball cartridges as grim evidence that negro soldiers did "shoot up" the town of Brownsville, Texas, on August 13 last. In the same message the President announced that the portion of his order declaring the soldiers of the Twenty-fifth Infantry whom he dismissed should never be employed in the civil service was illegal and, therefore, had been rescinded. His authority to banish the soldiers forever from service in the army he defends as being above the power of the Senate or any one else to question. The purpose of this message was to present to the Senate the sworn testimony of witnesses of the affray. To get this evidence President Roosevelt sent to Brownsville Milton D. Purdy, assistant to the Attorney General, and Major Blocksom, of the army. Affidavits which they gathered accompanied the message as additional proof that the negroes were guilty. The President's rescinding of the order depriving the negroes of the right to civil employment under the government has removed a special cause of criticism by private citizens and organizations and many Senators who thought the negroes were guilty and upheld his action in dismissing the whole battalion when he could not ascertain the guilty dozen or more.

After New York Tax Dodgers.

New York, Jan. 15.—More than two thousand of the wealthiest residents of New York city, who in the past have escaped the payment of taxes on their personal estates by means of a nominal residence established in Europe, Rhode Island and New Jersey or the far West, have been caught in the nets of the tax assessors this year through the Saxe Non-Resident Tax law. If the courts sustain the constitutionality of this act the city will be increased by upward of $30,000,000. Lawson Purdy, president of the Board of Taxes and Assessments, expects a case will be begun in the Supreme Court to test the constitutionality of the act as soon as the city undertakes to collect from the men and women who have been able to escape in the past by affirming that they had no legal residence in the city.

Big German Lockout.

Berlin, Jan. 15.—Fifteen thousand trade unionist carpenters and joiners were locked out yesterday in consequence of their non-compliance with the demands of the master carpenters' association. The number will be increased by eleven thousand pieceworkers in the course of a few days, when the work in hand is completed. The lockout is expected to last four to six weeks.

end; what will be the result ten, twenty, fifty years hence? Will it be a good thing for my children and grandchildren and the generations who will live when I am gone and forgotten?' That is the real question as it appears to me.

"Farseeing and unselfish is the spirit in which the question of consolidation of the two Plainfields should be taken up and decided, for the correct solution of this problem is of the utmost importance. Perhaps no single question of such moment will ever again be submitted for solution. That it should be definitely settled once and for all is of the gravest moment, and it must be remembered that 'nothing is ever settled until it is settled right.'

"Such settlement is, I hope, about to be accomplished. The commission recently appointed to investigate and report upon this subject is composed of men of the highest standing, character and ability. No better selection could have been made, and beyond doubt their study of the subject will be thorough and exhaustive and their report one which will present the matter to the general public in such a way as to enable every voter to act intelligemtnly and with confidence."

Thirty-nine S. O. Indictments.

Findlay, Ohio, Jan. 15.—Nine hundred and thirty-nine indictments, carrying possible fines aggregating $50,000,000 and imprisonment terms from 192 to 939 years, were returned by the Grand Jury yesterday against John D. Rockefeller, H. H. Rogers, John D. Archbold, the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, five subsidiary companies and their presidents. Each is charged with being a member of a trust. It is the largest batch of indictments ever returned against the Standard and its constituent companies and probably the most formidable in other ways. Ever since the charing of the case in the Probate Court and the arguments upon the motion to quash the indictments returned recently against M. G. Vilas, H. P. McIntosh and William Robertson, of Cleveland, the counsel for the State have been working on an indictment that would hold.

pal corporations.)

Among the important measures introduced in the Senate were these:

S. 14. By Mr. Robbins. Provides that upon petition of 25 per cent. of the legal voters in any election district where a voting machine is in use, a special election shall be held to determine upon the retention or rejection of such machine a majority vote "against the voting machine" its use shall cease forthwith. (Elections.)

S. 2. By Mr. Hillery. Provides for a constitutional amendment by which in 1909 the counties of the state shall be divided into assembly districts, each containing, as nearly as practicable, an equal number of inhabitants, and shall consist of convenient and contiguous territory, in a compast form; provided that each county shall, at all times, be entitled to at least one member, and the whole number of members to be chosen shall never exceed 60. The court of errors and appeals in invested with power to determine the constitutionality of such division. (Judiciary.)

New York Auto Mad.

New York, Jan. 15.—If there had been the least doubt as to the hold the automobile has upon the New York public, it must have been dispelled yesterday in the minds of any one attending the exhibition of cars of the Selden group in Madison Square Garden. From the opening of the doors in the morning until their closing at night the Swiss valley that has been transplanted by some ingenious method into the huge amphitheatre was thronged with eager crowds that reached a climax last night in a great crush of automobile enthusiasts. "The public seem to have gone automobile mad," said Colonel George Pope, chairman of the Show Committee, as he complacently viewed the scene last evening.

Tuberculois from Autopsy.

New York, Jan. 15.—Tuberculosis, contracted, it is believed, while performing an autopsy upon the body of one who had died of the disease, is killing Dr. Benjamin G. Strong, one of the best known physicians of Long Island City. It is said that he can live only a short time. He is in Arizona, where his wife and daughter are nursing him. He was until January 1 one of the Coroner's physicians of Queens borough, an office he had held since consolidation. It was while performing an autopsy that he scratched a finger and got the poison in his system. He has been losing round in his fight against death, notwithstanding having travelled in many States in the hope that a change might be of benefit to him.

DISREGARD FAMILY TIES

Hugh Fox Reports Great Increase in Abandonment and Desertion Cases.

REPORTS TO GOVERNOR

President of State Board of Children's Guardian Makes Annual State-ment.

The State board of children's guardians has presented its annual report to Governor Stokes, and in this document discusses many phases of vital interests in the matter of the care of children who are dependents. One of the most timely of the subjects treated is the disregard of family ties among certain classes. This subject is taken up by Hugh F. Fox, of this city, president of the board, who, under this caption, says:

"It is noted that the cause of commitment in 40 out of 180 cases during the past year is the desertion of parent or parents. We have spared no pains to follow up such cases whenever we have been able to locate the parent. When he steps beyond the State, however, it is a difficult and expensive thing to trace him and bring him back again.

"The police of Jersey City, Newark and Bayonne, and the county authorities in Hudson and Essex, and in some counties of the second class, have co-operated zealously with us, in a number of these desertion cases, but in smaller communities the local authorities are sometimes averse to spending public money and their own time and energy to what they regard as a fruitless quest for a worthless loafer, of whom the community may well be rid.

"If the 22 foundlings of the past year are added to the 40 cases already mentioned it will be seen that more than one-third of all the dependent children who have become public charges during the year have been deserted or abandoned by their parent. The disregard of family ties found to be one of the principal sources of trouble, and it appears to be one the increase.

"There is little doubt that if thorough investigations were made of the family history of all the persons committed to our State and county institutions the same chief cintributing cause would be found throughout.

"Whether it can be in part controlled by local initiative and authorit depends largely upon local sentiment. When, however, the State has any jurisdiction it ought to take responsibility for action, and should have the means to do it.

"One-third of the children committed (including colored children) are Americans, and most of the others belong to what the immigration restrictions classify as the 'selected races,' namely, the Germans and the Irish. In other words, the so-called 'immigration problem' has not yet presented itself to the State of New Jersey in connection with dependent children."

The report of Frances Day, general agent of the board, shows that the number of commitments of children during the year was 180—38 less than the preceding year. Part of this decrease is due to the fact that overseers of the poor throughout the State were more careful in their investigations of cases where children were concerned.

Miss Day says that an extremely difficult class with which the board has to deal is that of idiots and lunatics. There is no institution in this State for the idiot and lunatic child and the asylums throughout the State have no facilities for caring for insane juveniles. "It seems to me," says Miss Day "that this evil can be easily remedied. A requirement that portions of the State and county asylums be set apart for the care of insane juveniles could be complied with at a very small cost."

Dealing with the abandoned children, Miss Day says: "In two cases we have had persons arrested for abandoning children by throwing them in hallways and the public highway. We have been unable to have them convicted under the law, because in both cases the abandoning persons were not parents of the children.

"To remedy this defect a law should be enacted, preferably an amendment to the crimes act. Cases such as this should be declared by law to be serious crimes and adequate punishment should be provided." Miss Day recommends that some law should be passed which should require parents who are financially able to care for their children who are public dependents simply because of parental abandonment.

The report of Mrs. Emily E. Williamson, as treasurer, shows that the total revenue from the State for the year was $7,543.67, and that the expenses of the board were $7,555.30, leaving a balance due the board of $11.63.

The report of Robert Stewart, consulting physician of the board, shows he made 286 calls to the homes of sick children and 14 examinations for physical and mental defects. He performed 30 vaccinations.

PERKINS STUMPS HOUSE

Constitutional Amendment Resolution Nearly Passed on Its Introduction.

DEMOCRATS WAKE UP

Speaker About to Order Roll Call When Democratic Leader Tumbles to Scheme.

Randolph Perkins, of Union county, the Republican leader of last year's house, last evening nearly threw the Democratic majority of this year off its balance when he introduced in the Assembly at Trenton the concurrent resolution to amend the constitution of New Jersey so that Assemblymen are elected by Assembly districts.

In fact, so bewildered were the Democrats that old watchers of legislation believed that Mr. Perkins could have forced an affirmative vote on the concurrent resolution.

Speaker Lethbridge was about to order a roll call on the resolution when Mr. Klenert, the Democratic leader, woke up and moved reference to the judiciary committee. Mr. Perkins gave in and voted for the reference to the judiciary committee.

This concurrent resolution is a recomendation of Governor Stokes and provides for dividing into equal part of population counties whose population call for more than one representative in the House of Assembly, the court of errors and appeal to review the division of population. No part of one county is to be annexed to another part for the purpose of making an Assembly district.

Previous to the evening session the Democrats concurred and agreed that the appropriations committee of the House should not be reformed. There was a question of the right of the speaker to reform the committee after it had been announced. The House rule says "who shall serve until discharged," and the Democratic caucus could not agree that the speaker had power to discharge the committee now.

It was agreed that the House members could refuse to work with the Senate members of the appropriation committee, if the Senate members sought to hold up Democratic appropriations. Besides, Speaker Lethbridge declared before the session that he did not believe in playing "small politics" in this reforming a committee.

While it was rumored before the session that the repealer of the bishops' lyaw would come in from the Essex members, it did not materialize. However, the purpose of the Democrats to attack constructive Republican legislation was shown when Mr. Holcombe, Hunterdon, succeeded in getting in as house bill No. 1, a measure to repeal the voting machine law.

Last year the Republicans showed constructive work by introducing the great equal tax measure as house No. 1

Mr. Wakelee said that the committee's report would frown on the custom of the past riparian boards granting licenses to railroads to follow river banks and other streams, as well as ocean and bay properties and if the laws were found to allow this, then a change in the existing laws would be advocated. The general opinion of the committee is against selling liquor or making grants, and in favor of leases. But the committee believes that the riparian board should have discretion in such matters when the interests of the school fund lies with grants.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

John Philip Sousa's new comic military opera, "The Free Lance," to be seen here at the New Plainfield theatre tonight, is a return to the comic opera of other days and is said to be an eminently successful return. This collaboration of America's famous band-master and "March King," with Harry B. Smith, the librettist, who wrote "Robin Hood," is said to contain all the rollicking fun and clever wit and jest necessary to laugh a night away as if by magic, accompanied by the most stirring and sparkling melodies ever written by this composer, John Philip Sousa.

The height of realism is reached in the third act of "The Volunteer Organist," which comes to the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night. It is a church scene, and is equipped with real pews, altar and collection boxes, and a genuine church organ, which was constructed especially for this production.

"Merrier than ever, and as merry as the merriest," Billy S. Clifford, foremost of America's light comedian, will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre next Thursday and Friday nights in his latest musical fantasy, "A Jolly Baron." A big company of musical associates appear in J. Harry Kingdom's clever play of today, which contains all the ingredients of comedy, music and song, and a strong supporting company consisting of pretty singing and dancing girls, and Billy S. Clifford, the jolliest of Jolly Barons of the play, is seen at his best, and in his songs are his latest production and score encore after encore. The scenery and costuming are magnificent and gorgeous and the entertainment furnished those fortunate enough to witness leaves a lasting impression.

With both scenes laid in the ancient city of Tokio, Japan, a Russian spy and the remnants of an American comic opera company, there is plenty of local color and many amusing situations in the new Richard Carle farcical opera, "The Mayor of Tokio," that will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre Saturday afternoon and night. The music which is by W. F. Peters is said to be unusually tuneful with more catchy numbers than often fall to the lot of present day comic opera. Among the numbers that have achieved the most popularity are: "Pity My Pitiful Plight," "When the Ocean Breezes Blow," "The Silver Sea of Love," "Foolishness," "Tokio," and "I Like You." This merry bit of tuneful nonsense will be presented here with practically the same company that made the long New York and Chicago runs last season, but a new and costly dress of scenery and costumes has been given the production for the current year.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The sewing meeting of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will be held Friday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock.

The Boys' Mission Band, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will meet Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the large parlor. The subject will be "Syria."

The first session of the Sunday-school at the Hunter Avenue Tabernacle on Sunday was a great success. The attendance was encouraging and much interest was shown.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church will meet Friday night. The subject will be "More Than Conquerers. The Victory Over Temptation."

The evangelistic services which began at the Park Avenue Baptist church Sunday night indicate much interest. They will be held every Sunday night for the present.

For the benefit of All Saints' church, Fanwood, a series of fine tableaux will be given at the fire house tomorrow night. An excellent programme has been prepared.

The Young People's Association of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will meet Friday night at 7:45 and continue the special Bible study under the leadership of Mr. Davis.

The Men's Club of the Congregational church will entertain the women, wives, sisters and other friends at its meeting tonight. An entertainment will be provided by Horace I. Bowne, of New York, and W. E. MacClymont, of this city.

Owen H. Fleming, of Park avenue, has returned from a short business trip out of town.

Mrs. Fred Ivamy, of West Front street, has about recovered from an operation performed recently at the hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Johnston, of Summit avenue, left Saturday to spend a week among relatives at Hackettstown and vicinity.

Dr. Witzel, principal of the public schools at Trenton, who has been visiting Prof. Krebs, of the borough schools, has returned home.

J. Dunbar Wright, of New York, who has been visiting his sisters, Mrs. J. B. Dumont and Mrs. J. E. Corlies, of this city, has returned.

William L. Saunders, president of the Ingersoll-Rand Company, who has been in Washington on business, has returned. He was present at the opening of the bids for the construction of the Panama Canal.

ST. LOUIS IS EXCITED

Cooper Stirs Up People of the Metropolis of Missouri.

ALE REPORTS VERIFIED

Young Man's Medicines Have Seemingly Done All That Has Been Claimed For Them.

St. Louis, Jan. 14.—This city is at present in the midst of an excitement beyond anything that it has experienced in recent years.

Old and young, rich and poor, all seem to have become beside themselves over an individual who was a stranger to St. Louis until two weeks ago.

The man who has created all this turmoil is L. T. Cooper, president of the Cooper Medicine Co., of Dayton, Ohio, who is at present introducing his preparations in this city for the first time.

Cooper is a man about thirty years of age who has acquired a fortune within the past two years by the sale of some preparations of which he is the owner.

Reports from Eastern cities that preceded the young man here were of the most startling nature. Many of the leading dailies going so far as to state that he had nightly cured in public places, deafness of years' standing with one of his preparations. The physicians of the East contradicted this statement, claiming the thing to be impossible, but the facts seemed to bear out the statement that Cooper actually did so.

In consequence people flocked to him by thousands and his preparations sold like wildfire.

Many of the stories were regarded as fictitious in St. Louis, and until Cooper actually reached this city little attention was paid to them. Hardly had the young man arrived, however, had he began demonstrations, as he calls them, in public, and daily met people afflicted with deafness, and with a single application of one of his preparations actually made deaf people hear again.

In addition to this work Cooper advanced the theory that stomach trouble was the foundation of nine out of ten diseases, and claimed to have a preparation that would restore the stomach to working order, and thus get rid of such troubles as rheumatism and affections of the kidneys and liver in about two weeks' time.

This statement seems to have been borne out by the remarkable results obtained through the use of this preparation, and now all St. Louis is apparently mad over the young man.

His headquarters resemble a veritable stampede. Thousands of people are visiting him each day, and the druggists are selling his medicines in enormous quantities.

What seems to make Cooper still more popular is the fact that he practices extensive charitable work, and has already dispensed a small fortune among the poor of this city.

How long the tremendous interest in Cooper will last is hard to estimate. At present there seems to be no sign of a let-up. Physicians claim it to be a fad that will die out as soon as Cooper leaves.

In justice to him, however, it must be said that he already seems to have accomplished a great deal for the sick of this city with his preparations.

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

A TALE OF THE OLD WEST

By HARRY LEON WILSON, AUTHOR OF THE SPENDERS

COPYRIGHT 1903 BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

The little bent man at the house would look at them with a sort of helplessness when they came in, sometimes even forgetting the smile he was wont to hide his hurts. He was impressed anew each time he saw them with the punishing power of such vengeance as was left to the Lord. He could see more than either of the pair before him. The little white-haired boy who had fought him with tooth and nail so long ago, to be not taken from Prudence, had now come back with the might of a man, even the might of a lover, to take her from him when she had become all of his life. He could think of no sharper revenge upon himself or his people. For this cowboy was the spirit incarnate of the oncoming east, thorned on by the Lord to avenge his church's crime.

Then in the night would come the terrors of the dark, the curses and groans of that always-dying thing behind him. And always now he would see the hand with the silver bracelet at the wrist, flaunting in his face the shivering strands of gold with the crimson patch at the end. Yet even this, because he could see it, was less fearful than the thing he could not see, the thing that crawled or lurched relentlessly behind him, with the snoring sound in its throat, the smell of warm blood and the horrible dripping of it, whose breath he could feel on his neck and whose nerveless hands sometimes fumbled weakly at his shoulder, as it strove to come in front of him.

He sat sleepless in his chair with candles burning for three nights when Follett, late in August, went off to meet a messenger from one of his father's wagon trains which, he said, was on its way north. Fearful he was the meaning of his presence, he was inexpressibly glad when the Gentile returned to save him from the terrors of the night.

And there was now a new goad of remorse. The evening before Follett's return he had found Prudence in tears after a visit to the village. With a sudden great onrush of pity he had taken her in his arms to comfort her, feeling the selfishness strangely washed from his love, as the sobs convulsed her.

"Come, come, child—tell your father what it is," he had urged her, and when she became a little quiet she had told him.

"Oh, Daddy, dear—I've just heard such an awful thing, what they talk of me in Amalon, and of you and my mother—shameful!"

He knew then what was coming; he had wondered, indeed, that this talk should be so long in reaching her; but he waited silently, soothing her.

"They say, whoever my mother was, you couldn't have married her—that Christina is your first wife, and the temple records show it. And, oh, Daddy, they say it means that I am a child of sin—and shame—and it made me want to kill myself."

Another passion of tears and sobs had overwhelmed her, and all but broken down the little little man. Yet he controlled himself and soothed her again to quietness.

"It is all wrong, child, all wrong. You are not a child of sin, but a child of love, as rightly born as any in Amalon. Believe me, and pay no heed to that talk."

"They have been saying it for years, and I never knew."

"They say what is not true."

"You were married to my mother, then?"

He waited too long. She divined, clear though his answer was, that he had evaded, or was quibbling in some way.

"You are the daughter of a truly married husband and wife, as truly married as were any pair."

And though she knew he had turned her question, she saw that he must have done it for some great reason of his own, and, even in her grief, she would not pain him by asking another. She could feel that he suffered as she did, and he seemed, moreover, to be pitifully and strangely frightened.

When Follett came riding back that evening he saw that Prudence had been troubled. The candle-light showed sadness in her dark eyes and in the weighted corners of her mouth. He was moved to take her in his arms and soothe her as he had seen mothers do with some sorry little children. But instead of this he questioned her father sharply when their corn-husk mattresses had been put before either side of the fireplace for the night. The little man told him frankly the cause of her grief. There was something compelling in the other's way of asking questions. When the thing had been made plain, Follett looked at him indignantly.

"Do you mean to say that you let her go on thinking that about herself?"

"I told her that her father and mother had been rightly married."

"Didn't she think you were fooling her in some way?"

"I—can't be sure—"

"She must have, or she wouldn't be so down in the mouth now. Why didn't you tell her the truth?"

"If only—if only she could go on thinking I am her father—only a little while—"

Follett spoke with the ring of a sudden resolution in his voice.

"Now, I'll tell you one thing, Mr. Man, something has got to be done by some one. I can't do it because I'm tied by a promise, and so I reckon you ought to!"

"Just a little time! Oh, if you only knew how the knives cut me on every side and the fires burn all through me!"

"Well, think of the knives cutting that girl—making her believe she has to be ashamed of her mother. You go to sleep now, and try to lie quiet; there ain't anything here to hurt you. But I'll tell you one thing—you've got to toe the mark."

CHAPTER XXXII.

The Mission Service in Box Canyon Is Suspended.

Follett waited with a new eagerness next day for their walk to the canyon. But Prudence, looking at him with eyes that sorrow was clouding, said that she could not go. He felt a sharp new resentment against the man who was letting her suffer rather than betray himself, and he again resolved that this man must be made to "toe the mark" to "take his needings;" and that, meantime, the deceived girl must be effectually reassured. Something must be said to take away the hurt that was tugging at the corners of her smile to draw them down. To this end he pleaded with her not to deprive him of the day's lesson, especially as the time was now at hand when he must leave. And so ably did he word his appeal to her sense of duty that at last she consented to go.

Once in the canyon, however, where the pines had stored away the cool gloom of the night against the day's heat, she was glad she had come. For, better than being alone with that strange, new hurt, was it to have by her side this friendly young man, who somehow made her feel as if it were right and safe to lean upon him—despite his unregenerate condition. And presently there, in the zeal of saving his soul, she was almost happy again.

Yet he seemed to-day to be impatient under the teaching, and more than once she felt that he was on the point of interrupting the lesson to some end of his own.

He seemed insufficiently impressed even with the knowledge of astronomy displayed by the prophets of the Book of Mormon, hearing, without a quiver of interest, that when at Joshua's command the sun seemed to stand still upon Gibeon and the moon in the valley of Ajalon, the real facts were that the earth merely paused in its revolutions upon its own axis and about the sun. Without a question he thus heard Ptolemy refuted and the discoveries of Copernicus anticipated 2,000 years before that investigator was born. He was indeed deplorably inattentive. She suspected, from the quick glances she gave him, that he had no understanding at all of what she read. Yet in this she did him injustice, for now she came to the passage: "They all did swear unto him that whoso should vary from the assistance which Akish desired should lose his head; and whoso should divulge whatsoever thing Akish should make known unto them should lose his life." This time he sat up.

IDEAL PROVISION FOR YOUR FAMILY.

A well-known educator says:-"By one of the many plans provided by The Prudential Insurance Company, the money to be paid the family can be paid in yearly instalments, thus carrying the children to and beyond the period when they become self-sustaining."

—Dr. Nathan C. Schaeffer (President National Educators' Association).

Ask about these plans. They form the most perfect provision for parents who wish to provide through life insurance for their children.

Bowling and General Sports

GOLF.

Leighton Calkins, secretary of the M. G. A., and nominated for the executive committee of the U. S. G. A., will go West today on a business trip. He expects to be in Chicago on Friday for the annual meeting.

Stewart Gardner, until January 1 professional at the Garden City Golf Club, and one of the most trustworthy experts on the links, may join the ranks of the Westerners. Aleck Taylor has left the Evmoor County Club, Chicago, and the president, E. F. Carry, has said that the place is to be offerel to Gardner. The Country Club of Rochester has also made an offer to him. Gardner came here from Troon to the Lenox Golf Club in 1900 and soon after went to work at Garden City. The two jobs are the only ones that Gardner has had. He is classed in the first four of American professionals.

A. J. Balfour, who divides his hours about evenly between Scottish golf and English politics, has become an inventor to facilitate the enjoyment of a round. He has devised an ingenious seat umbrella for use on the links.

A large representation is confidently expected at the annual meeting of the United States Golf Association in Chicago on Friday. There is nothing on the carpet except the election of the ticket presented by the nominating committee, which is headed by Daniel Chauncey, and the discussion of the links for the championships. The Western Golf Association is to entertain the delegates at a luncheon and dinner.

The M. G. A. handicap committee will send out the blanks today to club secretaries in order to obtain data for the spring general handicap list. Rating on the par system is now so well understood that the replies should be speedy and accurate. In the early days of par ratings the committeemen had to devote much time to correcting the returns.

FOOTBALL.

It was given out on good authority last night that a picked team of the best amateur soccer players this country affords will be sent abroad in April in order to meet All England at full strength on the Crystal Palace Grounds in London, the scene of many a famous football and cricket match. Francis H. Tabor, superintendent of the Boys' Club, of New York, and himself an enthusiastic supporter and player of the game, and Dr. J. A. Lester, of Philadelphia, who has captained several of the American cricket elevens on their tours of England, will have the selection of the players.

Charles E. Boyle, a former Dartmouth football player, who once tried to whip Jim Corbett in a Cleveland saloon and who was until recently head coach at Des Moines College, has just declared with a flourish that the football rules must be completely overhauled and that the forward pass is a "miserable failure." If Boyle could have seen the Yale eleven play the new game last fall, at the same time demonstrating the beautiful possibilities of the forward pass, he would probably have refrained from making such hasty observations. The football rules are all right.

BOWLING.

In the Central Journal Bowling League tournament, Westfield will roll Newark Bay tomorrow night and at the same time, Cranford will roll Elizabeth. On Friday night, the Park Club will roll at Roselle. Just now the Parks are making a strong bid for first honors.

Y. M. C. A. FIVE LOST TO FAST NEW YORKERS.

But Steady-Going Second Team Wins Another Easy Victory, Defeating High School.

The first team of the Y. M. C. A. basketball squad lost to the St. Christopher Tigers, of New York, last night, and the second team defeated the High School five. The big game score was 40 to 23, the seconds won 42 to 24.

The first team, with its patched places, was not strong enough for the visitors. The Tigers were scratched a bit, but they were never threatened with the loss of their meal.

The line-up and summary:

Y. M. C. A.		Tigers.
Collier		Rogge
Schoonmaker		Schroeder

TO WIND UP AFFAIRS OF BASEBALL ASSOCIATION.

Treasurer Runyon Instructed to Make Report of Club's Finances.

The Plainfield Baseball Association met at the Hotel Iroquois, last night, but because of the absence of Mayor N. B. Smalley, of the borough, who was detained by a meeting of the borough and city consolidation commission little business could be accomplished. It was decided, however, to authorize Treasurer Charles W. Runyon to settle up the business of the association.

Mr. Runyon will communicate with Mr. Smalley today, give him a detailed statement of the association's finances and then this will be presented to Manager Philip Daab. Subsequently efforts will be made to wind up the association.

Manager Ernest Dorflinger, of the Clinton Avenue Baseball Club, together with the Y. M. C. A., desire to use Crescent Oval during the coming season. This arrangement would give Plainfield a game every Saturday. This proposition appeals to the members of the old association and as soon as the consent of Mr. Daab is obtained no doubt the request of the amateur league teams will be granted.

Booming Col. Stevens.

The Stevens League, formed for the purpose of seeking support for Colonel Stevens in his candidacy for the Senate, sent yesterday a letter to all the party members of the Legislature, asking for their aid and support. Among those whose signatures appear on the letter are Walter L. Hetfield, Sr., Robert M. Adams, Jas. E. Martine, John P. Owens and Jas. Connelly, all of Union county; Sam'l S. Swackhamer, of the borough; Nelson Y. Dungan, of Somerville.

Egbert H. Bogardus.

Following an illness of one week with heart failure, Egbert H. Bogardus died at his home on Putnam avenue at 2 o'clock this morning. He was a well known New York broker and a former member of the New York Stock Exchange, at the time being connected with the firm of Hillyer & Co. He leaves a wife, two daughters and one son, all of whom reside at home. The funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Strike of Waitresses Brews.

New York, Jan. 15.—Unless proprietors of restaurants and hotels in which young women are employed as waitresses, accede to demands for shorter hours and better wages, New York city within two months may witness a strike which will tie up the majority of the eating houses. More than fifteen thousand waitresses will be involved. Labor leaders and settlement workers have been busy for several days reorganizing the present union of waitresses and are rapidly aiding members to it. They declare that within two months they will have all the waitresses in New York city enrolled.

Can't Get Ballot Boxes.

New York, Jan. 15.—Control of the ballot boxes in the last city election was denied to Attorney General Jackson, who is striving to have Hearst declared mayor of the city, by Judge Leventritt yesterday. In his ruling the C ourt said the ballot boxes now in control of the Board of Elections did not seem to be in danger, hence he would not interfere with them. He therefore vacated the order of Judge Hendrick impounding the ballots.

Jaeger Boy Doing Nicely.

Charles Jaeger, the boy injured by the smashing of two freights on the railroad near Liberty street, Sunday, was reported by the hospital authorities today as resting easily. Unless unforeseen complications arise, both the crushed leg and the fractured arm can be saved from amputation. The patient suffered greatly from shock at first and for a time it was thought this alone might prove fatal.

He Married After All.

Fidello Dunham, charged by Overseer of the Poor Aleck Ayres on the instance of Lula Stirwalt, was arraigned in the City Court this morning. They are both colored. Fidello said he couldn't marry the girl under any circumstances, but his heart softened after a taste of steel bars brought on by inability to file a bond. The magistrate married the couple at noon.

Father Bogan Entertains Choir.

The members of St. Mary's choir, numbering twenty-two in all, were entertained at dinner by Father Bogan, last night. The affair took place in Stafford Hall and at its conclusion adjournment was made to the school hall where the choir and friends enjoyed a dance. The dinner is an annual custom observed by the church rector.

BUCKLE FAVORS DRYDEN

Former Mayor [illegible]ity Clerk Mac Murray [illegible].B. Woolston En[illegible] Him.

GIVE THEIR REASONS

Charles H. [illegible]nam, of Health Board, [illegible] Speaks On Behalf of the Candidate.

Since the Daily Press interviewed a num[illegible] of representative citizens on M[illegible]yden's candidacy, others have decidedly opposite views on the [illegible]ject.

"I have never met United States Senator John F. Dryden nor have I ever had occasion to communicate with him in the way of business," said former Mayor James F. Buckle, "therefore, what I say is absolutely my own opinion, without prejudice or bias due to personal influence. I want Senator Dryden re-elected. He is a man of constructive abilities. He is honest. I have studied his record in Washington, and no one has been able to find that in any official act has he violated his party obligations. Indeed, the strong light that has been thrown on his record has only made it stand out clearer as that of a man with remarkable ability and of a perfect honesty of purpose and accomplishment.

"There is another thing. I have looked up Mr. Dryden's career since early manhood, and I find him one of the few self-made men. His services to the State before his Senatorial duties were assumed makes him conspicuous of all the men this State has reared. Such a man appeals to me, and I shall do everything in my power to induce our representatives to vote for him."

"I indorse Senator Dryden as a Republican," said J. T. MacMurray, "and I want him re-elected United States Senator. I indorse him because he is an honest man and an able man. His record as a Senator from New Jersey is an honor to his State.

"Now, I feel this way. When a man is capable and honest and entitled to the honor of re-election, I believe it is only a square deal to give it to him. This is pecularly so in Senator Dryden's case, and he announced himself a candidate early last summer, and conducted an active campaign against many unusual and even unfair obstacles, and on the issues raised by his antagonist, Senator Colby, fairly swamped the latter. Certainly it would be anything but a square deal after that to elect another man to his place. It would be dishonorable politics.

"These views I express are the views also of the firm I represent and speak for. Senator Dryden's course in the United States Senate was wise and of great material aid to every industry in this State. I am writing today to Senator Ackerman, expressing these views and requesting him to withdraw from his present position and cast his vote with his Republican colleagues. I know Senator Ackerman very well. He is a business man and he must recognize that the election of a Senator is a purely business matter. He is president of the Lawrence Cement Company, and as such must have the support of his directors in his administrative acts. His business would be ruined if he decided to act in defiance of his directors. I am quite sure that when Senator Ackerman comes to vote on the question he will act in harmony with, and not in defiance of, his party."

L. B. Woolston said that he was so strongly convinced of Senator Dryden's fitness for the office over all other men whose names have been mentioned that he had embodied his views for his indorsement of his candidacy in a letter which he sent to Senator Ackerman.

"In that letter," Mr. Woolston added, "I called attention to Senator Dryden's record and his admitted ability as a constructive business man who had made his own way in life, and said that I thoroughly indorsed Senator Dryden's candidacy, and that I believed his re-election was the only fair and square thing for the party. Finally, I urged upon Senator Ackerman that he reconsider his attitude and endeavor to reconcile his views on the Senatorship with those held by his party colleagues.

"In response to my letter I received a prompt answer from Senator Ackerman acknowledging its receipt and thanking me for letting him have my views. His letter then went on to say that he greatly desired to vote for a candidate who would unite the party, and that every communication sent him helped to form an opinion as to the wishes of the people of Union county."

Charles H. Durham also favors Mr. Dryden.

DAY NURSERY HOLDS ANNIVERSARY RECEPTION.

Children Entertain Guests Who Contribute to the Institution.

The first anniversary of The Day Nursery held at the nursery, 444 West Third street, yesterday afternoon, from 3 to 6 o'clock, was largely attended by members of the City Union, King's Daughters, under whose auspices it is conducted, and by other friends of the charity. There was a generous contribution of dry groceries but not nearly enough for the needs of the institution. A silver offering was received at the door and a snug sum was realized.

Those who poured tea during the afternoon were Mrs. Frederick W. Butler and Mrs. Henry L. Hall, while Mrs. Charles A. Reed and Mrs. Anna Most received the guests. Members of the Cup Bearers' Circle, King's Daughters, including Miss Anna Garrigues, Miss Louise Saunders, Miss Florence Stewart, Miss Marion Hall and Miss Alice Titus assisted in serving tea. An inspection of the place was made by the guests. A feature of the affair was a programme of songs and recitations given by the children in the nursery for the day. They were trained by Mrs. Bird, the matron, and the efforts of the little ones were remarkable when it is considered that Mrs. Bird only has the children a day at a time. Last year over 2,000 children were cared for, while during the past month over 400 children were at the nursery.

RECEPTION TO RETIRED NEW MARKET PASTOR.

Baptists of the Village Honor Mr. Fletcher and His Wife At Reception.

New Market Baptists honored Rev. Frank Fletcher, their retired pastor, and his wife with a reception last night. Over 100 members of the village church attended.

The reception was held at the home of Mr. Fletcher. The house was decorated with plants and flowers, in green and white.

The evening was passed informally. Mr. Fletcher himself, who refuses to recognize years as a weight on the spirit, spent a good part of the evening with the young people. Mrs. Robert Giddes sang solos, and the young people sang college songs. Refreshments were served.

The affair was arranged by the women of the congregation. The executive committee was made up of Mrs. R. L. Pierce, Mrs. Foster Sofield and Mrs. Harry Piddington.

MAY BUILD CHAPEL.

Local Endeavorers Planning Work in the West End.

Encouraging reports were presented at the executive committee meeting of the local Christian Endeavor Union, last night. It was stated that the Gospel meetings being held in the Hunter Avenue Tabernacle are largely attended and helpful. A Sunday-school was organized there on Sunday and many children were present. As soon as circumstances and conditions will permit it is proposed to erect a chapel in the West End of the city.

The union is in need of funds to carry on its work and it is hoped that all the local Christian Endeavor societies will do their share in supporting the worthy cause, financially and otherwise. Gospel meetings are held at the Hunter Avenue Tabernacle, Hunter and Evona avenues, every Thursday night.

Will Build Its Own Wing Walls.

Thus far the Somerset County Board of Freeholders has taken no action on the question of erecting wing walls on the new West End avenue bridge, in accordance with a resolution adopted by the Union County Board which appropriated an amount not to exceed $2,600 for the improvement. In case the Somerset County Board fails to act pretty soon, it is likely that the bridge committee rrom Union county will authorize the erection of wing walls on the city side and the adjoining county to do as it pleases about making the improvement.

Mrs. Ann Kelly's Funeral.

Before a large gathering of relatives and friends, a solemn requiem mass was said over Mrs. Ann Kelly in St. Mary's church this morning. Rev. Father Bogan was the celebrant, Father Delehanty, the deacon, and Father Sciola the sub-deacon. There was a large display of floral tributes. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery, the pall bearers being Patrick Muldoon, Edward Gavin, John Quinn, Hugh McDonnell, David Barry and Patrick Moran.

Peit Jury Discharged.

The petit jury was discharged by the court at Elizabeth yesterday, subject to the call of Sheriff Lawrence. There is so little business on now in the Circuit Court that the services of the jury are not needed every day.

H. R. Brokaw left yesterday for Fort Dodge, Iowa, after a two weeks' vacation spent at his home here.

FORM "PLAINFIELD CLUB"

Association to Have Casino as Home Adopts Constitution and By-Laws.

$8,000 NOW SUBSCRIBED

To Take Over Property and Issue Bonds After Incorporation—Committee's Statement.

It was decided at a meeting of prominent men at the Casino, last night, to organize a club, take over the Casino property and continue it along the lines specified in the constitution and by-laws, drafted by a special committee several weeks ago. The question of selecting trustees was held in abeyance, but it was decided to incorporate, and Saturday night, February 2, was fixed as the time when the next meeting will be held to complete the details of organization. There was a good attendance of men, last night, and much enthusiasm manifested.

The objects of the new club are to be for the promotion of social intercourse, athletics and the general welfare of the city. Men over twenty-one years are eligible to membership. It is also proposed to build two squash courts, make such extensions and improvements as will meet the requirements of the club. Tennis courts will be maintained, and pool, billiards and bowling will continue to be features.

It is further proposed to tear out the present kitchen and install gas grills opening into the pool and billiard rooms. The entrance fee for the first 100 members will be $10 and the dues $30 a year. After the first 100 the entrance fee will be $25 and the dues will continue as $30. The Casino will be continued as a general place of amusement for entertainments, dances and meetings of all kinds as at present.

Among those who signed the petition last night signifying their desire to join such a club, are the following: James T. MacMurray, George H. Goddard, Lewis E. Waring, Owen H. Fleming, Joseph M. Shellabarger, Mayor Charles J. Fisk, George S. Ring, Craig A. Marsh, S. D. Lounsbery, W. deLaR. Anderson, W. Lester Glenney, George A. Beaton, A. L. Otterson and T. M. Day.

The special committee to draft constitution and by-la s, of which Craig A. Marsh is the chairman, presented a draft of a constitution and by-laws and it was accepted. Afterward a resolution was adopted providing that a club be formed and incorporated as outlined. The question of selecting nine trustees was held over, because some of those interested in the movement could not attend this meeting. It is also proposed to make a general appeal to Plainfield men to join the club which is to be known as "The Plainfield Club."

In a statement issued by the committee, the following facts are set forth:

"The Casino is so well adapted to concerts, lectures, dances, musical and dramatic entertainments that it is considered by many as a necessity to the community, and, inasmuch as it is the only suitable place in Plainfield for the purposes above mentioned, to have it torn down would undoubtedly be a great loss to the city. If it be torn down, it cannot put be apparent to those familiar with conditions that it will, in all probability, be a long time before anything can be built to replace it, and without it the people of the city will lose many opportunities for pleasure and entertainment which they now have, but which without the Casino would be impossible. It, will not, however, be maintained longer along the lines it has been in the past, and, unless definite action be taken at an early day, the community will lose it.

"For some time plans have been under consideration looking to preserving the Casino, and the decision has finally been reached that if financial support therefor can be obtained, to organize a corporation to acquire the Casino and ground and organize a club to maintain it. If sufficient financial support can be obtained to purchase the Casino, it is proposed to make such changes in the building as will render it suitable for club purposes; fit up a gymnasium and squash courts; put the bowling alleys in good repair, and make it suitable, not only for a general club, but for athletic purposes."

It is further stated that the entire property can be purchased for $17,000 and it is estimated that $8,000 will be sufficient to make all needed repairs and improvements. The plan is to pay off the mortgage, make a new mortgage for $25,000, and issue five per cent. bonds to that denomination of $100 each and offer them to the men of Plainfield for purchase. Subscriptions for the bonds will be at par, payable 25 per cent. March 15 and 75 per cent. May 15, from

IS A ROYAL PHILATELIST

HE IS A STAMP EXPERT

Only Four Other Americans in Society—The Prince of Wales Is Head of the Society.

With four other prominent stamp collectors of this country, State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman can now write "F. R. P. S. L." after his name. It means "Fellow of the Royal Philatelic Society, London," and is a new title just made possible by grant of King Edward of England. The Prince of Wales is a philatelist and is the president of the society. Previous to the King's action, the name of the society was merely the "Philatelic Society, London." The number of members who can be "fellows" of the society is limited to 350. The Americans in the list are W. H. Crocker and Henry J. Crocker, of San Francisco; Denry Duveen and P. F. Bruner, of New York; E. R. Ackerman, of this city.

No man in New Jersey is better grounded in philately than Mr. Ackerman. No more than a score of men in the United States are as well versed in it. When he was yet a small boy he formed the nucleus of his magnificent collection, which today is contained in more than two dozen albums. During his trips around the world he has found much enjoyment in examining famous private collections, attending exhibitions held by philatelic societies, viewing the assortments of dealers and conferring with men who have spent fortunes in gathering stamps.

Mr. Ackerman has received medals and ribbons as prizes for collections he has had at public exhibitions in this country and abroad. His collections of the issues of Norway and Sweden won for him a prize not long since, and he has also received an award for his collection of stamps of the possessions of the United States, which is hard to surpass anywhere. The "den" of Mr. Ackerman's house is papered entirely with the uncancelled stamps of a South American Republic.

HAMILTON KEAN DINES UNION'S ASSEMBLYMEN

PERKINS, TILLMAN, MOXON AND COUNTY CHAIRMAN THERE.

There was much gossip over a little dinner which was given in the Waldorf-Astoria, in New York, last Friday night. Hamilton Kean, brother of United States Senator John Kean, was the host, and the guests were Assemblymen Randolph Perkins, Peter Tillman and John R. Moxon, of Union, and Frank Smith, chairman of the Union County Republican Committee. Senator Ackerman was not invited.

It was alleged that the object of the gathering was to endeavor to bring the Union county members of the Legislature into line for John F. Dryden for United States Senator, but this is denied.

"You can say," said Mr. Perkins when asked about the dinner, "that there is no change in the position of the members of the Legislature from Union county from that they announced in the statement they made some time ago." Mr. Tillman laughingly added that "not much was said about the Senatorial situation."

FIRE PURSUES THEM.

Flames Keep at the Lufburrows' Furniture Until it Disappears.

George Lufburrow, of Matawan, had some furniture left after a fire at his house two months ago, but he hasn't any at all now. Mr. Lufburrow, who has been living with his son, Dr. C. B. Lufburrow, of West Front street, since the fire, learned this week that another fire had destroyed the place where he stored the remnants of his furnishings, and the remnants with it.

The furniture was stored in a summer cottage. It caught fire Saturday night, and went up like oil soaked paper. Immediately after the first fire Mr. Lufburrow, his wife and two daughters came here to the doctor's house. They are afraid to go back to Matawan for fear they will be caught by fire themselves.

J. J. Kliner, Jr., Marries.

Announcement is made of the marriage on Saturday last of John J. Kliner, Jr., of this city, and Miss Carrie Bein, of Califon, Hunterdon county, which, owing to the recent death of the bride-s mother, was a quiet affair. The couple will reside in this city.

'MIKE' MULDOWNEY DEAD

End Came This Morning After Long Fight Against Tuberculosis.

HIS CASE WELL-KNOWN

Mayor Fisk Had Sought to Effect a Cure By "Home Treatment" But Disease Had Gone Too Far.

Despite the untiring attention that had been given him and the heroic battle he waged himself, death came at 8:30 this morning to Michael Muldowney in his hospital tent on the Casino grounds. The ravages of tuberculosis had so far encroached upon his system that he was no longer able to continue his fight for life and began to sink several days ago. It was known early this morning that the end was not far off and his relatives were summoned. He remained conscious until a half hour before his death.

No one knew Michael Mudowney but as "Mike" and because of his almost unlimited acquaintance in the city his case has attracted widespread attention. When the pulmonary trouble that brought about his death became manifest more than a year ago, he kept silent about his condition until it became too apparent and was brought to the notice of Mayor Charles J. Fisk, a warm friend, and his employer, Maze Edwards. Mr. Fisk has always held the theory that cases of this nature can be properly overcome by "home treatment" and he decided to have "Mike" receive the best of attention.

At his personal expense, the mayor had a tent made especially for the purpose placed in a spot on the Casino grounds where it could derive the greatest benefit from light and air. It had flaps for closing in bad weather but which were intended to be up almost all the time and was made as comfortable as possible under the circumstances. Trained nurses were secured and the patient was placed on a diet and watched over every moment of the day and night.

When this treatment was commenced "Mike" had already been ill at least six months but at the outset there was a marked improvement. His pulse went down, he gained weight and there were times when the old smile came back to his features. Mr. Fisk visited him day after day and Maze Edwards and other friends spent many hours with him. "Mike" appreciated everything that was done for him and he proved a model patient. He bore everything bravely, even when the treatment called for sever discomfort, and no complaint ever came from him. There were times when it seemed that he would eventually become himself once again but the trouble had evidently secured too firm a hold upon him and all that loving hands could do was of no avail.

"Mike" was twenty-seven years old and was the son of James Muldowney, of West Third street. When only out of school a short time he entered the employ of Maze Edwards when the latter became manager of Music Hall. He was at first property man and by degrees held other positions in the house staff until he was Mr. Edwards' first assistant. When Music Hall was closed and Mr. Edwards took charge of the Casino, "Mike" went with him. He was faithful and devoted in his work and it was because of his determination to keep up that he refused to admit that he was sick even when his strength was rapidly ebbing away.

Beside his father there are surviving him four brothers and four sisters. They are Thomas, Cormack and Patrick Muldowney, of this city; James, of Wilmington, Del.; Mrs. Thomas Eganey, Mrs. Stephen Murphy, Mrs. Charles Pagliucci and Miss Bessie Mudowney, all local residents.

Editor O'Toole In Kingston?

John L. O'Toole, city editor of the Newark Evening News, sailed last Sunday on the Prinz August Wilhelm from New York for Kingston, Jamaica. He was accompanied by Mrs. O'Toole. There was a large number of American tourists on the ship, which is supposed to have touched at Kingston last Friday night and to have then proceeded to other points. Whether Mr. and Mrs. O'Toole left the ship at Kingston is not known.

Acquitted of Shooting.

In the Somerset County Courts at Somerville yesterday, the only one of the three indictments found by the last grand jury that came to a trial had its inning. Harry Johnson, indicted for attempting to shoot Herbert H. Mount, proprietor of a hotel at Rocky Hill, was tried and acquitted.

NEW ROAD PROPOSED IN SOMERSET COUNTY.

Would Connect Plainfield With Many Residential Towns to the North.

Plans for opening a proposed county road, extending from the end of Somerset street, the borough, through Watchung, the beautiful Washington Valley to Warrenville, thence over the hills to Mt. Bethel and down to Millington, are being developed and the adoption of them is anticipated by many residents of the city and borough.

This road would be one of the finest scenic drives in this part of the State, through beautiful hills and valleys. It would be possible to drive through Bernardsville, Morristown, Madison, Summit, Springfield and Scitch Plains, giving automobile owners a complete circuit of fine roads through an ideal country.

The Somerset County Board of Freeholders has passed upon the proposed road and it now rests with State Road Commissioner Hutchinson to give his approval. It is said that the road would be of great value to the people of the city and borough, connecting this section with the residential towns to the north. It is believed that Mr. Hutchinson will approve the plans and thus make possible another attraction to Plainfield and North Plainfield.

THE SCOTCH PLAINS LIBRARY FLOURISHING.

Association Elects Officers and Hears Encouraging Reports.

At its annual meeting in the library rooms, last night, the Scotch Plains Library Association elected the following officers: President, Mrs. A. B. Sykes; vice president, Mrs. Thomas; financial secretary, William Noble; corresponding secretary, Mrs. T. M. Paff, Jr.; treasurer, Dr. F. W. Westcott; librarian, Mrs. Thomas; trustees, David P. Hall, T. J. Nichol, Samuel Hollingsworth, Philip Jahn and John G. Hetfield.

Reports for the past three months were submitted showing that the number of volumes exchanged was twice as many as for the corresponding three months in 1905. The attendance has also greatly increased and the officers of the association were greatly pleased to note how the influence of the library is extending. It now has 1,554 volumes and is well equipped with reference books and periodicals. Plans for the coming year were discussed in an informal way.

WORK AMONG IMMIGRANTS.

Miss Melby Tells of Work at Ellis Island.

Miss Melby, who is a Baptist missionary doing work among the immigrants at Ellis Island, addressed the Women's Home Missionary Society, of the First Baptist church, yesterday afternoon, telling of her work among the foreigners arriving daily in this country. She gave a graphic description of the thousands of immigrants arriving daily at Ellis Island, of the provisions for their detention until arrangements are made to send them to various parts of the country.

An interesting part of the talk was that devoted to the character of the immigrants and of the progress of the missionaries in their efforts to teach them about Christianity and help to make good citizens of them. Miss Melby works among all classes of immigrants. She said that the work was most encouraging and gives promise of great results.

Mrs. Reuben Knox, as president of the society, was in charge and conducted the opening exercises, after which the meeting was given over to Miss Melby's talk.

Freeholder Wilbur On Bridge Work.

Now that William Westphal has retired as a member of the Union County Board of Freeholders, his place will be taken on various committees to he appointed by Freeholder Wilbur. There is some bridge work in this city needing attention and Mr. Wilbur will likely be given supervision of it. Yesterday he gave instructions to Freeholder Mobus, of the Somerset County Board, to make repairs to the Somerset street bridge, which was on the borough side. Freeholder J. Hervey Doane will also share in the work at this end of the county.

Old Buildings Removed.

Hyman Kline, the contractor, and original purchaser of the old court house and jail at Somerville, has commenced the work of tearing down the structures and he has been given thirty days in which to complete the job. Mr. Kline's request that the Board of Freeholders let him have the old buildings for $500, a reduction of $320, was refused and he at once commenced the work of demolition.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Frank French and family, of Washington avenue, are making preparations to go to Florida for the rest of the winter. They will probably leave the latter part of the present month.

CASH MADE 'EM NERVOUS

Safe Works Management Upset Over Sudden Disclosure of Bank Funds.

CRACKED A BALKY SAFE

At Works Saturday Night and They Didn't Breath Easy Until Police Moved Big Sum Quietly to Bank.

This is the story of safe-breakers who were disturbed over the large sum of money that confronted them after their operations, and who begged the police to help them put it in a place where they didn't stand in danger of losing it all. They didn't want the responsibility of having so much money in their position, and they breathed a great sigh of relief when a detachment of police took it from them.

The finicky safe-crackers are the experts and management of the Manganese Steel Safe Company, of this city. The safe came to them from the First National Bank, of Gallitzin, Cambria county, Pennsylvania, last week. The bank management allowed the time lock to run down and they couldn't get the doors open. Men sent to Gallitzin by the safe company found they could not open the strongbox unless it was sent to the works, and the safe with its bundles of notes and rolls of coin was shipped to the Manganese plant.

The prize experts of the company went at it in the shop, and although it was a tough job—the company is proud of the fact that even its own experts have a hard time getting one of their safes open against its will—the men finally forced the doors apart. That was on Saturday evening.

The opening of the doors disclosed the biggest part of the bank's cash on the day the safe went on strike—not far from $50,000. When the works management saw the money and realized that it was up to them to safeguard it, they grew nervous. They didn't have an old safe handy, and the banks were, of course, all closed.

They called up William F. Arnold, cashier of the City National Bank, at his home, and asked him if he couldn't do something to help them. He said the bank's regular safe was timelocked, but he thought he could find a corner in a vault somewhere. The safe works folks, with hope lightening their hearts, hurriedly arranged to get the money to the City Bank.

They enlisted the assistance of Chief of Police Kiely, and he ordered the patrol wagon out as a treasure express. With two picked policemen, heavily armed, in it, the wagon was sent to the works, and the money was put in it. The shipment was accomplished very secretly. The police didn't want any stray hoboes or yeggmen to hear of the passage of the wagon through the lonely streets of the manufacturing district. Nobody learned of it, and the money passed into the portals of the bank safely. When the safe works management heard of it, they released a concerted gasp of relief and exchanged congratulations.

Mr. Arnold had the money watched through the night, and had it counted on Sunday. After communicating with the Gallitzin bank, he forwarded a draft for the amount of it. The Gallitzin bank has secured specie enough for its every-day purposes from Pittsburg.

AWARDED MANY PRIZES.

Sunswick Farm's Fine Exhibit At Boston a Winner.

Rufus Delafield, owner of the Sunswick Poultry Farm at South Plainfield, received word this morning from his manager, George May, who has charge of Mr. Delafield's exhibit at the Boston Poultry Show, Mechanics' Hall, Boston, that his stock was awarded the following prizes yesterday:

Blacks, first cock, first, second and third hens, first, second and third pullets, first and second cockerels, first, pen and silver cup. Buffs, second cock, first cockerel, first and fourth pullets, first pen. White, first cock, first and fourth hen, third and fouth pullet, first, pen.

As manager of the farm, Mr. May has raised poultry that has taken prizes at many shows.

People to Control Prudential.

A bill introduced Monday night by Assemblyman Alexander repeals the act of the Legislature which deprived policyholders of the Prudential Company of the right to vote and made the company a stockholders' corporation. The bill was referred to the committee on banking and insurance.

Mrs. Charles Hyde, of East Front street, goes to Atlantic City, tomorrow, where she will be registered at the Marlborough-Blenheim.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

WESTFIELD.

The date for opening the new Westfield Public Library has again been postponed, owing to the unfinished condition of the interior. The trustees say that they cannot at present set a positive date for opening.

A series of special evangelistic services were commenced Monday night at the Westfield Presbyterian church under the leadership of Rev. Thomas Edgar.

Mrs. Laurence Dunable will entertain the Women's Auxiliary of St. Paul's Episcopal church at her home in Harrison avenue tomorrow afternoon.

The lot owners of Fairview cemetery re-elected the old board of trustees at the meeting held at the Westfield Library rooms Monday night.

The tax rate in Mountainside this year will be less than $1 upon $100 valuation. The borough has a surplus in the treasury.

Night work is to be resumed at the Hall Signal Works, Garwood, in order to keep up with the work on hand.

SOMERVILLE.

On Sunday evening in the Methodist church three historical sketches were read at the diamond anniversary of the church. Jacob Huff read an account of the progress in the Sunday-school, Mrs. Edward Huff a sketch of the women's societies, and John Zulauf a sketch of the Epworth League. The church was well filled with members.

Mrs. Henry Teeple, of Trenton, is visiting relatives here.

ASK ARMERS TO CHANGE VOTE AGAINST DRYDEN.

Friends of U. S. Senator Appeal to Union County Agricultural Association to Reconsider Action.

Elizabeth, Jan. 16.—Strong pressure is being brought to bear to have the Union County Agricultural Association reconsider its resolutions raising State Senator Ackerman and Assemblymen Tillman, Moxon and Perkins for their refusal to pledge their votes for John F. Dryden, who wants to be re-elected United States Senator.

Members of the farmers' organization, it is said, have been approached by outsiders to use their influence in having the resolutions in question, as passed last Thursday, wiped from the minutes. It is understood that the man who fathered the resolutions has been asked by other members to give his consent to a reconsideration, but he has refused to do so. The purpose is to hold a special meeting on Thursday here, provided the author of the resolutions will change his decision, but he shows no inclination that way. H. W. Beebe, of this city, is president of the organization.

New York Bribery Arrest.

New York, Jan. 16.—Alderman William S. Clifford, who was elected from Queens Borough in 1905, was arrested on a charge of bribery yesterday and, in default of $10,000 bail, spent the night in the jail attached to the West Side Court. In his possession when he was made a prisoner was an envelope in which were twelve $500 bills, which had been given to him, it was charged, as pay for casting his vote and those of ten other Aldermen for former Judge Rufus B. Cowing for Recorder. Clifford and the other Aldermen named were elected on the ticket of the Municipal Ownership League, as the W. R. Hearst organization was known before it became the Independence League. That Mr. Cowing had no knowledge of what was being done, or, indeed, that there was any agreement that votes should be cast for him, is freely admitted by all who know of the matter. All that is known to the District Attorney of the part played by the ten other Aldermen is what was told by Clifford and the fact that they voted for Mr. Cowing, as Clifford said they would.

The Kinsman Block Signal System, A Valuable Industrial Investment.

The Kinsman Block System Co. offers for sale 375 shares of its Preferred Stock, par value 100 per share.

The Company own all the patents of F. E. Kinsman for the control of steam and Electric Railway trains, including those under which the Automatic Stop in the New York Subway is licensed.

The extraordinary value of this stop is shown by the now more than two years perfect operation on the Express tracks of the New York Subway and on the Boston Elevated Railway, where there has never been a collision, or the loss of a dollar's worth of property by the failure of the device, and further by the admitted fact that it has practically doubled the safe capacity of the roads thus equipped. The prospective use of this system in the additional subways and tunnels now under construction or already authorized, to say nothing of its probable ultimate adoption on the elevated railroads in New York, Brooklyn and elsewhere, justifies the Company's claim that the stock of the Company is cheap at par. In addition to this the Kinsman Block System Co. own many valuable patents on practical apparatus for similar control of trains on the surface electric and steam railroads of the country, some of which they are now equipping.

The collision on the "Southern R. R." in which President Samuel Spencer and his associates lost their lives is evidence of the need of such an apparatus. The only difference between that collision and others which occur almost daily is the prominence of the individual victims. The Kinsman Block System Company's apparatus is to the engineer what the air brakes are to the brakeman with the difference that the engineer is a far more important factor to the traveling public than the brakeman. His failure to observe signals or tendency to misunderstand train orders results in destruction of life and property, on the other hand, with the brakeman delays or inconveniences are generally the most serious consequences following negligence. It is only by substituting mechanical precision for human falibility that security can ever be secured.

Engineers do and will continue to run past visual signals set at danger. "Surprise checking" and other disciplinary methods have been in use for many years but still the Inter-state commerce commission's annual reports continue to startle the public and alarm the traveler. The Kinsman Automatic Recorder also owned by the Company meets this difficulty by furnishing the Railroad Management with an irrefutable record of train operation while running over the road, by automatically registering the conditions of all signals each time a train passes, thus correcting the present inspection methods and causing increased diligence and closer obedience on the part of the engineer. Signals either visual, audible or telephonic in the engine cab are no improvement on outside visual signals, in fact they give an engineer or motorman an excuse for neglecting to observe the outside conditions affecting the progress of his train, such as obstructions on the track at grade crossings or elsewhere, or to see the flagman whose duty it is to signal an oncoming train with a red flag or lanterns. In short, the present automatic visual signals as used by many of the principal roads are about the limit of human ingenuity in signalling, the only remaining improvement is in the direction of automatic control now so well covered by the pioneer patents owned or controlled by this Company.

of having one's credit good possibly at this time of the year, is a little more noticeable than at any other. Perhaps yours is in excellent shape, but you have already used it as far as you care to go, and are still a little short. Then step in and let us assist you. We're taking care of winter's needs for hundreds whose credit is good, but who hesitate to obligate themselves any further to their friends, and particulary for a loan of a little cash. We loan any sum for any time and accept return payment weekly, semi-monthly or monthly.

We give you a written statement showing the exact cost of a loan, also the exact discount we allow every month the loan is paid before contract time. You will find us always willing to give you facts at our office. If you cannot call, write or 'phone us, and our confidential agent will call and give you full particulars.

The possession of household goods, piano, organ, horses and wagons are sufficient evidence of your ability to pay.

New Spring Silk Dresses and Shirtwaist Suits

At One-third Off What They Will Cost Later On.

An unexpected early season event that will bring joy to many who are making early preparations for summer, especially to those contemplating a trip South in the near future.

These Silk Dresses and Shirtwaist Suits come from one of the best makers of these garments we know of, who, anticipating the advance in silks, bought largely of piece goods and in so doing, while he profited, tied up much of his capital, and he was glad to turn over his big lot of dresses and shirtwaist suits so early and secure needed cash for operating purposes.

Several hundred garments come to us for much less than we would have to pay a little later on, but we are going to place them on sale at once at prices much lower than you will pay when spring really comes, and we expect tremendous selling.

THESE THREE LOTS GO ON SALE TOMORROW, THURSDAY MORNING, AT 9 O'CLOCK.

WOMEN'S SILK SHIRTWAIST SUITS of fine, soft silk taffetas in a variety of beautiful grays, blues, browns and reseda; some in plain colors; many in hairline stripes; some with rich lace yokes; others fancy trimmed; some with lace trimmed sleeves, many pretty Jumper Suits with French knots and other ornamentations are included—suits that would be rightly valued at $18.50, to go at $9.75

WOMEN'S SILK SHIRTWAIST SUITS of fine taffetas in richest grays, blues, browns and reseda, including pretty hairline stripes with many handsome fancy yoke effects and pretty sleeves; fashionable Jumper Suits included in the lot—suits that would naturally sell at $22.50 to $25.00; priced specially for this great event at only $12.50

WOMEN'S SILK DRESSES, PRINCESS GOWNS AND SHIRTWAIST SUITS of rich messaline, elegant plain taffetas and dressy hairline stripes, neat checks and handsome plaids in a variety of shades sufficient to please any taste; all made in charming styles, beautifully trimmed gowns that later on will be sold everywhere at $35.00 or close to it; priced for this great sale at only... $18.50

SPRINGTIME WAISTS

SEASON'S FIRST ARRIVALS OF WHITE BEAUTIES IN A SALE.

Our patrons have been delighted with this early introduction of WHITE WAISTS in the new Spring styles, and they have not only bestowed upon them generous praise but they bought freely. There are many hundreds of these new beauties awaiting you—another lot arrived yesterday—which enables us to make three prices instead of two as formerly.

WHITE WAISTS—In dainty and effective models of allover embroidery; waists with yokes of embroidery—fronts intertwined with plaits and pin tucks; collars and sleeves exquisitely trimmed; a very large variety of styles to choose from; all wanted sizes; waists that should sell at $2, to go in this sale at only $1.00

WHITE WAISTS—Of fine lingerie batiste with entire fronts beautifully embroidered, with open fronts and long sleeves, and handsome models in allover embroidery with lace yokes; some with panel effects and lace insertions; half a dozen pretty styles to chose from; all sizes; regular prices should be $3.00 to $3.98, in this sale $2.00

The third group embraces beautiful WHITE WAISTS of fine Persian lawn in a number of dainty styles, elaborately trimmed with panels of fine embroidery; some with insertions of lace and embroidery; all charming models indeed, including sizes 34 to 44; waists that might readily be sold at $2.50 to $3.00; to go in this introductory sale at only $1.50

CONSTIPATION CURSE OF MANKIND.

Dr. Oidman's Liv-r-oids never fail to cure Constipation, Billiousness and all Liver Complaints. They destroy the germs and thus remove the cause.

You May Try a Full-Sized Bottle Free.

Constipation is the starting point of all kinds of dangerous and distressing diseases, such as Appendicitis, Piles, Billiousness, Sick Headaches, Dyspepsia, Female Troubles and scores of others. If your bowels are strong and healthy they will act properly and disease cannot enter or remain in the system. A sound Stomach means sound lasting health.

The true way to cure constipation, Billiousness, Sick Headache and all those diseases arising from a Torpid Liver, has been discovered by Dr. Oidman, and his prescription is known as Liv-r-oids. We ourselves know that Liv r-oids will cure the worst forms of constipation and all the dangerous diseases of the Bowels and Liver, which are such a great menace to life. If you have never tried Liv-r-oids before, we will send absolutely free to every one sending name and address, a 25 cent bottle of this great remedy. Liv-r-oids make you feel right, and make you look on the bright side of life. Liv-r-oids are not a patent medicine but an eminent physicians prescription in tablet form (formula on bottle). There is no element of doubt in the curing power of Liv-r-oids. They are not a miracle, but only science working along on natural lines assisting nature. We want you to try Liv-r-oids to-day, they sell at 25c. a bottle, but if you have not tried them before, send your name and address and you will receive a full sized bottle free—no obligations—nothing to pay—merely recommend them to your friends if they do what we claim. SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

Pinehurst's big week of golf began yesterday with a qualifying round in the annual advertising men's tournament, five divisions of sixteen each and one of eight qualifying for the match play round, which began today. The day was absolute perfection and an even 100 players started, C. R. Newbold, of Washington, winning the gold medal offered for the best score with a card of 89. Albert B. Ashforth, of New York, was second in 92, winning a silver medal, the balance of the field finishing well bunched, with numerous ties in the first division.

Playing golf on an express train going at the rate of fifty miles an hour was the killtime feature of a party of the Advertising Men's Golf Association, which left New York on Saturday for the midwinter tournament at Pinehurst. No clubs were swung, no windows were smashed, nor were there any flying balls. But the enthusiasm was there just the same.

"Substitute Golf" took the place of the real outdoor article. The boards that represent the holes were laid out on eighteen card tables in the parlor car, and the tournament was voted a complete success. No less than forty-six players competed. The winner of the tournament proved to be Charles S. Meek, of Toronto, who won after two extra holes. He holed his approach for a 2 on the last green at 11 p. m. amid applause from an enthusiastic gallery.

DIAMOND DUST.

With the Tri-State League taken into the National agreement fold there appear to be at least two new "outlaw" circuits that may make trouble. One of them is the prospective Atlantic League, from which Trenton and Wilmington were taken and awarded to the Tri-State. This organization threatens to invade Newark, one of the strongholds of the Eastern League, in addition to putting rival clubs in Trenton and Wilmington. The other rumored "outlaw" circuit may include Youngstown, Ohio, Elmira, Williamsport, Lancaster, Reading, Wilkesbarre, Scranton and Pittsburg, Pa. If this circuit materializes it means that Williamsport will jump the Tri-State, and that James Kerr will put up the money for the new Pittsburg club, an invader of National League territory. The promoters of these "outlaw" circuits believe that there are plenty of disgruntled ball players who would jump at a chance to secure larger salaries.

Dan Coghlan, formerly coach of the University of Pennsylvania baseball team, has been selected to coach the Cornell baseball team for the coming season, to take the place of Glenn S. Warner and Hugh Jennings. The appointment was ratified by the athletic council last night and Coghlan will come to Ithaca immediately. Coghlan was recommended by Jennings. He played professional ball on the Louisville and Washington National League teams and later on the Wilkesbarre team. He coached Pennsylvania two years ago and last year was coach of the Lehigh team.

HAS THRILLING EXPERIENCE.

Glen Gardner Man Crawls Long Distance With Broken Leg.

Glen Gardner, Jan. 16.—John Miller, about thirty-five years old, residing with his sister, Miss Mary Miller, in this village, had a thrilling experience Sunday night in the mountains between this place and Mt. Kipp, where the State Tuberculosis Sanitarium is being erected. Mr. Miller has been employed at the sanitarium for a year as assistant plumber, returning to his home every night.

Owing to some extra work to be done that the institution might be finished by a certain time, he went there Sunday to complete a job. He did not get through until dark, and when ready to start for home he borrowed the lantern of Clark List, fireman there. In order to save time he took a short cut across the fields and timber land. When about a quarter of a mile from the buildings he stumbled and fell, the light in his lantern going out. He tried to arise, but found it impossible, and discovered that he had broken his leg. He called for help, but no one heard him.

He lay for some time on the wet ground, while a drizzling rain added to his discomfort. Finally he crawled back to the building, consuming three hours in the trip. When he reached the entrance of the boiler-room, where Lisk is employed at night, he was covered with mud and completely exhausted. Mr. Lisk carried the injured man into the boiler-room and started for Dr. Edgar Hunt, who soon arrived and set the broken member. Miller was made as comfortable as possible and yesterday was taken to his home, where he is in a precarious condition owing to his exposure. Both bones of his leg are broken between the ankle and knee.

ATTACKING BISHOPS' LAWS.

While there is not the least possibility that any legislator from Union would favor the attempt to repeal the Bishops' laws, it behooves the friends of law and order throughout the county to petition their representatives to use their best endeavors to kill the plot. Union county stands as firmly for the present statutes as it did when the measures were enacted and for that matter so do the great majority of all law abiding citizens of New Jersey.

There can be no concealing the fact that the brewers are back of the bill introduced in the Legislature by a Democrat from Essex county. They have suffered a severe blow financially speaking because of its rigorous enforcement. The Sunday trade of the saloons was a source of huge revenue for them and of therefore of course they naturally are fighting tooth and nail to have the present statutes repealed despite their public expressions to the contrary.

The responsibility for the bill introduced in the House yesterday does not rest with the Democratic party. As the Trenton True American says: "It is true that the Democratic Assembly ticket in Essex was pledged to the repeal of these laws. It is also true that the Republican Assembly ticket in the same county was pledged to similar action, but it should have been patent to all the Essex county legislators that their efforts are doomed to failure, and any move to tamper with the excise laws at this session would only withdray public attention from more important matters. The introducer of this repealer is a Democrat, but it must be assumed that the Democratic party will approve efforts made in this direction. There are Democratic opponents of the Bishops' laws, just as there are Republican opponents. Their repeal is in no sense a party issue, and if the repealer introduced gets through the house it will only be with the aid of Republican votes, just as Democratic votes aided in their enactment."

CHOOSING ASSEMBLYMEN.

Senator Perkins has lost no time in introducing a bill providing that Assemblymen be elected by districts and not by the county at large. Supporting his idea are Governor Stokes and other clean and able political leaders. The men realize that the present method of choosing representatives for the lower House is wrong in theory and harmful in practise. The proposed scheme is one that has been followed with good effect in Pennsylvania and other States. It should be adopted in New Jersey.

The bi-municipal commissions on public ownership and consolidation are both made up of the very best possible material. That is demonstrated by the way they have gotten down to real hard, earnest work

Fairbank's Son Indicted.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 16.—Frederic C. Fairbanks, son of Vice President Fairbanks, is under indictment for falsely procuring a marriage license when his bride was not a resident of the county, and even now the officers are on their way to Springfield, Ohio, to serve the papers on him. Prosecutor Albau says he will be extradited. The indictment forms another chapter in the interesting romance in which young Fairbanks played a leading part, and in which Miss Helen Scott, of Pittsburg, was his companion. Fairbanks and Miss Scott fell desperately in love with each other and administered a mild shock to the city by eloping to Steubenville, Ohio, last fall and getting married.

Needed Improvements.

Editor, The Daily Press:

As a subscriber to your newsy paper, I was more than pleased to learn that some attention is to be given, concerning the garbage and ashes, also an increased force of police has been asked for. As a new comer to this beautiful city, I am surprised at the primitive method used in each of the above cases. I have a property in the new section, now building up so rapidly, and it is my purpose to influence my monied friends, elsewhere, to come out and join their fortunes with us, but it would certainly be up hill work, not to be able to promise every available improvement, as other smaller places enjoy, such as city water, sewers, gas, etc., which we are now guaranteed will be forthcoming. Our neighbor, notably Westfield, has all of the above, and an extra inducement to families, to have their ashes and garbage removed daily at 50 cents per month. As to police, I do not know what they look like, the color of uniform and face, not having seen any of the aforesaid patrolling this vicinity since my arrival, viz.: September 1, 1906. As we people this section, the burglarious fraternity will be drawn towards us, and the extra number of police asked for will be none too many. It is pleasing to know that our new mayor intends to have this city up-to-date. Investors will be willing to build when every protection and improvement is guaranteed, and as you doubtless know, every new family increases our population of good citizens, also increasing the revenue for taxes, churches, schools and other laudable enterprises. I hope the good work now promised will materialize for the benefit of Plainfield, as it cannot fail to do. It does not look like "all talk," and I feel that ere Mr. Fisk has reached 1908, everything cited will be consummated. I stand ready to put my shoulder to the wheel in investments, likewise the friends who may follow me. Respectfully submitted,

"A NEW COMER."

STEVENS MAY BEAT DRYDEN, IT IS NOW CLAIMED.

If Jersey Republicans Split Next Week the Democrats Will Win.

Trenton, Jan. 16.—The secret conference of the Republican Senators Monday night, it was learned yesterday, was a stormy one. The opponents of Senator Dryden threatened to bolt if a caucus was called, and finally a compromise was reached whereby the nati-Dryden men agreed to attend a meeting next Monday if it were not termed a caucus. The gathering will be termed a conference.

Senator Ackerman, of Union, stayed in the conference Monday evening, and intends to go to the conference next Monday afternoon, when the House members will be admitted. But he would not stand for calling it a caucus. He declined to state what his attitude next Monday would be.

Consternation seized the regulars yesterday when Randolph Perkins, of Union, started a petition to kill any call for a caucus which the Senate might issue. He said he had got enough signatures to kill any caucus call. But he stopped when he learned that the Senate Republicans had only issued a call for a joint conference. Much pressure is being brought to bear on the Republicans to show them that a defection of eight votes would allow the election of a Democratic Senator.

The Democrats will caucus next Monday night. A defection in the Republicans ranks next Monday evening means the election of a Democratic United States Senator, if the Democrats unite on Edwin A. Stevens, of Hoboken, which it is altogether probable they will, and succeed in getting eight of the Republicans to go against Dryden. This would give them the majority of the members of the joint meeting, or enough to elect Dryden's successor.

SOUSA'S OPERA SCORES.

"The Free Lance" One of the Best Offerings of the Season.

With plenty of characteristic "March King" music and a competent cast to interpret the libretto, John Philip Sousa's opera, "The Free Lance," captured a big audience at the New Plainfield theatre, last night. Laughs were on tap from the time the curtain rose until it fell and though the songs were not the "whistle-on-your-way-home" kind they were a delight to the ear and received repeated encores. The company was one of the largest that has yet appeared on the New Plainfield stage, numbering seventy people with principals and chorus.

Joseph Cawthorn was the leading funmaker and he was ably seconded by Jeanette Lowrie, who has as much talent and maybe more than her husband, Thomas Q. Seabrooke. They sang and danced their way into the hearts of the audience and Jeanette tickled everybody's risibles with a cute little giggle a la Mary Marble. Nellie Bergen, who in private life is Mrs. DeWolf Hopper, and George Hallman, had the principal singing roles. Both had several important numbers and gave them in fine voice.

The costuming and scenic mounting was elaborate and was all that was needed to have "The Free Lance" leave a lasting impression.

MAY COMPROMISE BANK CASE.

In Newark yesterday the application of John E. Lanning as receiver of the defunct Monmouth County Trust and Safe Deposit Company, which failed in 1903, to have the directors of the institution adjudged responsible for debts aggregating $175,000, was heard before Vice Chancellor Stevens. There was a postponement, however, owing to representations of counsel for some of the defendants that counsel for four of the defendants could not be present owing to illness and the making of a suggestion that a compromise might be effected.

Receiver Lanning has so far paid creditors of the trust company fifty per cent. of their claims. The amount he now seeks to hold the directors responsible for is the other fifty per cent. Albert C. Twining was present. The defendants, besides him, are Senator Oliver H. Brown, of Monmouth county; George F. Groehl, George B. M. Harvey, William J. Harrison and Arthur Mitchell.

SENATORIAL CONFERENCE

Republican Members of Upper House to Discuss Candidates.

ALL BUT MR. COLBY

Fourteen of the Fifteen Senators Agree to Meet But Not to Hold a Caucus.

There is a change in the Senatorial situation. It has been caused by a conference of the Republican State Senators, or, rather, a dozen of them, who met in the Senate chamber Monday night to discuss matters. For some days the Republican Senators have not been pleased with the way things were shaping. Rumors and reports were very contradictory. Some Senators gave out statements that they were against Senator Dryden, but would not say whether they would go into a caucus or remain in one. Therefore word was circulated that the Republicans would meet after the evening session and have a heart to heart talk, and that the utmost secrecy was to be observed.

The meeting was held. Fourteen of the fifteen Republican Senators were there. Colby was absent, and had been all the evening. The conference lasted two hours, and it was after midnight when it adjourned. It was not only a heart to heart affair, but it was a revelation to some of the Senators. It showed that they were much closer together than had been thought, but in a different way. Very few—only five, it is said—were outspoken in favor of Dryden and a binding caucus. They appeared glad of a chance to take some other course than the one they supposed they would have to pursue. Three of the Senators were emphatic on the caucus question. They said they would not go into a caucus unless Dryden withdrew or the conditions were not obligatory. Everybody was apparently satisfied when it was suggested that the conference should adjourn until Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and that in the mean time the Republican Assemblymen should be invited to join them then.

The Senators walked down the corridors and to their hotels with padlocks on their lips. But as the hours moved along until daylight, what had occurred gradually leaked out, so that by breakfast time the story was pretty generally known. Then there was commotion indeed. News of the conference was sent to the friends of Dryden, informing them of the danger and requesting them to come down at once. If there was to be no caucus, as some of the Senators intimated, then Senator Dryden had a harder time than ever ahead of him. It was said that Dryden's chances were so slight and the opposition so great that the leaders of the two houses—Hillery and Perkins—who should issue the call for the caucus, had refrained from doing so. The fact that both these men, but especially Perkins, were personally against Dryden, or at least lukewarm, increased their unwillingness to go ahead, according to reports.

By the time the Legislature met those hastily sent for were here, with the regular State officers, who make Tuesday their time for duty. Randolph Perkins, who has become recognized as an active leader of the anti-Dryden forces, began circulating a petition, to be signed by forty-one Republicans, asking for a cuscus. His ground was that the petition should not be effective unless it had forty-one signatures, enough to elect a Senator.

The idea was that if Dryden were eliminated they would all go in and abide by the caucus, while if Dryden declined to withdraw there would be no caucus, and the matter would be left open. When Mr. Perkins discovered, however, that there was going to be another conference on Monday afternoon which would determine the caucus question he withdrew the petition and went home.

Then the Democrats became active. They intended holding their caucus today, and it was supposed that Col. Stevens would become the candidate. But there was so much opposition on the part of the Essex delegation and such a desire to make President Wilson, of Princeton, the candidate, despite all his protests, that, taking advantage of the general mix-up, they postponed the caucus until Monday evening. Thus it happens that should the Republicans decide on a caucus each party will have a caucus on the same evening, on the last day before the law requires the holding of the session for the choice of a Senator, first by each House separately and then in joint session.

By noon the general opinion was that Dryden was practically beaten and other candidates were being talked of with renewed interest. It was said that Dryden would throw his strength to Frank O. Briggs, the State Treasurer, and that with his natural strength added Briggs would win. Briggs promptly and positively refused to accept under any conditions. He was for Dryden, he said, and still thought he could be elected.

He had barely uttered this remark when the Kuser brothers—Colonel A. R. and John L., entered the Treasurer's office and held a long conference with him. The Kusers would not listen to any talk of Senator Dryden's defeat. They said he would certainly have forty-two votes, but no names were given and the corridors said the Senator would not have forty votes unless the Democrats came to his aid.

Quietly but persistently the name of Governor Stokes was mentioned. Today he is stronger than ever. Despite his repeated refusals to be a candidate or to accept the office, his friends insist that all his refusals are swept away by a popular demand for his election, and that he must acceed to the wishes of the people. Doubtless other favorites will loom up and be earnestly pressed between now and Monday, especially Justice Mahlon Pitney and William Barbour, but the tide is swinging the Governor to the front. All this is conditional, however, upon John Fairfield Dryden not getting his second wind and winning by a neck.

New Senators.

Augusta, Me., Jan. 16.—Ballots were cast separately in both branches of the Maine egislature yesterday for a United States Senator for the full term, beginning next March. In the House Senator William P. Frye, of Lewiston, received 86 votes and William H. Pennell, the Democratic Sheriff of Cumberland county, was given 60 votes. The Senate gave Mr. Frye 23 votes and Mr. Pennell 6.

Denver, Col., Jan. 16.—Simon Guggenheim, Republican, was yesterday elected United States Senator by the Colorado Legislature to succeed Thos. M. Patterson, Democratt.

Dover., Del., Jan. 16.—Harry A. Richardson, Republican, was yesterday formally elected United States Senator to succeed . Frank Allee.

Helena, Mont., Jan. 16.—For United States Senator the Legislature yesterday gave Representative Jos. M. Dixon, Republican, a majority in each house. A joint session today will ratify the vote.

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 16.—The Legislature of Nebraska yesterday expressed its preference for Norris Brown, of Kearney, for United States Senator, to succeed Senator . H. Millard, of Omaha. Mr. Brown will be formally elected at a joint session of the Legislature today.

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 16.—The two houses of the Tennessee General Assembly voted separately for a United States Senator yesterday to succeed the late William B. Bate. The Democrats voted solidly for Robert L. Taylor.

Concord, N. H., Jan. 16.—A vote for United States Senator was taken in both branches of the Legislature at noon yesterday. The result was: Senate—Henry E. Burnham, Republican, 18; Nathan C. Jameson, Democrat, 6. House—Burnham, 236; Jameson, 117; George B. Leighton, of Dublin, 1. Both branches will meet in joint convention today and declare Mr. Burnham elected.

NO MORE SALOONS FOR ATLANTIC CITY.

License and Police Committees Agree on That After Public Meeting of Protest.

Atlantic City, N. J., Jan. 16.—Board Walk cafes, as well as those on all of the streets leading to the big esplanade below Pacific avenue, were severely scored at a public meeting yesterday afternoon, at which a number of leading clergymen and citizens apepared. As a result of the meeting, the License Committee agreed to changes in the liquor regulations as embraced in the following statement, which was given out by Chairman Daniel S. White:

"The License and Police Committee of the City Council opposes the increase of saloons and cafes south of Pacific avenue, and, in fact, in any part of Atlantic City. The committee agrees as to the closing of all saloons and cafes at one a. m. south of Pacific avenue and at two a. m. north of Pacific avenue. The committee believes in the proper policing of the patrons after they are out in the street. The committee agrees on a $500 license fee for saloons and cafes and $1,000 license fee for places with music, whether there is an orchestra of one or more pieces."

After making this statement public, Mr. White stated that the provisions in these recommendations will be embodied in an ordinance which is to be drawn up and introduced at the Council meeting on January 8.

Wealthy Policemen.

New York, Jan. 16.—Five members of the Automobile Club of America, constituting themselves a committee of safety for the prosecution of fast automobilists, applied to Police Commissioner Bingham a few days ago to be made special patrolmen. Colgate Hoyt, of No. 68 Wall street, who is president of the club, and Winthrop E. Scarritt, vice-president, whose office is at No. 24 Broad street, were made special patrolmen and sworn in by the Commissioner yesterday. Mr. Hoyt received shield No. 27, and the number assigned to Mr. Scarritt is 347. Both are men of wealth.

Gives $200,000 To Charity.

Hamilton, Ohio, Jan. 16.—The will of David Leigh Howell, a dry goods merchant, filed yesterday, gives about $200,000 to Hamilton's charities at the death of his sister, who gets the insome. He gives $50,000 for the establishment of a maternity ward for poor women, and after this and personal bequests are paid the residue, amounting to about $150,000, goes to the Hamilton Y. M. C. A. Alice J. Shaw, of New York, well known as a whistler, receives $3,000 as a token of esteem.

—Delicious Indian River grape fruit is one of the special offerings at Neuman Brothers. A new consignment brought them 75 boxes that will be sold at $4.50 each.

THE TAX ON BANK STOCK

Important Question to be Carried to United States Supreme Court.

BOTHERS AUTHORITIES

Shall Government Bonds Be Divided From Bank's Assets?—Such Is the Question.

Newark, Jan. 16.—An appeal has been taken by Adrian Riker, of this city, as the owner of a number of shares of stock of the Merchants' National Bank, from the assessment for taxes placed on the shares by the local taxing authorities. Mr. Riker's appeal has not been sustained by the County Board of Taxation, and it was announced yesterday that, through the firm of Riker & Riker, the case is to be carried to the Supreme Court of the United States, for the purpose of securing a ruling from the highest tribunal in the land in a matter that has troubled taxing authorities and taxpayers for many years.

The question involved is the right of taxing authorities to assess the property of national banks in a manner different from that in which other financial institutions and individuals are assessed. The question also involves the right of the State to make laws under which certain classes of property, which the United States Government holds as non-taxable, are assessed.

Mr. Riker based his appeal on the ground that in ascertaining the value of the shares he holds of the Merchants' Bank the tax board failed to deduct from the assets of the bank $500,000 Government bonds held by it, and which, if held by other moneyed institutions, except life insurance companies or individuals, would be exempt. The county board authorized the city commissioners to take up the consideration of the appeal, and the latter, acting on the advice of the city counsel, declined to reduce the valuation on the bank shares.

The contention of Mr. Riker goes further than the question raised under the State law. It involves the constitutionality of the State law that places the property of national banks under a different classification from the property of other moneyed institutions, and enables local taxing authorities to include government bonds held by national banks in the ratables, while the same class of property when held by other moneyed institutions or by individuals, is classed as non-taxable and exempted.

The property of national and State banks is assessed under a different law from those governing the assessment of the property of trust companies and savings banks, while life insurance companies are taxed under a still different law. The value of the real estate only is assessed against the banks, and the value of the shares are assessed aganist the holders thereof. These valuations are ascertained by determining the amount of the capital stock, surplus and undivided profits, deducting therefrom the value of the real estate and dividig the remainder by the number of shares. Other moneyed institutions, except life insurance companies, are assessed on their capital stock, less the liabilitiesfi in which all non-taxable and exempt property is included. Life insurance companies are assessed upon the s urplus, less $500,000, which is exempted under the law of 1906.

If Mr. Riker's contention is sustained by the United States Supreme Court, the effect will be that government bonds held by banks and insurance companies will be taken out of ratables, not only in this State, but wherever, under State laws, this class of property is included in assessments for local taxation.

It has not been fully determined as yet whether the suit of Mr. Riker will be first brought in the courts of this State, but the ultimate argument will be made in the federal court.

Plainfielder at Auto Show.

Matthew D. Sweeney, formerly of this city but now of New York, is in charge of one of the leading exhibits at the seventh annual automobile show at Madison Square Garden. It represents the line of goods carried by Charles E. Miller, reputed to be the largest auto supply house in the country. Mr. Sweeney is manager of one of Mr. Miller"s stores at Eighth avenue and Fifty-fourth street, and since assuming the position has represented the concern at shows in Boston, Buffalo, Detroit and Philadelphia.

—The Public Service Corporation has adjusted the claim presented against it by the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, for damages to a wagon belonging to the company.

—It is practically decided that Hersh Brothers, wholesale grocers, will not commence the erection of their new building on Park avenue until spring. In the meantime they may lease temporarily the store on Park avenue, between the telephone office and W. L. Smalleys meat market, until the new building is completed.

TIME IS THE TEST.

The Testimony of Plainfield People Stands the Test.

The test of time is what tells the tale. "A new broom sweeps clean," but will it wear well is what interests most. The public soon find out when misrepresentations are made, and merit alone will stand the test of time.

Plainfield people appreciate merit, and many months ago local citizens publicly endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills; they do so still. Would a citizen make the statement which follows unless convinced that the article was just as represented? A cure that lasts is the kind that every sufferer from kidney ills is looking for.

Mrs. Anna Holmes, of New Market, N. J., three or four miles from Plainfield, N. J., says: "Some years ago I gave a statement for publication, telling what Doan's Kidney Pills had done for me, and I am now glad to confirm what I said then. I used several boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills for charp pains in my head and dull beating pains in my back and sides. When I attempted to rise quickly after sitting or lying for any length of time, sharp, acute pains would always follow. My kidneys seemed to be weakened in every way, and I became in such a condition that work was impossible. I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills curing others of kidney and bladder troubles, so I procured a box at L. W. Randolph's drug store. They helped me from the first, and I continued to improve steadily. I am glad to repeat what I said in my former statement for my good opinion of this remedy has in no wise changed."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn, Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take n o other.

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

A TALE OF THE OLD WEST

By HARRY LEON WILSON AUTHOR OF THE SPENDERS

COPYRIGHT 1903 BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

"There it is again—they don't mind losing their heads. They were sure the rightingest men—don't you think so now?"

As he went on talking she laid the book down and leaned back against the trunk of the big pine under which they sat. He seemed to be saying something that he had been revolving in his mind while she read.

"I'd hate to have you think you have been wasting your time on me this summer, but I'm afraid I'm just too downright unsanctified."

"Oh, don't say that!" she cried. "I couldn't even join your church—"

Her face became full of alarm.

"—only for just one thing;—I don't care very much for this having so many wives."

She was relieved at once. "If that's all—I don't approve of it myself. You wouldn't have to."

"Oh, that's what you say now—" he spoke with an air of shrewdness and suspicion—"but when I got in you'd throw up my duty to me constant about building up the kingdom. Oh, I know how it's done! I've heard your preachers talk enough."

"But it isn't necessary. I wouldn't—I don't think it would be at all nice of you."

He looked at her with warm sympathy. "You poor ignorant girl! Not to know your own religion! I read in that book there about this marrying business only the other day. Just hand me that one."

She handed him the "Book of Doctrine and Covenants," from which she had occasionally taught him the Lord's word, as revealed to Joseph Smith. The revelation on celestial marriage had never been among her selections. He turned to it now.

"Here, right in the very first of it—" and she heard, with a sinking heart—" 'Therefore prepare thyself to receive and obey the instructions which I am about to give unto you; for all those who have this law revealed unto them must obey the same; for behold! I reveal unto you a new and everlasting covenant; and if ye abide not that covenant, then are ye damned, for no one can reject this covenant and be permitted to enter into my glory.'

"There, now!"

"I never read it," she faltered.

"And don't you know they preach in the tabernacle that anybody who rejects polygamy will be damned?"

"My father never preached that."

"Well, he knows it—ask him."

It was proving to be a hard day for her.

"Of course," he continued, "a new member coming into the church might think at first he could get along without so many wives. He might say: 'Well, now, I draw a line in this marrying business. I'll never take more than two or three wives, or maybe four.' He might even be so taken up with one lady that he'd say: 'I won't even marry a second wife—not for some time yet, that is—not for two or three years, till she begins to get kind of houseworn.' But then after he's taken his second, the others would come easy. Say he marries, first time, a tall, slim, dark girl,"—he looked at her musingly, while she gazed intently into the stream in front of them.

"—and then say he meets a little chit of a thing, kind of heavy-set like, with this light yellow hair and pretty light blue eyes, that he saw one Sunday at church—"

Her dark face was flushed now in pained wonder.

"—why then it's so easy to keep on and marry others, with the preachers all preaching it from the pulpit."

"But you wouldn't have to."

"No, you wouldn't have to marry anyone after the second—after this little blonde—but you'd have to marry her because it says here that you 'shall abide the law or ye shall be damned,' saith the Lord God.' "

He pulled himself along the ground closer to her, and went on again in what seemed to be an extremity of doubt:

"Now, I don't want to be lost, and yet I don't want to have a whole lot of wives like Brigham or that old coot we see so often on the road. So what am I going to do? I might think I'd get along with three or four, but you never can tell what religion will do to a man when he really gets it."

He reached for her small brown hand that still held the Book of Mormon open on her lap, and took it in both his own. He went on, appealingly:

"Now, you try to tell me right—like as if I was your own brother—tell me as a sister. Try to put yourself in the place of the girl I'd marry first—no, don't; it seems more like your sister if I hold it this way—and try to think how she'd feel when I brought home my second. Would that be doing square by her? Wouldn't it sort of get her on the bark? But if I join your church and don't do that, I might as well be one of those low-down Free-will Baptists or Episcopals. Come, now, tell me true, letting on that you're my sister."

She had not looked at him since he began, nor did she now.

"Oh, I don't know—I don't know—it's all so mixed! I thought you could be saved without that."

"There is the word of God against me."

"I wouldn't want you to marry that way—if I were your sister."

"That's right now, try to feel like a sister. You wouldn't want me to have as many wives as those old codgers down there below, would you?"

He Took Her Small Brown Hand in His.

"No—I'm sure you shouldn't have but one. Oh, you couldn't marry more than one, could you?" She turned her eyes for the first time upon him, and he saw that some inward warmth seemed to be melting them.

"Well, I'd hate to disappoint you if you were my sister, but there's the word of the Lord—"

"Oh, but could you anyway, even if you didn't have a sister, and there was no one but her to think of?"

He appeared to debate with himself cautiously.

"Well, now, I must say your teaching has taken a powerful hold on me this summer—" he reached under her arm and caught her other hand. "You've been like a sister to me, and made me think about these things pretty deep and serious. I don't know if I could get what you've taught me out of my mind or not."

"But how could you ever marry another wife?"

"Well, a man don't like to think he's going to the bad place when he dies, all on account of not marrying a few more times. It sort of takes the ambition out of him."

"Oh, it couldn't be right!"

"Well, now, I'll do as you say. Do I forget all these things you've been teaching me, and settle down with one wife—or do I come into the Kingdom and lash the cinches of my glory good and plenty by marrying whenever I get time to build a new end on the house, like old man Wright does?"

She was silent.

"Like a sister would tell a brother," he urged, with a tighter pressure of her two hands. But this seemed to recall another trouble to her mind.

"I—I'm not fit to be your sister—don't talk of it—you don't know—" Her voice broke, and he had to release her hand. Whereupon he put his own back up against the pine tree, reached his arm about her, and had her head upon his shoulder.

"There, there now!"

"But you don't know."

"Well, I do know—so just you straighten out that face. I do know, I tell you. Now, don't cry and I'll fix it all right, I promise you."

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The engagement of "The Volunteer Organist" in this city for tonight is an event which has been looked forward to with great pleasure by patrons. This ideal American pastoral play has been pronounced by eminent critics as nearly a classic in its way.

The attraction at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow and Friday nights, will be that clever comedian, Billy S. Clifford, in his new musical fantasy, "A Jolly Baron." Mr. Clifford represents that school of comedy made famous by John Drew, Willie Collier and Thos. Ross, and added to this he is a graceful dancer with a splendid voice, and has a pleasing personality.

Richard Carle's most successful farcical opera has been secured for presentation at the New Plainfield theatre Saturday afternoon and night. This excellent farcical opera enjoyed a run of 110 performances in Chicago, where it played throughout the summer season of 1905 and subsequently made a run of seven weeks as a special attraction in the New York theatre. The company also played highly successful and prolonged engagements in Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington. It is said that during the season of 1905-06 it was one of the best farcical operatic productions that was en route.

Mr. Lawrence D'Orsay, under the management of Daniel Frohman, will be seen in a new comedy at the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday night, entitled "The Embassy Ball," written by Augustus Thomas, the author of Mr. D'Orsay's last well known success, "The Earl of Pawtucket." In the case of "The Embassy Ball," Mr. Thomas is said to have perfected a three act comedy of exceptional originality in theme and rare smartness of speech. The piece was written with Mr. Lawrence D'Orsay in mind, and the fact that many of its incidents are actual occurrences taken out of his own life fits him to the part, it is said, as no other role of his entire career has done.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

Fresh fruits of rare quality at all seasons at Alex Lusardi's store, West Front street. The place is noted for that.

If you contemplate painting or papering your house consult Conover & Co., of Elmwood place. This firm does the best work.

Painting and decorating art is not common. Daubing is common enough, but that is not what you want. J. C. Hanson, of East Front street, is one of the few who paint right.

You can find no better hardware anywhere than that sold by the H. E. Gayle Hardware Company on West Front street. The stock is always complete. The company also carries a full line of housefurnishing goods such as any family is constantly in need of and the prices are low.

There is now offered a great opportunity to get the best clothing at exceptionally low prices at the big clearance sale held at Weinberger's clothing store on West Front street. The entire stock of goods is to be sold out this month, nothing will be reserved. Buy now and save money.

If you have never traded with Roth & Co., the East Front street butchers, you have no idea of the high grade meat, poultry, as well as the fine fish you can get there. The prices will always be found exceedingly moderate. Prompt deliveries are made to all parts of the city and vicinity.

LITERARY.

The January-March Forum, a typical number of this high-class American quarterly review, is just out. In its regular departments are to be noted the comprehensive articles on "American Politics," by Henry Litchfield West; "Foreign Affairs," by A. Maurice Low; "Finance," by Alexander D. Noyes; "The Educational Outlook," by Ossian H. Lang; and "Applied Science," by Henry Harrison Suplee. Two literary papers of authority and excellence are "A few Books on Shakespeare," by Prof. W. P. Trent, and "Some Recent Guides to Culture," by Prof. William T. Brewster. Henry Tyrrell contributes a minute and careful review of the season's drama. "Inexpensive Reciprocity," by Prof. John Bates Clark, is a highly suggestive discussion of the tariff question by a well-known and able specialist. Another special article of striking interest is "The Rehabilitation of China and the American Intrest in the Orient," by Mohammand Barkatullah.

Even the richest man in the world has a side that is not entirely lined with gold. All the millions owned by John D. Rockefeller cannot deprive him of certain human attributes common to all of us. He must sleep and eat and take relaxation in some form like the poorest devil on earth and perhaps there is an interest in the way he meets his waking hours. The Woman's Home Companion thought so and it sent a representative to see the rich man at home. The result is an article in the January number of the magazine illustrated with photographs supplied by Mr. Rockefeller himself.

The splendid equipment of this company is at the disposal of anyone considering a change in present banking arrangements.

The company is prepared to serve its patrons acceptably in its Banking, Trust, Safe Deposit and Special Departments, booklets descriptive of any of which will be mailed upon request.

BOWLING.

No tourney games will be rolled at McLaughlin's tonight but tomorrow night, the following will compete: Causebrook and McLaughlin against Meyers and Mack; Koons and Skinner against Vail and Myers; Willett and Britton against Maltby and Theirs.

The uncertainty of bowling was shown in decided fashion by scores from "Bill" Dilks last night. In his tourney games he was in worse form than he has been in many weeks but in an off-hand game later in the evening he made the best score of his bowling career, a 257.

"Fozzy" Firstbrook is organizing a five-man team from members of Perseverance Lodge, K. of P., to roll the winners of the Essex county Pythian League series just completed. Judge Runyon, John Cose, Tom Muir, Elmer Cutting and himself will probably form the make-up. "Fozzy" has already issued the challenge, specifying eleven games, six to be rolled in Plainfield and five on the Tuxedo alleys, Newark.

A freak bit of pinning was witnessed by a large gallery at McLaughlin's Monday night. Following the crash of a ball thrown by Harry Messersmith, the timber went down with the exception of the No. 5 pin. It slid from its place in an upright position and stopped on the spot just vacated by the No. 10 pin. It stayed there hard and fast as is if to show its meanness further escaped the next ball by an inch. N. B.—The facts in this case are vouched for by "Quake" Vail and Harry DeMeza.

Weingarth and Voorheis, the bowling wizards who are touring New Jersey for glory and pin money, were beaten at Rahway the other night by Slater and McCartney, the local bowling cracks. The games were witnessed by several hundred giddy Rahway sports who overran the alleys in their excitement.

CENTRAL BOWLING LEAGUE.

Park Club Pin Knights Are Showing the Way.

In spite of the fact that the Elizabeth team of the Central Bowling League has both high score and high average to its credit, the locals are tied for second place with the Westfield aggregation. The Park Club leads by a two-game margin.

In the race for individual honors, Tenney, of the Elizabeths, has increased his average to 190 for fifteen games. Datesman, also of the Elizabeth club, is second. Then comes a string of four Park Club men.

The team records, with the individual averages of the first ten men in the league, follow:

DEATH AND FIRE IN JAMAICA EARTHQUAKE.

300 in Hospital, Sixteenth of the City of Kingston in Flames.

London, Jan. 16.—The Colonial Office received at 7:50 this morning the following dispatch from Sir James Alexander Swettenham, Governor-in-Chief of Jamaica:

"There was a severe earthquake shock this morning (afternoon), between 3 and 4 o'clock, causing considerable damage to houses in Kingston. It was followed by a fire, which is still burning, though it is confined to about the sixteenth part of the town containing the wharves and warehouses. The camp and military hospital were destroyed and thirty men were killed. There were no officers among them.

"Major Hardyman was seriously injured. The town hospital is crowded with some 300 injured persons. The fire is now decreasing. The Myrtle Bank Hotel was destroyed, also the cable office. The delegates to the conference and Sir Alfred Jones and the members of his expedition injured (uninjured?), now at (?) aboard the Port Kingston in the harbor. The number of the killed and wounded has not yet been ascertained. Slighter shocks continue."

Mrs. W. C. Kelley's Funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. William C. Kelley was held at her late home at Oak Tree, yesterday afternoon. It was conducted by Rev. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. The body was afterward placed in the receiving vault at Hillside cemetery.

Card Party.

Mrs. Laura Givens, of Fairview avenue, entertained a number of friends at her home Monday night. Cards were the feature of the evening.

PERSONAL.

Arthur Morrison, of Cadiz, O., is visiting his cousin, William Morrison, of Mountain avenue.

Miss Tabb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tabb, of New Market, is enjoying the winter pleasures of Montreal, Canada, where she is visiting relatives.

Mrs. Minnie Starr Kirch, formerly of the borough, but now of New York, is ill with the grip at the home of Dr. P. J. Zeglio, on Somerset street.

Mr. and Mrs. William McIntosh, of College place, are expected to return home tonight from Battle Creek, Mich., where Mrs. McIntosh has been for her health.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Ladies' Aid Society, of the Christian church on Grove street, will hold a meeting tonight at 8 o'clock.

Lovers of good music should attend the concert to be given at the German Lutheran church on Grove street, tonight by the Vivo Instrumental Trio. Admission will be free and everybody will be welcome.

Miss Melby, a representative of the Baptist Home Missionary Society, at Ellis Island, who addressed the Women's Home Missionary Society at the First Baptist church, yesterday, was the guest of Mrs. Reuben Knox, of Rockview avenue.

ENTERTAINED THE WOMEN.

Congregational Men's Club Provide Fine Programme.

Horace Bowne, of New York, a humorist, and William E. MacClymont, organist at Grace church, gave an excellent entertainment at the Congregational church, last night, under the auspices of the Men's Club. It was "ladies' night," and there was a large attendance of the women of the church and congregation. Mr. Bowne gave a number of amusing sketches and related several funny stories which kept his audience in good humor throughout the evening. Interspersing the stories, Mr. MacClymont rendered classical selections which were greatly enjoyed.

After the entertainment the men of the church served ice cream and cake and a social time followed. The refreshment committee consisted of A. C. LaBoyteaux, Morris C. VanArsdale and H. C. Nomer. The entertainment committee consists of the president of the club, F. A. Weeks, Charles Rice and Morris C. VanArsdale.

Bishops' Law Repealer.

The introduction into the Assembly at Trenton of a repealer for the "bishops' law" by Mr. Breunig, of Essex, was the principal feature of an extremely brief session of the Legislature yesterday morning. The introduction of this measure created little surprise, as both the Republicans and Democratic assembly candidates in Essex county had pledged themselves to endeavor to repeal the liquor legislation which created such a furore in some of the North Jersey towns.

DeLacy Avenue Buglar Scare.

The suspicious actions of a stranger on DeLacy avenue, late yesterday afternoon, led to a good-sized burglary scare in, that neighborhood last night. The man was seen by a woman resident who asserted that he climbed a pole and cut the wire leading to her telephone. When her husband came home she apprised him of the facts and he gave his neighbors warning to be on the lookout. So far the borough police have received no word of any house being entered.

Trading Stamp Bill.

Assemblyman Perkins has introduced a bill in the House at Trenton which amends the trading stamp law by requiring that all trading stamps shall have their redeemable value printed or written on the face of the stamp, and that the person selling or issuing said stamps shall have received the same d irectly from the person or firm who issued them, and who is primarily responsible for their redemption. It was referred to the proper committee.

Dunellen Bank Deposits.

The Dunellen National Bank made an auspicious business start yesterday. The deposits amounted to $23,000 before the banking day closed. There were out-of-town deposits, as well as local. A substantial increase is expected today. The promoters are convinced the institution will be successful.

OUR TROUBLES.

They Are of Three General Kinds, and There Is a Remedy.

Troubles are of three different kinds:

The troubles you have had.

The troubles you have.

The troubles you are looking for.

The first of these three kinds of trouble will not press heavily upon the philosophical mind. It is a closed incident, and on the principal that pains and perils through which we have come to safety are negatively pleasant memories, we ought to extract the semblance of happiness from the troubles we have had and disposed of.

Remorseful dwelling on what is done forever is a mistake of fools.

The common sense of the situation resides only in casting out of mind the regrettable act of circumstance and turning to the present with a determined spirit that will fight for its own—for the right to happiness now and here, in this tangible instant that we call time present.

As to the second class, there is a fact in nature to the point. The nettle is armed with the most penetrating of needle pointed thorns, but they are formidable only to the timid and hesitating. Approach the plant without apprehensiveness of "trouble," seize it boldly and defiantly with a strong clutch, and the prickers that draw blood on the weak kneed or the weak handed will take on a variety caress.

The lesson is obvious. The trouble that is now trying to swamp you will loosen its hold on your spirit and take to its heels if you but turn on it. "The eye of childhood ever fears a pointed devil." The very devil himself cunningly contrives not to maeralize.

The trouble you are looking for need not dismay you. If you go out in the morning resolved on finding it, even if you have to fight for it, the likelihood is that some time during the day it will take on a form that you will recognize.

But that will be largely your own lookout. There are men that resent insult before it is offered. You will metaphorically see them suspiciously and belligerently peeking around a corner to discover who it is that is presently to come along and offer some indignity.

A sense of personal injury has possession of them, though if you appeal to them for a reason or for a fact or an act in support of their indictment to somebody—anybody—they are necessarily dumb. The whole thing is but a monstrous birth of their imagination.

The trouble you are looking for will never trouble you if you stop looking for it.—Exchange.

THE HALL OF FAME.

The empress of Russia is gifted with a special talent for caricature.

Senator Pettus, the oldest member of Congress, sticks to his pet phrase of telling his colleagues how "young" he is when reference is made to his advanced years.

Dr. Charles McCutcheon, of Tacoma, Wash., one of the most prominent physicians on the Pacific coast, has imported from his boyhood home in Ireland 200 song birds to sing to him in his old age.

Sir F. Treves recently told a health society meeting in London that as regards the treatment of our meat before we eat it we have made no advance on the habits of our ancestors, the cave dwellers.

Dr. James M. Yeager, formerly president of Drew Seminary For Young Women at Carmel, N. Y., was elected a member of the Pennsylvania house of representatives from Mifflin, his native county, at the recent election.

Roger Pocock, the founder of the Legion of Frontiersmen, has been in turn cowboy, novelist, poet, missionary and prospector. He led an expedition to the Klondike, served in the mounted police in the northwest and was a scouut in the Transvaal war.

Vere Goldthwaite, one of the most interesting personalities of the Boston bar, has had a romantic career. He is the son of a well known Boston physician and for a number of years traveled with a wild west show. For a time he was one of the best known cowboys of Colorado.

Ex-Senator William E. Chandler is an expert stenographer, having learned the art of pot hook writing early in life. He uses stenography in making all his notes, and when he was in the Senate he jotted down many of the speeches in which he was particularly interested and desired the notes for immediate reference.

On the occasion of the last birthday anniversary of the king of Italy a letter carrier was remembered with an increase of pay. The man, whose name is Domenico Silicia, has been in the service at Rogliano for the last sixty years, is eighty years old, blind, and still attends to his duties with the assistance of a grandchild.

This is the catch line that made a certain well-known brand of "plug" tobacco famous. "A Big Piece for Five Cents" may well be said of the New York Sunday World Magazine. Next Sunday's World will contain a wonderful color picture of New York's tall buildings of the future; the story of plants that grow from artificial seed; the remarkable story of a man who was convicted of a crime by his fingerprints, &c. The Magazine and funny sections of the great Sunday World consist of sixteen large pages.

Funeral of James H. Fuller.

The funeral of James H. Fuller, who died yesterday morning, was held this morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. E. T. Barrows, of West Eighth street. It was conducted by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie and was attended by a gathering of relatives and friends. Two solos, "Crossing the Bar" and "Jesus Lover of My Soul," were sung by Charles L. Lewis. The body was sent to Cambridge, Mass., for interment.

COLLECTOR MAKES LEVY

City Halts Shipment of Metal and Wire Works Machines.

FIRM OWES A TAX BILL

They Had Suspended Operations Here and Were All Ready to Ship Three Carloads of Stuff.

Shipment of three carloads of machinery and their equipment belonging to Krischer & Hollander, owners of the Metal and Wire Goods Manufacturing Company plant, was halted at the freight house late yesterday afternoon by an attachment levied by City Collector John W. Murray, Jr. The attachment was made to secure the collection of real and personal taxes amounting to about $250.

Krischer & Hollander have suspended operations here. Their plant was in the old oil-cloth factory, Berchman street and Third street. They bought the building a little over a year ago, and established the wire and metal goods business there. They needed cheap labor, and found it impossible to secure the 60 or 75 hands necessary for the prosecution of the business. They finally decided to move the plant to New York, where it was originally located, and operations were suspended. They finished packing three carloads of stuff this week, and had it placed on the cars.

City Collector Murray learned of the action yesterday afternoon, and he took immediate steps to safeguard the city's account for taxes due. Corporation Counsel Marsh prepared a tax warrant, which has all the power of an attachment in such cases, and Mr. Murray served it himself. The service was accomplished at 5 o'clock.

The carloads of equipment are marked for sale at public vendue next Thursday. The firm can save their goods from sale by settling the tax bill.

In making out the warrant, Corporation Counsel Marsh made no distinction between the taxes due on personal and on real property. Some people have an idea that personal property cannot be levied upon for taxes on real estate, but Mr. Marsh is not of that opinion.

Krischer & Hollander are trying to sell the factory. They have placed it in the hands of brokers for as speedy a sale as can be effected. They are convinced that there is no possible field for the kind of labor they need in this vicinity. The work, for the most part, is easy, and can be handled by girls. It is believed that the East Side of New York is the best location for them.

QUIETLY WEDDED.

Miss May A. Keuhn and Clarence S. Giles United at High Noon.

Miss May Anna Keuhn, daughter of Henry Keuhn, of Scotch Plains, and Clarence E. Giles, of East Front street, were married at noon, yesterday, by Rev. Charles E. Herring at his home on Watchung avenue. Miss Estelle M. Eick, of Dunellen, and Edward T. Clarkson, of this city, acted as attendants. Both Miss Keuhn and Miss Eick wore blue travelling suits and lace waists.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Giles left for a wedding trip to Philadelphia and Atlantic City. On returning they will make their home for the present with the groom's mother on East Front street. Mr. Giles has been in the employ of Harry K. Lister for the past five years and is well known throughout the city and borough.

Edward DeCourcy's Funeral.

The funeral of Edward Leo DeCourcy was held this morning in St. Mary's church before a large gathering of relatives and friends. The T. A. B. Society, of which he was a member, attended in a body. Father Bogan conducted the mass. There was a large display of floral tributes one of them being a set piece from the T. A. B. Society. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery, members of the organization acting as pall bearers.

C. R. R. of N. J. Advances Wages.

The Central Railroad of New Jersey has advanced the wages of its engineers as follows: Large engines, road service, $4.40 for ten hours work, an increase of 20 cents a day; small engines, road service, $4 for ten hours, an increase of 15 cents; passenger engineers, $3.90 for ten hours or 100 miles; yard service, $3.85 to $4.32 for ten hours.

Walks Must be Cleared.

Chief Marshall Weiss, of the borough police force, reminds residents that there is an ordinance covering the removal of snow. Walks not cleared five hours after the storm ceases will be taken care of by the regular borough gang and the expense charged to the property owners.

OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY OF THE M'ALL AUXILIARY

MINISTER TELLS OF THE WORK BEING DONE BY PLAINFIELD BRANCH ABROAD

The anniversary of the founding of the McAll Auxiliary work in France, was observed yesterday afternoon by a tea given at the home of Mrs. Frederick Hamlin Andrews, of Central avenue. The affair was largely attended by members and friends of the local auxiliary. Mrs. Frederick Goodhue Mead, president, Mrs. John Gray Foster, treasurer, and Mrs. Augustus V. Heely, secretary, of the Plainfield auxiliary, received with Mrs. Andrews, and they were assisted by a large corps of managers.

Features of the social function were the vocal solos by Miss Mary Hubbell, of Central avenue, and Miss Primroy, of Scranton, Pa., a guest of Mrs. Sidney Williams, of East Ninth street.

The greater part of the afternoon was devoted to an informal talk by Rev. George T. Berry, of Englewood. He is the general secretary of the McAll Auxiliary in America. Last summer has was sent abroad to investigate the work being carried on in France.

Mr. Berry said he found the work to be most satisfactory, particularly among the soldiers and the employees in the china factories. He spoke especially of the work being done at Limoges by Mr. and Mrs. De Saint-Vidal, evangelists supported there by the Plainfield Auxiliary. He said that they are both doing a great work with promise of great results. After the talk by Mr. Berry refreshments were served. In connection with the tea, contributions were received amounting to over $100 for the support of the work being carried on in Limoges.

GIFTS FOR PRINCIPAL, BIRTHDAY REMEMBRANCES

PUPILS GIVE MR. TRAVELL DIAMOND PIN AND BOOK RACK.

Principal Ira W. Travell was completely surprised at the Plainfield High School, this morning, when the pupils accepted the opportunity to show their regard by presenting him with a diamond-set scarf pin and a table book rack in honor of the anniversary of his birthday, which occurred today.

Thursday morning each class holds assembly exercises in its own room. This morning three pupils talked with Mr. Travell in his office, and when the 8:30 o'clock bell sounded, the classes from all over the building gathered quietly in the auditorium, when the shades were drawn purposely to avoid suspicion. On the platform table could be seen fourteen candles burning brightly from the top of a frosted cake. The candles represented the fourteen years that Mr. Travell has been principal of the High School.

The school orchestra was in readiness and when all the pupils were seated, Mr. Travell was ushered in. All arose, the lights were turned on, the orchestra struck up "The Red and the Blue," and the principal was greeted with the High School song. As the music ceased, Henry de Bigard ascended the platform and presented the gifts in the name of the pupils. Mr. Travell expressed his thanks. The principal recalled his first years at the school and told something of his work at that time.

A phonograph enthusiast had previously asked Mr. Travell if he might give the pupils a concert, and Mr. Travell said that if the cake would keep until Saturday night he would ask the man with the talking machine to give his concert which would be combined with a general reception.

Michael Muldowney's Funeral.

The funeral of Michael Muldowney, who died yesterday after a long illness, will be held at the home of his brother, Thomas Muldowney, of Elmwood place, Saturday morning at 8:30 and from St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock. A solemn high mass of requiem will be said for the repose of his soul. Interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Sutphen Surprised.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Sutphen, of Fairview avenue, were given a surprise party at their home Tuesday night, a company of twenty-five young people from the borough, calling on them unexpectedly. The evening was passed in playing games and with vocal and instrumental music. Later refreshments were served.

Anawanda Bazaar.

The Anawanda Club will hold its first bazaar at T. A. B. Hall January 24 to 26. The club is an auxiliary of the T. A. B. Society.

GEN. GILMORE RESIGNS; PLUM FOR COL. COLLINS

DUNGAN IS SLATED TO BE HEAD OFFICER OF 2D REGIMENT.

Trenton, Jan. 17.—There was a great surprise in military circles this morning when it was learned that Brig.-Gen. Quincey O'Malley Gilmore, of the Second Brigade, had sent his resignation to Governor Stokes. The reasons assigned for the action are given as ill health. While this may be true, it is intimated that there may be other causes that led up to it. It is the general opinion that the resignation will be accepted.

The slate as now made up provides that Col. Collins will succeed Gen. Gilmore, and that Lieut.-Col. Nelson Y. Dungan will succeed Col. Collins, while Lieut.-Col. Dungan will be succeeded by Major George L. Forman, of Trenton, and Captain John McCullough, of Co. A, of Trenton, is to be the successor of Major Forman.

MRS. C. F. ABBOTT GIVES CHARMING TEA.

Introduces Her Daughter-in-Law, Mrs. C. W. Abbott, to Plainfield Society Folk.

For the purpose of introducing her daughter-in-law to Plainfield society, Mrs. Charles F. Abbott, assisted by her daughter, Mrs. James R. Blake, of Central avenue, gave a tea at her home yesterday afternoon, for Mrs. Charles Westley Abbott, of Paterson. There were about 300 guests, including those most prominent in the society of the city and borough, and the affair was a charming one.

Assisting Mrs. Charles F. Abbott and Mrs. Charles Westley Abbott were Mrs. Irving Brown, Mrs. Julius E. Erickson and Mrs. William Wherry. Those in the dining room were Miss Georgiana Smith; Miss May Waring, Miss Eva Browne and Miss Grace Kaufman.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Westley Abbott were married at Paterson last fall and they have since resided in that city, Mr. Abbott being engaged in New York in the practice of law. Plainfield society gave Mrs. Abbott a hearty welcome and the social features were much enjoyed.

FELL DOWN STAIRS.

Serious Accident Befalls Mrs. Phoebe Shepherd.

Awaking from a nap which she had been taking in the sitting room of her home on Tuesday night, Mrs. Phoebe Shepherd, widow of George Shepherd, of 55 Watchung avenue, by mistake opened a wrong door; the one leading down to the cellar and not the one leading to the second floor. In the darkness she stumbled and fell down the entire flight, breaking her arm near the shoulder.

Members of the family heard the noise caused by the fall and hastened to where Mrs. Shepherd lay practically helpless. She was assisted upstairs and the family physician summoned. The fractured bone was set and in spite of her advanced age, she is now resting comfortably with excellent chances for recovery.

Water Commission at Work.

The next meeting of the water investigation commission, which was appointed by Mayor Charles J. Fisk, will be held on Friday night, February 15, when it is expected that there will be reports of progress along the lines mapped out at the first meeting last week. It is understood that the committees are losing no time and that they have gone right to work as suggested by Mayor Fisk. The work of the commission will probably take most of the winter.

Jury Convicted Johnson.

In the Somerset County Courts at Somerville Tuesday, the only one of the three indictments found by the last grand jury that came to trial was that against Harry Johnson, indicted for attempting to shoot Herbert H. Mount, proprietor of a hotel at Rocky Hill. He was convicted of assault with attempt to kill. The jury was out seven hours.

PUNCHED HIS RESCUER

Ungrateful Commuter Gives Brakeman Who Saved Him a Black Eye.

HIT AT CONDUCTOR, TOO

Now Brakeman Is Arranging To Get a Warrant Against the Man Whose Life He Protected.

Charles Beucher, of Somerville, a passenger brakeman on the Central Railroad, applied to City Judge Runyon this morning for a warrant against a man who punched him in the eye after he had saved the puncher from stepping off a swiftly moving train, it is said, under the impulse of a jag. He didn't know the ungrateful one's name, and Judge Runyon advised him to get before making complaint. Beucher says he will learn who the man is in a day or two.

The rescue and the thumping occurred Tuesday night on the train due here at 7:12 o'clock. The puncher, who was recognized by the conductor, Philip Backer, as one of the club car set, boarded the train, with a full-sized load in him, it is alleged, at New York. He was asleep when the train reached Plainfield and he answered Beucher savagely when the latter woke him. Beucher was passing across one of the platforms as the train scudded between the Grant avenue and Clinton avenue stations when he saw the jagged one lurching down the steps. He made a quick jump and got hold of the man's arm just as his form dropped from the steps. With one arm braced around a handrail, Beucher held to the alleged drunken man, whose heels were drumming on the ties, until the train stopped at Clinton avenue and he could drag the soused one aboard. The man was heavy and Beucher's arm and shoulder were nearly crippled.

The man lurched back into the car and sank into a seat. A few minutes later Beucher passed through the car, and the rescued one arose and clipped him in the eye. He expressed annoyance over being dragged. Beucher's eye began swelling and he backed away. Conductor Backer came forward to see what was up, and the drunk went at him. He made four or five cracks at the conductor, before four passengers pulled him down and sat on him. He was peevish for a while, but quieted down and let the train at Dunellen.

Several men on the train recognized him as a regular traveller. His usual station is said to be Grant avenue. Beucher expects to learn from one or the other of the 7:12 passengers what his assailant's name is. If he gets on the train again his commutation ticket will furnish the information. As soon as Beucher gets the name, a warrant and an arrest will follow. Beucher has a beautiful black eye to keep his interest in the affair alive.

F. B. HARRISON WEDS MRS. COX IN LONDON.

Another Chapter in the Happy Romance of a New York Congressman-Elect.

Congressman-elect Francis Burton Harrison, of New York, and Mrs. Mabel Judson Cox, daughter of Henry I. Judson and divorced wife of Dr. Roland Cox, Jr., of New York, were married yesterday in All Souls' church, Portland place, London.

Among those present were the bridegroom's mother, his cousin, Lord Fairfax, who was best man; relatives and friends of the bride from New York and Baltimore, and Mr. Carter, the American Charge d'Affaires.

After the ceremony there was a wedding breakfast at Claridge's.

Main Line Car Broke Axle.

One of the large, main line trolley care broke an axle as it was leaving the car barns on West Fourth street at 6:30 this morning. It dropped across the Fourth street line and cars could not get by it to Monroe avenue until nearly 10 o'clock. A wrecking crew finally got it out of the way. There was no one in the car at the time and the crew escaped injury.

Milton Major.

Milton Major, clerk at the Lehigh Valley's storage plant, died at his home in South Plainfield yesterday. He was thirty-two years old and leaves a wife. The funeral will be held at the South Plainfield Baptist church Saturday afternoon at 2:30.

To Talk On Gen. Lee.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, will address the pupils of the Plainfield High School tomorrow morning. His subject will be "General Robert E. Lee." Dr. Chambliss was a warm personal friend of the great military leader.

SELLS 100 HOUSES TO WESTERN INVESTORS

D. FOSTER UPDYKE COMPLETE A BIG DEAL AT KENILWORTH.

Through D. Foster Updike, of 211 North avenue, the Baron De Hirsh Fund, of New York, has sold 100 houses at Kenilworth, a district in Cranford, to a syndicate of Omaha, Neb., investors. It is one of the biggest real estate deals of recent times.

Kenilworth is to be developed energetically. The deal is said to have caused $100,000 to change hands, and the Westerners are determined to make the property grow in a way proportionate to the sum invested. Mr. Updike will have full charge of the houses.

Kenilworth is booming. A new trolley and a steam road has been built through it, and there is every indication of continued and steady growth.

PLANNING SUPPORT FOR THE DAY NURSERY.

City Union, King's Daughters, Will Meet To Devise Ways and Means to Maintain Charity.

For the purpose of devising ways and means to give the work of the City Union, King's Daughters and more especially that of the Day Nursery, the support that is needed to maintain the charity, there will be a meeting of the presidents and secretaries of the various circles at the home of Mrs. S. St. John McCutchen on Myrtle avenue, Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock.

For some time the officers, as well as the members of the City Union, King's Daughters, have felt the necessity of greater effort to support the Day Nursery work. This enterprise is such a worthy one that the women are anxious to do something to put it on a good foundation financially. It costs about $150 a month to maintain the Day Nursery and this expense together with that of maintaining other charity work is a heavy one. The idea is to arrange for some special kind of entertainment whereby a large sum of money can be raised and this feature will be discussed at the meeting.

FIREHORSE IN A DECLINE.

"Andy," of No. 3 House, Suffers From Mysterious Illness.

"Andy," one of the big grays that draw the No. 3 hose cart, is rusticating at Charles Brower's place, Park avenue. He is recovering from a mysterious equine malady, which puzzled Dr. Pocock, the veterinary of the department, and all the men at the engine house. He began to fail in health a little over a week ago, and rapidly weakened. Nobody could tell what was the matter with him. He seemed just about ready to give out completely, when he was sent to the Brower place as a last resort.

Almost as mysteriously as he became ill, Andy began to improve. He is getting stronger daily and the men expect him back in harness within a week. A fuzzy farm horse is substituting in "Andy's" place.

Dr. Erdman Resigns.

Rev. Dr. Albert Erdman, for thirty-eight years pastor of the South Street Presbyterian church at Morristown, tendered his resignation at the winter session of the Orange and Morris Presbytery, yesterday. It was accepted with regret and will take effect April 10 next and after that he will serve as pastor emerites without salary. Dr. Erdman is the father-in-law of Rev. G. Kennedy Newell, formerly pastor of Hope chapel, and is well known in Plainfield having preached here many times.

Dates for Horse Show.

The Plainfield Riding and Driving Club has fixed the dates for the annual horse show to be held this year. It will be June 6, 7 and 8, which corresponds with last year's dates. It so happens that it comes at the same time of the International Horse Show in London, but it is not believed that it will greatly effect the local show. All of the best horses from the Philadelphia show which will be held May 28, 29, 30, 31 and June 1 have been promised for Plainfield.

Drunk On a Car.

Warren McCauley, of Scotch Plains, was arrested on a trolley car by Patrolman Saunders, last night, at Fifth street and Watchung avenue, for drunkenness. He was released under suspended sentence this morning.

LOUIS MILLIGAN SENT TO RAHWAY REFORMATORY

SENTENCE PASSED UPON HIM BY JUDGE ATWATER YESTERDAY.

Louis Milligan, of this city, arraigned in court at Elizabeth a week ago, on complaint of the probation officer with the object of having him committed to the State Reformatory, was arraigned before Judge Atwater yesterday and sentenced to that institution. Milligan is twenty-four years of age and has but one leg. On July 19, 1905, he was arrested for an assault and robbery, to which he pleaded guilty. Ten years before he had been committed to the Reform School for Boys for stealing $1,000 from the home of J. B. Cortright. On pleading guilty the last time the court, because of his crippled condition, placed him in the bands of the probation officer instead of inflicting a more severe punishment. For a short time Milligan made reports and then stopped. The stories that reached the probation officer regarding him were far from satisfactory, and early in August last Captain C. W. Irwin met him here and took him into custody. A few days later Milligan succeeded in breaking jail and making his escape. He was only recently recaptured.

Lucius Taylor, also of this city, colored, who one week ago pleaded guilty to larceny of two chickens, and was to have been sentenced yesterday, was remanded for another week, on motion of Prosecutor English, so that it might be possible to have present Mulford Cole, of Plainfield, Taylor's accuser. Taylor declared that he took the chickens in payment for money that Cole owed him.

FIRST REAL TOUCH OF WINTER STRIKES THE CITY

SIX INCHES OF THE "BEAUTIFUL" AT NOON AND MORE TO FOLLOW.

For the first time this winter, something like the snow storms that grandpa loves to tell the children about, hit the city early today. It started in as though it meant business shortly before six o'clock and by noon time half a foot of the "beautiful" was on the ground. The flakes were still falling then and the man who makes it his business to keep track of such things declared they would be in the air until night. After that there are indications that it will be warmer and rain may follow. Early in the storm the thermometer dropped and the cold made folks step right lively.

The sudden snowfall took the trolley people unawares and for a short time this morning cars on all the lines had difficulty in keeping up their schedule. The sweepers were gotten out before noon and they quickly had things in shape. The railroad trains experienced no trouble and every one but those coming from Pennsylvania were on time. Up along the Lehigh river the storm was quite severe and the snow made trouble for everybody.

Reports from New York State and other sections where cold weather and storms are frequent show that the present spell has been unusually severe. The Adirondacks come to the front with the news that the temperature there for the last forty-eight hours has been twenty-four degrees below zero most of the time. No longer period of cold has been recorded in the mountains for three years. From present indications it will be thirty below before morning all through the Adirondack region.

Michael Costello Dies at Washington.

Michael Costello, a former resident of this city, died Monday at his home in Washington, D. C. He was employed at the Pond Tool Works prior to his leaving Plainfield about six months abo. He was taken ill with acute stomach trouble and died soon after. He was a member of Court Plainfield, No. 1144, I. O. F., which sent a delegation to his funeral, held yesterday. The deceased leaves a wife and one child.

HE'S MAJOR MARTIN NOW

Company K's Captain Wins Long Deserved Promotion in National Guard.

DUNGAN IS LIEUT. COL.

Plainfield Company's Chief Has a Notable Career As a Military Officer—New Captain to Be Chosen.

Major Nelson Y. Dungan, of the Second Regiment, N. G. N. J., of Somerville, was last night unanimously chosen lieutenant-colonel at a meeting of the board of officers of the regiment at Trenton, to succeed Lieutenant-Colonel Clime. After the election of Major Dungan, Captain

Major William B. Martin.

Martin, of Company K, of this city, was elected major to fill the post left vacant by Colonel Dungan's promotion.

Major Dungan was nominted for the post by Major Forman, of Trenton. Major Forman made a long speech, in which he recounted the services of Major Dungan in the national guard for several years, his personality as a man and his popularity as an officer both in the field and in line. There was no opposition to the nomination and the adjutant cast the ballot.

Colonel Dungan addressed the members of the board, thanking them for selecting him lieutenant-colonel of the regiment. He was roundly applauded.

The election of a major was then taken up and Captain McCullough, of Company A, nominated Captain William B. Martin, of Company K. He referred to the captain's efficiency as a commanding officer and his standing both among the officers and men. Captain Park, of Company C, of Elizabeth, nominated Lieutenant Richard J. Cross, of the same company. Captain Park made a short nominating speech, after which the nominations closed and the balloting commenced. It was only necessary to take one ballot, for when the tellers announced their count the vote stood 29 for Martin and 22 for Cross. When this was announced Lieutenant Cross arose and moved that the election be made unanimous, which motion was carried.

Major Martin was a candidate for the post of major in the Second Regiment several years ago and upon his defeat forthwith resigned as an officer and enlisted the following day as a private. Thus he has risen from the ranks twice in his military career, which is an uncommon thing in militaryism.

After the election there was a regular business meeting of the board, and when this was done the officers partook of a luncheon in the squad room of the armory.

Captain Martin, the new major, is one of the most popular officers in the Second Regiment. He has had a long and successful military career in the State militia. He enlisted in Company C, of the Third Regiment, in 1884. He has gone through all of the non-commissioned and commissioned offices. He was elected adjutant of the Third Regiment in 1902, and was made captain and inspector of rifle practice of the Second Regiment in 1902. He was elected captain of Company K on November 5, 1902.

The election of Captain Martin leaves a vacancy in Company K. This office will be filled by an election by the company in the near future.

After the election the trophy donated to the Second Regiment by the widow of Sergeant John Rogers Williams, of Company L, of Princeton, was presented on behalf of the donor by Colonel Collins. It is a handsome silver loving cup and will be contested for by teams of five men each from the various companies. The company team making the best score will be given the prize. Mr. Williams was one of the best shots in the Second Regiment, and the prize is given to further the interest in rifle practice.

A shield was also presented by the Second Regiment for general marksmanship efficiency in the regiment, and will be awarded to the company making the best score for the year.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

One thing the taxpayers have got to face in the near futue is additional school room. The present building, which when built was expected to be ample enough to meet the demands of the scholars for years, is fast becoming too small to take care of the constant increase in the enrollment. The assembly room had to be taken for a class room several years ago. New seats have been added from time to time as the emergencies of the occasion demanded until at the present time the school has about reached its limits. Nearly every class room is crowded, the average class enrollment being about 40. The regrading of the school last year only gave temporary relief as the places of the 14 or 15 High School scholars who entered the Plainfield High School were more than filled by the new scholars enrolled. The only remedy is an addition to the present building and an increase in the number of teachers. Well, this may make a howl for a time from some of the taxpayers, but it is a good sign for any town when it has to expend money for education and this is what Scotch Plains will have to do in the near future.

Real Estate Dealer Thomas M. Paff, Sr., is already having applications for spring rentals here from people out of town. As usual, the supply will not begin to meet the demand.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hollingsworth, who have been spending several weeks with Mrs. Hollingsworth's mother, Mrs. John Marsh, have returned to their home at Detroit, Mich.

Mrs. James H. Parks, widow of the late Rev. Dr. J. H. Parks, has recovered from a severe attack of the grip, which confined her to her home for a week.

Installation of the newly elected officers of Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., will be held tonight. A full attendance of members is requested.

Mrs. Louis B. Coddington has returned from a visit with friends in New York.

The Township Committee meets tomorrow night in the town rooms.

WESTFIELD.

Kenneth Wilcox, the fourteen-year-old son of J. T. Wilcox, of Clark street, and Amos Miller, the sixteen-year-old son of H. B. Miller, of Elm street, who ran away from home on Sunday night, were located at Washington Tuesday, when the boys sent postal cards home, asking for money to come back to Westfield. Mr. Wilcox telegraphed a friend at Washington to send the boys home and both arrived safely over the B. and O. late Tuesday night. The boys give no reason for running away from home other than that they wanted to see the sights of the capital city. Both returned to school yesterday.

The new officers of Fairview Cemetery Association are J. S. Irving, president; C. C. Dilts, secretary, and Lloyd Thompson, treasurer. Reports to lot owners showed extensive improvements in the cemetery property and plans for further improvements.

The town engineer is taking measurements of macadam roads in the town, the object being to have all of the macadam roads in the town resurfaced as soon as the weather will permit.

Lehigh Valley patrons have petitioned the railroad company to keep an agent and operator at Ash Brook, claiming that closing the office shuts off telegraphic communication.

SOMERVILLE.

The Monday Evening Club met this week at the home of Miss Bagg and Miss Terry on West Cliff. The evening was devoted to "Bethoven." Mr. Lloyd, of Bound Brook, read an essay and played selections. Mrs. Ceasto and Miss Osborn played a part of the Fifth Symphony. Mrs. H. W. Reuswigg sang several selections.

Invitations are out for a Peter Pan dance, to be given by Mrs. Westcott in Germania Hall on Friday evening, January 18.

Miss Margaret Osborn, of West Doughty street, is a guest of friends in Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Miss Kate Stern has been spending some time with her parents near Roycefield.

Mrs. Carrie Stryker, of Newark, is spending a week with relatives at Frankfort.

Mrs. Henry Day, of Millstone, is a guest of friends in Brooklyn.

Mrs. George Anderson is visiting in Orange.

RARITAN.

Mrs. A. B. Monsky, of New York, has returned to her home after visiting her mother, Mrs. Harding, on Doughty street.

Mrs. Catherine Shearn and daughter Cornelia are visiting Mrs. Shearn's daughter, Mrs. J. F. Fay, at Roselle.

Mrs. J. H. Brutcher, of Caston avenue, spent last week in Philadelphia visiting her sister, Mrs. John Quilty.

Miss Alice Runyon, of Newark, is a guest of Miss Anna D. Cunningham, of North Adams street.

John McCarron has returned to Raritan after spending some time in Plainfield.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Baptist church have presented Mrs. Frank Fletcher with a handsome vase. The congregation gave Mr. Fletcher a house-jacket.

Plans are afoot for the introduction of simple manual training in the Whittier School. The basement is available as a workroom.

The annual report of the collector and treasurer of the borough will be issued today, together with the delinquent tax list.

Taxes collected up to January, for 1906, amounted to $11,927, which is $9,765 more than for the same time a year ago.

The mail crane on the westbound track at New Market has been changed to a position west of the station.

A large class of applicants is to be admitted to the Grange at the regular meeting.

Mrs. W. R. Hetfield has returned from a visit to friends in New York.

The Dramatic Society is planning a series of entertainments.

Mrs. Charles H. Thornton is recovering from her illness.

D. J. Thompson has recovered from the injury to his foot.

Miss Edna Coriell is at work in a Bound Brook office.

Miss Edna Vail is confined to the house by illness.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Milton Major died at his home yesterday morning at 11 o'clock. Mr. Major has been a resident of this place for the past twelve years and has been in the employ of the Lehigh Valley Coal Company at the coal storage as chief clerk. He was well liked by his employers and those who knew him. He was a member of P. O. S. of A., Camp 41. He is survived by a wife and one son. They have the sympathy of the community. The funeral services will be held at the church Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Burial will be at Hillside cemetery.

The minstrel show to be given by the Good Government Club will be held some time early in March. The committee will hold a meeting in Temperance Hall Monday evening.

The steam crane used by the Lehigh Valley Railroad to stock bituminous coal has been sent to the repair shop on account of a broken cable.

Mrs. John Hogan is able to leave the house after a serious attack of the grip.

Big Factory Burglaries.

New York, Jan. 17.—Cutting their way through a heavy wall strung with burglar alarm wires, thieves gained entrance to the skirt factory of Samuel Berry, on the eighth floor of No. 3 West Eighteenth street, almost in broad daylight Tuesday and carried away silks vauled at about $4,000. The burglary was the climax of a series of robberies in the vicinity. Equally successful was a raid of robbers recently who carried away $5,000 worth of silks from the establishment of James B. Goggin, of No. 29 East Nineteenth street; plundered a cravenette factory in West Twenty-sixth street of goods valued at $3,500 and took silks worth $2,500 from another skirt factory.

Landslide Stops Business.

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 17.—As a result of landslides along Elk River, destroying gas mains, Charleston may be without gas three days. Every industry is paralyzed, street cars and newspapers suspended, and people are hungry and cold. Because no printing can be done, the Legislature will probably adjourn. The Coal and Coke Railway tracks are covered with a huge slide for almost a mile.

William Wright, of East Front street, who was recently taken to the hospital suffering from a paralytic stroke, continues to improve.

There is continued improvement in the condition of Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, of West Front street, and he is able to sit up every day for a time.

Somerset Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet tomorrow night. Several applications for membership will be received and there may be initiation.

—Charles Eoff, of Crescent avenue, has taken a position in the City National Bank.

The Kinsman Block Signal System, A Valuable Industrial Investment.

The Kinsman Block System Co. offers for sale 375 shares of its Preferred Stock, par value 100 per share.

The Company own all the patents of F. E. Kinsman for the control of steam and Electric Railway trains, including those under which the Automatic Stop in the New York Subway is licensed.

The extraordinary value of this stop is shown by the now more than two years perfect operation on the Express tracks of the New York Subway and on the Boston Elevated Railway, where there has never been a collision, or the loss of a dollar's worth of property by the failure of the device, and further by the admitted fact that it has practically doubled the safe capacity of the roads thus equipped. The prospective use of this system in the additional subways and tunnels now under construction or already authorized, to say nothing of its probable ultimate adoption on the elevated railroads in New York, Brooklyn and elsewhere, justifies the Company's claim that the stock of the Company is cheap at par. In addition to this the Kinsman Block System Co. own many valuable patents on practical apparatus for similar control of trains on the surface electric and steam railroads of the country, some of which they are now equipping.

The collision on the "Southern R. R." in which President Samuel Spencer and his associates lost their lives is evidence of the need of such an apparatus. The only difference between that collision and others which occur almost daily is the prominence of the individual victims. The Kinsman Block System Company's apparatus is to the engineer what the air brakes are to the brakeman with the difference that the engineer is a far more important factor to the traveling public than the brakeman. His failure to observe signals or tendency to misunderstand train orders results in destruction of life and property, on the other hand, with the brakeman delays or inconveniences are generally the most serious consequences following negligence. It is only by substituting mechanical precision for human falibility that security can ever be secured.

Engineers do and will continue to run past visual signals set at danger. "Surprise checking" and other disciplinary methods have been in use for many years but still the Inter-state commerce commission's annual reports continue to startle the public and alarm the traveler. The Kinsman Automatic Recorder also owned by the Company meets this difficulty by furnishing the Railroad Management with an irrefutable record of train operation while running over the road, by automatically registering the conditions of all signals each time a train passes, thus correcting the present inspection methods and causing increased diligence and closer obedience on the part of the engineer. Signals either visual, audible or telephonic in the engine cab are no improvement on outside visual signals, in fact they give an engineer or motorman an excuse for neglecting to observe the outside conditions affecting the progress of his train, such as obstructions on the track at grade crossings or elsewhere, or to see the flagman whose duty it is to signal an oncoming train with a red flag or lanterns. In short, the present automatic visual signals as used by many of the principal roads are about the limit of human ingenuity in signalling, the only remaining improvement is in the direction of automatic control now so well covered by the pioneer patents owned or controlled by this Company.

SERVANT UPSET LAMP; HOUSE BURNED DOWN.

Ernest W. Boynton's Home at Sewaren Totally Destroyed—Loss $20,000.

Sewaren, Jan. 17.—At daybreak yesterday morning the residence of Ernest W. Boynton, the son of Col. C. W. Boynton, the owner of Boynton Beach, was burned to the ground. The building was entirely destroyed with its contents and some outbuildings were also burned.

The careless upsetting of a lamp by a servant in the attic was the cause of the conflagration. The servant, seeing what she had done, ran screaming tarough the house, waking the inmates. In the confusion which followed, Mrs. Boynton and her two small children might have been burned to death had it not been for Ernest Demarest, who rushed into the burning house and rescued them.

Mr. Boynton, in his eagerness to pull the alarm that would summon the Railway fire department, broke the apparatus, and the firemen failed to respond.

ASKS BIG REDUCTION.

Baltusrol Golf Club Claims To Be Assessed Too Much.

The Baltusrol Golf Club, of Springfield, had a representative before the County Board of Taxation yesterday morning to push a claim for a reconsideration of the assessment placed on its property on the road from Milltown to Summit. The club holds in the neighborhood of 500 acres of land and the total assessment on land and buildings, irrespective of personal property, is $148,700. The club would like to have the assessment reduced to about $27,000.

The assessor, L. K. Clark, said that he had been unable to secure any estimate from the club as to the value of the buildings. He has been assessor for only a short time and in order to straighten the matter out and arrive at a decision that will be satisfactory to all parties, the board will visit the club grounds and inspect the personal property and real estate.

Elizabeth Decides to Appeal.

Elizabeth, Jan. 17.—The Finance and Law committee of the City Council Tuesday night reported the receipt of a communication from City Attorney Connolly informing the city fathers of the decision in the case of Mrs. Mary Drown against Street Commissioner Thompson and Captain O'Leary, in which a verdict of $2,500 was found for the plaintiff, and recommended that the city attorney be authorized to appeal the case to the higher courts. Council voted unanimously for the appeal of the case, which was brought against the city officials on a claim of false arrest following the plaintiff's obstruction of the work of paving her street.

Gets $177.75 for Auto Mishap.

Elizabeth, Jan. 17.—In the Union County Circuit Court late yesterday afternoon a jury in the suit of the Sterling Manufacturing Company against Phillip Westenfelder for damage done to an automobile belonging to the plaintiff in a road collision, awarded the Sterling Company $177.75 damages. This ends the civil cases for the January term.

of having one's credit good possibly at this time of the year, is a little more noticeable than at any other. Perhaps yours is in excellent shape, but you have already used it as far as you care to go, and are still a little short. Then step in and let us assist you. We're taking care of winter's needs for hundreds whose credit is good, but who hesitate to obligate themselves any further to their friends, and particulary for a loan of a little cash. We loan any sum for any time and accept return payment weekly, semi-monthly or monthly.

We give you a written statement showing the exact cost of a loan, also the exact discount we allow every month the loan is paid before contract time. You will find us always willing to give you facts at our office. If you cannot call, write or 'phone us, and our confidential agent will call and give you full particulars.

The possession of household goods, piano, organ, horses and wagons are sufficient evidence of your ability to pay.

DIAMOND DUST.

Clark Griffith, the manager of the New York Americans, has demonstrated that he is a believer in young blood. Since he began the work in the city he has put on the ball field such brilliant young stars as Hal Chase, Moriarity, Hogg, Thomas, Delehanty, Doyle, Laporte, Kleinow and Brockett, who will make his bow this year. Incidentally, Griffith at the same time has shelved Jack O'Connor, Herman Long, John Ganzel, Lefty Davis, Tom Hughes and other veterans who were too slow to meet the requirements.

From all accounts the Brooklyn Club has secured a remarkable pitcher in Bell, formerly of Albany, but who jumped Brooklyn's reserve list to play in the Tri-State League last year.

Malachi Kittridge, manager of the Montreal Club of the Eastern League, announced yesterday that Fred Ascher, formerly a well known horseman, had been elected secretary and treasurer of the club, which incidentally will have the surplus players now under the control of the New York Americans. By a strange coincidence Kittridge was Griffith's catcher on the old Chicago team under Anson, and now both are working hand in glove as stockholders in the Montreal Club.

GOLF.

Numerous extra hole matches added to the interest of yesterday's play in the first and second rounds of the annual Advertising Men's golf tournament at Pinehurst. The match of the day was a twenty hole battle between Willis R. Roberts, of Philadelphia, and H. W. Ormsbee, of Brooklyn, in the first round of the first division, which the Philadelphia won, only to meet defeat in the afternoon round. The survivors in the first division are C. W. Royce, of Arlington; N. S. Hurd, of Pittsburg; J. P. Gardner, of Chicago, and T. R. Newbold, of Washington; H. W. Ormsbee, of Brooklyn; C. F. Norton, of Hempstead; Albert B. Ashforth, of New York, and G. F. Steele, of Brooklyn, remain in the consolation. Two match play rounds will bring the tournament to a close today, and a field of 150 starters is thus early assured for the annual midwinter tournament which begins on Thursday morning.

THE NEW LOBBY.

Although it has already become an active factor for good at the State Capitol, very little is understood by the people in general as to the purposes of the People's Lobby of New Jersey. Its reason for existence is well stated in a circular issued by the organization itself which sets forth that "Developments in the recent legislative life of the State have led those interested in its welfare to realize that in many cases undue influence, chiefly undue corporate influence, has endangered the interests of the people of this State."

The chief purpose of the Lobby is to guard the people's interests and to accomplish this, its representatives attend the sessions of the Legislature. As each bill is presented in either the Senate or the House, the Lobby's watchers carefully scrutinize it. If there should be a "rider" or "joker" hidden in its provisions or if the bill is conflicting in parts or is contradictory in any manner, the fact is at once made known to the people of the State. Should the measure be either useless or useful that fact is likewise given due publicity. Another object of the Lobby is to suggest legislation of a beneficial nature and to procure the ideas of the people regarding desirable legislation. Last but not least, the Lobby purposes to compile the records of members of the Legislature and other officials and to let them be known whenever needful.

The organization is pledged to lend its efforts in bringing about a number of reforms. These changes are eight in number: First, a law establishing a full verbatim, stenographic report of the proceedings of both Houses of the Legislature, and to secure the printing and distribution of the same; second, adoption of the so-called "Oregon" system to allow the voter to indicate upon his ballot his choice for United States Senator; third, constitutional amendments providing for an elective judiciary, prosecutors and heads of State departments; fourth, a competitive civil service for State and municipal employees; fifth; direct nominations and the abolishment of delegate conventions; sixth, the advisory initiative and referendum; seventh, a standing rule in both Houses, or constitutional amendment requiring that all committees shall report, and an open vote shall be had, on all bills introduced; eighth, ballot reform, based upon the principal of giving the fullest opportunity for independent voting.

There should be no hesitation on the part of the friends of good government endorsing this platform. It is one that will appeal to Republicans and Democrats alike and for that matter to men of all parties in New Jersey.

THE HARMFUL CAUCUS.

Daniel Webster said "it is time to do away with caucuses; they make great men little and little men great. The true source of power is the people." A Senator is supposed to represent the people in his district, not a few ambitious politicians outside of it.

No new sensations came to William J. Bryan when he was dumped into that snow bank. He's used to chilly receptions.

Will the Republican party be wrecked on the Rock of Gibraltar?

Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Marks, of East Third street, are entertaining relatives from Melrose, Mass.

Miss Mary Harper, of Brooklyn, has returned home after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. G. Harold Whitney, of DeLarey avenue.

Wings and Flies

By Tom Muir.

It has been definitely decided that the Elks coming show will be in the form of a high class vaudeville program. Manager Counihan and Maze Edwardes are busy securing the various numbers and they have hinted that nothing like the headliners they will get has ever been seen in the city. The show will be given on February 6 and tickets will be out in a few days.

The calamity howler who says that he doesn't get his money's worth in the theatrical line at home should make special note of a glaring contrast brought about by the appearance of "The Student King" here. It showed at the New Plainfield at the usual $1.50 scale and then went directly to the Garden theatre, New York, where it is now running at $2 a seat for the whole lower floor. The tickets are hard to get at that as the show has made a great metropolitan hit and unless reservations are made well in advance the prospective goer must pass up three large American dollars to the speculators. Verily, the world do move.

Billy Clifford, who appears at the New Plainfield tonight and tomorrow night, has been a leading vaudeville actor for many years and is as well known in the large cities as Willie Collier or Raymond Hitchcock. He has a style of stage presence that is peculiarly his own and is one of the cleveriest dancers that ever kept time to music. His production of "The Jolly Baron" will be the first to remain at the local theatre two nights since it opened.

Plans for Manager Counihan's New Majestic theatre at Perth Amboy have been completed and are now at his office. They show that the playhouse will be as pretty a "show shop" as anything in the State, bar none. Ground will be broken as soon as the weather moderates and attractions will begin playing about August 15.

Several men hunting near Galveston, Texas, a few days ago, found a metallic casket said to contain the body of the playwright and actor, Charles Goghlan, half concealed in a lonely marsh, where it was swept by the hurricane that half destroyed Galveston in 1900. The casket was liberated from a vault in a cemetery and with many others borne on the tidal wave many miles inland. It was discovered ten miles from the cemetery. Coghlan was touring in "The Royal Box" when he was stricken and died here. His remains were placed in a vault pending shipment to New York.

Richard Mansfield's New York engagement this year will consist of a series of twenty-eight appearances at the New Amsterdam theatre, beginning on Monday, Feb. 25. The opening bill will be Ibsen's comedy, "Peer Gynt."

When "Salome" is given for the first time at the Metropolitan Opera House on Tuesday evening as a testimonial for Mr. Conried a bronze statute of "Fame" wil be sent to the director at his house. It is a gift from the singers and employees of the Opera House and cost $2,500.

Reick Makes a Change.

William C. Reick, who has been president of the New York Herald Company for several years, and who has resigned to become associated in the management of the New York Times and Philadelphia Ledger, got his newspaper training in Newark. He was a news reporter on three local papers and afterward Newark correspondent of the Herald until he was called to the Herald to take a desk position, from which he advanced until he became Mr. Bennett's personal representative in the Herald management. Mr. Reick is a native of Burlington, and his first newspaper work was in Philadelphia. He is now president of the Philadelphia Public Ledger Company. Other men who have made great successes in journalism and literature were trained in Newark, a field that presents exceptional opportunities for newspaper training.—Newark Star.

Family Held For Murder.

Portland, Me., Jan. 17.—Mrs. William Henry Coffin and son, Harley, of Freeport, are under arrest on a secret indictment found by the Judge of the Superior Court, charging them with intent to kill in putting paris green into a spring used by Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Payson, of that town. The woman's husband, William Henry Coffin, was arraigned yesterday in the Municipal Court on the charge of being an accessory in the alleged attempt to murder, and his case was adjourned until tomorrow. The officers say the three members of the Coffin family are weakminded and entertained an imaginary grievance against the Paysons.

Five Killed In Explosion.

Norristown, Pa., Jan. 17.—The boiler of a Philadelphia and Reading Railroad freight engine evploded at Bridegport, near here yesterday and five were killed. The dead are Charles M. Stein, conductor; John Knoblech, fireman; Ray Schrader, brakeman; Elmer J. Kain, brakeman, and Alfred Krause, formerly of South Allentown, secretary of the local Wood Carvers' Union.

Not All Bribe-Takers.

New York, Jan. 17.—"It looks to me as if two, or possibly more, of that bunch of eleven Municipal Ownership League Aldermen were simply holding out on the others. I don't believe all of them knew their votes were being paid for, but, like plain fools, they were sold like sheep in a shambles." After examining eight of the ten Aldermen whose votes, according to Alderman William S. Clifford, now under arrest for accepting a bribe, could be purchased for $500 each, District Attorney Jerome made this assertion yesterday. For three hours he had questioned the Aldermen before the Grand Jury. This conclusion of the District Attorney, in conjunction with other significant incidents, was taken as an indication than one or more of the Aldermen had unbosomed themselves and given what might be construed as a confession. At the same time it proved that the majority of the ten had denied they had entered into any agreement to accept pay for voting for Rufus B. Cowing for recorder, and merely did so under orders, not knowing the reason for the bolt from John Palmieri.

Insanity Plea for Woman Killer.

Judge Hoffman, leading counsel for Harry Leddy, on trial for the murder of Mamie Ricker, yesterday afternoon at Paterson, outlined the defence. He told the jury that he would show that Leddy had reason to believe that Miss Ricker would marry him; that she had promised to be his wife and that when she refused he became moody, and that in a moment of insane rage he shot her. Testimony was introduced by the State to prove that Leddy had premediated the murder for several days.

Adams Was An Embezzler.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 17.—That Representative Robert Adams, Jr., embezzled $70,000 of the funds of his father's estate and $5,000 of the private estate of his paralyzed and helpless brother was openly charged yesterday in the Orphans' Court by Mrs. Charles Moran, stepsister of the suicide representative. It was this abstraction of trust funds, it is now believed, that caused Mr. Adams' suicide at his club in Washington on June 1, the day after his pet civil service consular bill became assured of becoming a law.

POLICE SEEK BRIDE WHO HAS DISAPPEARED.

Young Woman Missing from Orange Home Since Monday.

The Orange police yesterday afternoon sent out a general alarm to the police departments in that part of the county for Mrs. David Broderick, twenty-four years old, who has been missing from her home, at No. 47 William street, Orange, since Monday morning. She is a bride of a year, and she and her husband, who is employed at the Edison laboratory in West Orange, have, so far as any one seems to know, lived happily. The young husband is distracted, and is searching every possible place in an effort to find his wife. He says he knows of no reason for her disappearance.

Before Broderick went to work Monday morning his wife asked him to remain home for the day, because she was lonely. He responded that he would like to do so, but feared he would lose his place if he did. He promised to return home as soon as he could get away. Almost immediately after his departure Mrs. Broderick went downstairs to the apartments of Mrs. Martha Markwith, who owns the house, and asked to stay with her. The two women chatted for a while, and then Mrs. Broderick said she would go out and visit a relative. She has not been seen since.

Mrs. Broderick is described as five feet three inches tall, with black hair and blue eyes, and with some front teeth missing. She wore a light colored hat and coat, white veil and red skirt. She is a native of Vermont, and she and her husband came to Orange from Boston last May. She had only $4 when she went away, which is not enough to pay her fare to Vermont. She had a friend, a Mrs. Thayer, living at No. 108 West 63d street, Manhattan.

ELIZABETH LAWYER DEAD.

Louis A. Graff, Leading Member of Union County Bar.

Elizabeth, Jan. 17.—Louis A. Graff, a lawyer here for many years, died yesterday at his home on Jacques street, this city, of Bright's disease, after an illness of more than a year. Mr. Graff was forty-four years old, and a native of this city. He was active in Democratic politics for years, and at one time was a candidate for the Assembly against the late Thomas F. Lane, of Summit. When he failed to get the nomination he joined the Republican party.

He was a life-long member of St. Michael's German Catholic church, and was active in its interets. He was also a member of the Union County Bar Association. Mr. Graff, at one time belonged to the order of Elks, the Foresters and other organizations, but severed his connection with them when his health began to fail. He was twice married, his first wife being a native of Dover, while his second wife is the daughter of Michael Bender, a retired merchant of this city. He leaves a widow and two children.

Easy on Alleged Anarchists.

Hackensack, Jan. 17.—There was another surprise in the Bergen county courts here yesterday afternoon when Judge Zabriskie suspended sentence in the cases of Nicola di Nonna and Giuseppe Xicardi, convicted after a spirited trial of rioting at a Catholic church festival. The men were simply required to pay the costs of the trial—$61. Prosecutor Koester seemed surprised when sentence was suspended. He had referred to the men as "anarchists" and "hoodlums."

Foraker Unmasked.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—Senator Carmack, of Tennessee, a Democrat, in a stirring speech yesterday ripped the mask from the purpose of the campaign Senator Foraker has made against President Roosevelt for his action in discharging without honor the battalion of negro soldiers of the Twenty-fifth Infantry. He disclosed the onslaught as designed in the interests of the trusts, which, after anxious years of Roosevelt, desire again to bring the Republican party to its old moorings.

FRANKLIN DYE SPEAKS ON N. J. FARM WORK.

State Agricultural Board Secretary Gives Interesting Statistics at Trenton.

Trenton, Jan. 17. The thirty-fourth annual meeting of the New Jersey State Board of Agriculture began yesterday in the Supreme Court chamber at the State House. The first session opened this morning and the convention will continue until Friday.

The opening session was featured by the report of Franklin Dye, secretary of the board. He showed that the total value of the farms, including lands and improvements, etc., in this State, is $184,057,930, and that the total value of earnings and the appraised value of live stock for the past year was $75,506,939. The State through its farms produces enough to supply 130,000,000 people.

Mr. Dye gave a table comparing the gross earnings and the value of live stock of farms in this State for the past seven years. The figures follow: 1900, $43,005,732; 1901, $56,157,717; 1902, $62,231,964; 1903, $59,998,525; 1904, $68,667,980; 1905, $72,023,962; 1906, $75,506,939.

Dr. E. B. Voorhees, president of the board, named these committees: Credentials, H. F. Bodine, Albert Repp, T. B. Engle; resolution, H. J. Rider, Mr. Ketchum and George W. F. Gaunt; treasurer's account, J. B. Ward, H. F. Harrison and William Moreau; speakers and entertainment, J. M. Lippincott, W. S. Bonham and S. L. Barton. The session was opened with prayer by Rev. Dr. J. Morgan Reed, of Trenton.

Ammonia Crash Fatal.

New York, Jan. 17.—While trying to escape from the factory building, No. 155 Suffold street, yesterday afternoon, after an explosion of a large carboy of ammonia, twelve men were overcome by the fumes. Three of them were in a serious condition and were taken to Gouverneur Hospital. One may die. The noise of the explosion caused a panic and the force shook buildings a block away from the factory. It is said the explosion was caused by Joseph Kabb, seventeen years old, who lives in the basement of the building, and who was hoisting the carboy of ammonia to the fifth floor. It slipped out of the tackle, dropped one story and was smashed. The seriously injured were Samuel Siegel, seventeen, of No. 76 Ludlow street; Jacob Klein, thirty-nine, of No. 64 Clinton street, and Samuel Rice, thirty-three years old, of No. 88 Lewis street. Rice may die. Nine other men were carried out of the building unconscious and were treated by Drs. Lit, Mason, Birzsall and Winthrop, of Gouverneur Hospital.

Cannon Afraid for Protection.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—President Roosevelt, at a banquet of the National Convention for the Extension of Foreign Commerce, last night, indorsed all that Secretary Root has said to that body in favor of the establishment of a maximum tariff, the future of Cuba and relations with Santo Domingo. This declaration evoked cheers from the delegates around the table, but it brought on a dramatic moment when Speaker Cannon, who sat beside the President, arose and, shaking his finger emphatically almost in the President's face, declared that despite what had been said he for one did not indorse the maximum and minimum tariff unless it should be with the present schedules as a minimum. He announced himself as well satisfied with existing conditions and confident that the plan suggested by the President and Secretary Root was "a day's journey toward free trade."

Charge Cabinet Officer.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—Charges of graft in connection with the payment by Secretary of the Interior Hitchcock of a big fee to Charles Nagle and other St. Louis lawyers for services in an Indian case before the Court of Claims and the Supreme Court are presented in a resolution offered in the House yesterday by Representative Stephens, of Texas. The Stephens resolution directs Secretary Hitchcock to send to the House a statement of the facts in connection with the payment of the fee, and copies of all contracts and other papers bearing on the employment of the lawyers in the case.

Her Dream Comes True.

Meridan, Conn., Jan. 17.—Dreaming that her husband had become insane, Mrs. George Gyge, of Torrington, suddenly awoke from her sleep Tuesday night to find him bending over her with a bread knife in his hand. She screamed and fought desperately with him for possession of the weapon. Mrs. Gyge was almost overcome by the unequal struggle, when two men who live in the house responded to her cries for help and finally overpowered Gyge and wrested the knife from him.

Obituary Nearly Fatal.

Mount Vernon, N. Y., Jan. 17.—Reuben Belcher had the experience yesterday of reading his own obituary. When he read the death notices Belcher started laughing and nearly became hysterical. The reaction affected his heart and a physician was called. Recently a man resembling Belcher was found dead in South Columbus avenue. Belcher turned up last night and his friends were astounded. Charles Hartless was the man who died.

Michigan Wife Murderer Confesses.

Edward F. Brassam, who killed his wife in Jackson, Mich., on December 22, was arrested at the postoffice, Jersey City, yesterday. Brassam, who is twenty-four years old, admitted his identity. His wife, he said, had left her home and children, and it was her refusal to come back that excited him, and he seized the pistol and shot her. He signed a confession yesterday that will probably be used against him at his trial.

Utter Gets a Vote.

Providence, R. I., Jan. 17.—The State Legislature, in joint assembly failed yesterday to elect a United States Senator to succeed Senator George Peabody Wetmore. Colonel Robert H. I. Goddard received 41 votes, Colonel Samuel P. Colt 38, Senator Wetmore 30 and former Governor George H. Utter 1. Fifty-six votes are necessary for a choice.

Leaves 208 Descendants.

Burlington, Vt., Jan. 17.—Mrs. Toby Rosenberg, of this city, said to have been the oldest woman in Vermont, died yesterday at the age of 103 years. Mrs. Toby left 208 descendants in five generations, the oldest being a son eighty-one years old.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Jan. 20: "Our Heavenly Father's Consideration."

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

Luke ii, 5-13; II Chron. xvi, 9; Ps. xxxiv, 15, 17; John xvi, 22, 24; Phil. iv, 19.

"The eyes of Jehovah run to and fro throughout the whole earth to show Himself strong in behalf of them whose heart is perfect toward Him."

Our needs in many directions are constant. Our ability to supply those needs seems very often unequal to the task. Here is an ever present cause of uneasiness. The problem of getting a living for ourselves and those dependent upon us is a most pressing one. It does not grow easier in these days of increasing prosperity and luxury, but often seems heavier than in the days of simple living. The struggle for existence is the ever present burden carried by the great mass of the people. Some few are lifted above it for a time apparently. But the frequent loss of property and the plunge from wealth into poverty are not uncommon among us.

Can any remedy be found for this uncertainty and anxiety? This is a live question with all classes of the people.

The search for the cure has been eager and persistent. Have you found the rest and peace desired so that you live in confidence?

No variety of investments, no form of insurance, no organization for mutual help, no system of charity, no governmental aid, nor all combined have been found sufficient to settle the difficulty and give assurance of health, happiness and adequate means of sustenance for life.

No wonder the people look at each other with hungry eyes and ask in troubled tones, "What shall we eat, what shall we drink, and wherewithal shall we be clothed?" We need all these things. Whence shall we get them?

But the anxiety of life is deeper than this bread and butter problem. If only there was some chance for justice between man and man we could rest easier. If things seemed to be decided with any regard for rights and equity we could endure more uncomplainingly the lack of some material things. We crave peace of mind if we may not have comfort of body. But things do not seem to go as they ought. The wrong gets ahead of the right too often, and the bad sits where the good alone ought to sit, and we cannot prevent it.

This is just where the strength of the Christian religion is most manifest. There is no help to be had from men in this age long and worldwide struggle. Help has been sought in every power of nature and mind, and every faculty and force conceivable has been elevated to the throne as a deity and homage paid to it, but all to no purpose. Every heathen religion is an attempt to solve the riddle of life, and all have proved to be failures.

But there is a God in heaven and on earth who cares for us and will in His own time and way find the path of life for us and bring us to complete satisfaction. He does rule on this earth and among men, however it may at times seem as if He had forgotten. That confidence comes to us as we look at Jesus Christ. He trusted and made the only success ever achieved by a man on earth. He tells us not to let our hearts be troubled. God knows we need all these things. Seek the truth of God's kingdom, and, getting that, we shall have all these other things added to us.

All other means of peace have been tried and have failed. This has been tried and works. We have a Father, all powerful, all wise, who cares for us. All things are in His hands. This is His world, and it must work His will. We can trust Him and work with Him. Meat and drink we shall have in some measure, but the most important gift of his presence, love and guidance we may also have if we seek them diligently. Peace is on earth now to men of good will, and God is receiving and to receive highest glory through us. This is through our faith and is the victory which overcomes the world.

Never In Debt.

God never leaves us in His debt. He takes care to pay for His entertainment royally and divinely. He sends His prophet to lodge with the widow and provides meal and oil for him and for her for many days.—Rev. F. B. Meyer.

Why All Will Be Well.

I hold not with the pessimist that all things are ill, nor with the optimist that all things are well. All things are not ill, and all things are not well, but all things shall be well, because this is God's world.—Browning.

Gems In Brief.

So long as you do not quarrel with sin you will never be a truly happy man.—Ryle.

It is to live twice when you can enjoy the recollection of your former life.—Martial.

Only what thou art in thyself determines thy value, not what thou hast.—Auerbach.

The problem of life is not to make life easier, but to make men stronger.—David Starr Jordan.

Between the great things we cannot do and the small things we will not do the danger is that we shall do nothing.—Adolphe Monod.

God gives us always strength enough and sense enough for what He wants us to do. If we either tire ourselves or puzzle ourselves, it is our own fault.—Ruskin.

A man can get nothing good out of his soul when it is the slave of the body and nothing good out of the body unless it is the servant of the soul.—Charles F. Deevers, D. D.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Jan. 20.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—"More than conquerors." The victory over temptation. Gen. iii, 4-6; Matt. xxvi, 41; Rom. viii, 37.

The saddest story to be found on the pages of human history is the one contained in the reference selected from the third chapter of Genesis—the fall of the first man and woman into sin as a result of temptation. Man had been created in the image of God. He was like God in that he was "perfect in knowledge, righteousness and holiness." Morally and spiritually he was a perfect being, like God, and as a result God walked with him and talked with him in the garden of Eden, his home. But, though perfect, man was not immune from temptation and sin. To prove his worth it was necessary for him to be subjected to temptation. In the wisdom of God this must have been wise and even good or else God would have willed it otherwise. And yet the greatest problem in human life is the coming of sin into the world. We cannot solve the problem. It is useless to try. We can only face the fact. Man was tempted and yielded. This is the sad fact. The tempter was shrewd and tactful. He lied as to results, as most tempters do. The temptation was a strong one, skillfully presented, and man yielded and thus Brought death into the world and all our woe.

The downfall of Adam not only brought death and ruin to himself, but through him to all the human race, which is descended from him, so that today all men are liable to temptation and to sin. The soul is constantly in the midst of a great struggle between truth and error, right and wrong, righteousness and holiness. No human being in all the world is exempt from this struggle. The adversary of the human soul still exists, going "about like a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour." He is still most subtle and skillful in his attacks upon us. He knows our vulnerable points and constantly assails us where we are weak. To conquer sin, to win the victory over temptation, we must realize this fact and be constantly on our guard. As a means of obtaining the victory Christ Himself has given us the command, "Watch and pray that ye yield not to temptation." We must watch and we must pray and do both together, praying while we watch and watching while we pray. The same God who permitted sin to come into the world has provided us a way of escape from temptation and sin. We should trust Him, pray to Him and be constantly on our guard.

My soul, be on thy guard.
Ten thousand foes arise,
And hosts of sin are pressing hard
To draw thee from the skies.

And in our praying and watching we are to depend not upon our own strength, but upon divine strength. Through Christ, the second Adam, we may be "more than conquerors," even over temptation and sin.

A Cycle Corps.

The use of the bicycle in Christian Endeavor work is very common in Great Britain and Australia, but far less common in the United States. We notice in the last number of the Christian Endeavor News of South Australia the organization of still another cycle corps, in the Burgess Memorial church of Adelaide. These enthusiastic Endeavorers ride out into the country twelve or fifteen miles to visit some society that needs the good cheer and inspiration they bring with them. After their ride they are in just the right trim for a vigorous religious meeting, and the ride back again over the hills is full of delight, with the added joy of duty done. This combination of physical and spiritual exercise should be adopted in the United States.—Christian Endeavor World.

The Difference.

Robert Ingersoll once said, "I would rather be a German peasant sitting by the river Rhine, the evening sun throwing an aureole of glory around my vine clad cottage, my children at my side, my book in my hand, at peace with my fellow men, than to be the greatest Christian that ever lived." I want to change that. I would rather be the humblest Endeavorer in Ohio, sitting in the evening twilight by the door of the plainest church in the most lonely countryside in our great commonwealth, the evening sun throwing an aureole of God's love and praise about my head, my fellow Endeavorers by my side my Bible on my knee, at peace with my God and my fellow men, than to be the greatest infidel that ever lived.—C. H. Hubbell.

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

A TALE OF THE OLD WEST

By HARRY LEON WILSON AUTHOR OF THE SPENDERS

COPYRIGHT 1903 BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

"—it you don't even know what my trouble is."

"I do—it's about your father and mother—when they were married."

"How did you know?"

"I can't tell you now, but I will soon. Look here, you can believe what I tell you, can't you?"

"Yes, I can do that."

"Well, then, you listen. Your father and mother were married in the right way, and there wasn't a single bit of crookedness about it. I wouldn't tell you if I didn't know and couldn't prove it to you in a little while. Say, there's one of our wagon trains coming along here toward Salt Lake next Monday. It's coming out of its way on purpose to pick me up. I'll promise to have it proved to you by that time. Now, is that fair? Can you believe me?"

She looked up at him, her face bright again.

"Oh, I do believe you! You don't know how glad you make me. It was an awful thing—oh, you are a dear—" and full upon his lips she kissed the astounded young man, holding him fast with an arm about his neck. "You've made me all over new—I was feeling so wretched—and, of course, I can't see how you know anything about it, but I know you are telling the truth." Again she kissed him with the utmost cordiality. Then she stood up to arrange her hair, her face full of the joy of this assurance. The young man saw that she had forgotten both him and his religious perplexities, and he did not wish her to be entirely divested of concern for him at this moment.

"But how about me? Here I am, lost if I do and lost if I don't. You better sit down here again and see if there isn't some way I can get that crown of glory."

She sat down by him, instantly sobered from her own joy, and calmly gave him a hand to hold.

"Well, I'll tell you," she said, frankly. "You wait awhile. Don't do anything right away. I'll have to ask father." And then as he reached over to pick up the Book of Mormon—"No, let's not read any more to-day. Let's sit a little while and only think about things." She was so free from embarrassment that he began to doubt if he had been so very deeply clever, after all, in suggesting the relationship between them. But after she had mused awhile, she seemed to perceive for the first time that he was very earnestly holding both of her hands. She blushed, and suddenly withdrew them. Whereat he was more pleased than when she had passively let them lie. He approached the matter of salvation for himself once more.

"Of course, I can wait awhile for you to find out the rights of this thing, but I'm afraid I can't be baptized even if you tell me to be—even if you want me to obey the Lord and marry some pretty little light-complected, yellow-haired thing afterwards—after I'd married my first wife. Fact is, I don't believe I could. Probably I'd care so much for the first one that I'd have blinders on for all the other women in the world. She'd have me tied down with the red ribbon in her hair—" he touched the red ribbon in her own by way of illustration—"just like I can tie the biggest steer you ever saw with that little silk rag of mine—hold him, two hind legs and one fore, so he can't budge an inch. I'd just like to see some little, short, kind of plump, pretty yellow-haired thing come between us."

For an instant she looked such warm, almost indignant approval that he believed she was about to express an opinion of her own in the matter, but she stayed silent, looking away instead with a little movement of having swallowed something.

"And you, too, if you were my sister, do you think I'd want you married to a man who'd begin to look around for some one else as soon as he got you? No, sir—you deserve some decent young fellow who'd love you all to pieces day in and day out, and never so much as look at this little yellow-haired girl—even if she was almost as pretty as you."

But she was not to be led into rendering any hasty decision which might affect his eternal salvation. Moreover, she was embarrassed and disturbed.

"We must go," she said, rising before he could help her. When they had picked their way down to the mouth of the canyon, he walking behind her, she turned back and said: "Of course you could marry that little yellow-haired girl with the blue eyes first, the one you're thinking so much about—the little short, fat thing with a doll-baby face—"

But he only answered: "Oh, well, if you get me into your church it wouldn't make a bit of difference whether I took her first or second."

CHAPTER XXXIII.

A Revelation Concerning the True Order of Marriage.

While matters of theology and consanguinity were being debated in Box canyon, the little bent man down in the first house to the left, in his struggle to free himself, was tightening the meshes of his fate about him. In his harried mind he had formed one great resolution. He believed that a revelation had come to him. It seemed to press upon him as the culmination of all the days of his distress. He could see now that he had felt it years before, when he first met the wife of Elder Tench, the gaunt, gray woman, toiling along the dusty road; and again when he had found the imbecile boy turning upon his tormentors. A hundred times it had quickened within him. And it had gained in force steadily, until to-day, when it was overwhelming him. Now that his flesh was wasted, it seemed that his spirit could see far.

His great discovery was that the revelation upon celestial marriage given Joseph Smith had been "from beneath"—a trick of Satan to corrupt them. Not only did it flatly contradict earlier revelations, but the very Book of Mormon itself declared again and again that polygamy was wickedness. Joseph had been duped by the powers of darkness, and all Israel had sinned in consequence. Upon the golden plates delivered to him, concerning the divine source of which there could be no doubt, this order of marriage had been repeatedly condemned and forbidden. But as to the revelation which sanctioned it there could rightly be doubt; for had not Joseph himself once warned them that "some revelations are from God, some from men, and some from the devil." Either the Book of Mormon was not inspired, or the revelation was not from God, since they were fatally in opposition.

It came to him with the effect of a blinding light, yet seemed to endow him with a new vigor, so that he felt strong and eager to be up, to spread his truth abroad. Some remnant of that old fire of inspiration flamed up within him as he lay on the hard bed in his little room, with the summer scents floating in and the out-of-doors sounds—a woman's voice calling a child afar off, the lowing of cattle, the rhythmic whetting of a scythe-blade, the echoing stroke of an ax, the mellow fluting of a robin—all coming to him a little muted, as if he were no longer in the world.

He raised upon his elbow, glowing with the flush of old memories when his heart had been perfect with the lord; when he had wrought miracles in the face of the people; when he had besought Heaven fearlessly for signs of its favor; when he had dreamed of being a pillar of fire to his people in their march across the desert, and another Lion of the Lord to fight their just battles. The little bent man of sorrows had again become the lute of the Holy Ghost.

He remembered the day was Saturday, and he began at once to word the phrases in which he would tell his revelation on the morrow. He knew that this must be done tactfully, in spite of its divine source. It would be a momentous thing to the people and to the priesthood. It was conceivable, indeed, that members of the latter might dispute it and argue with him, or even denounce him for a heretic. But only at first; the thing was too simply true to be long questioned. In any event, his duty was plain; with righteousness as the girdle of his loins he must go forth on the morrow and magnify his office in the sight of Heaven.

When Prudence came softly in to him, like a cool breath of fragrance from the canyon, he smiled up to her with a fullness of delight she had never seen in his face before.

There was a new light in her own eyes, new decisions presaged, a new desire imperfectly suppressed. He stroked her hand as she sat beside him on the bed, wondering if she had at last learned her own secret. But she became grave and was diverted from her own affairs when she observed him more closely.

REMOVED PARASITES

Cooper's Medicine Brings a New Disease Into Prominence.

PEOPLE ARE TERRIFIED

Young Man Explains the Cause of Trouble—Says Creatures Are Taken Into System in Rare Meat.

St. Louis, Jan. 16.—Probably the most unusual feature of the excitement that has been created by L. T. Cooper's visit to this city is the removal of parasites or tapeworms by his preparations.

During the early part of Cooper's stay in St. Louis individuals who were taking his "New Discovery," as it is called, brought either to himself or to physicians throughout the city immense parasites that had left the system after using the medicine.

Many of these people were frightened, and cases of this sort became so numerous that Cooper finally made the following statement for publication:

He said: "In every city I visit these things are brought to me within a few days after my medicine is sold in the city. They are what is known as the tape-worm, and grow to enormous size.

"Few indeed realize how prevalent these creatures are. I think I have been the first to demonstrate what a large factor they are in the poor health of this generation. I believe that fully one-half the chronic stomach trouble that is so universal is caused by these parasites.

"Individuals may have them for years and not be aware of the reason for continued ill-health, but attribute it to many different diseases, when in reality one of these creatures is robbing them of their vitality.

"These parasites are taken into the system in uncooked food or rare meat, in the form of an egg, which hatches almost immediately. People suffering from them experience a feeling of lassitude and are extremely nervous. The action of the "New Discovery" seems to be fatal to these great worms and in most cases a few doses of the medicine drives the creatures from the system. I will have hundreds of them brought to me before I leave the city."

This grewsome prophecy has been amply verified, for not only hundreds but thousands of St. Louis people have been relieved of one of these fearful parasites since taking Cooper's preparations, and the entire city has been aroused by the fact.

Some of these parasites are of such enormous size as to startle the imagination. The statement of Father John Baptist Arnolis, one of the best known and best beloved priests in this section of the country, verifies this. His statement, among others given to a reporter, was as follows:

"For years I suffered from what I thought was a general run down condition of the system caused by stomach trouble. I felt extremely tired all the time, and it was a great effort to attend to my duties. I would wake up in the morning feeling as worn-out as when I went to bed. If I stood for any length of time I would have a pain in the lower part of my back, and would have to sit down.

"I was very nervous and depressed in spirits, and was troubled with dizzy spells. I would see spots before my eyes when I stooped over and raised up quickly. I had a very irregular appetite, and would have palpitation of the heart after ascending the stairs.

"The talk about Mr. Cooper's preparations was so universal that I decided to try some, although I do not take patent medicines as a rule. I took four doses of the 'New Discovery' as it is called, and a tape-worm about ninety feet in length left my system.

"I am very thankful for this great relief, and I now know what has been the cause of all my sufferings."

This story of Father Arnolis is a fair example of the experience of an astonishing number of St. Louis people, and Cooper's preparations are selling here in immense quantities. It is now estimated that he has sold one hundred thousand bottles to date in this city alone, and the sale is still increasing.

One can recall, and not very long ago, that an audience felt quite compensated by going to the theatre, if it was enabled to get three hearty laughs out of some farce comedy. Billy Clifford in his happy humorous character of Tom Baron, Jr., in the new musical fantasy "A Jolly Baron" promises a combination of merriment and melody for three acts. Among the pleasing melodies are, "We Are the Typewriter Girls," "He's a College Boy," "Sarah," "Bessie and Her Little Brown Bear," not to mention the numerous individual songs of Mr. Clifford's. It is said by those who have witnessed the play that Mr. Clifford has surrounded himself with one of the most capable companies on the road, a fine singing chorus, and a scenic production seldom seen at popular prices. This will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre tonight and tomorrow night.

"The Mayor of Tokio" will return to Plainfield Saturday afternoon and night, appearing at the New Plainfield theatre. Mr. Carle has arranged the play so that there shall be no sextet, no show girls, no Indians, and no "naval lieutenant with a tenor voice," for all of which he is entitled to thanks. An excellent company has been engaged and the successful seasons of 1905 and 1906 will in all liklihood be duplicated, if not surpassed. The show has a record of 110 nights in Chicago, six weeks in New York, six weeks in Boston, and three weeks respectively in Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington.

"The Embassy Ball," a new comedy written by Augustus Thomas to display the distinctively individual methods, mannerisms and personality of Lawrence D'Orsay, will serve on Wednesday evening next to introduce that very popular and extremely likeable English actor to a local audience at the New Plainfield theatre. The scene is in Washington and the period of today. It is said to be a clean and clever comedy of American life coruscating with Thomas' wit. Mr. D'Orsay's part is much like that played by him in "The Earl of Pawtucket," which met with great success two seasons ago. Harry Harwood, who enacts the role of Senator Bender, of Oregon, is one of the best known of American comedians. He was with John Drew several seasons.

SECOND SONATA RECITAL.

Miss Beebe and Mons. Dethier Present Delightful Programme.

The second of the series of sonata recitals by Miss Beebe and Mons. Edouard Dethier, of New York, was given yesterday at the home of Miss Hubbell, of Central avenue, and the attendance of society people was fully as large, if not more so, than at the first recital last week. The various numbers were received with great enthusiasm by all who appreciate music of such a high character.

At the first recital the selections were from the early composers. Yesterday several favorite selections from Bach, Beethoven and Schumann were given. The renditions were delightful. There was little to choose from in the numbers presented as each was interpreted in the right style and with true spirit. There was perfect harmony between the violin and piano and the large audience responded enthusiastically throughout the entire rendition. The third recital will be given next week.

87 Degrees, 6 Minutes North.

Commander Peary, who has now come nearer the Pole than any other arctic explorer—the Italian Cagni of the Abruzzi expedition holding the next best record—gives in the First Methodist church Saturday evening, January 26, a report of his expedition, illustrated with remarkable colored views from his own photographs and a map. Peary's ship, "The Roosevelt," was built by Captain Charles B. Dix. At times the ship was packed so tightly between masses of slowly moving ice, that her ribs could be heard to crack like discharged musketry. The lecture is a striking chapter of history, a tale of heroism and brute endurance. Peary reached 87 degrees, 6 minutes north on April 21, 1906, the highest point of latitude ever attained by human beings.

LABOR MEN TO SPEAK BEFORE ELIZABETH PRESBYTERY.

Action Taken at the Seventy-third Meeting Held at Cranford Tuesday.

The seventy-third meeting of the Presbytery of Elizabeth was held in the Presbyterian church at Cranford, Tuesday. Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie and other local pastors were in attendance.

At the opening of the afternoon session, Rev. Dr. Cobb, of Elizabeth, said he understood that Rev. Edward Love, of Plainfield, in charge of the Presbyterian chapel at Garwood, had declared that the home missionary department had fallen into the hands of the labor organizations, and hoped that this branch had not met such a fate. Rev. William Rommel said that organized labor had accomplished a vast amount of good for humanity and believed in organizations as the effective means of securing for the workingman a just reward for his labor.

He related a conversation with a Philadelphia elder, who declared that the trusts were a good thing for capital, because when his factory was closed his income went on just the same. When asked about the workingman, when his income was cut off, the elder replied he "never thought of him." Mr. Rommel closed his remarks by saying that if there was anything he could do to help organized labor he would do it.

Rev. Mr. Shaw urged that speakers from the labor organizations be invited to appear before presbytery and present their case for the enlightenment of the presbytery. Rev. Mr. Ferguson offered a resolution that Secretary Statsly and the represenatives of the labor unions be invited to speak on the subject at a meeting to be held in a church located conveniently for those interested to attend. This resolution was adopted. The presbytery will fix the date in the near future.

Grand Marshal Stephen H. Schleif, of Noah Dove Encampment, I. O. O. F., attended the annual reception and dance of the Paterson Encampment at Paterson last night.

HAY BREAKS FARMER'S RIBS.

His Horses, Frightened by an Auto Upset a Load Upon Him.

Mount Holly, Jan. 17.—Thomas Miller, of Florence, driving a heavy load of hay through Burlington yesterday, narrowly escaped death. His team became frightened at a passing automobile, upset the wagon, dumped the load on the sidewalk, and buried the driver beneath it. He was unconscious when removed. By jumping as the wagon overturned Miller saved himself from being impaled on a nearby fence.

Pedestrians seeing the accident and hearing the moans of the buried farmer got pitchforks and as quickly as they could dug him out. The hay weighed two tons and the pressure upon the man's body broke three of his ribs and one of them punctured his lungs.

The automobile disappeared, its occupants offering no assistance to the injured man.

DISPUTING LAWYERS' FEES.

Vice-Chancellor Pitney Directs Them Held in Trust Until Settlement.

Elizabeth, Jan. 17.—Vice-Chancellor Pitney has modified the injunction in the case of Lawyer William R. Wilson against Philip Schauble, formerly of the Rising Sun Brewery, for counsel fees, so as to permit of part payment of the amount due Schauble from Seeber for stock in the concern.

The total amount involved is $40,000, and Wilson claims $5,000 as his commission. He appealed to the court to have it compel Seeber pay him directly the fee which he claims as his due. The court, however, directed that the money be held in trust by A. J. David until the differences between Schauble and Wilson have been settled.

Foresters' Annual Entertainment.

Court Plainfield, No. 1144, Independent Order Foresters, will hold its annual entertainment and dance tomorrow night in Saengerbund Hall. Judge D. T. Howell, of Newark, the high chief ranger of the order in New Jersey, will deliver a short address. He will be accompanied by F. A. Mackenzie, of Elizabeth, high secretary, and W. T. Bingham, also of Elizabeth, the deputy supreme chief ranger of New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Professor Howard, of Newark, will present a high-class vaudeville entertainment and Prof. Heinmeyers' orchestra from Elizabeth will furnish music for dancing. Admission will be by ticket only, which have been furnished the members for themselves and families.

Vacant Judgeship.

Considerable speculation is in the air as to who Chancellor Magie will appoint as Vice Chancellor to succeed Vice Chancellor Henry C. Pitney. Since the official announcement by Vice Chancellor Pitney that he intended to resign the Chancellor has given out no information as to who he would appoint or when the vacancy would be filled. The crowded condition of all the courts is well known, however, and it is thought that the appointment will not be long deferred. Two Middlesex county lawyers are being prominently mentioned for the place. They are Alan H. Strong and Willard P. Voorhees, both of New Brunswick.

Bound Brook Bank Open.

The Bound Brook National Bank has opened its doors to the public. The officials of the bank are: President, Captain William H. Bache; vice-presidents, Edward H. Radel, Sears R. Kelso, Max F. Writz; cashier, Richard H. Brokaw. The directors are: H. K. Ramsey, Charles Byer, Jr., Joseph V. D. Field, John J. Maier and William Schuer, of Bound Brook; S. S. Sticklad, R. E. Apgar, James B. Booney, of South Bound Brook; J. F. Regar and Peter L. Drake, of Somerville.

Central Fireman Dying.

Elizabeth, Jan. 17.—Paul Hauser, a fireman on the Central Railroad, who was removed to the Alexian Brothers' Hospital suffering from a fractured skull, received from an explosion on his engine at Port Reading Tuesday, is in a serious condition. His recovery is impossible.

Invalid Gifts.

"You must have had faith in my getting well," said the convalescent brightly, "or you'd never have brought me something pretty to wear," and immediately she tried the dainty lace collar on. That set the visitor a-thinking. She had brought that particular sort of gift simply from a desire to take something that was out of the ordinary. But if it really suggested getting well and getting out, why, there was much more subtlety in the choice of gifts that might be taken into account when dealing with invalids.

Civil War Memoirs.

On the invitation of Principal H. C. Krebs, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will give a talk to the pupils of the North Plainfield High School some day next week on his "Civil War Recollections." Dr. Chambliss was a chaplain in the Confederate Army and was a personal friend of many of the great military men of the South.

HE LECTURES PEDAGOGUES

Dr. Van Ormer Tells Teachers That Children Are Often Unjustly Punished.

CONSIDER THE MOTIVE

Subject "Some Fundamentals In School Management" Proved Highly Interesting to the Audience.

The first of a series of lectures before the teachers of the city and borough schools was given yesterday afternoon in the North Plainfield school by Rev. Dr. A. B. VanOrmer, of Norwood, Pa. The doctor is a graduate of New York University, and has done post-graduate work in the University of Pennsylvania. His subject was "Some Fundamentals In School Management."

Dr. VanOrmer said in part: "The management of a school is no easy task. Those who think so have a low ideal of what a school should be. To teach forty different pupils with varied tastes, aptitudes, homes, temperaments, capacities, and to employ such means as will properly develope not only the intellect but also the moral qualities and inculcate good habits, is a task that requires great skill, patience, and tact. The very fact of its difficulty gives encouragement to the teacher; for when she is disheartened by her failure to reach a certain pupil she will remember the complexity of the problem and seek another solution.

"The teacher should have clearly in view the end to be reached. Otherwise she will not attain the end. That end is to make good strong men and women. She who aims to train the intellect only does but a small part of the work.

"The teacher should see everything with her natural eye, but should pay no attention to much of what she sees. Pupils resent the constant criticism of a teacher even if it is deserved.

"Teachers do not often enough consider the motive that actuates pupils. They punish too frequently before they inquire into the circumstances. A teacher once ordered all pupils to raise their right hands. One raised his left. The command was repeated. Again the boy raised his left hand, whereupon the teacher severely punished him for his disobedience, not noticing that the boy's right arm was missing.

"A mother told her boy to be home at 6 o'clock. He came in half an hour late, and the mother at once punished him for his disobedience. Had she inquired into the reason for his tardiness, she would have praised him instead of blaming him. Children treated thus unjustly have great damage done to their character, and they lose confidence in parents and teachers who fail to inquire into their motives.

"A teacher needs a big heart, to give sympathy not only to the poor children, but also to the more well-to-do; for the latter often receives less sympathy than the former, and need it just as much."

Dr. VanOrmer will lecture again on Thursday, February 14, on "The Psychology of Shakespeare." The second lecture of the course will be by Professor Tyler, of Amherst College, on January 31, subject: "A Study of Grammar School Pupils."

Gift of Gold Watch Charm.

Plainfield Lodge, No. 167, International Association of Machinists, met last night, and Past Master Workman Joseph Burke presented to Master Workman James M. Smith, on behalf of the members, a gold watch charm, suitably inscribed, as a token of their appreciation of his services to them during the past year. Mr. Smith expressed his thanks after which there was an informal programme of vocal solos and a smoker was enjoyed.

John Mobus a Benedict,.

John Mobus and Miss Emma Kelm, both of Watchung, were kuietly married at the bride's home, last night. Rev. J. Duerschner, pastor of St. Peter's Lutheran church, performed the ceremony in the presence of only the immediate relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Mobus will reside in the pretty residence at Watchung formerly owned by Mrs. Koch and which has been purchased by the groom. Mr. Mobus is engaged in the kindling wood business.

Lutheran Church Meeting.

The annual congregational meeting of St. Peter's Lutheran church was held Wednesday night. Messrs. Debele, Seidentopf and Bormann were elected as additional members of the church council. The financial report presented by Dr. Richard Moldenke showed the church to be in better condition than at any time since its organization.

Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, of West Front street, continues to improve.

WHY WHERRY OPPOSES DRYDEN'S CANDIDACY

IN RESPONSE TO SENATOR'S REQUEST HE GIVES HIS REASONS.

In response to a query from Senator Ackerman as to why he opposes the candidacy of United States Senator John F. Dryden for re-election, William M. Wherry, Jr., states it is because there is a widespread public sentiment against the Newarker on account of his record.

This is Mr. Wherry's letter:

"Hon. Ernest R. Ackerman,
"506 West Eighth street,
"Plainfield, N. J.

"Dear Sir:

"Replying to your favor of January 16th, 1907, asking 'in what particular' I 'most strongly object to the re-election' of 'Hon. J. F. Dryden to the United States Senate,' it seems to me somewhat strange that you—an intelligent participant in public affairs—should be seeking opinions as to the strongest objections to the candidacy of the Honorable Senator. You are undoubtedly aware of his connection with vast private interests which he maintained during his last term of so-called public service, and of the numerous illustrations afforded by his public career of the axiomatic truth that one cannot serve two masters—special private interests and the commonwealth. To call your attention specifically to these instances would be a matter of supererogation. The accumulated effect of this record has been a widespread public sentiment against the re-election of the Honorable Senator—one manifestation of which was the petition to which you refer—and his impudent candidacy in the face of this popular disapproval is the strongest possible argument against his re-election.

"The people don't want him. Their reason for this is manifest and cogent. His re-election would be a great injustice to your constituents, an injury to your party and last and least a disgrace to all who aided in it.

Yours truly,
"WM. M. WHERRY, JR."

January 17th, 1907.

The communication which prompted Mr. Wherry's letter follows:

"Mr. W. H. Wherry, Jr.,
"Plainfield, N. J.

"Dear Sir:

"I recently received a petition in opposition to the return of Hon. J. F. Dryden to the United States Senate, to which your name was attached. The views of citizens and constituents are always solicited and appreciated. I will esteem it therefore a favor if you will kindly state your reasons why Mr. Dryden should not be returned to the United States Senate. In what particular do you most strongly object to his re-election?

"Anticipating an early answer which may be enclosed in the accompanying envelope, I remain, with advance thanks,

"Yours very truly,
"E. R. ACKERMAN."

SURPRISE SOCIAL.

St. Faith's Guild Gives First of Series of Entertainments.

Under the auspices of St. Faith's Guild, of St. Stephen's church, a surprise package social was held at the parish house, last night. The members and their friends all brought packages, the contents of which were not known until after they were bought at auction. Herbert Guinn was the auctioneer, and quickly disposed of the packages at good prices. During the evening ice cream was sold and a social time was had.

Mrs. Andrew Aldeman is president of the guild and she has arranged an entertainment for every Thursday night up to Lent. On Thursday, January 24, there will be an old time singing school entertainment, and on Thursday, January 31, the Plainfield Band will give a concert and play for dancing. "The Peake Sisters" will appear on Thursday, Feb. 7.

Court of Pardons Meets.

The Court of Pardons held its quarterly session at Trenton, yesterday, and considered 134 applications for pardon and parole. Out of the lot only thirty were paroled, one of them being James Howard, who was sentenced from Union county in 1901 to seven years for breaking, entering and stealing. The applications of Peter Linzer and William Ross, sentenced from Union county in February, 1906, for two years for criminal assault, were laid over until the March term. Both are residents of Plainfield.

Boys' Competition.

The running broad jump event in the Y. M. C. A. boys' championship athletic competition was run off yesterday afternoon, Stewart getting first place with a jump of 14 feet 2 inches. Conroy was second with 14 feet 1 inch; R. Miller third, 13 feet 11 inches. Conroy leads in the competition.

LUMBER PRICES KITING

Material Costs So Much Investors Are Afraid to Build.

SCARCITY THE CAUSE

Some Builders, However, Are Not Sure the Scarcity Is Sufficient to Account For the Raise.

Dismay over the rise in the price of lumber has seized investing builders in this vicinity. Pine, hemlock and red cedar, the woods most used in building, are quoted at figures practically prohibitive of investment building. With cries for more houses going up on every hand, and with every desire to meet the demand, the men with the money for building find it impossible to erect houses with any chance of getting timely or just returns on the investment.

Since January 1, or shortly before, the price of building lumber has gone up like that of ararities. While pine has advanced almost $5 a thousand, the cheapest grade—barn board—is quoted at $45. Hemlock has advanced about $1; short lengths sell now for $27. Red Cedar, now largely used in building, advanced about $2.50; it sells, according to quality, from $35 to $80.

These figures apply to Westfield and Bound Brook, as well as here. All the dealers agree in explaining the advance. "Lumber is getting to be very scarce," they say. It is asserted that the demand far exceeds to supply, and that the indications point to a still greater difference between them. The price is more apt to go up than down.

Small comfort for the builder lies in cement and brick quotations. Portland cement has dropped a little, but it is $2 a barrel at that, and Rosendale cement brings $1.25 a barrel. Brick may be had for about $9 a thousand, but the price is certain to go up in the spring, when the demand comes in.

There are those who doubt the honesty of the explanation for the lumber advance made by the big dealers. The latter, they claim, are in a combination and put the price where they see fit without regard to the supply of timber. There is no doubt that lumber is getting scarcer and that the people of this country have been wasteful in its use.

FORMER PLAINFIELDER'S SERMON LEADS TO ARREST.

Hoboken Woman Followed Advice of Mgr. Kelly Given From the Pulpit.

Acting upon the advice given by Monsignor Kelly, rector of Our Lady of Grace church, Hoboken, and a former Plainfielder, in a sermon a few Sundays ago, Mrs. Rose Noonan, of 352 Fourth street, Hoboken, had her son Thomas, seventeen years old, arrested, charged with drunkenness and refusing to support his mother. He went home drunk Wednesday night and attacked his father, who has been ill for four years, and was turning his attention to his mother when a policeman entered the apartments and placed him under arrest.

Monsignor Kelly's sermon, which actuated Mrs. Noonan, was to the effect that no wife and mother should allow either her son or husband to make a boarding-house mistress out of her, by simply paying a stated amount of board each week. He said that the male portion of the family should provide for the weaker sex to the best of their ability, and deny themselves luxuries if necessary. Noonan makes $40 a month, and Wednesday went home and offered his mother $12 out of his pay.

She reminded him that she had purchased a suit of clothes and some other wearing apparel for him the month before, and asked for more money. The boy replied that he would pay $3 a week board and that was all. He then left and later returned drunk. Recorder Stanton yesterday administered the pledge to young Noonan, and upon his promise to turn all of his money over to his mother in the future he was allowed to go.

To Start Motor Car Line.

Robert Bracher, Walter Reason and Howard L. Pendleton, of Rahway, have organized a motor and transportation company and will run a line of motor cars between Rahway and Roosevelt. This company will succeed the East Jersey Motor and Tranportation Company, which in May last organized a company to run motor cars between Rahway and Roosevelt.

—Neuman Brothers offers a splendid opportunity to secure high grade Indian River grape fruit at very low prices. They have placed on sale seventy-five boxes—sizes 80, 64, 54 and 48—at $4.50 each.

MR. GILBERT CHOSEN S. P. C. A. VICE PREST.

ORGANIZATION ADOPTED CONSTITUTION AND BY LAWS TODAY.

Alexander Gilbert, who has consented to accept the honor, was elected vice-president of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, at a meeting held in the offices of Reed & Codington in the Stirling building, this morning. The meeting was well attended and much enthusiasm was manifested. President L. V. F. Randolph presided.

Other business included the adoption of the constitution and by-laws and the referring of several matters of more or less importance to the executive committee. This committee is not yet complete and until it is the society is not ready to announce the names of members.

According to the constitution it will cost $1 a year to become a member of the society and upon the payment of $10 one can become a life member. The society is composed of many prominent men and women of the city and borough and it proposes to go to work at once. An encouraging report was received this morning when it was stated that as a result of the activity of Plainfield people in forming a society here, a similar society had been formed in Elizabeth. The meeting adjourned to Monday morning, February 11.

PRISONER SHIVERED IN COLD CITY CELL

HIS CHATTERING COLD TEETH WON HIS RELEASE IN CITY COURT.

Saying nothing in words, saying nothing, in fact, John Pecolla, a Pole, arrested last night for drunkenness, told a story of hardship in the city jail to Judge Runyon this morning that aroused the sympathy of the magistrate and won him quick release.

Percolla cannot speak English well, and he stood silently before the Judge when the charge was read. But the magistrate regarded him attentively for another reason. The man stood huddled in his coat, with chattering teeth and lips pale with cold. The Judge looked back toward the cells, where Percolla had spent the night, with an inquiring air.

"It is pretty cold back there," explained an officer in response to the look.

"Sentence suspended," said the Judge, and the shaking prisoner was set free.

Judge Runyon walked back into the cell room.

"B-r-r-r-r!" he said as he came out; "it is cold back there all right."

It is said that the heating facilties of the cell room are totally inadequate in sharp weather. Registers are supposed to carry heat to the whole lower floor at headquarters, but they do not work with glittering success. On a night like last night the cells must have been like sections of a refrigerator. The fact that the door leading to the jailyard is opened frequently during the night does not help the feeble registers to warm up the cells. There is a door between the cell room and the officers' room.

The heating of the building is not managed by the police department. The furnace is in the basement, and the owner of the building is supposed to keep the floors heated.

Master Builders to Banquet.

The Master Builders' Association has decided to hold its annual banquet at Findlay's Hall, on East Second street, Thursday night, January 24. L. B. Woolston is the president of the association and is in charge of the arrangements for the affair.

After P. S. C. Cases.

Elizabeth, Jan. 18.—Health Officer Louis J. Richards has sent to the officials of the Public Service Corporation a notice called forth by the companies regarding the unsanitary condition of many of the company's cars in this city.

—The Y. M. C. A. boys basketball team will play the Elizabeth Juniors at Elizabeth tomorrow.

—Miss Rose Kelly and Miss Elizabeth Reick, of Watchung avenue, were members of a party that witnessed the performance at the New York Hippodrome last night.

—A card of thanks to the Mutual Aid Union Beneficial Association: This is to publicly express my thanks to the Mutual Aid Union Beneficial Association, of New Jersey, for the prompt payment of the death benefit of one hundred dollars ($100) due me as the beneficiary of John T. WILL COMBAT APPEAL

Judge Codington to Oppose Cranford's Counsel in Tax Dispute.

BEFORE STATE BOARD

Freeholders Would Be In a Bit of a Mix-Up If the Appeal Was Granted.

Judge W. R. Coddington will appear before the State Board of Taxation at Elizabeth next Thursday, as attorney for the County Board of Taxation, to combat the appeal of Cranford against the county tax. Cranford contends that it has been taxed out of proportion to other municipalities of the county.

The freeholders are marking time in every department of their work because of Cranford's appeal. If the appeal should be granted, the whole county tax rate must be readjusted, and the Freeholders cannot tell where they stand until a decision is rendered. Those who are familiar with the subject say that there is very little chance of Cranford winning.

The chief instance Cranford cites to prove disproportionate increase is Rahway. Judge Codington said this morning that Rahway had really been taxed high and nearer true valuation for years before the present law was passed, so that there was practically no room for a raise this year. Fifteen or sixteen years ago Rahway became bankrupt and the municipality found it necessary to assess high from then on, in order to get money enough and at the same time keep the rate within bounds. For years the Rahway taxes were based on what was nearly full valuation, so that the assessors found but little room for jacking up the assessments under the new law this year.

Cranford has won the first round in the appeal battle. An order was granted at Trenton, enabling the municipality to withhold certain State and county moneys that otherwise would have to be in the county coffers by this time. The other municipalities have paid those moneys over, and that fact would add to the mix-up if Cranford won on the appeal.

JOHN BUSHNELL SUSTAINS FRACTURED COLLARBONE.

Slipped On Glass Cover at North Avenue Station As He Alighted From a Train.

Just after he had alighted from a train at the North Avenue station, last night, John Bushnell, of Central avenue, slipped on the snow-covered undercrossing glass and fell heavily. He landed with great force on his left side and for a moment or so was rendered helpless. He was picked up by station attacnes and taken to the waiting room, afterward being removed to his home in a cab.

Dr. Endicott was called and on examination found that Mr. Bushnell had sustained a fractured collar bone and was severely jarred. The injured bone was set and today he was reported as resting comfortably. Mr. Bushnell is connected with the Standard Oil Company and has his office at No. 26 Broadway.

Employes of the railroad started to clear the sonw from the platforms, yesterday, as soon as the snow ceased falling but the iron and glass covers scattered about remain slippery as long as they are wet. There were numerous other falls reported but none of them with results as serious as Mr. Bushnell's.

Will Present Pinafore.

The Plainfield Operatic Association, which will give "The Chimes of Normandy," at the Casino on Thursday night, February 7, has decided to present as its second production for the season, "H. M. S. Pinafore," one of Gilbert & Sullivan's most popular comic operas. It will be given at the Casino on May 2, in its entirety, with full chorus and orchestra. The success of the association in the past assures a fine performance not only for "The Chimes of Normandy," but "Pinafore," as well.

Wood—Elliott.

A New York wedding of interest to a number of Plainfielders took place on Wednesday in St. Bartholomew's church, when Mrs. Cornelia Underhill Elliott, widow of William L. Elliott, and daughter of the late Abraham S. Underhill, was married to William H. S. Wood, of New York. Mr. Underhill had his country home in this city for a few years when he lived in the house on Central avenue now owned by H. M. Stockton.

W. C. T. U. MUSICALE AT THE Y. M. C. A. HALL

VOCAL AND INSTRUMENTAL NUMBERS AS WELL AS LEGERDEMAIN.

Soprano solos by Miss Louella C. Harris, violin selections by Miss Florence Wohlfert, The Vivo Instrumental Trio, the Ladies' Chorus, of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, and magic by H. Warren Rankin, combined to make the musicale held at the Y. M. C. A., last night, under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. an enjoyable affair. Miss Lillian A. Force was the accompanist for Miss Harris, and Miss Jessie Utter accompanied the Ladies' Chorus. Their excellent work was a feature and added to the pleasure of the renditions.

These numbers were given by the Vivo Trio, Martin A. Korff and George Spier, violins, and Edward Spier, piano: Fantaisie Surfaust, Gounod-Alard; Andante Cantabile, from First Symphony, Beethoven; selection, Carmen, Bizet; Hungarian Dance, Brahms; Andante Sostenuto, from 8 Sonata, Mozart; Gavotte, C. Bohm.

Miss Harris, who is the soprano soloist at the First Baptist church, gave three selections, the first being "There's Ever a Song Somewhere." In part second she sang "Slumber Song," Tito Mater, with violin obligato by Miss Wohlfert, and her third number was an encore, also with violin obligato.

Miss Wahlfert also favored the audience with one of her best selections, Air Varie, by Vieuxtemps, accompanied by Miss Force on the piano. Her playing was of the same excellence so much enjoyed on previous occasions.

A feature was the singing by the Ladies' Chorus. In part first "The Lost Chord" was given and in part second the women sang "The Day Is Done," by Carter, with pleasing effect.

The entertainment closed with an exhibition of magic by H. Warren Rankin, of this city. He introduced many new tricks. He is exceedingly clever in sleight-of-hand and was given hearty applause. During his exhibition, Mrs. Rankin accompanied on the piano. The final number Gavotte, by C. Bohm, was given by the Vivo Trio. Those in the Ladies' Chorus were Mrs. J. B. Cottrell, Mrs. David E. Titsworth, Mrs. Charles Rowland, Mrs. William J. Tallamy, Mrs. J. Everett Kimball, Mrs. William C. Hubbard, Miss Nan Randolph and Miss Beatrice Miner.

The musicale was arranged by a committee from the W. C. T. U., of which Mrs. Peter H. Bennett was the chairman.

CRESCENT COMPANY ELECTS.

John H. R. Hall Again Made Head of Pythians' Uniformed Rank.

Crescent Company, No. 13, U. R., K. of P., elected the following officers at its annual meeting last night: Captain, John H. R. Hall; first lieutenant, Oliver R. Pearson; second lieutenant, Fred Douglas; chaplain, David Bowden; recorder, Robert Jahn; treasurer, Robert Laughlin.

The installation will be held the first Thursday in February. Following the election, the members were addressed by Captain Hall and plans were discussed informally for the coming year.

The company will hold a dance in the Camera Club rooms Thursday night, January 31. The committee to have charge comprises Robert Jahn, chairman; Harry Keen, William Baker, E. D. Cutting and Fred Douglas.

John O'Keefe's New Position.

John A. O'Keefe, formerly of this city, who took up his residence in Buffalo last summer to assume charge of the local plant of the Ballentine Brewing Company, has resigned the position to accept one with the Spencer Kellogg Company, one of the largest linseed oil manufacturing companies in the country. The firm has prepared plans for the erection of a plant at Edgewater, N. J., near Fort Lee, and when it is completed Mr. O'Keefe will assume charge. He will probably make his home in Plainfield again as Edgewater is within easy commuting distance.

High School Championship.

Morris won the standing hop-step-and-jump in the High School athletic championship competition at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon, covering 24 feet 9 inches. Wilcox was second, 23 feet 8 inches, and Karner third, 23 feet 7 inches. Morris leads in the race, with Karner second and Wilcox third.

Bible Class League.

Two games were played in the Bible class league at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon. The Crows defeated the Eagles, 8 to 5, and the Storks defeated the Hawks, 9 to 4.

—The First M. E. Sunday-school athletic league association will be organized tonight.

R. E. LEE'S CHAPLAIN LAUDS GREAT GENERAL

Dr. J. A. Chambliss, Who Was With Confederate Leader on Field, Tells of His Virtues.

A CHRISTIAN WARRIOR

Greatest Commander Since Napoleon According to Historian—Lincoln and Lee Were Much Alike.

One of the best talks that has been given in Plainfield for a long time was heard at the Plainfield Public High School this morning when Rev. D. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, spoke on the character and life of Robert E. Lee, the Commanding General of the Confederate Armies. The lecture was of peculiar interest inasmuch as Dr. Chambliss was the private army chaplain of the great military leader and was an intimate personal friend as well. General Lee's 100th birthday anniversary occurs tomorrow and that gave additional interest to the talk of the scholarly divine.

Quoting a distinguished Northern historian, Dr. Chambliss stated Lee was the most conspicuous figure in the Confederacy and moreover the foremost military genius since the Napoleon Bonaparte. To show the character of the man, he recited how grossly insulted the General became at the offer made by a New York insurance company after the war to give him a salary of $50,000 a year to allow it to use his name as president of the concern. He had stated in reply to the offer that his name was not for sale.

Dr. Chambliss began by recalling the fact that the last time he addressed the High School pupils was two years ago next month on the occasion of the anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln; and now it was Robert E. Lee whose birthday will be observed tomorrow. To his mind there was a happy significance in the fact that the two anniversaries could be thus associated. It meant not only that the bitter animosities of the Civil War were dead and buried, but that the heart of the American people, North and South alike, was after all a great heart, sure in the long run to give honor where honor was due; to cherish nobility and heroism wherever they might be found.

"Did I not promise much," said he, "for the future of the country that the names of Lincoln and Lee, in the schools of the South and the schools of the North, should now both be exalted as synonyms of true greatness, and the youth of the whole land should have their minds and hearts cast in so noble a mould—taught to look higher than self, or gain, or party or sectional lines, and fix their eyes on pure and beautiful ideals of character. So it was not as a Southerner by birth and long residence that he could more fitly than another be invited to speak, but merely as one who had personal knowledge of General Lee.

"I was in his army," said the speaker, "I saw him on the field; I preached to him as he sat among the humblest of the soldiers, in his old gray uniform and cavalry boots, listening with the meekness of a child to a very simple gospel from the lips of a stripling; and after the war I was in Lexington where he was president of the great college there. You may learn from the books about all that I know of the man, but it may add a little to the interest of the occasion to hear of him from one who was face to face with him sometimes when he was making the history which you study today."

Reference was made to the centennial anniversary of General Lee's birth to be celebrated tomorrow with elaborate ceremonies at Washington and Lee Universities, at Lexington, Virginia, when a number of distinguished Northern men are to be present, and the principal speaker is to be Charles Francis Adams, of Massachusetts, an officer in the army that opposed Lee on many a bloody field, and was colonel of a negro regiment, at whose head he rode into Richmond when that city captiulated. Dr. Chambliss gave a rapid sketch of the life of Lee up to the Civil War. He spoke of Stratford, the name of the manorial home of the Lees, where the future General was born; of his mar-

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., installed its newly elected officers at its meeting last night and following the installation the members enjoyed a social hour. Those who will guide Twilight for the ensuing six months are: William Guest, councillor; Harry Wade, vice councillor; Squier Reick, past councillor; William Spiegel, conductor; William Spicer, warden; John Frazee, inside sentinel; James Johnston, outside sentinel; Ernest Clark, recording secretary; Harry Goodwin, financial secretary; trustee, William Jamison.

The local ball team has not selected grounds for the coming season yet. Several pieces of ground are being considered which are convenient to the trolley and the association will no doubt make a selections within a few weeks, so as to begin the work of laying out the diamond by the middle of March.

The Plains, like every place else in this section of the country, was snow-bound yesterday. The first real snow and taste of winter kept everyone within doors that could possibly stay there. The trolley company maintained its service, but owing to the drifts in places could not begin to keep up its schedule.

Some of those who have been anxiously awaiting a chance to get out their cutter and sleigh bells had a chance yesterday, although the sleighing was not very good and the chances are that it will last but a short time.

There is no development in the robbery of Joseph Perritta's barber shop on Friday night of last week. The township officials may possibly spring a surprise soon; it is a fact that the case is not a hard one to solve.

The Township Committee meets tonight in the town rooms. Bills, to be passed for payment, must be in the hands of Township Clerk Edward L. Hand before 8 o'clock.

Rev. T. Moore-Smith will have charge of the weekly prayer and praise meeting tonight at the Baptist church.

The attraction last night and tonight at the New Plainfield theatre is "Billy" Clifford in "The Jolly Baron."

WESTFIELD.

Ira C. Lambert, of Westfield, announces that he has sold his farm on West Broad street, to H. C. Lockwood, of New York. Possession will be given in April.

Councilmen Floyd Berner and Russel, with H. D. Jackson, Edgar Reeve and J. W. Davis, compose the Westfield Park Commission for this year.

Amos Miller and Kenneth Wilcox, of Westfield, returned home Wednesday, having taken a trip to Washington without telling their parents.

The January meeting of the Advance Club will be held this evening at the home of Mrs. F. E. Wheeler, on Kimball avenue.

SOMERVILLE.

The directors of the Dime Savings Bank have elected the following officers: President, William H. Taylor; vice president, Lewis A. Thompson; treasurer, William A. Apgar.

A teachers' training class is to be organized this week in the First Reformed chapel under the direction of Supervising Principal Dr. W. A. Ackerman.

A new stained glass window, in memory of Miss Elizabeth Parmalee, will be unveiled next Sunday morning in St. John's Episcopal church.

Mrs. C. Koehler has returned to her home in Somerville after a few weeks spent with her mother and sister in Brooklyn.

The directors of the Somerville Public Library are arranging to hold a public euchre next Monday evening.

RAHWAY.

The members of Essex Lodge, No. 27, I. O. O. F., Wednesday night presented George Bierwirth and George W. Wright each with a watch fob, gold buckle and gold emblem as prizes for the past year. Daniel Trembley and Thomas Armstrong made the presentations. Supper followed. Tonight four candidates will receive the second degree.

The deacons of the First Baptist church met Wednesday night at the home of the president, H. S. Barnes, to discuss plans regarding the dedication of the new edifice, which will be held probably next month. The exercises will probably last three days and part of the evenings.

A. Lanzer and Frank A. Ensworth have been promoted foreman and assistant foreman, respectively, of Protection Hose Company. They gave a supper Wednesday night to the company in honor of the event.

The Rahway Symphony Orchestra held a largely attended rehearsal Wednesday night at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Stillman. Mrs. Kittle sang a solo.

Loss May Reach $25,000,000.

Holland Bay, Jamaica, Jan. 18.—Governor Swettenham has reported to London that there have been 343 burials of those who died in Monday's earthquake; that many more bodies are under the wreckage and that there are at present 440 in the hospitals. This does not include those treated on steamships or on the wharves used as hospitals. There are 10,000 homeless. The people are afraid to go back to the houses. The property loss may reach $25,000,000, it is declared. All the reports agree in stating that the entire business section of Kingston is completely demolished, mainly as a result of the fire. Port Antonio may be said to be completely unharmed, though the poorly built Town Hall was partly destroyed. The Titchfield Hotel at Port Antonio is uninjured and all the clerks and employes of that establishment are safe.

6,000 SCARLET FEVER CASES IN CHICAGO.

Impure Milk Believed To Be Cause of Disease Which May Close All Schools.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 18.—The scarlet fever and diphtheria epidemic in Chicago and its suburbs spread like a lightning streak yesterday. Six thousand children lie stricken with the dread disease, according to physicians of the Chicago Health Department and doctors in Evanston, Oak Park and other suburbs.

Several schools were closed and a plan to shut all Chicago schools, public and parochial, was discussed. Mayor Dunne said he would stand behind the Health Department in any action it might take, offering the aid of the entire Police Department to shut off from the city a supply of bad milk, which is blamed for the starting of the epidemic.

FIRE CHIEF RISKS HIS LIFE.

Head of Hoboken Department Has Narrow Escape in Saving a Machine Model.

Hoboken, Jan. 18.—Fire Chief Michael J Dunn, of this city, risked his life yesterday when he saved a valuable model from a blazing building at 109-121 Jefferson street. The building is used as a kindling wood factory and is owned by Isaac Ingleson. Fire started in the engine-room from some unknown cause, and as the building is entirely composed of wood the blaze gained great headway before the fire department arrived.

Chief Dunn was devoting his energies to putting out the blaze when Mr. Ingleson arrived on the scene and asked him to save a model he had been working on for years. The model was of a wood cutting and binding machine, and for ten years Mr. Ingleson had been trying to perfect it. Chief Dunn, after ascertaining the location of the model, rushed into the building and finally emerged with it. His uniform was burned from the blazing pieces of wood that were dropping all around the inside of the building.

Mrs. Everett Colby Seriously Ill.

Mrs. Everett Colby, wife of State Senator Colby, who was taken seriously ill a few days ago, was taken to Atlantic City on Wednesday in a private car and she is now at the Marlborough-Blenheim, under the care of specialists. Her illness has given cause for much alarm on the part of the family and Senator Colby has cancelled all of his engagements for the present in consequence of his wife's condition. Mrs. Charles Hyde, of East Front street, mother of Mrs. Colby, left yesterday for Atlantic City, and is with her daughter at the Marlborough-Blenheim.

Forty Families Fire-Driven.

New York, Jan. 18.—More than forty families were driven from their homes last night when fire swept through the five story apartment houses at No. 34 Plaza street, facing Prospect Park, and Nos. 705 and 707 Vanderbilt avenue. Thrilling rescues were made by policemen and tenants who remained in the smoke filled building to aid occupants confined to their beds by illness. No one was injured. $35,000 damage was done.

P. B. C. Society.

Steps have been taken at the Plainfield Business College for the organization of a mutual aid society among the alumni and undergraduates of the institution. The society will be literary and forensic, and a co-operative employment agency will be a feature of its activities. The employment bureau is expected to do great work. No meeting has been called by the organizers yet; they are waiting to hear from the alumni.

Senator Bailey Triumphs.

Austin, Texas, Jan. 18.—Senator Bailey triumphed yesterday, and it is believed here that when the vote for Senator is taken up he will be re-elected on the first ballot. He appeared before the House to reply to the charges of acting for the Oil Trusts and swept the House and galleries in a storm of applause such as probably has never before occurred there.

Preacher Named For Office.

Schenectady, N. Y., Jan. 18.—The Rev. George Edwin Talmage, pastor of the Second Reformed church, of this city, received notice yesterday that he has been appointed State Insurance Examiner, at a salary of $2,000 per year. He will be located in New York city. There were eighteen candidates for the place.

Fourteen Burglaries.

New York, Jan. 18.—Burglars, expert in effecting entrance through side windows, worked successfully yesterday morning, in the Fort Hamilton and Bath Beach sections, robbing house after house. It is declared that fourteen residences in all were entered. In all $750 was stolen.

—For the best results try a Press Want ad.

—There will be a dance and reception at the Plainfield High School tomorrow night; music for dancing will be furnished by a Victor talking machine, furnished by the Victor Studio.

—The secret is out at last. Thomas N. McCarter retired from the Prudential directorate in order not to be handicapped, like certain other people he knows, when he wants to run for the United States Senate in opposition to John Kean. Tom's a long-headed individual.—Newark News.

DIOCESE OF NEWARK RANKS NINTH IN SIZE.

Milwaukee, Jan. 18.—Advance sheets of the official Roman Catholic directory of the United States for 1907, published here, give interesting figures on the American Catholic population, clergy and institutions. In the United States the total number of Catholics just exceed 13,000,000. Including the Catholics of the Philippine Islands, Porto Rico, Sandwich Island and Alasaka, the total number is 21,000,000. In the United States proper, the Catholic population increased 437,000 during 1906. The Catholic population of Canada is put at 2,447,000.

Including the boroughs of Brooklyn and Queens, which form a separate diocese, the archdiocese of New York is the largest in the country. The Catholics there number 1,800,000; Chicago is second with 1,200,000; Boston, 850,000; Brooklyn, 600,000; Philadelphia, 485,000; New Orleans, 450,000, and Pittsburg, 375,000. The archdiocese of St. Louis and the diocese of Cleveland and the diocese of Hartford are tied for eighth place, with 325,000 each.

The diocese of Newark follows closely with 320,000. There are 16,000 clergymen and 12,148 churches and schools in the United States, and 1,266,000 children are being educated in Catholic institutions. There are 266 churches in Greater New York, including boroughs of Manhattan, Bronx, Richmond, Brooklyn and Queens. Chicago has 175.

No Decision In Appeal Case.

Elizabeth, Jan. 18.—An interesting appeal case was tried Wednesday afternoon in the Common Pleas Court before Judge Atwater without a jury. At the May term of the Union County Court in 1906 Alphonse Czincolli was indicted for assaulting with a garden rake Gustave Foster, a farmer of Linden Township. Czincolli pleaded guilty and was fined $25. Foster was not satisfied with this punishment for the attack on him, so he brought a civil suit against his assailant before Justice of the Peace Donaldson, of Linden, who awarded Foster a verdict for $75. From this judgment an appeal was taken. Judge Atwater after hearing the testimony reserved his decision.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 15.

HOTEL PATRON'S ODD ANTICS.

Hires Room in Red Bank Hostelry, Then Slides Down Lightning Rod and Disappears.

Red Bank, Jan. 18.—A man very nervous and excited, Wednesday night applied for lodging at the Union Hotel here. He told James Henrehan, the clerk, that he wanted a room that would be secure from intruders. The clerk gave him a room in the northwest corner of the hotel, facing the river. He registered as David L. Webb, of Brooklyn.

William Conover, who is in charge of the hotel stables, saw a man emerge from the room and slide down the lightning rod to the ground early yesterday. It was the man who registered as Webb. He walked down to the river and retraced his steps to the business part of the town. Then he disappeared. He has not been seen since. The man had fastened the door of his room and the hotel proprietor had to break the fastening to get in. The police think the man has committed some crime.

Talk of New Railroad Station.

New Brunswick, Jan. 18.—There is a revival of the report that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company intends to establish a railroad station on its main line for the convenience of Highland Park, a borough which is practically a part of New Brunswick, lying on the east bank of the Raritan River. From time to time efforts have been made by Highland Park residents to secure a railroad station of its own, but all such efforts have come to nothing because of the policy of the company in opposition to an increase of way stations along its main line. It is said this policy is to be changed in Highland Park's favor because of plans involving the establishment of a railroad roundhouse at that point on the division.

Elks Have Gala Night.

A reception given Wednesday evening in Turn Hall under the auspices of the Elizabeth Lodge of Elks proved to be one of the most novel and successful social affairs ever held in the city. One of the features of the reception was the singing of soprano solos by Miss Gertrude Betts, of the Metropolitan Opera Company, of New York. There were also selections by Charles Weller, tenor. Edward Strauss, exalted ruler of the local lodge, gave the "Elks' Eleven O'clock Toast" from the stage, and led in the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

—Joseph McIntyre, of Watchung avenue, gave a piano recital before the Women's Club, of Montclair, on Wednesday afternoon.

ROOSEVELT AS A DEMOCRAT.

In supporting the President's policy on the Brownsville trouble, Senator Carmack yesterday took occasion to invite him to join the Democratic party, pointing out that whenever Mr. Roosevelt wielded "the big stick" the Democrats in Congress upheld him while his own party went on the warpath. It is a peculiar fact that during the warm debates in the Senate over the dismissal of the negro troops, the Democrats defended the Republican President. The great men in the minority party who raised their voices in his behalf were Senators Daniel, Culberson, Mallary, Patterson, Carmack, Clay, Stone and Money. His only defenders, strange as it may seem, among those who "want to go to Washington to uphold the President's hands" were Senators Lodge, Spooner, Knox and Heyburn.

But the Brownsville incident is not the only case in point where the President has had to rely on the Democrats. Senator Tillman, who flayed him unmercifully the other day, was Mr. Roosevelt's spokesman on a bill of great importance but a short time ago. According to authentic reports on that occasion, not a single Senator of ability on the Republican side would champion the Chief Executive's ideas and it fell to the lot of a Democrat, therefore, to assume the task.

The real fact is that it is getting harder every day to draw any great distinction between the views of Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Bryan on the majority of political issues. What the Democratic leader has been expounding as good doctrine for a long time has found a champion lately in the Chief Magistrate of the Nation. There are very few questions, indeed, today, upon which the two seem to hold radically different views and therefore Senator Carmack may rightly ask to which party does Mr. Roosevelt belong.

It is not to the President's discredit in the least to hold opposite views from the majority of the Republican Senators for the G. O. P. is not to be indicted at the bar of public opinion because of the antics of the "Millionaires' Club" members. They are not the best authority on party doctrine by a long shot. Too many of them are only nominally Republicans. Republicans when it does not injure the interest of the trusts.

The President is a Republican when the Republicans are right and a Democrat when the Democrats are right; he is the sincere and aggressive champion of the whole people.

POLES AND THE LAW.

When valuable property, such as the Plainfield Trust Company's, is disfigured by unsightly poles and wires erected by a public utility corporation, it might be well for the owners to seek advice of counsel, especially when the City Fathers do not appear to show any inclination to do their duty. There is no excuse whatever for allowing such a nuisance and real danger to continue; at least none has been advanced. Consequently, a recourse to the courts might bring about the desired result.

While it may be uncertain how New Jersey justice would decide such a matter, a ruling in New York recently shows how the rights of property owners are respected in that State. It appears that a telephone company obtained a permit from the Council at Bayridge, L. I., to string its wires along certain streets. But the public utility people forgot to figure on property owners' rights and that proved to be their undoing. A plucky woman, who did not intend that her property should be disfigured raised objection, although the company went right ahead and raised its wires above her sidewalk. Straightway, the woman in the case, went to law for redress. The matter came up in the Supreme Court.

In rendering his decision, Justice Garrett J. Garretson ehld that the use of the highway for the support of a line of poles and wires for the purpose of transmitting messages for the general public by electricity was in no sense a proper street use and, that, therefore, notwithstanding the statute and the city permits, the erection and maintenance of that line of poles and wires for that purpose without the owner's consent was unauthorized and illegal, and the sheriff was directed to remove the poles and wires from the street.

CAPTAIN MARTIN.

There is general rejoicing among the friends of Captain William B. Martin—and everyone who appreciates a good man and a good officer is his friend—over the promotion of the captain. His advancement to a majorship is a tardly recognition of his ability as a military officer, but coming as late as it has it is all the more deserved. It will be a long day before Company K will get a man to fill his place.

LAUDS GREAT GENERAL

riage to the great-granddaughter of Martha Washington, and of Arlington, their splendid mansion on the heights near Washington. He told of the great struggle that Lee had to leave the army of the United States, and how he wrote to General Scott and others that he wished never to draw his sword again unless in defense of his state, his relatives, his children and his home.

No attempt was made to follow the career of General Lee through the Civil War. The speaker introduced an extract from a letter which he wrote from the field forty-two years ago, just before the battle of the Wilderness, describing a grand review of Longstreet's corps by General Lee, and the personal appearance of the great general on that occasion.

"General Lee's hair is quite gray, and his head in front is partly bald," the letter said. "His manner was quiet, graceful, dignified. He rode his famous horse, 'Traveller,' and sat him with perfect elegance. His dress was plain, the only gilt about him being the wreath and stars of his rank on his collar and the buttons on his coat. He wore Confederate gray, of course, his coat buttoned and encircled by a buff sash. His hat was soft black felt, and his boots the uniform Wellington. Generals Longstreet, Hill, Kershaw, Field, Bryant, 'Runy' Lee (his son), and many others kept their stations near him during the review. Fortunately I had a stand on by little sorrel just behind the General where I could plainly see everything. A magnificent spectacle." This was the 29th of April, 1864. Within the next ten days the tremendous battles of the Wilderness and Spottsylvania Court House were fought.

The addresses concluded with some reference to the beautiful virtues that marked General Lee throughout his life, his modesty and simplicity, his purity of mind and speech, his unselfishness, his sense of noblesse oblige from childhood, and his sincere, humble Christian faith.

SMITH TO THE K. OF C.

Former U. S. Senator Advises Members, as an Organization, to Keep Out of Politics.

Jersey City, Jan. 18.—"American Citizenship" was the subject of an address by former United State Senator James Smith, Jr., of Newark, at the seventh anniversary dinner of Hope Council No. 483, Knights of Columbus. He advised the knights as an organization to keep out of politics. He said, in part:

"I must say that Hudson county is clever politically as well as socially. As for myself, I know nothing about politics nowadays. It is not what you know today, but what you want to tell the people. The Knights of Columbus ought to be proud of the man for whom the knights named their order, Columbus. It is now up to the Knights of Columbus to restore to this country honesty, which has been long lost."

GERMAN GLEANINGS.

In order to replace a lost thumb a young man in Berlin has had a great toe amputated and grafted on the stump. The operation has proved successful.

Queen Wilhelmina recently shipped some cows from Holland for her husband's estate in Mecklenburg-Schwerin. But they were stopped at the German frontier under the law forbidding the importation of foreign cattle.

This dramatic criticism appeared in the Mainzer Neueste Nachrichten: "The Maid of Orleans was born in the village of Domremy Jan. 6, 1412. On May 30, 1431, she was buried alive in the market place of Rouen, and on Oct. 23, 1906, she was buried in the theater of Mayence. Requiescat in pace."

The smokeless condition in Berlin is ascribed to the preponderant use of smokeless fuel in the form of coke and briquets, the skillful, scientific construction of boiler furnaces and chimneys and finally to the high standard of skill taught and enforced among firemen who stoke furnaces with coal for steam and other purposes.

FACTS FROM FRANCE.

The sales of absinthe in France have decreased nearly 3 per cent. within a year. The amount drunk last year was, however, still 4,557,529 gallons.

The making of wooden spoons is a handicraft in Brittany and one of considerable importance, for wooden spoons are employed almost universally there for table use. Many an old sailor takes up the carving of these necessary utensils as a means of livelihood.

In Paris, according to the Cris de Paris, they have counted the saloons in the various wards. The ward in the vicinity of the exchange has the record, with a saloon for every forty-seven of its inhabitants. The market district follows, with one for every fifty-two inhabitants, while the Champs Elysees has one for every 162 inhabitants. The quarter near the Military school has a saloon for every 172 people.

Smoking a Pipe.

The Canadian Cigar and Tobacco Journal gives some hints to those who smoke pipes. Everfbody thinks he knows how to smoke a pipe, but to do it perfectly is not easy. "Time is a keynote of successful pipe smoking," says the Journal, "and another is gentleness. Take it easy. Don't crowd the pipe to the of the bowl. Never get a pipe hot. Keep cool, and keep your pipe cool. You can relight a pipe, and if you are an old smoker you will be all the better for it. When you have finished do not refill a heated pipe."

Bread Cooler.

To make an inexpensive bread and cake cooler, something that no housewife should be without, purchase a piece of rather fine meshed heavy wire fencing. Have the hardware man turn down about four inches on each end and bind across with tin. This makes the side pieces for the cooler to stand on, and you have a simple, durable and inexpensive article on which to cool bread, cake and pies or to place the hot stewpan while the sauce cools.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. David C. Coddington.

Mrs. Mary Coddington, wife of David C. Coddington, died yesterday at home home in Mount Bethel. She was fifty-one years old and was well known in that section, also in Plainfield. The funeral will be held at the Mount Bethel church, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Mrs. John Overland.

Mrs. Johanna Overland, wife of John Overland, died at her home on Hunter avenue, last night, after a brief illness. She leaves three children. The funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

Miss Jennie Rowe.

Following a brief illness, Miss Jennie Rowe, of the borough, died yesterday at the home of her sister, Mrs. William Mills, of Summit avenue. She was in her sixteenth year. Arrangements for the funeral have not been made.

Mrs. Albert J. Beal.

Mrs. Jane M. A. Beal, wife of Albert J. Beal, of South avenue, died this morning at Muhlenberg Hospital, where she had been taken for an operation. She had lived in the Netherwood section for many years and was a prominent worker in St. Stephen's church. She leaves two daughters, Mrs. Eleanor Snow, who was a teacher in the Irving School when it was first opened and who now lives near Boston, and Mrs. Florence Watts, of Newark; also one son, William Beal, who resides at home. The funeral will be held at St. Stephen's church, Sunday afternoon at 2:30.

Foraker On Defensive.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 18.—On the renewal of the Brownsville debate in the Senate yesterday Senator Foraker appeared more and more on the defensive and appeared to be driven further and further into a corner, where he believed he had the President when his attack on Mr. Roosevelt began. When the administration's compromise resolution, calling for a mere investigation of the acts at Brownsville was called up Senator Blackburn, of Kentucky, offered an amendment which specified that nothing in the ordering of the inquiry was to be construed into questioning the legality of the act of the President in discharging the negro troops. This action of Senator Blackburn, who has never been regarded as a "White House democrat," seemed to confirm the impression that the assault on the President is bound to fail and that Mr. Roosevelt's assailants have been growing weaker day by day. The fact was clear to most Senators talked with yesterday that the longer a decision is deferred the more likely the administration will be to dictate the terms of the investigation, which was originally planned to be an investigation of President Roosevelt.

Discussed Fresh Air.

New York, Jan. 18.—Fresh air as a panacea was discussed last night in the Academy of Medicine, No. 17 West Forty-third street, by four of New York's leading physicians, one of whom told of remarkable cures effected by sunlight and fresh air in cases of acute insanity. Among the diseases which fresh air was said to cure are insomnia, anaemia, delirium, pneumonia, typhoid and all other fevers, tuberculosis of the bone as well as of the lungs and almost every other classified ailment. Only in cases where subnormal temperatures are a feature is the open air treatment questioned.

Billy Clifford a Baron of Fun.

Billy Clifford, the talented and versatile comedian, made a big hit at the New Plainfield theatre, last night, in his production of "A Jolly Baron." He sings and dances like a major and has a monologue that almost produces hysterics. He is supported by a capable company and the aggregation furnishes a decidedly entertaining musical comedy. The show remains at the theatre tonight and should not be missed by lovers of clean fun, catchy music, pretty costumes and good singers.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Pollard, of East Seventh street, have returned from a stay at Pittston, Pa.

PLAN OPEN SALOONS ON SUNDAY AFTERNOONS.

Democrats May Get Measure Through Assembly, But That's All.

Trenton, Jan. 18.—It was learned yesterday that the Democrats of Hudson and Essex Counties plan to have the Assembly Committee on Judiciary substitute a bill for the measure introduced Tuesday, repealing the Bishops' law.

The committee substitute, it is said, will name the hours from 1 p. m. to 5 p. m. Sundays as legal hours for saloons to open and sell liquor. Former Senator Robert Hudspeth, counsel for the New Jersey Liquor Dealers' Association and the brewers, has a draft of the new bill.

While details of the substitute have not yet been given out, it is understood that it will seek to keep many of the main features of the Bishops' law, such as the abolition of the back room, curtains pulled aside during prohibited hours, but the liability of the landlord for the disorderly conduct of the tenant is to be stricken out.

The representatives of Hudson and Essex counties, it is reported, are to openly urge in the Legislature the Sunday opening of saloons, asserting that residents of Jersey City, Newark, Hoboken and Paterson are cosmopolitan and insist on Sunday saloons.

It is certain the clergy will oppose the substitute, and they will have in their opposition the support of South Jerseymen. It is calculated that Hudson, Essex, Passaic, Warren and Sussex, the Democratic counties, will have votes enough to force the measure through in the House. It will be interesting to follow the course of the measure in the Republican Senate, because it is believed that the enactment of the Bishops' law last winter caused the loss of Republican control of the lower branch of the Legislature at the last election.

Odd Occurrence in the Hunting Field.

On the afternoon of Feb. 8, 1794, the hounds of his grace the Duke of Beaufort were in full cry. The run had been a long one, and they knew that the fox was almost spent. Suddenly the scent turned abruptly from the open, leading straight into the garden of a cotage in the little village of Castle Coombe. Those who were following wondered what had happened and were more astonished still to see the entire pack, without checking for an instant, dash through the open door into the little room. A shrill scream was heard, and when the whipper in threw himself from his horse and gained the threshold he saw a sight which no fox hunter has ever met before or since. A white faced woman stood clasping a child in her arms, and right there in the crade, from which the infant had just been snatched, eighteen couple of fierce hounds were struggling to devour their fox.

Severe sore throat is often relieved by sipping sweetened water in which there is a pinch of cayenne pepper.

Witch hazel is excellent for the eyes, though one should be certain the l iquid is absolutely pure before using.

Do not overlook the value of proper and rational exercise. All the muscles of the body must be used to be of value to one.

The Auto Habit.

Some delver has found in the Bible what he believes to be a hint of automobiles. It is contained in the story of the vision of Nahum, the Elkoshite, concerning the burden of Nineveh. In the account given by this seer of the military array of the Medes and Babylonians against Nineveh occurs this verse: "The chariots shall rage in the streets, they shall jostle one against the other in the broad way, they shall seem like torches, they shall run like the lightning." If that doesn't describe a street full of motor cars what does? Then, again, a variant of the word "jostle," which the original Hebrew will, it is said, bear even better, is "pass swiftly, without particular purpose, to and fro." Isn't that the automobile habit?"

Homesick Spencer.

When Herbert Spencer was a boy his father sent him away from home to school. The youngster became homesick and, with 2 shillings in his pocket, made his way home, over 120 miles, in three days, walking most of the way. He did forty-eight miles the first day and forty-seven on the second. On the third day a friendly coach driver took him most of the way for nothing.

Mistook His Destination.

An editor of a western exchange recently began worrying about how he would get his shirt on over his wings after reaching paradise. An envious contemporary sarcastically observed that his difficulty would likely be in finding out how he could get his hat on over his horns.—Gayman (Kan.) Herald.

FOR THE GENTLER SEX

DRESS AND DIGESTION.

If writers on women's affairs are correct in telling us that the wearing of fine dinner gowns aids nutrition and that in evening dress woman digests her food, even if she doesn't enjoy it more, some of the newest dinner gowns will surely work wonders for their wearers, says the Philadelphia Telegraph.

"The most popular dinner dress for winter," says a French modiste, "will be the 'merimaid' gown—so called from its resemblance to the scaly covering ascribed to the fabled beauties of the deep. It is fashioned out of sequins, which overlap one another and give the effect of fish scales. The real merimaid gown is of opal sequins and is a work of art. It owes its charm entirely to a good cut, which is princess, of course, fitting like a glove round the body and spreading out into innumerable frills about the feet.

"There is no trimming; the sleeves are very small, and fit closely to the arm. One large flower in a contrasting shade is the only decoration permissible, and no jewelry should be worn." There are also 'mermaid gowns' of gold, silver, bronze, scarlet and black, she says. If this keeps up the sanatoriums may not be able to hold all the overtaxed 'dressers.'"

TO RESTORE VELVET.

Velvet so easily plushes that it is an extravagant article to use.

Grease spots of a stain caused by wear may be removed with turpentine rubbed on briskly with a bit of flannel. Two or three applications may be necessary.

The pile of velvet and velveteen may be raised by stretching it tightly over the top of a basin holding boiling water and stroking it gently in the opposite direction with a soft brush.

Most velveteens will wash, not once but many times, if they are handled properly. Put them through two lathers of warm soapy water, using a moderately stiff brush along the pile as the material lies stretched on the washing board. Rinse in cold, clear water ,to which has been added salt, and hang dripping wet in a shady place to dry, says Home Chat. Do not squeeze or rub, but if dirty use the brush liberally.

HAVE YOU NOTICED.

How many fur toques are worn this winter?

How pretty the plaid tailor-mades are?

How popular black caracul fur seems to be?

To what convenient shortness the walking skirt has shrunk?

How many tailored coats are made with perfectly plain sleeves like a man's?

How many women carry huge muffs and leave the throat entirely unprotected?

How many thin white blouses are worn on the coldest days, and apparently with comfort?

How many stalwart young women have adopted the wearing of russet walking boots this winter?

How pretty and becoming are the big colored silk and velvet roses worn on the small hats against the pompadour?

THE WOMAN IS NEVER OLD.

Who allows herself to think only of pleasant things.

Who trains her tongue to utter only pleasant words.

Who remembers that frowns are unbecoming and that smiles are better.

Who keeps her nerves well under control and remembers that they are not an interesting subject to any one.

Who enters into the plans, and, as far as possible, into the doings of the young people about her.

Who never allows herself to become slouchy and careless in appearance.

Who treats others as she likes to be cared for herself and never demands too much from her friends.

The Secret of Hairdressing.

The reason why the majority of women who have to depend on their own exertions in the matter of dressing their hair becomingly usually obtain such disappointing results does not, after all, spring so much from a fatal parsimoniousness in the amount of time they devote to it night and morning. Hair to look well must receive a maximum of attention, and the fact is too often ignored that the necessary time spent on this important matter of the toilet is never thrown away, as far as looks are concerned, the present fashions making more stringent demands than ever on the amateur hairdresser.

The Ideal Duster.

The process of dusting as generally carried on would be almost as much honored in the breach as the observance. No good housekeeper should own that pretty abomination known as a feather duster, the gay flirting about of the same merely displacing the dust, which quickly settles elsewhere. A soft chamois skin, not too large, soaked in cold water and then wrung out, is the ideal duster. It can be used on the finest woods, leaving a clear, bright surface. After every piece of furniture has been wiped with the moist chamois the rooms may be considered really dusted.

The Kinsman Block Signal System, A Valuable Industrial Investment.

The Kinsman Block System Co. offers for sale 375 shares of its Preferred Stock, par value 100 per share.

The Company own all the patents of F. E. Kinsman for the control of steam and Electric Railway trains, including those under which the Automatic Stop in the New York Subway is licensed.

The extraordinary value of this stop is shown by the now more than two years perfect operation on the Express tracks of the New York Subway and on the Boston Elevated Railway, where there has never been a collision, or the loss of a dollar's worth of property by the failure of the device, and further by the admitted fact that it has practically doubled the safe capacity of the roads thus equipped. The prospective use of this system in the additional subways and tunnels now under construction or already authorized, to say nothing of its probable ultimate adoption on the elevated railroads in New York, Brooklyn and elsewhere, justifies the Company's claim that the stock of the Company is cheap at par. In addition to this the Kinsman Block System Co. own many valuable patents on practical apparatus for similar control of trains on the surface electric and steam railroads of the country, some of which they are now equipping.

The collision on the "Southern R. R." in which President Samuel Spencer and his associates lost their lives is evidence of the need of such an apparatus. The only difference between that collision and others which occur almost daily is the prominence of the individual victims. The Kinsman Block System Company's apparatus is to the engineer what the air brakes are to the brakeman with the difference that the engineer is a far more important factor to the traveling public than the brakeman. His failure to observe signals or tendency to misunderstand train orders results in destruction of life and property, on the other hand, with the brakeman delays or inconveniences are generally the most serious consequences following negligence. It is only by substituting mechanical precision for human falibility that security can ever be secured.

Engineers do and will continue to run past visual signals set at danger. "Surprise checking" and other disciplinary methods have been in use for many years but still the Inter-state commerce commission's annual reports continue to startle the public and alarm the traveler. The Kinsman Automatic Recorder also owned by the Company meets this difficulty by furnishing the Railroad Management with an irrefutable record of train operation while running over the road, by automatically registering the conditions of all signals each time a train passes, thus correcting the present inspection methods and causing increased diligence and closer obedience on the part of the engineer. Signals either visual, audible or telephonic in the engine cab are no improvement on outside visual signals, in fact they give an engineer or motorman an excuse for neglecting to observe the outside conditions affecting the progress of his train, such as obstructions on the track at grade crossings or elsewhere, or to see the flagman whose duty it is to signal an oncoming train with a red flag or lanterns. In short, the present automatic visual signals as used by many of the principal roads are about the limit of human ingenuity in signalling, the only remaining improvement is in the direction of automatic control now so well covered by the pioneer patents owned or controlled by this Company.

Marshall & Ball Clothing
The Highest Type of Ready-to-Wear.

THE M. & B. SALE HAS 'EM ALL BEATEN.

This Great Sale—The greatest in the history of the Marshall & Ball Store—was inaugurated last Saturday. And the way the people have responded, in spite of the fact that the weather man has been working against us, is strong evidence of the prestige which this Unusual Clothing Store enjoys.

It's a rigid rule of the M. & B. Store to clean up all stock at the end of each season. Hence this hammering down of prices on broken lines all over the store, including Clothing, Hats, Shoes and Furnishings.

Hundreds will be here tomorrow to snap up the good things. Don't wait till the wise ones have carried away the richest of this generous harvest. Come into the orchard early and get your share of the choice plums.

HEALTH HINTS.

The best powders are the talcum and rice powders, yet some very good box powder has no poisonous ingredients and needs to be recommended. The use of peroxide of hydrogen on the face has a cleansing effect and undoubtedly improves a muddy complexion when a little ammonia is used with it and the mixture rubbed into the skin and immediately washed off. It removes blackheads, cures pimples, yet must not touch the eyes or hair. Peroxide is used extensively in a great many of the tooth pastes and produces remarkable results when first applied to the teeth. It is also used as a bleach for finger nails, and should be among the toilet articles, though not used too freely.

In one of the finest sanitariums in Michigan, where they give facial massage and every kind of beauty-making device is resorted to, the attendants will tell you they whiten the skin, cleanse it from all impurities and give you the blush af a pale pink rose with something you keep in your own house all the time, and that is nothing more nor less than salt. The face is washed in very hot suds, then a little fine salt it put in the palms of the hand and massaged into the neck and face, then rinsed in hot water, gradually reducing it to cold. Every other day the patient drinks a glass of cold water in which there is one-half spoonful of salt, and there is no denying the fact that they do make a complexion there which is good and lasting. A cheap cosmetic, and one to be had at home.

A splendid exercise for straightening the shoulders and enlarging the bust is to stand erect, rise slowly on the tip toes, take a long deep breath, hold the arms at full length and stretch them back as far as possible. Begin b practising the exercise six times each morning on arising and finally increasing the number of times to twenty.

The accumulation of tartar on the teeth makes them unsightly and is often the cause of a bad breath. If the teeth are properly brushed each day tartar will not have the chance to accumulate, but it has already been allowed to do so it can be removed by a very simple treatment. Moisten the toothbrush in warm water and dip it into magnesia; rub on the teeth and after three applications the tartar will have entirely disappeared.

Inflammation of the throat may sometimes be cured by the steam from a lump of resin over which boiling water has been poured. Place a lump of resin the size of a walnut in an old teapot, pour boiling water over it, cover and place the spout to the mouth.

"Feed a cold and starve a fever," is an adage as old as time itself. A severe cold usually runs its course, though such simple treatments at hot lemonade at bed time, or even hot broth, sipped before retiring, is often sufficient to break a cold.

A good preparation to use when one is afflicted with excessive perspiration, which is certain to ruin the clothes, is to make a mixture of equal parts of talcum, soda and cornstarch. The soda acts on the acidity of the perspiration and prevents the unpleasant odor so often noticeable.

Pure olive oil will cure the worst forms of stomach trouble, and is a good flesh builder in bodies emaciated by long sickness. It is not unpleasant to take if a little grape or berry juice is placed in the glass with the oil. Delicate babies are often nourished with olive oil, and the bodies should be massaged with it.

For a cold take an eight-ounce bottle half full of sweet oil, put ten cents' worth of camphor gum into it, and then fill the bottle with equal parts of turpentine and kerosene. Shake well and when wanted for use pour some into a small dish and warm. Rub well into the chest and soak flannel with it and apply.

To cure a bunion is a very difficult thing, yet one excellent remedy is known. Cut very thin slices of raw beef and soak in strong vinegar for twelve hours. Some put a cent in the vinegar to get the verdigris, which is also beneficial. The piece of meat should be bound to the foot over the bunion, and another as soon as the first one is dry. It may require several applications, yet this is almost a certain cure.

When bread is given to children under a year and a half old, it should be sliced very thinly, buttered lightly and given in small quantities.

If troubled with large, or varicose, viens in the lower limbs do not stand much in one position, but move about or sit down whenever opportunity affords it.

A thorough but gentle rubbing with a soft chamois skin will remove dust and dirt from the face, and this practise is better than numerous washings during a day.

As the constant liberal use of ammonia will turn hair white, it is recommended as a bleach for yellow-gray hair. A tablespoonful of ammonia to a basin of water is the proportion to be used.

Polish the nails with the chamois skin buffer to improve the circulation of the parts and make them clear and pink. No paste is needed; in fact it is injurious to the nails to use a polish on them daily.

When taking physical exercise commence gently, continuing until the body is in a glow, then finish as gradually as the exercise was commenced. This will avoid lameness of the back and other joints.

—For best results try The Daily Press.

CHARLIE MEYER DOES SOME GREAT PIN SMASHING

PASSES PREVIOUS RECORDS IN TOURNEY WITH A 257 SCORE.

"Charlie" Meyer, Jr., jumped to the front in McLaughlin's bowling tourney last night by giving one of the best pin smashing exhibitions that has been seen on the alleys in many moons and incidentally handed in the record score of the series. He refused to be sociable at the start of his second game and bounded away from the other participants in race horse fashion. When his whirlwind streak finally subsided he had a score of 257, ten better than the previous high record made by Chief Kiely. He followed this up with 211 and then in games outside of the tourney directly afterward he had the fever so bad that his lowest was 200. His skimpiest score was 179, made when he first started his tourney games and the cold was still in his fingers.

Meyer's partner is Dan Mack and he was a shade out of form, last night. He rolled 173, 149 and 171 but the team took two away from McLaughlin and Causebrook. In the first game the latter two aggregated 377, beating their opponents by twenty-five pins. Causebrook started off with 213 and then dropped to 159, finishing with 185. John McLaughlin maintained his average with 164, 172 and 177.

Koons and Skinner were to have met Vail and Meyers and Willett and Britton to play Maltby and Thiers, last night, but the unavoidable absence of some of the bowlers caused a postponement. The games will be rolled some time next week.

Last night's scores were as follows:

Causebrook	213	159	185
McLaughlin	164	172	177
vs.
Meyer	179	257	211
Mack	173	149	171

LEAL'S SECONDS LOST.

Lighter Y. M. C. A. Junior Five Defeated Them Handily.

The junior basketball team of the Y. M. C. A. defeated the Leal's school second five at the association gymnasium yesterday, 33 to 11. The Leal's boys outweighed the Y. M. C. A. lads, but the latter had a bundle of team plays that fooled them completely. Conroy played a star game.

The line-up: Y. M. C. A.—Robbins, Richardson, f; Conroy, c; Vail, Lindzey, R. Miller, g. Leal's—Campbell, Runyon, f; Gluck, c; Day, Lawrence, g.

Y. M. C. A. Competition.

Burgess won the standing hop-step-and-jump event in the all-around championship competition at the Y. M. C. A. last night. He covered 27 feet 8 inches. Banks was second with 27 feet 1 inch, and Douglass and Rumsey tied for third with 26 feet 7½ inches. Banks still leads, with 538 points. Burgess is second, 327 points; Viebrock third, 302 points.

BANKRUPTCY LAW CHANGES.

Action Yesterday, By National Board of Trade at Washington Session.

Washington, Jan. 18.—Important action was taken yesterday by the National Board of Trade at the closing session of its thirty-seventh annual meeting with respect to the bankruptcy law.

A resolution was adopted approving the present law, but suggesting that it be amended so as to provide the following additional reasons for a refusal to discharge an applicant from bankruptcy:

1.—The loss by an insolvent debtor, within four months of the filing of his petition, of money or property by unlawful speculating, betting or gambling.

2.—The making away of the proceeds of merchandise purchased within four months of the filing of a petition in voluntary bankruptcy.

3.—The making of any preference in an attempt to defraud a creditor.

4.—The making of intentionally false statements to commercial agencies to secure a false commercial rating.

In a resolution adopted the National Board of Trade also gives its approval to the shipping bill now pending before the House of Representatives, and urges its enactment by Congress. The resolution also approves legislation which will promote the national defense, create a naval reserve and establish American ocean mail lines to foreign market, especially to South and Central America and to Oriental countries.

A final adjournment was taken after the transaction of some routine business.

SPEAKERS AT PITNEY DINNER.

Leaders of New Jersey and New York Bench and Bar to Honor Vice-Chancellor.

Arrangements for the dinner to be given in honor of Vice-Chancellor Pitney at the Waldorf-Astoria on Saturday night by the bench and bar of New Jersey, in commemoration of his eigthieth birthday, are about completed. The acceptances so far number not far from 300.

The speaking will begin promptly at 9 o'clock, the first toast, to which Chancellor Magie will speak, being "Our Guest." Responding, Mr. Pitney will ltake for his theme the following from Bacon: "I hold every man to be a debtor to his profession; from the which as men of course do seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and ornament thereto."

Other toasts and speakers will be: "The Importance of the Judiciary in Our System of Government," Alton B. Parker; "The True Spirit of Chancery," Hampton L. Carson; "The Vice-Chancellors," Vice-Chancellor Frederic W. Stevens; "The Supreme Court," Supreme Court Justice J. Franklin Fort; "The Bar of New Jersey," former Governor John W. Griggs.

LUNEDLEN JUNIORS' HALL.

William G. Holton Council Buys the Apgar Building.

Dunellen is to have a Junior Mechanics' Hall, as well as a National Bank. William G. Holton Council, the Junior lodge of Dunellen, has purchased the Apgar building, on North avenue, where it has been meeting, and will convert it into a Junior headquarters. Several improvements to the property have been planned.

The proposition to buy the building was voted down at a meeting last year, but a sentiment in favor of the purchase was strong among the members, and the project was not allowed to die. The members in favor of the purchase brought the others to their way of thinking and the vote closing the deal was cast at the last meeting. The consideration has not been named.

Want Big Ships.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 18.—President Roosevelt has come out earnestly in favor of authorizing this year the construction of two great battleships of the English Dreadnought class. In a letter addressed to Chairman Foss, of the House Committee on Naval Affairs, the President says he feels strongly that these ships should be of the maximum size and speed and their primary battery all of 12-inch guns.

Edwin Laughey, of West Fourth street, has returned to work at the Potter Press Works after six weeks' detention at home as the result of a heavy casting falling on his foot, severely crushing it.

Prominent members of the Masonic fraternity from all parts of the State attended the fiftieth anniversary of Essex Lodge, No. 49, F. and A. M., of Elizabeth, which was celebrated Wednesday evening at the Odd Fellows' Hall in that city. Addresses were made by Grand Master Walter Chandler, Deputy Grand Master Austen H. McGregor and Grand Junior Warden W. D. Wolfskeil. Essex Lodge was instituted January 14, 1857. Nelson W. Moore, who received the master mason degree in March of that year, is the only surviving charter member of the lodge. He was a guest at the reception Wednesday evening.

LITERARY.

Gertrude Lynch is the author of a striking novel, "Winds of the World," which opens the February Smart Set, and a story with a more original plot has not recently appeared. Two women reared in the same country town are thrown together in an extraordinary way after many years of separation, the one poor, the other fabulously rich. Following this seemingly old situation is an entirely new and unexpected denouement. Miss Lynch's gift for searching character analysis has never been more in evidence, and this piece of work will, beyond question, give her a lasting place among modern fiction writers.

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

A TALE OF THE OLD WEST

By HARRY LEON WILSON, AUTHOR OF THE SPENDERS

COPYRIGHT 1903 BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

"Why, you're sick—you're burning up with fever! You must be covered up at once and have sage tea."

He laughed at her, a free, full laugh, such as she had never heard from him in all the years.

"It's no fever, child. It's new life come to me. I'm strong again. My face burns, but it must be the fire of health. I have a work given to me—God has not wholly put me aside."

"But I believe you are sick. Your hands are so hot, and your eyes look so unnatural. You must let me—"

"Now, now—haven't I learned to tell sickness from the glow of a holy purpose?"

"You're sure you are well?"

"Better than for 15 years."

She let herself be convinced for the moment.

"Then please tell me something. Must a man who comes into our faith, if he is baptized rightly, also marry more than one wife if he is to be saved? Can't he be sure of his glory with one if he loves her—oh, very, very much?"

He was moved at first to answer her out of the fullness of his heart, telling her of the wonderful new revelation. But there came the impulse to guard it jealously in his own breast a little longer, to glory secretly in it; half-fearful, too, that some virtue would go out of it should he impart it too soon to another.

"Why do you want to know?"

"Ruel Follett would join our church if he didn't have to marry more than one wife. If he loved some one very much, I'm afraid he would find it hard to marry another girl—oh, he simply couldn't—no matter how pretty she was. He never could do it." Here she pulled one of the ribbons from her broad hat. She gave a little exclamation of relief as if she had really meant to detach it.

"Tell him to wait a little."

"That's what I did tell him, but it seems hardly right to let him join believing that is necessary. I think some one ought to find out that one wife is all God wants a man ever to have, and to tell Mr. Follett so very plainly. His mind is really open to truth, and you know he might do something reckless—he shouldn't be made to wait too long."

"Tell him to wait till to-morrow. I shall speak of this in meeting then. It will be all right—all right, dear. Everything will be all right!"

"Only I am sure you are sick, in spite of what you say. I know how to prove it, too—can you eat?"

"I'm too busy thinking of great things to be hungry."

"There—you would be hungry if you were well."

"I can't tell you how well I am, and as for food—our Elder Brother has been feeding me all day with the breath of truth. Such wonderful new things the Lord has shown me!"

"But you must not get up. Lie still and we will nurse you."

He refused the food she brought him, and refused Lorena's sage tea. He was not to be cajoled into treating as sickness the first real happiness he had felt for years. He lay still until his little room grew shadowy in the dusk, filled with a great reviving hope that the Lord had raised a new prophet to lead Israel out of bondage.

As the night fell, however, the shadows of the room began to trouble him as of old, and he found himself growing hotter and hotter until he burned and gasped, and the room seemed about to stifle him. He arose from the bed, wondering that his feet should be so heavy and clumsy, and his knees so weak, when he felt otherwise so strong. His head, too, felt large, and there rang in his ears a singing of incessant quick beats. He made his way to the door, where he heard the voices of Prudence and Follett. It was good to feel the cool night air upon his hot face, and he reassured Prudence, who chided him for leaving his bed.

"When you hear me discourse to-morrow you will see how wrong you were about my being sick," he said. But she saw that he supported himself carefully from the doorway along the wall to the near-by chair, and that he sank into it with every sign of weakness. His eyes, however, were aglow with his secret, and he sat nodding his head over it in a lively way. "Brigham was right," he said, "when he declared that any of us might receive revelations from on high; even the least of us—only we are apt to be deaf to the whispered words until the Lord has scourged us. I have been deaf a long time, but my ears are at last unstopped—who is it coming, dear?"

A tall figure, vague in the dusk, was walking briskly up the path that led in from the road. It proved to be the Wild Ram of the Mountains, freshened by the look of rectitude that the razor gave to his face each Saturday night.

"Evening, Brother Rae—evening, you young folks. Thank you, I will take a chair. You feeling a bit more able than usual, Brother Rae?"

"Much better, Brother Seth. I shall be at the meeting to-morrow."

"Glad to hear it, that's right good—you ain't been out for so long. And we want to have a rousing time, too."

"Only we're afraid he has a fever, instead of being so well," said Prudence. "He hasn't eaten a thing all day."

"Well, he never did overeat himself, that I knew of," said the bishop. "Not eating ain't any sign with him. Now it would be with me. I never believed in fasting the flesh. The Spirit of the Lord ain't ever so close to me as after I've had a good meal of victuals—meat and potatoes and plenty of good sop and a couple of pieces of pie. Then I can unbutton my vest and jest set and set and hear the promptings of the Lord God of Hosts. I know some men ain't that way, but then's the time when I beautify my inheritance in Zion the purtiest. And I'm mighty glad Brother Joel can turn out to-morrow. Of course you heard the news?"

"What news, Brother Seth?"

"Brother Brigham gets here at 11 o'clock from New Harmony."

"Brother Brigham coming?"

"We're getting the bowery ready down to the square to-night so's to have services out of doors."

"He's coming to-morrow?" The words came both from Prudence and her father.

"Of course he's coming. Ben Hadley brought word over. They'll have a turkey dinner at Bell Wardle's house and then services at two."

The flushed little man with the revelation felt himself grow suddenly cold. He had thought it would be easy to launch his new truth in Amalon and let the news be carried to Brigham. To get up in the very presence of him, in the full gaze of those cold blue eyes, was another matter.

"But it's early for him. He doesn't usually come until after conference, after it's got cooler."

The bishop took on the air of a man who does not care to tell quite all that he knows.

"Yes; I suspicion some one's been sending tales to him about a certain young woman's carryings on down here."

He looked sharply at Prudence, who looked at the ground, and felt grateful for the dusk. Follett looked hard at them both and was plainly interested. The bishop spoke again.

"I ain't got no license to say so, but having done that young woman proud by engaging himself to marry her, he might 'a' got annoyed if any one had 'a' told him she was being waited on by a handsome young Gentile, gallivantin' off to canyons day after day—holding hands, too, more than once. Oh, I ain't saying anything. Young blood is young blood; mine ain't always been old, and I never blamed the young, but, of course, the needs of the Kingdom is a different matter. Well, I'll have to be getting along now. We're going to put up some of the people at our house, and I've got to fix to bed mother down in the wagon-box again, I reckon. I'll say you'll be with us to-morrow, then, Brother Joel?"

The little bent man's voice had lost much of its life.

MEDICAL MEN DISAGREE

Varied Views Upon Cooper's Remarkable Success in St. Louis.

MOUND CITY M. D.'S TALK

Some Are Inclined to Give Young Man Credit, Others Call Excitement He Has Created a Fad.

St. Louis, Jan. 17.—The astonishing sale of Cooper's preparations in this city has now reached such immense figures that the medical fraternity at large have become forced into open discussion of the man and his preparations.

The physicians as a whole seem to be divided with regard to the young man's success in St. Louis—some being willing to credit him for what he has accomplished, while others assert that the interest he has aroused is but a passing fad which cannot last, and which will die out as quickly as it has sprung up.

The opinion of these two factions is very well voiced in the statements made recently by two of a number of physicians who were interviewed on the subject.

Dr. J. E. Carass, when questioned about the matter, said: "I have not been a believer in proprietary preparations heretofore, nor can I say that I believe in them at present. But I must admit that some of the facts recently brought to my notice concerning this man Cooper have gone far towards removing the prejudice I had formed against him when the unheard of demand for the preparations first sprang up in this city.

"Numbers of my patients whom I have treated for chronic liver, kidney and stomach troubles have met me after taking Cooper's remedies, and have stated positively that he has accomplished wonderful results for them. I notice particularly in cases of stomach trouble that the man has relieved several cases that were of years' standing and proved very obstinate in treatment.

"I am the last man on earth to stand in the way of anything that may prove for the public good simply through professional prejudice and I am inclined to give Cooper and his preparations credit as deserving to some extent the popular demonstration that has been accorded them in this city."

Another well known physician who was seen, took the opposite view of the "Cooper-mania," as he called it, which now has this city in its grip. He said: "I can only liken the present state of affairs to a certain kind of hallucination. For want of a better name I might call it 'Cooper-mania.' The people of St. Louis seem to be firm in the belief that this man Cooper has health corked up in a bottle.

"Some of them imagine that he has completely cured them of various ills judging from their statements. It is beyond me to say why the city has gone crazy over the man. It may be safely put down, I think, to one of the passing fads that so often attack the American public.

"Sooner or later the people are bound to regain their senses, and will then realize that a reputable physician is the one to whom their health had best be entrusted."

In the meantime Cooper meets several thousand people daily, and only smiles when statements of the above character as quoted to him. His charitable work still continues to be very extensive.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

One of the season's events will be the visit of "The Mayor of Tokio," which comes to the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow afternoon and night. Many new and novel features have been added to the fun department of the tuneful and hilarious Mayor of Tokio. Dancing numbers that will amaze as well as entertain have been arranged by that clever stage manager, James Darling, who for years was the general stage manager for Richard Carle and to whom a large part of the success of that comedian's enterprises is due. The new "Peanut" ballet will be a surprise to theatregoers, as will also many other new features to be introduced during the performance.

When that delightful English comedian, Lawrence D'Orsay, makes his bow at the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday night in Augustus Thomas' new comedy, "The Embassy Ball," he doubtless will be most cordially received for he is a decided favorite here. The play somewhat resembles its predecessor, "The Earl of Pawtucket," in the misunderstandings arising from a mix-up of the characters. The role is declared to fit the inimitably droll D'Orsay like a glove, and to be a happily chosen "follow-up" of his character part in "The Earl of Pawtucket." As in that play, so in "The Embassy Ball," love for an American girl forms the motive for the complication. The adventurous Captain becomes entangled in a mass of amorous intrigues with serene ignorance of the havoc he is creating—needless to say he comes through the ordeal unscratched.

Miss June Mathis, who is playing the leading part in Jane Mauldin Feigl's comedy, "The Girl Patsy," is one of the youngest as well as the most charming actress on the stage. In her interpretation of the part of "Patsy" she is delightful. Miss Mathis will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre Saturday afternoon and night, January 26. In the cast are such well known players as Miss Grace Cahill, Miss Lida Merab, Miss Olive Helaine Brisco, Miss Alice Knowland, Miss Marie Haynes, Francis Herblin, Morris Burr, W. Clinton Hamilton, William Gough, John Sutherland, M. R. Schwerin, David Herblin, Charles Soest, Harry C. Griffin and Chester D. Guyer.

LAST WORDS OF FAMOUS MEN.

Julian (331-363), Roman emperor, "Oh, Galilean, thou hast conquered!"

John Keats (1795-1821), English poet, "I feel the daisies growing over me."

James Lawrence (1781-1813), American naval officer, "Don't give up the ship!"

Louis XIII. of France (1601-1643) "There come to me thoughts that torment me."

William Pitt (1759-1806), English statesman, "Oh, my country, how I love thee!"

Thomas Jefferson (1743-1826), American statesman, "I resign my spirit to God and my daughter to my country."

Sir Walter Raleigh (1552-1618), English courtier and navigator, "Why dost thou not strike? Strike, man!" (To his executioner.)

Hugh Latimer (1472-1555), English reformer, "Be of good cheer, brother. We shall this day kindle such a torch in England as I trust shall never be extinguished." (To Nicholas Ridley, who was burned with him.)

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Teachers Underpaid.

While the Journal does not believe that the Congressmen are overpaid and thinks they have the right to look for better compensation, we are of the opinion that there is a profession, the members of which are as much public servants as the Congressmen are and in whose hands there rests, to a great extent, the destiny of the Nation, but who are not being paid in accordance with the amount of work they do and with the responsibility that rests upon their shoulders. They are the ones who stand in need of better salaries before the Congressmen. The Brooklyn Eagle has been making a comparative study of the salaries paid to teachers and to artisans and finds a most unjust condition of affairs. The Eagle says:

"The man who fashions the walls of a house is held to a higher test of skill, and is paid better for his work, than he who molds the mind of a child. Bricklayers in San Francisco get $8 a day; Harriet Jones teaches school in Luzerne county, Pennsylvania, for the same sum per week, and is given employment only nine months in the year. Masons in Calgary, Canada, get $5.40 a day, or $149 a month; Lawrence Amos teaches school in East Brandywine township, Pennsylvania, for $40 a month.

"Many teachers are paid less than bodcarriers. College professors are worse off, in proportion, than teachers. The average salary paid for professors in Columbia is $3,746.85, to adjunct professors, men between 30 and 40, with a dozen years of service to their credit, $2,126.92. Such figures are little less than a public scandal.

"No male teacher in any community should be paid less than enough to support decently a wife and five children. In every community the teacher should have a position of dignity and emolument equal to that of the banker and the professional man.

"Schools ought not to be the last refuge for economic dregs not wanted by business. They should attract and keep in their service the best talent. Facts dealing with this condition, both concerning communities where the rate of pay remains scandalously low and where it has been raised, should have wide circulation."

The Journal has frequently noted that in various parts of the State there is a demand for more teachers, and school authorities appear to be unable to account for the shortage. There is no mystery about this. In this material age when a man can earn three or four times as much per week at bricklaying as he could hope to get in the noble profession of teaching he is going to choose the former occupation every time. We are no longer living in a sentimental age. There was a time when the village schoolmaster received barely enough to sustain body and soul; but he was the biggest man in the community. Even the parson was secondary to him. He was content to live on glory. Things are different now, however. School teachers are like other people. They like the good things of life, the comforts, the luxuries that can only be obtained by an outlay of the coin of the realm. If their salaries as school teachers are not sufficient to get these they must cast their lines in other channels, and who can blame them for so doing? The same holds true in regard to women teachers. So many business avenues that were a generation ago closed to women are now open to them. They lead to far more remunerative employment than does the teaching profession.

The truth of the matter is if the school authorities went to secure a better class of instructors they must offer more liberal inducements. Unless they do this the progress which the State and the Nation has made in the line of education will be halted. No one desires to see this. Such a condition would be fraught with grave danger. Education must not be retarded. It must be encouraged. Its continued progress will be assured when the authorities are brought to a realizing sense of what an important factor in the affairs of the Nation the school teacher is and that his salary should be fixed in accordance with the responsibility that is in his hands.—Elizabeth Journal.

BOOMS FOR GENERALSHIP

Collins, Dungan, Gilkyson and Martin Are Mentioned For Gilmore's Place.

COLLINS IS OPPOSED

Governor Stokes Expresses Appreciation of Retiring Officer's Services On Accepting Resignation.

Governor Stokes has accepted the resignation of General Quincy O'M. Gillmore, commanding the 2d Brigade of the New Jersey National Guard. In addition to the general order he directed to be issued accepting the resignation, the Governor wrote a letter to General Gillmore, expressing his personal appreciation of the work he has done in increasing the efficiency of the guard.

There is already a lively fight over the election of General Gillmore's successor, who is to be chosen by the field officers of the brigade. Colonel Dennis F. Collins, of Elizabeth, commanding the 2d Regiment, is senior officer in the line of promotion, but he is opposed by some other officers.

Colonel Collins has figured in several disputes with his officers, and this is assigned as part reason for the hostility to him. Colonel Thomas S. Chambers, assistant adjutant general of the division, will be the candidate of some of the officers of both the 2d and 3d regiments, if he will consent to run. Colonel Chambers, however, has announced that he would not seek the office.

Lieutenant Colonel Nelson Y. Dungan, of Somerville; Lieutenant Colonel Frederick Gilkyson and Major W. B. Martin, of Elizabeth, are also being urged to become candidates.

A PYTHIAN GATHERING.

Local Lodges Invited to Attend Big Gathering at Somerville, Monday.

Lodge of the Castle, No. 82, K. of P., of Somerville, has issued invitations to a big fraternal meeting of the order next Monday night. Among the lodges asked to attend are Perseverance and Unity, of Plainfield; Somerset, of Bound Brook, and Neshanic, of Neshanic.

Supreme Representative P. Frank Shanley, of Jersey City, will speak on "The Doing of our Supreme Lodge at New Orleans." Other high officials in the order are to make addresses and a musical programme in addition has been arranged.

Provides a Souse Fund.

If the stories told by his neighbors are true, there is a man in this city who has sold a $3,500 house in order to give himself a drink fund. He is said to have bought a $2,500 house, in order to leave "$1,000 for a good time." His idea of a good time, as he is said to have explained it, is a steady and unchecked guzzling of strong waters. There is, of course, a question as to the man's sincerity. He may be having fun with his neighbors. But they have all heard of his supposed intentions and they believe he means to keep them.

Getting Read to Build Sewer.

Under the direction of the Councilmanic street committee plans are being perfected for the commencement of work on the extension of the southside sanitary sewer in the spring. Peter Morgan, of Poughkeepsie, has the contract for building the sewer, and Warren Travell, the contract for installing the pumping station on Randolph road on property purchased by the city from Clifton & Campbell. Mr. Travell will install the Ingersoll-Rand Company pump.

May Install Independent Plant.

Providing there is no prospect of getting good supply of ice by February 1, the Swift Beef Company, of East Third street, will make arrangements to install its own ice plant, one similar to that now in use by Smalley Brothers, the North avenue butchers Other merchants about the city may do likewise. Last summer many of the merchants were obliged to pay exorbitant prices for ice and they declare that they will not be caught that way again

Free from Contagious Diseases.

The Borough Board of Health reports that there is now not a single case of contagious disease in the borough. The last case was that of Miss Margaret Acker, of Westervelt avenue, who had diphtheria. The yellow card was taken off the house yesterday.

Will Prepare to Enter Naval Academy

William Burtis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Burtis, of Fairview avenue, will leave early in February for Annapolis, where he will attend a preparatory school for the purpose of entering the naval academy.

CHURCH TO OBSERVE 75TH ANNIVERSARY

REV. DR. WHITNEY AND REV. MR. M'CREA TO SPEAK IN SOMERVILLE.

Rev. A. C. McCrea, pastor of the First M. E. church, and Rev. Dr. Whitney will be among the speakers at the seventy-fifth anniversary celebration of the founding of the First M. E. church at Somerville, commencing tomorrow and continuing through Monday and Tuesday.

The first pastor, Rev. John Gilder, an uncle of Richard Watson Gilder, editor of The Century Magazine. He had as his territory the counties of Somerset and Hunterdon, extending from the Raritan to the Delaware. The old edifice was used until 1880, when the present church was dedicated.

Rev. Dr. G. H. Whitney, of this city, was pastor of the church during the Civil War. He will make an address next week at the celebration. Rev. E. N. Castro, the present pastor, has served the church longer than any other pastor. He has announced his intention of leaving the church at the close of the conference year. He will spend a year travelling in Europe, and upon his return will again take up the pastoral work in a church in the conference.

ONE YEAR IN PRISON FOR ATTEMPTING TO KILL.

Colored Man Who Fired at White Man Gets Light Sentence.

In the Somerset County Courts in Somerville yesterday Judge Louis H. Schenck sentenced Harry Johnson, the colored man who was convicted of attempting to shoot Herbert H. Mount, proprietor of the Rocky Hill Hotel, to one year in State Prison.

It is now probable that the case of Jacob Flomerfelt, who is awaiting his third trial on a charge of manslaughter for the killing of his brother-in-law, Constable Frank D. Cramer, at North Branch Depot two years ago, will not be tried during the winter term of courts. Flomerfelt is reported dangerously ill, and Prosecutor Reger will not move the case. The Skillman forgery case may be tried next month, as Skillman is reported to be recovering from his recent illness.

Court at Somerville has been adjourned until January 28, when Judge Lloyd, of Camden, will sit there to try the Supreme and Circuit Court causes.

ENGAGEMENT SOCIAL.

Epworth League Plan a Novel Form of Entertainment.

Engagements were announced and broken at a gathering of young people in Vincent chapel, last night. It was a novel form of entertainment provided by the Epworth League of the First M. E. church, and proved to be an enjoyable affair. In all sixty engagements were announced in an assemblage of eighty young people. During the time of the engagement the young people enjoyed themselves in various social ways, playing all kinds of games, with vocal and instrumental music. After the entertainment refreshments were served.

Miss Sayre was chairman of the entertainment, and Miss Edna French was chairman of the committee on refreshments. During the evening a silver offering was received for the flower fund of the church and a considerable sum was given.

Will Celebrate 10th Anniversary.

The Young Women's Mission Band of Trinity Reformed church is planning for its tenth anniversary to be held in the church parlor, Friday afternoon, February 1, at 3 o'clock, and invitations will be sent out by the band. There will be an informal programme, including an address by Mrs. J. S. Allen, of New York, secretary of the Women's Board of Domestic Missions, Reformed Church of America.

Ocering for Aged Ministers.

The offering for the Board of Ministerial Relief will be received at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church tomorrow. This is for the support of ministers of the denomination who, through age or infirmity, are no longer to serve the church. Last year this church gave $1,020 and an individual gift of $1,000 made the total collection $2,020.

Birthday Party.

In honor of her seventh birthday, Marjory Ellis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ellis, of Richmond street, entertained a party of young friends yesterday afternoon. Games and refreshments were enjoyed.

Stanley's New Location.

Charles L. Stanley, the florist, who has been located on North avenue for the past ten years, is now located at 159 East Front street in the Woodhull and Martin building. His new 'phone number is 928.

'VARSITY SMOKER PLANS

Dr. B. Van D. Hedges to Be Toostmaster At Big Gathering of College Men.

SPEAKERS SELECTED

Fleming and Wilder, of Princeton; Marsh, of Union; Ard, of Maryland, and Tyler, of Yale, the Men.

The toastmaster, and all of the speakers for the University Smoker to be held at the Casino on Thursday night, have been selected and all arrangements have practically been completed, with the exception of one or two novelties that the committee is working on and which it can guarantee will be unique and a source of amusement and enthusiasm to the college men. To date over 200 men have signified their intention of being present and it is expected that the night of the smoker there will sit down to the tables about 250 men.

Dr. B. VanD. Hedges, Princeton '88, has been secured as toastmaster and this will insure a treat for everyone.

The men who are to speak are the following: Dr. Frank C. Ard, University of Maryland; W. B. Tyler, Yale; Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh, Union College; William R. Wilder, Princeton, and Owen H. Fleming, Princeton. The committee is now in communication with Chas. Battell Loomis, the humorist, and it is hoped to be able to prevail upon him to be present.

The ultimate idea of these smokers is the formation of a college man's club in Plainfield, and from the enthusiasm shown at present it appears as if the club would be an assured thing before many weeks pass.

The Casino will be decorated with flags representing forty-six different colleges, besides American flags. The scheme will be similar to that of last year. The men will sit about round tables, each table holding a jolly gdoup of ten or twelve persons. Pipes—corn-cobs, clays and church wardens—tobacco, cigars and cigarettes will be at everyone's right hand. A double quartette from Yale has been obtained, the pick of the Yale Glee Club. There has also been secured for the evening the famous colored Eureka Quartette, the leading "rag-time" singers and dancers in their special line.

The smoker begins at 8:30 and the speeches will be started at 9 o'clock, each man being limited to ten minutes, so that the formal part of the affair will be over by 10:15. In between each speech there will be songs from the groups of college men. Supper will be served at 10:30 and after the supper there will be the usual intermingling of college men and the swapping of old-time college yarns.

Hillery Bill Amended.

The Hillery limited franchise law of last year will have much of its objectionable features—from a Public Service viewpoint—removed, if one of the twenty-one bills now on the Senate calendar should become a law. The bill in question amends the Hillery law, which prohibits the grant of any franchise for the use of the public streets for a longer period than twenty years, except where a period not exceeding forty years may be allowed by popular vote, by exempting from its provisions all municipalities except first and second class cities. The eamendement will not effect Plainfield.

To Close Amboy Bridge March 1.

New Brunswick, Jan. 19.—Automobilists who have been reaching the New Jersey shore towns by means of Staten Island and the Amboy bridge will for three months this spring have to resume traveling by way of this city, which makes the distance thirty miles more. The Amboy bridge will be closed on March 1, and for three months will not be opened to traffic. Three of the spans have to be torn out and replaced with steel spans to comply with the War Department regulartions. As it is now, the department holds the bridge an obstruction to navigation.

Planning for Annual Horse Show.

The Plainfield Riding and Driving Club will meet early in Femruary to elect officers and select committees for the fourth annual horse show to be held June 6, 7 and 8, at the show grounds at Woodland avenue and Randolph road. Improvements have been made at the grounds, an addition being built to the stables for the accommodation of more horses.

Will Soon Announce Speakers.

Those in charge of the Junior banquet to be held at the Casino on Thursday, January 31, expect to be able to announce the names of the toastmaster and speakers within a few days. The committee is now waiting to get the acceptances of one or two speakers before giving the list out.

COURT PLAINFIELD ENTERTAINS BIG CROWD

ANNUAL VAUDEVILLE SHOW AND DANCE ECLIPSES ALL PREVIOUS AFFAIRS.

Court Plainfield, No. 1144, I. O. F., conducted its annual entertainment and dance in Saengerbund hall, last night, both being attended by one of the largest gatherings that has ever been in the building. In point of finances as well as sociability it exceeded any previous effort of the court members.

The entertainment in the fore part of the evening was made up of high class vaudeville artists and every one made a distinct and decided hit. It was preceded by an address of welcome by Charles McCarthy, a member of the committee, and a selected overture by Heinemeyer's orchestra. Those appearing were Add W. Hoyt, black face comedian; Musical Huelu, in mirth and music; Mildred Gilmore, singing comedienne; Bert K. Forrest, humorist and comedian and the Rosseau twins, assisted by Rosseau, Jr., in songs and dances. Selections were given at intervals by the orchestra and Albert Bender acted as accompanist for the various numbers. With the close of the programme the floor was cleared for dancing and it was kept up until 3 o'clock this morning.

The committee which arranged and had charge of the affair consisted of James T. McCarthy, chairman; Henry Hansen, Charles McCarthy, Edward McCue, James M. Smith, Martin Hansen, Louis Feiring, Thomas Roddy and Frederic D. Wilbee. Louis Feiring acted as floor manager and his assistants were James M. Smith, Joseph McCue, Frederic Wilbee and Charles McCathy.

Rector For 13 Years.

Monsignor Charles J. Kelly, D. D., of Hoboken, formerly of Plainfield, spent Thursday in quietly observing the thirteenth anniversary of his rectorate of the Church of Our Lady of Grace and receiving congratulations from his parishioners. Monsignor Kelly has ever since he entered the priesthood been one of the hardest workers in the church.

Praise For Company K.

Governor Stokes has just received from Adjutant-General R. Heber Brentnall the annual report on the National Guard of New Jersey. In commenting on the various companies in the State, the following is said of Company K: "Men of good character. They are very zealous and would do very good work in emergencies."

R. W. Barnes, of Grove street, is detained from business by an attack of lumbago.

NEW BANKING CONCERN

Plainfield Trust Co. Men to Organize People's National Bank at Westfield.

STOCK MOSTLY TAKEN

J. Herbert Case Says Westfield Men Urged Plainfielders to Organize Another Bank There—Field Promising.

The Comptroller of the Currency has approved the application to organize the People's National Bank of Westfield, with a capital of $50,000 and $50,000 surplus. The incorporators are Charles W. McCutchen, Orville T. Waring, Samuel Townsend, Charles A. Reed and J. Herbert Case, of this city, and Edward T. Perine, Dr. R. R. Sinclair and Herbert L. Abrams, of Westfield.

In an interview with J. Herbert Case, at the Trust Company, this morning, he stated that several prominent Westfield men had requested the co-operation of certain ones connected with this company for the purpose of giving additional banking facilities to the people of Westfield. Westfield has been growing very rapidly for the past few years so that it now has a population of about 6,000 inhabitants, with numerous factories of commercial importance at Garwood and in the vicinity and now has but one banking institution.

A large part of the stock has already been subscribed by Westfield people, although it has not been definitely determined as yet who the officers and directors will be.

FATHER BOGAN'S TRIBUTE TO MICHAEL MULDOWNEY.

Departed from Usual Custom During Mass to Speak of His Valiant Struggle.

With a large gathering of relatives and friends in attendance, the funeral of Michael Muldowney, whose death came Wednesday after a long illness, was held this morning in St. Mary's church. A solemn high mass of requiem was said by Rev. Father Bogan, assisted by Father Delehanty as deacon and Father Sciola as subdeacon.

Father Bogan departed from the usual custom in order to give an address touching on the life of "Mike" Muldowney. He paid full tribute to the young man for the valiant struggle he had made in the face of every difficulty and declared that when the end came it was with perfect resignation and in the full strength of God. Father Bogan also spoke of the great kindness that had been shown "Mike" in his illness by people of opposite faith and class and the extreme sympathy that had been expressed for him at all times.

The floral tributes were numerous and included many set pieces from friends.

Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery, the pall bearers being Cormack Kenney, John McCann, Arthur McGinley, John Dunn, Thomas Caulfield and William Drake.

Committed to Jail.

Robert N. Moore, of Fanwood, also known as Bertram Moore, was committed to the county jail yesterday afternoon by Justice of the Peace James P. Kelly, to await the action of the Grand Jury on the charge of having since September 1 last, and almost continually since, violated the excise law by selling without a license. The complaint was made by Detective John Galatian.

Will Describe Trip to the Pole.

An event of unusual interest will be the illustrated lecture to be given by Commander Robert E. Peary at the First M. E. church, Saturday night, January 26, when he will describe his last trip to the North Pole and exhibit sixty fine colored views. Commander Peary's story is filled with thrilling incidents which cannot fail to interest everyone.

$2,500 For Loss of Leg.

The jury at New Brunswick in the $10,000 damage suit brought by Joseph Floersch against William J. Donnell, of Perth Amboy, for damages sustained by Floersch when at work in Donnell's lumber yard, brought in esterday a verdict of $2,500. Floersch had his leg injured by the falling of a pile of lumber. Later it was amputated.

Miss Rowe's Funeral.

The funeral of Miss Jennie Rowe, who died yesterday morning, will be held at the home of her sister, Mrs. William Mills, of Summit avenue, tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. Interment will be in the Methodist cemetery. Miss Rowe was in her seventeenth year and was the daughter of the late Jeremiah and Kate Rowe.

Automobile Class.

Clarence B. Brokaw will open the Y. M. C. A. automobile class next Tuesday night. The course will consist of twelve lessons.

CONSOLIDATION IDEA IS TEN YEARS OLD

BOROUGHITES MET TO DISCUSS PLAN ON JAN. 27, 1897.

The movement to consolidate the city and the borough is not very new, or even very recent. Agitation for active steps toward the accomplishment of consolidation was started ten years ago, January 27, 1897.

After a good deal of quiet work, a meeting for the organization of the consolidation promoters of that time was held at the home of L. B. Woolston on January 26. The following men signed the roster of the consolidation movement: Newton B. Smalley, L. B. Woolston, James McGee, Frank A. Church, John P. Emmons, Richard E. Coriell, A. E. Kenney, Walter F. Hamilton, John Valiant, H. B. Wells, S. St. J. McCutchen, Benjamin M. Day, W. J. Buttfield, J. H. Howell, H. K. Carroll, Edwin S. Hooley, Walter M. McGee, Frank Curtis, Samuel Townsend, G. T. Douglass, J. P. Northrop, George P. Dupee, James C. Peck, Martin I. Cooley, George T. Rogers, W. L. Saunders, William J. Roome, W. O. Worth, Robert S. Miller, Elston M. French, A. E. Faber, Jr., Henry A. McGee.

Four plans were proposed to bring the union about — consolidation, without annexation; annexation; putting Plainfield into Somerset county; formation of a new county.

BOYS' SECRETARY OF Y. M. C. A. RESIGNS.

Haydn W. Barrows to Go Into Business; Will Construct Circle Swings.

Haydn W. Barrown, boys' secretary of the Y. M. C. A., has resigned his position. The resignation will take effect February 15. Mr. Barrows will enter business.

It is only five months since Mr. Barrows came to the association. He joined the staff September 15, coming from the Twenty-sixth Ward Branch, Brooklyn, where he had been associated with G. L. Listman, the present physical director of the Y. M. C. A. He has been engaged in Y. M. C. A. work about two years.

Mr. Barrows will enter the employ of the American Circle Swing Company, having charge of construction work. The company builds swings for amusement parks and carnivals.

The Y. M. C. A. Juniors have become devoted followers of Mr. Barrows in the short time he has been here, and they are arranging to tender him a farewell reception. No one has been mentioned yet as Mr. Barrows' successor.

Miss Touse Entertains.

Miss H. C. Touse entertained a large number of friends from this city and out-o-town at her home, 61 Fairview avenue, Thursday night. Games, music and dancing were enjoyed and prizes were awarded as follows: Women, first, Miss A. Lempert; second, Miss D. Hill. Men, first, W. Etzold, of Dunellen; second, R. Molby. After the entertainment an elaborate supper was served at midnight. Miss Touse was assisted in receiving by her sister, Mrs. T. A. Tharp, of New York; the Misses A. Muchling and A. Lempert, of Rutherford, and Miss Gertrude Badum, of Dunellen.

Will Tell About Mission Work.

Several converts and workers of the McCauley Mission, New York, will have charge of the services at Faith chapel, East Third street, tomorrow night. They have been engaged in doing mission work throughout New York and New Jersey for several years and they will tell of the great work accomplished at the McCauley Mission.

Elk Show Tickets On Sale.

The tickets for the local Elks' vaudeville show have been placed on sale and Treasurer Clarence Teel reports a good many already disposed of. Members of the lodge are buying them up rapidly and there is no doubt but what a full house will greet the artists.

Date Fixed For Cantata.

William E. MacClymont, organist and choirmaster at Grace church, has fixed upon Thursday night, January 31, as the time when his choir will give Stainer's cantata, "The Daughter of Jairus." Rehearsals are now being held regularly for the musical service.

Women Are Invited.

Prof. H. C. Krebs, of the North Plainfield High Schools, will lecture on "Stonewall' Jackson, before the Men's Club of the First Baptist church, Monday night. The women of the church and congregation are invited.

CROOK SHOT AT FLY-COP

Latter Surprised Him Trying to Work a Second-Story Job.

DIDN'T SHOOT STRAIGHT

Neither Did the Cop, Who Fired Shots at the Crook—Escaped By Way of Hillside Avenue.

Checked in an attempt to rob the house of Edson E. Parvin, 1202 Watchung avenue, and headed off in his first dash to escape, a second-story thief tried to shoot down Detective F. S. McCarthy early last evening. He failed in his markmanship, but succeeded in getting away despite a stream of bullets sent after him by the detective.

McCarthy was sleuthing about Kensington and Watchung avenues, shortly before 7 o'clock, looking for just such chaps. He spotted the crook lounging at Watchung and Kensington avenues, at 6:50 o'clock. The detective walked by the lounger and continued, with the air of one interested in a waiting dinner, for half a block. Then he turned and sleuthed back, in the manner of gumshoe artists, and found that the crook had wasted no time.

The thief was coming from an unfinished building on Kensington avenue with a ladder left there by one of the workingmen. He crossed the street, with McCarthy stalking carefully behind in the darkness, and headed for the Parvin house, on the corner of Watchung avenue. He turned to look about, and saw the detective.

Dropping the ladder, the crook ran into the Parvin yard and around the east side of the house. McCarthy ran around the oppisite side to head him off. They met in front of the kitchen door. The fugitive had a revolver in his hand and opened fire at once. He shot twice, missing both times. With his second shot he turned and fled to Watchung avenue. McCarthy chased after him with his revolver spitting lead. He fired five times, but the fugitive ran on and outstripped him. The crook shook off pursuit at Hillside avenue.

When the shooting at the kitchen door began a servant ran out; then she ran back and gasped tidings of riot and murder to police headquarters over the telephone. Chief Kiely and two policemen hustled to the scene in the patrol wagon, and met McCarthy at Watchung avenue. The four scattered in a renewed search for the crook, but they were unable to pick up his trail.

McCarthy is the crack shot of the department and he is sure he hit the fugitive. There were no blood marks on the snow, however, to bear out that belief, and the man hustled over the ground as if he was whole enough for all practical purposes.

McCarthy describes the crook as of medium build five feet ten inches in height, wearing dark clothes and a slouch hat.

Trial for Theft of Spanish Rooster.

Under the auspices of Plainfield Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., a mock trial will be held in Junior Hall, Monday night, when one of the members will be tried on a charge of stealing a Spanish black rooster from another member. G. W. V. Moy will act as judge, while W. S. Angleman will represent the defendant and H. C. Runyon the plaintiff. The case will be tried before a jury, composed of members, who will appear in farmer attire. Invitations have been issued to the other local councils to attend the trial.

Reception to Pastor Herring.

The Ladies' Aid Society, of the First Presbyterian church, will hold its annual reception for the pastor, Rev. C. E. Herring, on Thursday night, January 24. There will be a special programme of music, vocal and instrumental, and refreshments will be served.

Mr. Higgins Entertains.

Michael Higgins, of West Front street, entertained a party of friends at a dinner at the home of Mr. Ryan on Manninfi avenue, Thursday night. Covers were laid for twenty. The dinner was followed by a social period during which music and dancing were enjoyed.

Enjoyed a Strawride.

William Burtis, of Fairview avenue, arranged a sleighing trip, last night, a party of twenty young men and women enjoying a strawride for several hours about the city and vicinity. Upon their return refreshments were served at the home of Mr. Burtis.

THE CONVENIENCE

of having one's credit good possibly at this time of the year, is a little more noticeable than at any other. Perhaps yours is in excellent shape, but you have already used it as far as you care to go, and are still a little short. Then step in and let us assist you. We're taking care of winter's needs for hundreds whose credit is good, but who hesitate to obligate themselves any further to their friends, and particulary for a loan of a little cash. We loan any sum for any time and accept return payment weekly, semi-monthly or monthly.

We give you a written statement showing the exact cost of a loan, also the exact discount we allow every month the loan is paid before contract time. You will find us always willing to give you facts at our office. If you cannot call, write or 'phone us, and our confidential agent will call and give you full particulars.

The possession of household goods, piano, organ, horses and wagons are sufficient evidence of your ability to pay.

WESTFIELD.

Gideon Ludlow, of Cranford; James Headley, of Union, and E. R. Collins, of Westfield, are representing the Union County Board of Agriculture at the meeting of the State Board of Agriculture at Trenton this week.

A special meeting of the fire department has been called for next Tuesday night, when the preliminary steps will be taken to organize a relief association, under the present laws governing relief associations.

The street committee of Westfield Council has ordered prosecutions against all householders who fail to clean the snow from their sidewalks.

Next Sunday night the men of the Cranford Catholic church living in Garwood will hold a meeting to organize a Holy Name Society.

The series of special evangelistic services being held at the Westfield Methodist church concluded last night.

C. R. R. TAX REDUCTION.

Valuation of Repair Shops and Land at Elizabeth Cut $103,750.

Elizabeth, Jan. 19.—At the Union County courthouse here yesterday the County Tax Board held a special meeting in order to give a hearing to the Jersey Central Railroad Company which appealed the valuation placed by the Elizabeth tax assessors on its property at Elizabethport, the ground on which its big car repair shops and the plant itself stand. Comptroller Bonnett and City Attorney Connolly appeared for the city, while the railroad company was represented by its general real estate agents, H. W. Doughty and Frederick A. Faulks, of Newark.

After a lengthy discussion, in which all the points in dispute were taken up in detail and acted upon, an amicable agreement was reached. By its terms the city's valuation of $70,000 on the seventy acres of land owned by the company stands without change, as also does the valuation of $38,800 on the company's roundhouse and $35,000 on its power-house. The valuation of $528,250 on the other structures of the company's plant was reduced to $424,500. This placed the total revised valuation of the property at $568,300, instead of $672,050, the original estimate, making a difference in the company's favor of $103,750.

Mrs. Chapman Fisk, of West Seventh street, is now residing in her apartments on Thirty-fourth street, New York. She will remain there for several weeks.

BOUND BROOK CIRCUS MAN AT RUINED CITY.

Abelarde Lowande With Troupe Scheduled to Open Island Tour at Kingston Last Saturday.

New York, Jan. 19.—Tony Lowande's Circus Company sailed from New York on January 2 on a tour of the West Indies. The company was to have opened at Kingston, Jamaica, on last Saturday. Nothing has been heard from the company since the earthquake. Lowande had in the company about forty persons, among the best known of whom are Nicholas Cabilos, of New Haven, Conn.; El Nino Eddie, of New York, and Abelarde Lowande, of Bound Brook, N. J.

Edgar De Cordova, reported killed in the Jamaica earthquake, is one of eight brothers, three of whom, Aaron, Verona and Rinzi, are prominent members of the Consolidated Stock Exchange of this city.

Two more of the brothers are in the United States, one is in England, still another, O'Connor, is register of the Supreme Court of Jamaica. The De Cordovas are an old Jamaica family.

Since the earthquake the brothers in this city have received no message from the two in Jamaica, but they have received a brief cable message from their uncle, Fred L. Meyers, who is also there, reading "All well." In view of the dispatch declaring Edgar De Cordova dead, this message of the uncle, they fear, referred only to his immediate family, and not to his nephews.

Edgar, who was a merchant, had a plantation outside Kingston, and the brothers here still have hopes he was there when the earthquake occurred and may be merely missing.

TROLLEY CAR ON RAMPAGE.

Jumps Track and Tries to Go Up a Rahway Porch.

Rahway, Jan. 19.—A trolley car, while clearing the track of snow on Irving street Thursday night, jumped the track and went speeding toward the sidewalk. It uprooted a tree, sending it through the front of Miss Mary Macann's residence, spoiling pictures, paper, carpets and furniture. The railing over the front porch was demolished and the porch broken down.

Miss Macann narrowly escaped severe injuries from falling plaster. Miss Bessie Marsh, who was in the house at the time, was caught in the branches of the tree, receiving severe bruises. It was nearly midnight when the tree was removed from its resting place, which was partly in the second-story bedroom. Then the car was taken from the mix-up of the fence and the porch.

The prices will be found to compare favorably with those in New York.

Beyond Criticism.

"Why do you always insist on playing difficult and unusual music?"

"Because," answered Miss Cayenne, "it is very improbable that any of the auditors will know whether I am performing it correctly or not."—Washington Star.

Miss Anna Garretson, of Sherman avenue, has been visiting Miss Mamie VanCleef, of East Millstone.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Quackenbush, of Herkimer, N. Y., who have been visiting Rev. Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Parsons, of Park place, have returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Salkeld, of Greenville, are receiving congratulations upon the arrival of a son. Mrs. Salkeld was formerly Miss Daisy Snyder, of this city.

GOTHAM'S AMUSEMENTS

Louis De Foe said of "The Road to Yesterday," in the New York World: "A fresh, charming work of fantasy. The Old Year at the Herald Square theatre was ushered out last night by a comedy of strangest, fantasy, but one whose freshness of idea, crisp humor and incessant charm ought to maintain it in high favor for a long time on Broadway. There is a managerial superstition that a dream play spells box-office ruin. Let 'The Road to Yesterday' now step forth and say it nay! Nothing that even approaches the characteristics of this delicate fabric of fancy has been seen at the theatres since 'A Message From Mars' of seven years ago, and the older work, by the way, compares with the newer as a bit of canvas to a piece of lace. Miss Beulah M. Dix and Miss Evelyn Greenleaf Sutherland, the authors, combine a spirit of poetic romance with gentle satire, which, whether the scenes pass in waking moments or in dreams, never miss the mark. And they have also accomplished the rare feat of leading their audiences through the intricacies of the tangled plot without the slightest confusion of characters.

As one of the foremost New York dramatic critics expresses it: "Musical Reviews may come and Musical Reviews may go, but Bonita and her Wine Woman and Song Company will go on forever." Such is the opinion of all of the press of this city since the initial performance of this artistic aggregation at the New Circle theatre, where they will remain for an unlimited period. The vehicle which presents Bonita and her merry cohorts is called "Going Into Vaudeville," in which all of the most talked of actors and actresses are satirized. The entire entertainment possesses a certain dash and vim which forces it into immediate favor and popularity. Miss Bonita possesses all of the necessary attributes of a most successful star. She is unquestionably the handsomest woman on the stage today; is an accomplished singer and an actress of the very highest possible grade. Her work being clean cut and finished to a remarkable degree.

The group of mermaids in "Neptune's Daughter" at the New York Hippodrome has aroused so much interest and caused so much talk that the management has decided to place the names of the mermaids on the programme, in order that all may be promoted to the dignity of becoming principals. This honor of having their names on the programme is also to perpetuate the original Mermaid Octette, which threatens to become as famous as the original Florodora Sextette. So man alleged Florodora girls have laid claim to being members of the original sextette of that famous opera, that the Hippodrome management believes the rights of the original Mermaids should be fully protected, so that future chorus girls at the Hippodrome may not falsely claim to have been members of the original octette. The eight names that go on the programme are Margaret Townsend, chief mermaid; Beryl Clifton, Angelina Pessione, Juanita Davis, Kitty Watkinson, Marion Pardue, Hattie Dorsell, and Bernice Elser.

Miss Eleanor Robson, who is domiciled for the entire season at the Liberty theatre in New York, will make the first production of a new romance play that has been especially written for her by Paul Armstrong, the author of "The Heir to the Hoorah," and to which has been given the title "Salomy Jane," tonight. The piece, in which extraordinary interest is being taken, is founded upon some of the incidents of Bret Harte's story of California, "Salomy Jane's Kiss," and the novelty is three fold; first in that it gives Miss Robson an opportunity to essay a straight character part, something she has never yet attempted; second, that the scenic effects will be entirely new to the stage, and thirdly, that the star will be surrounded by a company of extraordinary excellence that has been especially selected for the various types the members of it are to assume. The story is said to be remarkable for its tensity and sympathetic appeal to the emotions, and to be entirely different from anything that has yet been given to the stage. In Miss Robson's support will be found H. B. Warner, Reuben Fax, Ralph Delmore, Holbrook Blinn, Earl Browne, Henry Harmon, Stephen Wright, James Seeley, Horace IVnton, Donald Gallagher, Ada Dwyer, Frances Golden Fuller and Ruth Abbott Wells.

The fashionable age now for marriage is from twenty-seven to thirty-two for women, from thirty to forty-five for men.

The reduction works at Canso, Nova Scotia, handled 1,300 tons of dogfish last year and produced therefrom 9,000 gallons of fish oil, besides 200 tons of fish scrap, which makes a good fertilizer.

Beville Stanier, of Peplow Hall, Shropshire, England, who bought the Hawkins collection of British birds recently, sold the Sheffield specimens of the great auk which is contained for $2,000.

The colonial secretary of the Bahamas states in his report of the islands for 1905-06 that no complaint of error or delay has been received by the telegraph department for fourteen years.

The cultivation of rubber is now being taugt in the schools of west Africa. Every village is obliged to plant a certain number of acres in rubber trees. In the Kongo state 12,500,000 rubber trees have been planted.

A farmer at Winburg, Orange River Colony, alleges that in his district alone 24,000 sheep are stolen annually by the natives. On this basis he calculates that 300,000 sheep are stolen throughout the colony every year.

The first secretary of the Chinese legation in St. Petersburg remarked the other day that the Chinese government has a stronger hold on its people than the Russian has on its own and that the Chinese people are less cultivated and more oppressed.

The oldest Christian structure in Ireland is a remarkable building evidently very ancient, but wonderfully well preserved, at Dingle, in County Kerry. It is known as "the oratory of Gallerus" and has stood practically uninjured for more than 1,000 years.

Jerusalem now has a summer resort at Ramalah, which is situated several hundred feet higher and commands a view of the Mediterranean. A new hotel has been built there for Europeans by an Arab. Most of the work of construction was done by women, whose wages are 11 cents a day.

The public will be surprised to learn that the Englishman apparently hasn't absolute freedom in the choice of the name of his own child. An unfortunate father, registering his baby girl, told the registrar the name was Coralie, and he was astonished when he met a refusal on the ground that there is no such name as Coralie. He was compelled to choose another name.

The youngest lawyer that ever appeared before the supreme court of the United States the other day argued in favor of the constitutionality of the North Carolina statute prohibiting the running of "bucket shops" in that State. He was Walter Clark, Jr., son of Chief Justice Clark of the supreme court of North Carolina, and he has just passed his twenty-first birthday.

L. C. Bateman, of Auburn, Me., has just come into possession of an extremely rare and valuable curio for his cabinet. It is an idol from the ruins of Copan, in Central Africa. It was presented to him by Charles Nason, of Sabatis, the well known gun-maker. Mr. Nason for many years was located in Costa Rica and other points in Central America, purchasing coffee.

Franz Josef, the emperor of Austria, has a fad for collecting menu cards, and as his stock is contributed to by other monarchs it is a truly wonderful one. His choicest specimen is one used at the dinner given by the Czar to President Faure. This "card" is a block of the rarest black marble beautifully painted by a famous French artist, the names of the various dishes being lettered in white ivory.

Although the population of the United Kingdom increased by 2,000,000 during the last six years, there has been a decline of nearly 2,500,000 barrels in consumption of beer. There is also a steady decline in the use of spirits. On the other hand, the 155,767,710 pounds of tea imported for home consumption during the first seven months of 1906 mark an increase of 10,000,000 pounds over the same period in 1905.

The Chinese minister of the board of education has memoralized the throne to send all governors of provinces to study law in Japan for eighteen months, and after the expiration of this term they shall be reinstated in their former offices. He has also advised their majesties to send all the present official academicians to Japan to study western learning, and on their return official positions shall be alloted to them.

It is proposed by a German engineer to use balloons for railway purposes. A stationery balloon is fixed to a slide running alone a single steel rail. This rail is carried up the side of a steep mountain. The balloon is moored by a steel cable to the rail at a height of about thirty-five feet above the ground. The conductor can cause the balloon to ascend at will. The lifting power is furnished by hydrogen gas, and the descent is caused by water pressure poured into a large tank at the upper end of the road.

H. G. Wells, the popular author, has had a varied career. His father was professional bowler for Kent for many years and the only man who has ever bowled five wickets with successive balls in a first class match. This is a subject for justifiable boasting with his talented son. H. G. Wells works in a room that is fitted with electric apparatus for light and heat. Swift was his chief source of inspiration when a youth, Sterne is the most profitable English master, in his opinion, for a novelist to study, and as a thinker Schopenhauer has impressed him more profoundly than any other.

ANSWERS EVERY CALL.

Plainfield People Have Found That This Is True.

A cold, a strain, a sudden wrench,
A little cause may hurt the kidneys.
Spells of backache often follow.
A certain remedy for such attacks,
A medicine that answers every call,
Is Doan's Kidney Pills, a true specific.
Many Plainfield people rely on it.

Mrs. J. C. Manchester, of 120 Lafayette place, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I was a suffered from kidney and bladder troubles for a long time, and doctored with physicians for same, each time without being cured. In July, 1905, I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and made up my mind to get a box at Randolph's drug store and give them a trial. I did so, and with good results, as the treatment regulated the kidneys and got the bladder into a proper condition. If this cure proves to be a permanent one, as I have every reason to believe it will, I will always recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Panama Canal—Erie Canal.

Machinery is digging the Panama Canal a thousand times quicker than the shovel dug the Erie.

Machinery produces the L. & M. Paint at 50 times less cost for labor, than if made by hand.

The L. & M. gives the best job in the world, because L. & M. Zinc hardens L. & M. White Lead and makes L. & M. Paint wear like iron for 10 to 15 years.

It only requires 4 gallons of this celebrated paint and 3 gallons of Linseed Oil at 60 cts. per gallon, to paint a moderate sized house.

A novel feature in "The Mayor of Tokio" is the beautiful chrysanthemum ballot. This group of feminine beauty is composed of some of the most sprightly, bewitching and shapely dancers now touring America. The costuming is said to be simply gorgeous and every evolution of the chrysanthemum from its birth to its maturity is portrayed in music, song, dance and evolution. Hundreds of the pride flower of the Japanese nation are used at every performance. The ballet working under the electric lights presents an intensely hypnotic, scintillating, radiating scene. When this ballet was first introduced to Broadway it was received nightly with hilarious applause. "The Mayor of Tokio" appears at the New Plainfield theatre this afternoon and night.

The patrons of the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday evening are promised an almost uninterrupted source of merriment in Augustus Thomas' new play, "The Embassy Ball," in which Lawrence D'Orsay, as Captain Hawarden-Kellie, it is said, surpasses his great success here in the same author's comedy, "The Earl of Pawtucket." The playwright has not only provided Mr. D'Orsay, it is said, with a vehicle that displays his unique personality and talents in the most favorable light, but has constructed a most amusing story, illustrated with bright, humorous and felicitous dialogue and situations. The role of Captain Harwarden-Kellie is a delightful exaggeration of a certain type of the Englishman with an extraordinary accent and drawl who makes the most absurd blunders with a refreshing air of unconsciousness, has ludicrous lapses of memory as to names and places, and yet withal, is honest and brave, and is by no means such a fool as he appears to be on the surface.

"The Girl Patsy," which comes to the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night, is from the pen of Jane Mauldin Feigl, the talented young authoress who has written many successes, chief among which may be mentioned the romantic Western play, "Texas" and the entertaining comedy, "A Paris Model." In "The Girl Patsy" the author has written a delightful story interwoven with comedy, pathos and tragedy. The production comes direct from the Savoy theatre, New York. Miss June Mathis in the role of the little black-picker "Patsy," gives a charming performance. Other well known artists in the cast are Miss Grace Cahill, Miss Lida Merab, Miss Olive Helaine Briscoe, Miss Alice Knowland, Miss Marie Haynes, Mr. Francis Herblin, Mr. Morris Burr, Mr. W. Clinton Hamilton, Mr. William Gough, Mr. John Southerland, Mrs. M. R. Schwerin, Mr. David Herblin, Mr. Charles Soest, Mr. Harry C. Griffin and Mr. Chester D. Guyer.

MANUFACTURERS EXPLAIN WHY THEY FAVOR DRYDEN.

Expressions of E. S. Votey, W. T. Dette and Others Are Interested.

Several manufacturers in Union county have come out in favor of John F. Dryden within the last few days. Following is what they have to say on the situation.

E. S. Votey, president of the Aeolian Company, the largest manufacturers of mechanical piano players in the world, with a plant near Garwood that covers nearly one-half a mile of land along the Central Railroad tracks, is one of the progressive Republicans of Union county and during the campaign ante-dating the party primaries last fall he was a Colby man.

"My view of the situation in Union county," said Mr. Votey today, "is a very simple one. While I was a strong supporter of the Colby ticket at the primary and during the campaign leading up to it, the result of the primary leaves me still a Republican. As to our county representatives I cannot see how they can avoid abiding by the action of the party caucus. They are Republicans and were elected to office as such. They are in honor bound to act in accordance with the majority of their party and if that majority is favorable to Senator Dryden they cannot escape the responsibility of casting their votes for him. Likewise if the caucus select some other candidate it will be equally incumbent upon them to acquiesce and vote in support of such nominee."

F. W. Hoose, general manager of the Garwood Foundry and Machine Company, said: "Common honesty requires that men who are nominated at a primary for a particular purpose shall, if successful at the election, carry out that purpose as an imperative duty to their constituents. As I understand it that is the situation presenting itself to our county representatives in the State Legislature."

The Hall Signal Company, said: "In view of the well-developed issues presented to Republican voters prior to the primary elections in this county and throughout the State, it is a fair and proper assumption to consider the candidates chosen at those primaries and subsequently elected, as the accredited electors of the party in the matter of the Senatorial election about to take place. No presidential elector would dare to cast a ballot contrary to the intent of the voters whose ballots placed him in office. In the present situation the obligation to carry out the intention of the party which nominated and elected our county representatives is fully as binding."

Walter T. Dette, proprietor of the Enterprise Foundry Company, Garwood, said:

"Senator Dryden is the only candidate the voters have had anything to say about. It would be an unfair assumption on the part of our legislators to ignore the result of the primary elections of last fall and select another man, no matter how able and honorable that man might be. Our county representatives in this Legislature have a plain duty to perform. It is useless to dwell upon Senator Dryden's fitness for the office. All that has been said, and it is the record of the party that his course in the United States Senate and his candidacy for re-election has the approval of his party not only in this county but throughout the State. Our county representatives should obey the will of the party. Their personal views may be different but they in all fairness have no right to defeat the expressed intention of a large majority of the voters of their party in this county."

The Graphite Metal Company made this statement:

"Senator Dryden is the regular Republican candidate for the office of United States Senator. His candidacy has received the sanction and approval of the party and it is too late for our county representatives to stand aloof and say the people do not want him. By whose authority do they speak? At the only opportunity the party has had to express its opinion the Republicans of this county make known its decision most emphatically. Our legislators, it seems to me, are going beyond their powers, direct or implied, in assuming to ignore the result of the primaries which followed one of the longest and most active campaigns this State has had. I am not acquainted with Senator Dryden but I believe in giving everyone a square deal, and I consider any attemupt to defeat the majority will of a party caucus contrary to the principles of fair play."

Youth (bursting in excitedly)—Permotion, dad, permotion!

Father—How's that?

Youth—Well, you know I was cast to take the part of the hind legs of the donkey at the pantomime.

Father—Yes.

Youth—Well, now I takes the front legs.—Ally Sloper's Half-Holiday.

The Only Way.

"Yes," said Mrs. Hauskeep, "I simply had to buy this plain gown on account of our cook."

"Really," replied Mrs. McCall, "I don't understand."

"Well, you see, she goes in for gaudy things and I want to have just one dress that she won't copy."—Philadelphia Press.

NOT YET "SAFE AND SANE."

Whenever the Democrats get an opportunity to win public favor and incidently make some good political capital, it can be depended upon that they will not grasp it. At least that has been the way during the last decade and for that matter for a long time previous. That there will be no deviation from this fixed practise during the present session of the Legislature is already apparent. Early next week, a bill will be introduced amending the Bishops' laws to allow a "part-open Sunday." This measure, if it should be enacted by both houses and signed by the Governor, will permit the sale of liquor on Sunday afternoons. The Democrats, it is said, will make a determined effort to muster enough votes to get the outrageous bill through the Assembly, taking their chances in the Senate.

A "part-open Sunday" would legalize the sale of liquor on Sunday afternoons between the hours of one and five o'clock, but only in such municipalities as would avail themselves of its provisions. So far as Plainfield is concerned no real harm could come even should the bill be made a law, but as the proposed innovation is one that effects the welfare of the State at large, Plainfield people would naturally deplore its passage. There is no excuse whatever for such an amendment to the present excise laws. The scheme is simply a sop thrown by practical politicians to the worst element in some of the larger cities. The mere fact that the counsel for the brewers and liquor dealers association in the northern part of the State is drafting the proposed bill is enough to arouse the friends of law and order who have already seen the beneficient results of the present Bishops' laws.

Former Police Commissioner McAdoo refers to his successor as a "foolish megaphone." No doubt General Bingham considers his predecessor a "bughouse calliope," but that is altogether too tame an expression for the General to be guilty of using.

OBITUARY.

James A. Stewart.

James A. Stewart, son of the late Embley and Harriett Stewart, died last night at his home on Almont place, the borough. He was fifty-six years old and had lived here all his life. He was employed for a long time by the Van Wyck family, of Stelle avenue, as coachman. A wife survives him. D. F. Stewart, of John street, is a cousin. The funeral will be held at the late residence Monday afternoon at 2:30.

Mrs. Arthur Stevens.

Following a long illness, Mrs. Arthur Stevens, of Truell Court, died this morning in Muhlenberg Hospital. Beside her husband she leaves two sons, Arthur Stevens, of this city, and Morton Stevens, of Orange; also one daughter, Mrs. Albert Giddes, of Manning avenue. A sister, Mrs. Jane Morris, resides at Truell Court. Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been completed.

Miss Mary Booream.

Miss Mary Booream, daughter of the late John Booream, died at her home on Liberty street at 6 o'clock last night. She was stricken with paralysis last Tuesday and sank rapidly afterward. Miss Booream was a native of Neshanic but had lived in Plainfield a long time. She resided with her niece, Miss Anna Booream, a teacher in the Washington school. The funeral will be held at her late residence Monday afternoon at 4:30 and interment will be at Neshanic.

L. L. Clark, of Lincoln place, is ill at his home with pneumonia.

Rev. W. E. Honeyman, of Lincoln place, who has been detained at home by illness, has about recovered.

MINISTERS RAN A PAPER

Dominees Control One For Just a Day in an Ohio Town.

ALL WERE EDITORS

Refused Liquor "Ads" and Boomed Mayor Who Put On Lid— Nine Columns Church News.

Kenton, O., Jan. 19.—A ministerial association has just endeavored to edit a newspaper "in the spirit that the Apostles of Christ would were they here today to publish a paper under modern circumstances."

The pastors of the Kenton churches, regretting their lack of an organ to advertise their great union religious revival here next month under the leadership of Dr. John S. Hamilton, of Cleveland, were offered the absolute control of one day of the editorial and news columns of the News-Republican, a local daily. The ministers accepted and the preachers moved into the newspaper office and the editors moved out.

The ministers organized as follows: The Rev. Henry Katterjohn, Evangelical, editor in chief, and the Rev. Morgan A. Peters, Reformed; the Rev. O. L. Martin, Baptist; the Rev. Frank Henry Essert and the Rev. D. G. Hall, Methodist; the Rev. John W. Bickett, United Presbyterian; the Rev. Raymond M. Huston, Presbyterian; the Rev. T. W. Pinkerton, Disciple of Christ, and C. F. Magee, Episcopal, assistant editors.

The ministers issued three thousand extra copies and created quite a stir by their "paper as Apostles would edit."

Nine columns were devoted to news, one-third of which was telegraph, the rest local, seven columns to editorials, one column to personals, two to church announcements, five to miscellaneous articles, one to clubs and societies advocating public movements, such as Young Men's Christian Association; seven columns to articles advertising the coming revival and the rest to "clean advertising."

The motto was boarded clear across the top of the first page. The greatest sensation was a big-headed editorial declaring for the renomination and re-election of the present Republican Mayor of Kenton, Clarence M. Cessna, who has put the lid on in this city for the first time in its history.

The ministers refused to take any liquor or poolroom ads, and at the end of a write-up of a prominent social affair this sentence appeared:

"A very pleasant evening was spent, but we sadly regret to report that the affair was chiefly a dancing party."

The Apostolic editors had a five-column headed article urging the moneyed people of the city to build a Young Men's Christian Association building here, saying "The people ought to raise $30,000 for this purpose."

Among other declarations of the "Apostles' newspaper" were:

"The Bible should be taught in the public schools. People of education even are ignorant of its treasures."

"The ministers of Kenton have entered politics only in view of seeing that virtuous, able and law-loving men of either party are elected to office."

"This is an age of business. The Church is the King's business."

"Some of the biggest sinners in Kenton are some of the biggest church members."

The ministerial members worked in the sanctum in their shirt sleeves, smoking cigars.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Seeley Edsall wil have charge of the W. C. T. U. meeting tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Mrs. Rose, of Newark, will speak at the Rescue Mission, Grove street, tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The usual service will be held at the First Baptist church tomorrow; in the morning at 10:30 and the evening at 7:45. Dr. Chambliss will preach on both occasions.

Revival services being held at the Calvary Baptist church are largely attended and during the past week twenty-six persons have signified their desire to lead a Christian life. They will be baptized on Sunday, January 27.

A Victor phonograph concert will be given at the First Church of Christ next Tuesday night by Elston Leonard and Henry C. Brose. A programme made up from selections by Pryor's band will be featured. The concert will begin at 8 o'clock and will be under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society.

In an address at Orange the other night, Rev. Dr. Alexander Mann, of Trinity church, Boston, pictured the Episcopal as the ideal church. He said: "And now today we look back over the past 300 years and we ask ourselves what has been the contribution of the Episcopal church to the Christianity of the nation. I think that we may truly say this, that for the great Protestant churches of America we have formed the ideal of religious worship. It is the Episcopal church that through all those years in her steady adherence to the prayer-book has furnished them all that common heritage of praise and worship. It is to that book that they are turning now in their search for a form of worship. Look at the new form of the great Presbyterian church, which is taken in a large measure from the Book of Common Prayer. And on the other side what have we done for the Church of Rome? Read the letter of Cardinal Gibbons, the appeal for the sympathy of American people in the French crisis. Such a state of things could not exist here because the Constitution of this country calls for the separation of the Church and State. This was not the work of men from Italy or Spain or France, but of English people, all of them bred in the Reformed church of England; it was the work of the people in Virginia, Pennsylvania, New York and New England. This is our contribution to the common Christianity of our country. It is worthy of commemoration. And as one thinks of all of this and the past history of our church, her trials and tribulations, we see God's hand in it all, and, like St. Paul, we are confident that He who began a good work will perfect it until the day of judgment."

Commander Peary At Princeton.

Commander Robert E. Peary, the Arctic explorer, delivered an illustrated lecture at Princeton last evening before a large audience of the faculty and students of Princeton University. His subject was "Farthest North." He said it was as important for national prestige to plant the Stars and Stripes on the top of th earth as to open the Panama Canal or get the control of the Pacific. On his last trip to Princeton, about wto years ago, Commander Peary received a Princeton flag, which he carried with him on his lates trip and unfurled at the "farthest north." He brought the flag back, and will soon give it back to Princeton.

Mr. Barton a Court Stenographer.

Andrew R. Parkhurst, Jr., who will next week assume the position of managing editor of the Courier-News, is a newspaperman of wide experience both in metropolitan and small city journalism. He was educated at West Point Military Academy and later took a post-graduate course at Johns Hopkins University. Shortly after leaving college he became New York correspondent of the Baltimore American and while in the employ of that paper, accompanied the late President McKinley to Buffalo and was at his side when he was shot. From the American Mr. Parkhurst went to the Public Ledger, of Philadelphia, as telegraph editor and later became night editor. Two years ago, when the Republican National Committee decided to help the Republicans of North Carolina in their political struggles by starting a daily paper in their interests at Greensboro, N. C., Mr. Parkhurst was selected for the post of general manager and he conducted the paper until after the political fight had been won and the business established on a paying basis. He has more recently been on the staff of the Philadelphia Bulletin, which position he has resigned to come to the Courier-News on the suggestion of Governor Stokes by whom he was notified of the vacancy.

WITHDREW COMPLAINT.

Annie Ryno Drops Her Charge Against Frank McNair.

The complaint made by Annie Ryno, an 18-year-old Scotch Plains girl, against Frank McNair, a young man of that place, Monday afternoon, was withdrawn yesterday afternoon. The girl wanted to withdrawn the charge Tuesday morning, but Justice Hezekiah Hand, before whom it was sworn out, hesitated to allow such action in a case based on a serious charge. It was not until yesterday, after he had consulted with County Prosecutor English that Justice Hand decided to permit the case to drop.

The girl's allegations were grave. Her reasons for withdrawing the complaint are not known.

Will Issue New Series of Bonds.

The officers of the Park Club are preparing to issue a new series of bonds to provide for extensive improvements made at the clubhouse. The issue, it is said, will amount to $12,000 and arrangements have been made for the sale of them. They will be four per cent. bonds. During the past year the club has expended considerable money in improving the property on Washington avenue and it has attracted an increase in membership. It is now one of the best appointed clubhouses to be found in the State and is very popular with the members and their friends.

—Postmaster E. H. Bird has received a large Mosler safe for the use of the registry department at the local postoffice.

CARRIERS IN MOROCCO.

Rural Free Delivery Basis of System —Remarkable Postmen.

The rural free delivery system in America is the outgrowth of many years' experience, says the Youth's Companion. It comes as a late result in the process of development. In Morocco, on the other hand, it seems to be the basis of a system yet to be formed; only there is one respect in which the two methods differ; that of the United States is maintained at an expense to the government, but the Moroccan system is a source of revenue, according to the following account given by the author of Moorish Lotus Leaves:

Swinging along at a jogtrot a native courier—a barelegged and bareheaded fellow, with a pair of coarse slippers thrust into the hood of his ragged cloak and a wallet on his back—approached our party, and, halting, leaned upon his long staff, while he informed us that the head of Cid Melood's oppressor adorned a gateway in the principal market o' Marakesh.

Mail trains and native post offices being nonexistent, these hardy letter carriers represent the whole postal system of Morocco. Superintended by a government commissioner, a corps of couriers, as trustworthy as they are indefatigable, is to be found in every town.

Ready at an hour's notice to undertake the longest journey, perhaps through disturbed districts, always over miserable roads, generally sleeping in the open air, the courier has been known to do the double trip from Mogador to Marakesh—about 270 miles—within five days and a half, the fee, a small portion of which goes to the government, being just $2. This, it should be borne in mind, is the pay of a special courier. On any additional chance letters he may carry the charge is something under two cents.

UNWILLING GIFTS.

How a New England Preacher Beat a Stingy Parishioner.

When Elder John Malvern, the well-known Free Baptist preacher, was a young man, in charge of the parish at Gilmanton, N. H., he was rewarded for his pastoral faithfulness by frequent gifts of farm produce. He once called on a rich but stingy parishioner. He praised his crops, and especially one variety of winter apple. As he got into his buggy, he again repeated his wish that he might have "some of those apples."

The farmer, wishing to get credit for generosity, said: "If you had a bag I'd fill it."

Much to the farmer's surprise, the elder drew from under his cushion a large bag, which the skinflint filled, with evident lack of enthusiasm. Then, deeming himself safe, he added: "You could have more if you had another bag."

"Certainly, I have another bag," promptly answered the preacher, as he sprang out of the carriage and removed the old bag which he used under the saddle to prevent the horse from chafing his back. The second bag was loosely filled and the minister drove off, with no additional suggestion of more bags that might be filled.

Memorial to Irish Novelist.

A centenary memorial in honor of Charles Lever, the Irish novelist, will be in the form of a chancel to be erected at Ardmurcher church, Moate, County Westmeath, of which Rev. John Lever, the author's brother, was the rector from 1844 till his death there in 1864. Charles Lever paid long visits there, worshiped in the church and found material for some of his books in the vicinity.

To Cure Neuralgia.

Here is a simple method of curing facial neuralgia: If the neuralgia is in the right side of the face the left hand should be placed in a basin of water as hot as can be borne. Or if neuralgia is in the left side of the face then the right hand should be placed in the hot water. It is asserted that in this way relief may be obtained in less than five minutes.—Indian Review.

Didn't Hurt.

"The ladies of our congregation," said the minister's little boy, "are very fond o' me. A good many of 'em gave pa some slippers on his birthday—"

"I thought your pa always used a slipper to spank you with."

"That's just it. The slippers the ladies gave him are the soft kind that's made out o' wool."

Patient Apologist.

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Torkins, "you said you knew exactly which horse would win that race."

"I thought I did."

"O, well, accidents will happen. Maybe one of the other horses got frightened and ran away."—Washington Star.

Winning Her.

"Papa says," remarked the heiress, "that you're a mere fortune hunter."

"Well now, my dear," replied the shrewd fellow, "that's more or less true. Your face is your fortune and that's what attracts me."

Canadian Bounties.

Canada paid the following bounties for the first 11 months of the 1906 fiscal year: $624,191 on iron, $538,591 on steel, $273,440 on steel rods, $13,478 on binder twine, and $267,048 on crude pil.

COUNTRY OF COW PUNCHER.

Life in a Little Town in the Untamed Land Out West.

On all sides of the little town lay the glorious sweep of untamed country. To find another railroad to the northward was to ride 150 miles to the Canadian Pacific, to find a railroad to the southwest meant as long a ride to the Northern Pacific, says Outing. On the ridge of the town a freighters' outfit was making ready to pull out four days to a camp near the Little Rockies. Ten horses led the string of laden wagons, behind which trailed the covered chuck-wagon, equipped for sleeping and cooking, for there were no hotels on this route.

The boss and his two helpers were wrestling with a broncho which, until this ill-fated day, had never felt a harness across his back. He was needed as an off-wheeler, and he had to go. He fought like a hero possessed of seven devils, and three men toiled for an hour to get him into the traces and to keep clear from his infernally active heels.

At length his nine comrades jumped into their collars and the rebel simply had to go with them. He lay down and was dragged on his ear until his addled wits perceived there was nothing in this sort of mutiny. He rose and slid stiff-legged until, outnumbered, outvoted and outgeneraled, he surged into the collar like a thunderbolt and thereafter tried to pull the whole load in the vain hope of tearing something out by the roots.

The long string of horses and wagons wound out into the open country and in a little while dipped across a grassy undulation and was gone. A swirl of dust marked its progress for several miles, this plodding caravan, with its tanned and bearded men, unlettered and slow of speech, used to living out under the sky, seeing few of their kind. It was thus the pioneers crossed the plains a half century ago.

RETIRED BALL PLAYERS.

They Are Found in All Lines of Business Life.

But when the old ball player has done with the game that does not mean that he has done with the world. When I have fielded my last ball I will practice dentistry, says Capt. (Dr.) Casey, in the Independent.

The old players who have long retired are in all sorts of business. Some are lawyers, like Johnny Ward and Dave Fultz; some physicians, like Gunning; Amos Rusie is working in a lumber yard in Vincennes, Ind.; Mike Sullivan was on the governor's staff in Boston till he died; Charley Ganzell, the Boston's old catcher, is a traveling salesman; Jim O'Rourke, formerly of the New Yorks, is playing ball to-day. He owns his own club and grounds and has a son playing on the same team with him—Connecticut State league. Roger O'Conner, the New York's old catcher, is a large property owner in Cincinnati. "Buck" Ewing is in business in Cincinnati. People who remember Arlie Latham will be glad to learn his fate. Arlie was one of the greatest kickers ever seen, the leader of riots and plague of umpires. So they've made him an umpire, and crowds now daily heap contumely upon him.

College Men in Gold Fields.

College men fairly swarm in the gold camps, and many of them flocked in as soldiers of fortune.

"Soom fool threw a football into the middle of the main street of Goldfield one day," said a prospector. "Then he gave a college yell, and 20 men piled out of the stores and hotels and saloons so fast you couldn't count 'em. They lined up without anybody's giving the word, and played a game right on the jump. They clean wore that football out in no time."

While the college-bred man may find only disappointment and hardship in such a stormy tide of life as this, he quits it, at any rate, with a new respect for mankind, a bed-rock democracy of viewpoint and a stock of elemental courage and self-reliance. For there is this to be said of the men of the desert and mountains, that they know how to take defeat with a smile for the future and a firmer set of the jaw for the present. While there are prodigal and foolish deeds among the few who find bewildering wealth in the earth, a finer wealth of manhood is developed in the hearts of the many who fail to find that which they seek. —Outing Magazine.

By Mark Twain.

Mark Twain was once asked by a charming girl to write something in her autograph album. The humorist looked through the book and found the usual sentimental stuff such as "Be good, sweet maid, and let who will be clever." Then he took a pen, wrote "Never tell a lie" and signed his name. This he carefully dried with the blotter, after which he added: "P. S.—Except to keep in practice."

The Commandment He Knew.

The rich hostess, on the lawn of her beautiful farm, was catechising the little counthy weekers from the slums.

"And now," she said, "who knows the shortest commandment?"

"I do," piped a lad in wooden-soled shoes.

"Repeat it, please."

"Keep off the grass!" shouted the urchin confidently.

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

A TALE OF THE OLD WEST

BY HARRY LEON WILSON AUTHOR OF THE SPENDERS

COPYRIGHT 1903 BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

"Yes, Brother Seth, if I am able."

"Well, I hope you are." He arose and looked at the sky. "Looks as if we might have some falling weather. They say it's been moisting quite a bit up Cedar way. Well—good night, all!"

When he was gone the matter of his visit was not referred to. With some constraint they talked a little, while of other things. But as soon as the two men were alone for the night, Follett turned to him, almost fiercely.

"Say, now, what did that old goat-whiskered loon mean by his hintings about Prudence?"

The little man was troubled.

"Well, the fact is, Brigham has meant to marry her."

"You don't mean you'd have let him? Say, I'd hate to feel sorry for holding off on you like I have!"

"No, no, don't think that of me."

"Well, what were you going to do?"

"I hardly knew."

"You better find out."

"I know it—I did find out, to-day, I know, and it will be all right. Trust me. I lost my faith for a moment just now when I heard Brother Brigham was coming to-morrow; but I see how it is—the Lord has wished to prove me. Now there is all the more reason why I should not flinch. You will see that I shall make it all right to-morrow."

"Well, the time's about up. I've been here over two months now, just because you were so kind of helpless. And one of our wagon-trains will be along here about next Monday. Say, she wouldn't ever have married him, would she?"

"No, she refused at once; she refused to consider it at all."

He was burning again with his fever, and there was something in his eagerness that seemed to overcome Follett's indignation.

"Well, let it go till to-morrow, then. And you try to get some rest now. That's what I'm going to do."

But the little bent man, flushed though he was, felt cold from the night air, and, piling more logs on the fire, he drew his chair close in front of it.

As often as Follett wakened through the night he saw him sitting there, sometimes reading what looked like a little old Bible, sometimes speaking aloud as if seeking to memorize a passage.

The last Follett remembered to have heard was something he seemed to be reading from the little book: "The Lord is my Shepherd; I shall not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures; He leadeth me beside the still waters."

He fell asleep again with a feeling of pity for the little man.

CHAPTR XXXIV.

A Procession, a Pursuit and a Capture.

Follett awoke to find himself superfluous. The women were rushing excitedly through their housework in order to be at hand when the procession of Brigham and his suite should march in. Of Joel Rae he caught but a glimpse through the door of his little room, the face flushed that had a long time been sallow and bloodless. When the door had closed he could hear the voice now strong again. He seemed to be, as during the night, rehearsing something he meant to say. And later it was plain that he prayed, though he heard nothing more than the high pleading of the voice.

Follett would not have minded these things, but Prudence was gone, and no one could tell him where. From Christina, of the rock-bound speech, he blasted the items that she was wearing "a dress all new" and "a red-ribboned hat." Lorena, too, with all her willingness of speech, knew nothing definite.

"All I know is she fixed herself up like she was going to an evening ball or party. I wash to the lands I'd kep' my complexion the way she does hern. And she had on her best lawn that her pa got her in Salt Lake, the one with the little blue figures in it. She does look sweeter than honey on a rag in a store dress, and that Leghorn hat with the red bow, though what she wanted to start so early for I don't know. The procession can't be along yet, but she might have gone down to march with them, or to help decorate the bowery. I know when I was her age I was always a great hand for getting ready long before any one come, when my mother was making a company for me, putting up my waterfall and curling my beau-catchers on a hot pipestem. But, land! I ain't no more time to talk with you."

Down the main road he hesitated. To the right he could see where the green mouth of the canyon invited; but to the left lay the village, where Prudence doubtless was. He would find her and bring her away. For Follett was determined to toe the mark himself now.

In the one street of Amalon there was the usual Sabbath hush; but above this was an air of dignified festivity. The village in its Sunday best homespun, with here and there a suit of store goods, was holding its breath. In the bowery a few workers, under the supervision of Bishop Wright, were adding the last touches of decoration. It was a spot of pleasant green in the dusty square—a roof of spruce boughs, with evergreens and flowers garnishing the posts, and a bank of flowers and fruit back of the speaker's stand.

But Prudence was not there, and he wondered with dismay if she had joined the rest of the village and gone out to meet the prophet. He had seen the last of them going along the dusty road to the north, men and women and little children, hot, excited, and eager. It did not seem like her to be among them, and yet except for those before him working about the bowery, and a few mothers with children in arms, the town was apparently deserted.

But even as he waited he heard the winding alarm of a bugle, and saw a scurrying of backs in the dusty haze far up the road. The Wild Ram of the Mountains gave a few hurried commands for the very final touches, called off his force from the now complete bowery, and a solitary Gentile was for the moment left to greet the oncoming procession.

Presently, however, from the dark interiors of the log houses came the mothers with babies, a few aged sires too feeble for the march, and such of the remaining housewives as could leave for a little time the dinners they were cooking. They made but a thin line along the little street, and follett saw at once that Prudence was not among them. He must wait and see if she marched in the approaching procession.

Already the mounted escort was coming into view, four abreast, captained by Elder Wardle, who, with a sash of red and gold slanted across his breast, was riding nervously, as his seat could be kept only by the most skillful horsemanship, a white mule that he was known to treat with fearless disrespect on days that were not great. Behind the martial Wardle was Peter Peterson, Peter Long Peterson, and Peter Long Peter Peterson, the most martial looking men in Amalon after their leader; and then came a few more fours of proudly mounted Saints.

After this escort, separated by an interval that would let the dust settle a little, came the body of the procession. First a carriage containing the prophet, portly, strong-faced, easy of manner, as became a giant who felt kindly in his might. By his side was his wife, Amelia, the reigning favorite, who could play the piano and sing "Fair Bingen on the Rhine" with a dash that was said to be superb. Behind this float of honor came other carriages bearing the prophet's counsellors, the apostles, chief bishop, bishops generally, elders, priests and deacons, each taking precedence near the prophet's carriage by seniority of rank or ordination. Along the line of carriages were outriders, bearing proudly aloft the banners upon which suitable devices were printed:

"God Bless Brigham Young!"

"Hail to Zion's Chief!"

"The Lion of the Lord."

"Welcome to our Mouthpiece of God!"

Behind the last carriage came the citizens in procession, each detachment with its banner. The elderly brethren stepped briskly under "Fathers in Israel"; the elderly sisters gazed proudly aloft to "Mothers in Israel." Then came a company of young men whose banner announced them as "Defenders of Zion." They were followed by a company of maidens led by Matilda Wright, striving to be not too much elated, and whose banner bore the inscription, "Daughters of Zion." At the last came the children, openly set up by the occasion, and big-eyed with importance, the boy who carried their banner, "The Hope of Israel," going with wonderful rigidity, casting not so much as an eye either to right or left.

But Prudence had not been in this triumphal column, nor was she among any of the women who stood with children in their arms, or who rushed to the doors with sleeves rolled up and a long spoon or fork in their hands.

Then all at once a great inspiration came to Follett. When the last dusty little white-dressed girl had trudged solemnly by, and the head of the procession was alredy winding down the lane that led to Elder Wardle's place, he called himself a fool and turned back. He walked like a man who has suddenly remembered that which he should not have forgotten. And yet he had remembered nothing at all. He had only thought of a possibility, but one that became more plausible with every step; especially when he reached the Rae house and found it deserted. Whenever he thought of his stupidity, which was every score of steps, he would break into a little trot that made the willows along the creek on his left run into a yellowish green blur.

He was breathing hard by the time he had made the last ascent and stood in the cool shade of the comforting pines. He waited until his pulse became slower, wiping his forehead with the blue neckerchief which Prudence had suggested that she liked to see him wear in place of the one of scarlet. When he had cooled and calmed himself a little, he stepped lightly on. Around the big rock he went, over the "down timber" beyond it, up over the rise down which the waters tumbled, and then sharply to the right where their nook was, a call to her already on his lips.

But she was not there. He could see the place at a glance. Nothing below met his eye but the straight red trunks of the pines and the brown carpet beneath them. A jay posed his deep shining blue on a cluster of scarlet of sumac, and, cocking his crested head, screamed at him mockingly. The canyon's cool breath fanned him and the pine-tops sighed and sang. At first he was disheartened; but then his eyes caught a gleam of white and red under the pine, touched to movement by a low-swinging breeze.

It was her hat swaying where she had hung it on a broken bough of the tree she liked to lean against. And there was her book; not the Book of Mormon, but a secular, frivolous thing called "Leaflets of Memory, an Illuminated Annual for the Year 1847." It was lying on its face, open at the sentimental tale of "Anastasia." He put it down where she had left it. The canyon was narrow and she would hardly leave the waterside for the steep trail. She would be at the upper cascade or in the little park above it, or somewhere between. He crossed the stream, and there in the damp sand was the print of a small heel where she had made a long step from the last stone. He began to hurry again, clambering recklessly over boulders, or through the underbrush where the sides of the stream were steep. When the upper cascade came in sight his heart leaped, for there he caught the fleeting shimmer of a skirt and the gleam of a dark head.

He hurried on, and after a moment's climb had her in full view, standing on the ledge below which the big trout lay. There he saw her turn so that he would have sworn she looked at him. It seemed impossible that she had not seen him; but to his surprise she at once started up the stream, swiftly footing over the rough way, now a little step, now a free leap, grasping a willow to pull herself up an incline, then disappearing around a clump of cedars.

He redoubled his speed over the rocks. When she next came into view, still far ahead, he shouted long and loud. It was almost certain that she must hear; and yet she made no sign. She seemed even to speed ahead the faster for his hail.

Again he sprang forward to cover the distance between them, and again he shouted when the next view of her showed that he was gaining. This time he was sure she heard; but she did not look back, and she very plainly increased her speed.

For an instant he stood aghast at this discovery; then he laughed.

"Well if you want a race, you'll get it!"

He was off again along the rough bed of the stream. He shouted no more, but slowly increased the gain he had made upon her. Instead of losing time by climbing up over the bank, he splashed through the water at two places where the little stream was wide and shallow. Then at last he saw that he was closing in upon her. Soon he was near enough to see that she also knew it.

He began at that moment an extended course of marveling at the ways of woman. For now she had reached the edge of the little open park, and was placidly seating herself on a fallen tree in the grove of quaking aspens. He could not understand this change of manner. And when he reached the opening she again astounded him by greeting him with every manifestation of surprise, from the first nervous start to the pushing up of her dark brows.

"Why," she began, "how did you ever think of coming here?"

But he had twice hurried fruitlessly this hot morning and he was not again to be baffled. As he advanced toward her, she regarded him with some apprehension until he stopped a safe six feet away. She had noted certain lines of determination in his face.

"Now what's the use of pretending?—what did you run for?"

"I?—run?"

Again the curving black brows went up in frank surprise.

"Yes,—you run!"

He took a threatening step forward, and the brows promptly fell to a serious intentness of his face.

"What did you do it for?"

She stood up. "What did I do it for?—what did I do it for?"

But his eyes were searching her and she had to lower her own. Then she looked up again, and laughed nervously.

"I—I don't know—I couldn't help it." Again she laughed. "And why did you run? how did you think of coming here?"

"I'll tell you how, now I've caught you." He started toward her, but she was quickly backing away into the opening of the little park, still laughing.

"Look out for that blow-down back of you!" he called. In the second that she halted to turn and discover his trick he had caught her by the arm.

"There—I caught you fair—now what did you run for?"

"I couldn't help it." Her face was crimson. His own was pale under the tan. They could hear the beating of both their hearts. But with his capture made so boldly he was dumb, knowing not what to say.

The faintest pulling of the imprisoned arm aroused him.

"I'd 'a' followed you till Christmas come if you'd kept on. Clear over the divide and over the whole creation. I never would have given you up. I'm never going to."

He caught her other wrist and sought to draw her to him.

With head down she came, slowly, yielding yet resisting, with little shudders of terror that was yet a strange delight, with eyes that dared give him but one quick little look, half pleading and half fear. But then after a few tense seconds her struggles were all housed far within his arms; there was no longer play for the faintest of them; and she was strained until she felt her heart rush out to him as she had once felt it go to her dream of a single love.—with the utter abandon of the falling water beside them.

His voice came to her in a dull murmur, and the sound of the running water came, again like the muffled tinkling of little silver bells in the distance. Both his arms were strong about her, and now her own hands rose in rebellion to meet where the kerchief was knotted at the back of his neck, quite as the hands of the other woman had rebelliously flung down the scarf from the balcony. Then the brim of his hat came down over her hair, and her lips felt his kiss.

They stood so a long time, it seemed to them, in the high grass, amid the white-barked quaking aspens, while a little wind from the dark pines at their side, lowered now to a yearning softness, played over them. They were aroused at last by a squirrel that ran half-way down the trunk of a near-by spruce to bark indignantly at them, believing they menaced his winter's store of spruce cones piled at the foot of the tree. With rattle after rattle his alarm came, until he had the satisfaction of noting an effect.

The young man put the girl away from him to look upon her in the new light that enveloped them both, still holding her hands.

"There's one good thing about your marriages,—they marry you for eternity, don't they? That's for ever—only it isn't long enough, even so—not for me."

"I thought you were never coming."

"But you said"—he saw the futility of it, however, and kissed her instead.

"I was afraid of you all this summer," he said.

"I was afraid of you, too."

"You got over it yesterday all right."

"How?"

"You kissed me."

"Never—what an awful thing to say!"

"But you did—twice—don't you remember?"

"Oh, well, it doesn't matter. If I did it wasn't at all like—like—"

"Like that—"

"No—I didn't think anything about it."

"And now you'll never leave me, and I'll never leave you."

They sat on the fallen tree.

"And to think of that old—"

"Oh, don't talk of it. That's why I ran off here—so I couldn't hear anything about it until he went away."

"Why didn't you tell me you were coming?"

"I didn't think you were so stupid."

"How was I to know where you were coming?"

But now she was reminded of something.

"Tell me one thing—did you ever know a little short, fat girl, a blonde that you liked very much?"

"Never!"

"Then what did you talk so much about her for yesterday if you didn't? You'd speak of her every time."

"I didn't think you were so stupid."

"Well, I can't see—"

"You don't need to—we'll call it even."

And so the talk went until the sun had fallen for an hour and they knew it was time to go below.

"We will go to the meeting together," she said, "and then father shall tell Brigham,—tell him—"

"That you're going to marry me. Why don't you say it?"

"That I'm going to marry you, and be your only wife." She nestled under his arm again.

"For time and eternity—that's the way your church puts it."

Then, not knowing it, they took their last walk down the pine-hung glade. Many times he picked her lightly up to carry her over rough places and was loth to put her down,—having, in truth, to be bribed thereto.

BOWLING.

Much regret has been expressed in local bowling circles that Sam Felver has left the field. A change of position has caused his removal to Washington, D. C., where he will be located permanently. He was Patsy Reville's partner in the McLaughlin tourney and his dropping out has caused a temporary suspension of some of the games. Reville has not secured anyone to take his place as yet but a man will probably be agreed upon within a few days. According to the rules of the tourney, a newcomer must first be passed upon by the other contestants before he can team up. Reville asked for "Jack" McNulty but as "Billy" Leland had previously spoken for him and was denied, he was not allowed in. Elmer Squier has been mentioned and appears to be the most acceptable of the candidates.

"Faithful Jack" Payne dropped into McLaughlin's yesterday afternoon and because it was his first appearance at the academy he was sized up by several sharks as an "easy one." They invited Jack into a game and condescendingly offered to spot him twenty-five pins, just to show him that there was bad feeling. Without stopping to take off his coat, the faithful one started off with a terrific pace and ended up with 212, exclusive of the twenty-five spotted. One of the sharks fainted and Joe Farley had to dash water in his face to bring him to. When the excitement subsided, a dozen of challenges were hurled at Jack but remarking that he was a little out of form and unable to keep up his average of 265 he flitted away as quietly as he came.

"Charlie" Meyer's score of 257 stands as the high water mark in the tourney. The previous best was 247, made a couple of weeks ago by Chief Kiely.

LELAND AND THOMPSON LAND A FULL SERIES.

Took Three Straight Games from Woolston and Cunningham Last Night.

Only one set of games was bowled in McLaughlin's tourney, last night, and the three of them were taken from Woolston and Cunningham by Leland and Thompson. It seemed impossible for Woolston to find the head pin at any time and he got a bunch of poor scores. His best was 164 and others 122 and 138. Cunningham was not a great deal better but was handicapped by a bad thumb.

Leland and Thompson rolled steadily and kept up a fair average. The best score for the set was 193, handed in by Leland.

Four other teams were to have met last night but circumstances called off the games. Reville and Felver were to have met Day and Gahagan and Causebrook and McLaughlin were to have matched skill with Mullen and Conklin.

The scores:

Woolston	122	164	138
Cunningham	152	130	181
Leland	159	193	185

New York, Jan. 19.—Manager of twenty baseball teams in Brooklyn met last evening at No. 300 Fulton street, and voted to support Assemblyman Leo Mooney in a united effort to pass a bill making it legal for amateur teams to play on Sunday. More meetings will be held, and a careful campaign outlined before the bill is introduced.

P. H. S. DEFEATS RAHWAY.

Boys Play a Snappy Game, Winning By Score of 48 to 15.

The High School basketball team from Rahway met defeat at the hands of the Plainfield High School team yesterday in the local Plainfield High School gymnasium by a score of 48 to 15. Rahway has a snappy team; the players are quick, and accurate in shooting goals. Their team work was broken up by the local boys, all of whom played an all-round good game. Plainfield High School played unusually fast, good judgment in passing and shooting running the score up to 48 to 15, in twenty minute halves. Few fouls were called.

The line-up:

Rahway H. S.		Plainfield H. S.
Silvers		Snyder
Davis		Caldwell
	forwards
Stevens		Gavett
	center
Howard		Morris
Gehring		Loizeaux, Freeman
	guards

Referee, Collier; umpire, J. Loizeaux; scorer, Woodhull; timer, Mathewson. Points were made by: Snyder, 6; Caldwell, 15; Gavett, 9; Morris, 2; Loizeaux, 12; Freeman, 4; Silvers, 4; Stevens, 3; Howard, 6; and Gehring, 2.

SUBURBANS WILL PLAY.

West End Team To Reorganize With James Penny In Command.

Arrangements have been completed for the reorganization of the Suburban nine next season, under the management of James Penny. The line-up will be strengthened, and the combination will go after scalps in the city league on all the open dates it can fill with league teams.

The Suburbans tried to get into the league, but the application came after it had been agreed by the league organizers to keep the association down to five clubs. The turndown has left the Suburbans with a natural and human desire to defeat all the league teams, one after another by scores ranging from 27 to 56 to 0.

The players on the Suburbans are all West Enders, and the team is practically a shop aggregation. Mr. Penny is a manager of experience and resource. He was at one time manager of the fast Ingersoll-Sergeant Drill Company team at Easton. He has the knack of getting out the best there is in his men.

The Suburbans played fast ball last season and made themselves felt in the unorganized hustle for premier honors. They defeated the Dunellen team with Randolph, the crack, in the box.

EARLY HISTORY OF OLD JACKSON SCHOOL

FAMILIES WHO WERE COUNTED ON FOR PUPILS WHEN DISTRICT STARTED.

Whether or not the old Jackson school building is to be moved on the property of Arthur Brisbane in Netherwood is to be decided tonight at a meeting of Jackson pupils at David Hand's home. Mr. Brisbane, who has tender recollections of the school, because he went to Sunday school there, is anxious to have the building, now tumbledown and shaky, put on his place and restored. Mr. Hand was superintendent of the Sunday-school when Mr. Brisbane received instruction there.

The school is in Fanwood. When the school was built the spot was the eastern outskirts of Westfield township. Title to it has been lost in the shifting of years, and it belongs to no one, so far as those interested in it can discover. The schoolhouse was closed about thirty years ago.

A student of local history has written the following sketch on the old school for The Daily Press:

Previous to the spring of 1847, Westfield township embraced all of Plainfield and present Fanwood. During that year Plainfield township was created and early in the summer a canvass was made of all children of school age. It was officially reported June 1, 1847, that there were 42 to 45 boys and girls between five and eighteen years living in the seventeen following named families included in what was then designated the "Jackson School District:" Samuel Connett, Benj. Connett, John Baldwin, Culter Dolbear, William Hand, Jr., Benj. Laing, Wm. H. Phillips, Cora Meeker, Ephraim Ryno, Clark Ryno, Jonathan Ryno, Winans Ryno, Simeon Ryno, Jonathan F. Randolph, Drake F. Randolph, Lewis Terry and widow Thomas Terry.

These parents, with others having no children of school age, lived in the vicinity of the road corner where Jackson school house was located. Not all the boys and girls scheduled as eligible to elementary education at "Jackson School" availed themselves of these privileges. But the limited number of scholars entitled the school trustees to receive $61 from the State school fund and otherwise. This was the modest beginning under the New Jersey State school law made possible by the new State Constitution of 1844.

Of course, in those early days the "scope" of instruction was very simple and limited. If the "Jackson" pupils mastered "Readin, Ritin and Rithmetic," with a fair degree of accuracy in spelling, they were thought to have a respectable foundation for future usefulness. As to the course of discipline it was generally irregular and in the judgment of some of the scholars considered defective. Every teacher had his own rule of treating various cases, and some of the children experienced the force of this rule quite often. Once in a while a lively boy would get "off the hooks" and for diversion would "play hookey." Then came the exercise of the rod, rattan or rule, the three "R's" in another form. But this discipline was regarded by some parents as healthy and necessary.

A poetical muse has come to one of the early graduates of primitive schools, like the "Jackson," in the following verses:

"It stood on a bleak country corner,
The houses were distant and few;
The meadows lay back in the distance,
And beyond rose the hills to our view.

"It stood on a bleak country corner,
But boyhood's young heart made it warm;
It glowed in the sunshine of summer,
'Twas cheerful in winter and storm.

"We sat on the old fashioned benches
Beguiled with our pencil and slate;
We thought of the opening future,
And dreamed of our manhood's estate.

"Oh still to the bleak country corner,
Turns my heart in weariness yet;
Where leading my gentle young sister
Other youthful companions I met.

"I cast a fond glance o'er the meadows,
The hills far behind it I see,
Away in the charm of the distance,
Old school-house, a blessing on thee."

Two Attachments Now.

Another attachment was levied on the goods of the Metal and Wire Goods Company yesterday at the freight house. The action was taken by the Public Service Corporation, which secured a writ from the District Court.

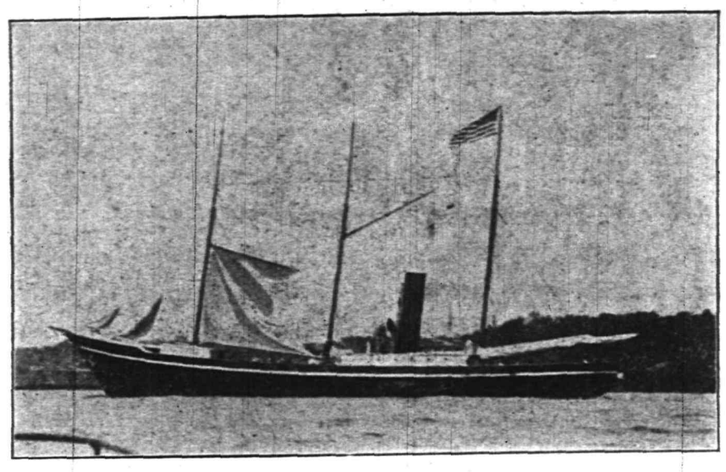
"THE ROOSEVELT" UNDERGOING REPAIRS.



Commuters crossing Newark Bay bridge have never seen a stranger craft in the dry docks on Shooter's Island than the big three masted schooner-rig steamer that lies there now, poking her saucy bow high in air. She is all black except for a broad white streak running completely around her gunwales. All the north shore of Staten Island knows here, and hundreds flock to see her, and if possible to catch sight of the tall man with the long dark moustache who comes over from Washington every few days to see how the repairs are getting on. The vessel is Peary's artic ship, Roosevelt, and the tall man is Commander Peary. The Roosevelt plowed through the ice of the Polar Sea to 84 degrees, 48 minutes North, farther than any vessel ever before reached under her own steam. Then the storms and the approach of the arctic night forced her to go into winter quarters at Cape Sheridan. It was there she got the ice-hug that whose damage is now being repaired in the ship-yard in Newark Bay. This is Commander Peary's own story of that thrilling experience:

"On the evening of September 16, 1905, with the turn of the flood-tide, a large floe pivoted around Cape Sheridan, crushing everything before it, until at last it held the ship mercilessly between its own blue side and the unyielding fact of the ice-foot. Its slow, resistless motion was frightful, yet fascinating; thousands of tons of smaller ice which the big floe drove before it the Roosevelt had easily and gracefully turned under her sloping bilges, but the edge of the big floe rose to the plank-sheer, and a few yards back from its edge was an old pressure ridge which rose higher than the bride-deck.

"For an instant, which seemed an age, the pressure was terrific; the Roosevelt's ribs and interior bracing cracked like the discharge of musketry. The main-deck amidships bulged up several inches, the main-rigging hung slack, and the masts and rigging shook as in a violent gale; then, with a mighty tremor and a sound which reminded me of an athlete taking his breath for a supreme effort, the ship jumped upward. The big floe snapped against the edge of the ice-foot forward and aft and under us, crumpling up its edge and driving it inshore some yards, then came to rest, and the commotion was transferred to the outer edge of the floe, which crumbled away with a dull roar as other floes smashed against it and tore off great pieces in their onward rush—leaving us stranded but safe. This incident, of course, put an end to all thoughts of farther advance, and to provide against the contingency of a still more serious pressure rendering the ship untenable, all supplies and equipment, together with a considerable quantity of coal, were landed, officers and crew and Eskimos, including the women and children, working almost without interruption for the next thirty-six hours."

Earthquake Horror Grows.

Kensington, Jamaica, Jan. 19.—The horror of the earthquake grows each day, the roll of the dead is steadily growing, and the earlier prediction of five hundred to one thousand dead will be borne out. There is no telling just how many persons have been buried under falling masonry, for the work of clearing away the debris is only done spasmodically, and the organized work can only be begun when men are landed from the naval relief ships. The fire is over. Troops are patrolling the street, and there is a cordon round the lower part of the city. The West Indian trops are doing splendid work on little food. The population is camping out on the race course and in gardens. The American war ships Missouri and Indiana have arrived from Guantanamo. Admiral Davis and Flag Lieutenant Bricker landed and saw Governor Sweetenham and offered to land five hundred men, provisions for a thousand persons, medical assistance and comforts.

OPPOSITION TO DRYDEN

Plainfield Equal Tax Leaguers Favor Pitney or Other Representative Man.

STRONG RESOLUTIONS

Declare That Dryden Is Not Choice of Majority of Republicans in Union County—Against Caucus.

The Plainfield branches of the Union County Republican League for Equal Taxation, through its executive committee, has placed itself on record as unalterably opposed to the re-election of United States Senator John F. Dryden, declaring that he is not the choice of the majority of the Republican voters in this county nor in the State at large. Moreover it has given an impetus to the boom of Justice Mahlon Pitney by suggesting to Senator Ackerman and Assemblymen Perkins, Tillman and Moxon that they give him their support. This, however, is only a suggestion for the League committee adds that any other candidate who will truly represent the people might be equally agreeable.

The resolutions as passed Saturday night and forwarded to the Union county legislators also commend Governor Stokes for his action in declining to become a candidate while holding the office of Governor and upholds the action of the legislators in not allowing themselves to be bound by a party caucus.

These are the resolutions as passed:

"Whereas, This organization believes that John F. Dryden is not now and never has been the choice of the people of this State for the office of United States Senator, that neither a majority of the people of this State, nor of the Republican voters of this State, desire his re-election to the Senate, and that his re-election to this high position would be detrimental to the interests of this State and would in particular be disastrous to the future of the Republican party in this State;

"Resolved, That we approve the position taken by the Senator and Assemblymen representing this county in their opposition to the re-election of John F. Dryden as United States Senator, that we believe that they will only represent the overwhelming sentiment of the people of Union county in making the most determined opposition to his re-election, and that we believe it to be their duty to refrain from binding themselves in any way to abide by the result of any caucus or meeting, the result of which would be to commit them to cast their votes for him. That we believe that the sentiment of the people of this county is so strongly opposed to the re-election of Mr. Dryden that the voters will not tolerate any action on the part of their representatives which assist in his re-election.

"Further Resolved, That we believe that the position taken by the Governor in declining to allow his name to be voted upon as a candidate for the United States Senate is unassailable and that we believe he is acting properly and in good faith in so declining.

"Further Resolved, That we approve of the candidacy of the Honorable Mahlon Pitney for this position, and that if the representatives of this county vote for his election to the Senate, their course in so doing will have our hearty approval. We do not wish to be understood as confining them to voting for Mr. Pitney, in case it appears advisable for them to vote for any other candidate who will truly represent the people of this State."

Will Meet to Perfect Organization.

The men who are interested in the scheme to purchase the Casino property and form a man's club there, in accordance with the constitution and by-laws presented last week, will meet on Saturday night, February 2, to definitely decide what is to be done. It is expected that nine trustees will be chosen and other details in connection with perfecting the organization of the Plainfield Club attended to.

TELL BRISBANE HE CAN TAKE THE SCHOOL

FORMER JACKSON PUPILS APPROVE PRESERVATION PLAN.

Former pupils of the Jackson school to the number of twenty-five or thirty met at David Hand's house Saturday night to take action on Arthur Brisbane's proposition to move the building from its present site in Fanwood to his place in Netherwood, and to restore it as a memorial of the old days. Title to the building has faded away with the years, and the former pupils are the only ones appear to have any say over the structure. The pupils voted that Mr. Brisbane could remove the building any time he desired, so far as they were concerned.

Captain William Hand was made chairman of the meeting. Permission to take over the building was embodied in a resolution presented by a committee composed of David Hand, Fire Chief F. O. Doane and John Johnson. Before action was taken Chairman Hand read a letter from Mr. Brisbane, in which he expressed regret over his inability to be present, and outlined his ideas for the preservation of the school. He suggested that a celebration be held in the school after its removal and restoration.

The suggestion was approved. Hand spoke in favor of fixing May 11 as the date for the celebration. On that day the veterans of the 30th Regiment, in which he and Chief Doane served in the Civil War, will come here for a re-union, and his idea is for a combination of the affairs. There is no apparent reason now for a delay in moving the old school house, and the plans attendant on it, and for a reunion celebration will be pushed energetically.

After the business was transacted, the meeting resolved itself into a reunion. Refreshments were served, and souvenirs in form of pictures of the school house were distributed. Mrs. Herbert Henry, a daughter of David Hand, read an original poem on the school, and reminiscent speeches were made by Chief Doane, Charles Ross and Mrs. Charlotte Jimerson. Mrs. Jimerson was the oldest of the former pupils present. She is seventy-one years old, and went to the school over sixty years ago. None of the former teachers were at the meeting.

Four of the former teachers live in this vicinity: William Hetfield, Edward Holmes, Mrs. Elizabeth Barrett and Mrs. William Hand. There are over 200 former pupils living, the oldest of whom is Meeker Hetfield, of Dunellen. It is purposed to form a permanent organization. Saturday's meeting adjourned subject to call by the chair.

Mr. Brisbane will bear all the expense of moving the building. In his letter Saturday night, he said he would not object to any other pupil contributing to the work but he preferred to bear the expense himself. He also pledged a substantial contribution to the celebration expenses.

Mr. Leader's "Horseless Carriage."

A. J. Leader, of Duer street, has purchased a Holsman (Chicago) "horseless carriage" for the purpose of skidding over the surrounding good roads. The c ontrivance is not listed as an auto, differing from the customary vehicle in many ways. It has high gheels, similar to those of a buggy, and is covered with a hood top. Mr. Leader's machine is a ten horse-power, two cylinder contrivance and is especially adapted to muddy or slushy conditions.

Miss Rowe's Funeral.

The funeral of Miss Jennie Rowe was held yesterday afternoon at the home of her sister, Mrs. William Mills, of Summit avenue. It was conducted by the Plymouth Brethren, several of whom made addrsees. Interment was made n the Methodist cemetery.

READY FOR CONFERENCE

After Pow-wow Today Balloting For Senator Will Begin Tomorrow.

NO DECISION LIKELY

Dryden Short of Necessary Number of Votes But Feels Sanguine of Result.

Probably no similar period during the legislative session of 1907 will be so productive of results as the present week. Voting for a United States Senator to succeed John F. Dryden will begin tomorrow and it is only possible that Mr. Dryden's successor will have been elected before the session is adjourned for the week. Before adjournment is taken, at least a definite line on the ultimate result can, in all probability, be guaged. But the legislators are not likely to decide upon a choice during the week, because of the opposition.

David Bair arrived in Trenton early with a big delegation from Camden county which is whooping it up for John F. Dryden. Other large delegations are there from Middlesex, Morris and other counties. Dryden buttons are being scattered broadcast. Senator Ackerman is here with his secretary, J. Edgar Shepard. He will not say anything for publication, but is firm against being tied down to any caucus agreement. Report has it that Mr. Ackerman will cast his first ballot for James O. Briggs although there is a rumor that he is quite favorable to Justice Mahlon Pitney.

Union county's group of legislators are the centre of attraction among the politicians for whatever they have to say at the conference of Republicans this afternoon will have great weight. They have each received a copy of the resolutions passed by the executive committee of the Plainfield branch of the Republican League for Equal Taxation. Both Dryden and Kuser held conferences with the leaders this morning and early this afternoon it was given out that the Senator entertains no idea of withdrawing from the race.

Interest will reach fever heat this afternoon when the Republican Senators and Assemblymen will meet in joint conference to discuss the situation. Tonight the Democratic members of both houses will meet jointly for the same purpose.

The Republican conference will be a sort of an "experience meeting," in which the members, both Dryden and anti-Dryden, will relieve themselves of their sentiments and views.

Before election and since that time the almost universal opinion of Mr. Dryden's successor would be the most important and significant duty that would devolve upon the legislators at the present session. The fact that there are only 44 Republicans in both houses, and that of this number more than a dozen have declared themselves as favoring the selection of some other than Mr. Dryden, practically precludes the possibility at that party arriving at and definite decision today.

(The constitution of the United States provides that the legislators must begin balloting for Senator on the second Tuesday after the opening of the session, and this means that the balloting and the real contest will begin tomorrow. The procedure will be the taking of a vote in both houses tomorrow morning. The house is Democratic, the Senate Republican, and, of course, both houses will not agree upon a single candidate. The balloting will cease for the day, and on Wednesday the result of a disagreement will be announced. Thereupon, both parties will be called together in joint session. Mr. Dryden will not have the solid support of his party. The contest will then develop into a free-for-all contest, and may continue in this way for several weeks, or maybe until the end of the session unless the warring factions can unite on a compromise candidate.

Certain it is that at Wednesday's session there will be several Republican candidates advanced for the honor.

Senator Ackerman and Assemblymen Perkins, Tillman and Mason, of Union, with Senator Hillery and Assemblymen Chaplin and Burton, of Morris; Senator Colby, of Essex, and Assemblyman Fake, of Bergen, will cast their original ballots for Supreme Court Justice Mahlon Pitney, who at present seems to be Mr. Dryden's most formidable opponent. Senator Avis will vote for Commissioner David O. Watkins, of the State department of banking and insurance, and Assemblyman Taylor, of Ocean, will vote for Governor Stokes.

Complimentary votes will be cast in profusion on the initial ballot.

Just how many legislators can be depended upon to carry out their

PHELPS STOKES TO SPEAK

Millioniare Settlement Man to Address Crescent Avenue Men's Club Tonignt.

OTHER CLUBS INVITED

Young Sociologist Has Experienced Change of View and Will Not Continue His East Side Labors.

James G. Phelps Stokes, the young millionaire who has been devoting his life to settlement work on the East Side in New York city, has been secured by the Men's Club of the Crescent Avenue church to speak at its first meeting of the winter to be held tonight. Mr. Stokes will give an address on "Social Responsibility" and the members of all the other men's clubs in the city have been invited to attend. The meeting is to be held in the lecture room and will commence at 8:15.

Mr. Stokes and his wife, who was Rose Pastor, a poor factory girl, have done a great deal to ameliorate the condition of the poor in the metropolis but recently the young millionaire announced his intention of suspending his settlement work, declaring that society, instead of caring for and trying to better the people, seems content to let them become worse and worse. In an interview given out by him Saturday, he said:

"Wealth seems to be arrayed against poverty. When we would have done something to better the conditions of the people in a certain section of the East Side, we were blocked by the Trinity Church Corporation. When we would have cleaned out a notorious block in the 'Red Light' District, the effort was frustrated by a representative of the wealthiest landed family in New York.

"These conditions are brought about and allowed to exist by millionaires for private gain. Dividends represent one-half of the total net wealth of the country, and the idle rich are paid more money than is paid to all the wage-earners together.

"It is useless to try to continue settlement work until the rich recognize the injustice of living idly," said Mr. Stokes. "I used to be a half-baked Socialist, and now I am a full-baked one. The greed of the millionaires brings about conditions that cannot be helped by hospitals, soup kitchens and settlement work. I am beginning to wish, and I may come to it, that all charity could be wiped out. It seems the only possible way to awaken the people."

FAMILY RELATIONSHIP CHANGED BY MARRIAGE

UNUSUAL RESULT CAUSED BY WEDDING OF WEST END COUPLE.

Edwin Howes, a well-known West End young man, and Miss Jessie Chamberlain, daughter of James Chamberlain, of West Third street, were quietly married Saturday afternoon. The ceremony was performed in the district court room by Justice Hezekiah Hand and was witnessed by Miss Lillie Duckworth, of West Third street, and George Staats, of Richmond street.

The groom is a member of Hope chapel and has been prominent in the Young Men's Association athletics. He has been making his home with Mr. Chamberlain since the latter's marriage to his sister several yeas ago, and the wedding of Saturday makes the young man Mr. Chamberlain's son-in-law as well as brother-in-law. Mr. Howes' sister also becomes his stepmother-in-law and his bride his step-niece.

Mr. Howes is an employee of the Potter Press Company and came to Plainfield from England about six years ago. His bride is also a member of Hope chapel and is a pianist of ability. They will make their home with Mr. Chamberlain.

Fair at T. A. B. Hall.

The Amawanda Club, an auxiliary of St. Mary's T. A. B. Association, will conduct its first fair on January 24-25-26. On Thursday evening, January 24, the opening night, the fair will continue until 2 a. m. Edward Walsh, of Worcester, Mass., will entertain and the music will be rendered by Prof. Heinemeyer's full orchestra.

WORK FOR THE S.P.C.A.

William H. King Suggests Branch Organizations Throughout Co.

MUCH TO BE DONE

All Citizens Are Requested to Lend Their Support to Present Movement.

William H. King, president of the Union County S. P. C. A., is making an appeal to all humane citizens in the various towns of Union county to organize branch societies similar to those in Plainfield and Elizabeth.

In an open letter, Mr. King says:

"It must be gratifying to all lovers of animals to note the extention of S. P. C. A. work in Union county. Since the foundation of the county society, with headquarters at Summit, there has been organized in Elizabeth a branch society including a large charter membership. Interest has taken possession of the humane of Plainfield and a branch society is about formed there, with an equally long list of subscribers, as charter members. What does this mean? Simply that man's conscience has awakeneed to the necessity of putting a stop to the fearful cruelties that has been going on. By invoking the law through regularly organized authority this end may be effected.

"Organization is wanted in other cities and towns of the county, and this letter is an invitation to all who would aid the helpless dumb brute, to apply for membership in any of the societies already formed, or to seek the privilege to organize a separate society in any place still open for such work.

"It is commendable indeed to lend a helping hand to suffering humanity, and I would not be understood to underestimate this philanthropy, but to my mind it is equally Christian to be the protector of one of God's creatures, who, by reason of its limitations will never be able even to express its appreciation, to say nothing of paying back by thanks or otherwise.

"Though out animal friends are not endowed with the power of speech, let us not forget that they appreciate kindness, and become more faithful servants in the degree that we humanely use and care for them.

"Communicate with the secretary of the Union County Society, Summit, and full particulars as to ways and means for organizing will be furnished.

"Those who are supporting the cause by acting as officers are as follows:

"Union County S. P. C. A., Summit; President, William H. King; vice presidents, William D. Porter, E. G. Hotchkiss; secretary, Mrs. H. N. Card; treasurer, Miss A. Mueller. Elizabeth Branch; President, Hon Foster M. Voorhees; vice presidents, Clarence de Gall, William T. Jones; secretary, R. A. Waterbury; treasurer, Mrs. Clarence de Gall; Plainfield Branch; President, L. V. F. Randolph.

"All citizens who witness cruelties are requested to call in the services of an officer of the law, and also to report the case to any officer of the society or branch having jurisdiction.

"As expressed in a former communication, I trust we shall soon "clean house" in such a manner that we may save citizens the pain of witnessing, in this county at least, repetitions of past cruelties."

Fined For Revolver Shooting.

While patrolling South avenue at 11:20 o'clock last night, Policeman George Dobson heard shots from the direction of Leland avenue. A minute later John Solts and Bernhard Wolf came down the street unsteadily. Dobson halted them and a search disclosed a revolver in the possession of each. Both weapons had been discharged. Investigation brought no damage to light, and they were arrested on a simple charge of discharging firearms. They were fined $5 apiece in the city court this morning.

Men to Cook Supper.

The men of Holy Cross church will cook and serve a dinner in the parish house on February 11. Rev. George Warner will be among the "chefs" and has promised to make some famous "fluffy" biscuits. An informal programme is being arranged to be given in connection with the supper.

Funeral of Mrs. Beal.

The funeral of Mrs. Albert J. Beal, who died at her home on South avenue, Friday, was held at St. Stephen's church, yesterday afternoon. It was conducted by Rev. A. S. Peck and was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends. Interment was made in Hillside cemetery.

GOVERNOR WILL SPEAK AT JUNIORS' BANQUET

HE AND FOUR OTHER ORATORS HAVE SENT ACCEPTANCES.

Acceptances from five of the seven speakers expected have been received by the committee in charge of the Junior O. U. A. M. banquet, to be held at the Casino, January 31. The announcement of their names and toasts was made after a meeting held at the law office of Harry C. Runyon, Saturday night.

Governor Stokes will be the chief orator. His toast is "Our State." Mayor Charles J. Fisk will speak on "Our City." William H. Miers, State Council secretary; Frank Sharp and Edward Mount, State Past Councillors, will speak, respectively, on "Our Order," "Our Future," and "Our Public Schools." Samuel St. John McCutchen will be toastmaster. Word from other expected speakers will be received in a day or two.

Indications point to a crowded banquet hall. Already 120 tickets have been sold, and it is almost a certainty that every one of the 250 seats available will be filled. The outside limit of attendance is 250; not one more dinner than that number could be accommodated. Those who have not yet secured tickets can get them of H. C. Runyon, of the First National Bank building, or T. E. Currin, in the bank. The committee is making arrangements for a musical programme of exceptional excellence.

In making the announcement after the meeting Saturday night, the committee emphasized the fact that the dinner would be informal.

JAIL FOR ODD CHARACTER.

Unidentified Man, Who Stirred Up Summit, Sent to Elizabeth.

New Providence, Jan. 21.—A man supposed to be insane, who caused considerable excitement by his peculiar actions, got a sentence of thirty days in the county jail from Justice of the Peace William Woodruff. He was taken to Elizabeth by Marshal Jacob Miller, Saturday. It was on Wednesday afternoon that the man was first seen by Mrs. Amos Potter, of Springfield avenue. She heard a noise on her back porch and an investigation revealed the most grotesque looking figure she had ever seen. It was that of an elderly man about five feet six inches in height, with sandy beard and mustache and hair of the same color, but streaked with gray. He had four felt hats on his head, one pulled down over the other. He wore several coats and several pairs of torusers, giving him the appearance of a stuffed scarecrow. About his neck were five brightly colored handkerchiefs. He had more colored handkerchiefs wrapped around his hands and wrists and his pockets bulged out with gloves. He mumbled something as Mrs. Potter came out, but turned and ran when she told him to leave the premises.

As Louis Roett was about to close his hardware store at Springfield avenue and South street Thursday, this man walked into the store and after mumbling picked up a hatchet from a counter, and edged his way toward Roett. The latter asked two little girls to go and get "Jake" Miller. The little girls ran to do this and Roett managed to pacify the insane man for a while. But when Mrs. Simon Mole came in she laughed at the man's appearance, at which he took offense and promptly picked up a coal shovel and was chasing her, screaming, around the store, when Marshal Miller arrived.

"One Man in Ten Million."

Last Saturday's New York Times Book Supplement contained a very readable review of Fiala's book on the unfortunate Ziegler Arctic expedition, which lost its ship and narrowly missed total disaster. Mr. Cyrus Adams, the reviewer, in excusing Fiala, pays this great compliment to Commander Peary: "The most alluring prizes which polar travelers seek are so difficult to grasp that, unless fortune's smile is unusually genial, they seldom fall to any but the one man in ten millions. The explorers who do the really great things are the men of iron endurance, of dauntless hope, of practical sense, and the tactical skill of the leader of armies. Peary himself is an arctic discovery. The genius in the man has been revealed on the ice cap and the sea floe, the field of his lifework."

Said To Have Stolen Junk.

Edward Cuff, colored, was arrested yesterday morning by Special Officer James Babbitt, colored, who says he saw him steal a bagful of lead pipe and other junk from A. M. Griffen's workshop, East Front street, Saturday night. Babbitt also charges Cuff with being the man who stole a watch from the office of L. M. French, Somerset street, several months ago. Cuff was remanded this morning until tomorrow, pending complaint by Mr. French.

FOR EXPERT APPRAISER

Manufacturers' Representatives Mayor Fisk to Confer Tonight.

CAN TAX BE LOWERED

Question As to the Right of the County Board To Reduce Shop Assessments at This Time.

Representatives of the big manufacturing companies of the city will meet with Mayor Fisk at his office tonight, to discuss the assessments levied on the plants. The manufacturers believe the last levies were too high. Only two of the concerns have appealed, but all of them are dissatisfied.

The Scott Press Works, Pond's, Potter's, the Safe Works, Quincey-Manchester-Sargent Company, and the Baird Instrument Company will be represented at the meeting. The Scott and Pond managements have filed formal appeal against the assessment with the County Taxation Board.

The manufacturers object to the way in which the County Board arbitrarily raised the assessment. The local assessors reported certain figures to the Board, and the latter ruled that they were not high enough. Specific instructions were given to raise them, and the local assessors complied.

The appeals against the assessment have not been decided. It is a question now whether the county board can lower the amounts without being liable for the financial entanglement resulting for the city. The municipality, proceeding on the basis of the assessments levied by the county board, has fixed its rate for the year, and a change in shop assessments would mix things badly.

Mayor Fisk and the shop managements have a plan for the appraisal of the plant equipments by an expert. The scheme will be considered tonight. Of the things to be decided in connection with it is whether the city or the shops will pay the expert.

PRINCIPAL ENTERTAINS.

Mr. Travell the Host of P. H. S. Pupils.

A concert and reception given by Principal I W. Travell to the students of the Plainfield High School was held Saturday evening in the High School auditorium. Music was furnished by a talking machine, through the courtesy of Messrs. E. M. Leonard and H. C. Brose, also by Miss Ethel Ferry and Samuel B. Howe, Jr., piano. Dancing was enjoyed.

Principal Travell spoke a few words of greeting, after which the birthday cake was cut and passed among the guests. It was the same cake that played a conspicuous part last Thursday at the celebration of Mr. Travell's birthday, when the students presented him with gifts in honor of the occasion. All departed with hearty testimonies of a delightful time.

Smoky Chimney Makes Trouble.

A still alarm was received at fire headquarters this morning for what appeared to be a fire in the house at 611 South Second street, owned by Abram Kunzman. When Chief Doane and apparatus responded they discovered smoke pouring out of a number of crevices and had to tear out some of the weather boards before ascertaining the origin. It was then discovered that it came from the chimney which was clogged up with bricks. The damage amounted to about $20.

Last Entertainment of Series.

The last entertainment of the series under the auspices of Grace M. E. church will be given by the Metropolitan Male Quartette, assisted by Miss Helen Miller, impersonator, tomorrow night. The quartette has been at the Union League Club, Brooklyn, three times, and Sousa, of band fame, says of them: "I take pleasure in recognizing the work of the Metropolitan Male Quartette; they are deserving of great success."

Coal Gas and Cider.

New York, Jan. 21.—Do cider and coal gas cure rheumatism? No one save Mrs. Jane Brady, of Sag Harbor, has ever been known to try the combination, but she says it is a success. Mrs. Brady is a widow. After spending nearly all she had for doctors she heard about cider and tried it. A few nights ago her stove gave out a large quantity of gas. She was awakened by her cat. She had barely strength to creep to the door, open it and put her head outside. This revived her, and she was able to return to her bed. When she got up in the morning, she says, she did not feel an ache. She found her finger joints straightened. Looking in the glass she saw that she was no longer bent, as she had been for years, but stood quite straight. She attributes the cure to the combination of coal gas and cider. She will continue the cider, but will not take any more coal gas.

Wings and Flies

By Tom Muir.

The New Plainfield will be "lighted" but three nights the present week; Wednesday for Lawrance D'Orsay in "The Embassy Ball;" Friday for "Deserted at the Altar" and Saturday, "The Girl Patsy." During the early part of February a large number of big productions will hold the boards.

Raymond Hitchcock will return to the musical field on February 5 in a comic opera entitled "A Yankee Tourist" and not "The Trouble Seeker," as hitherto announced. Richard Harding Davis is the author of the new piece, the story of which is founded upon "The Galloper." Wallace Irwin, well known as a writer of clever magazine and newspaper verse, will furnish the lyrics, while Alfred B. Robyn, who composed the score of Mr. Hitchcock's great success, "The Yankee Consul," will be responsible for the music. "The Galloper" had its first presentation in this city.

Oliver B. Collins, an old-time actor, who later became the proprietor of the Victoria Hotel at the Highlands of Navesink, died Friday night of the infirmities of old age at the hotel. He was seventy-eight years old, and leaves a widow. Mr. Collins was an actor in 1852, when he appeared at Barnum's Museum, Ann street and Broadway, New York. He played heavy parts and was in companies with Booth, Barret, Scott, Forrest and other famous actors. His last engagement was two years ago with Bob Fitzsimmons' company. At that time he was taken ill and his mind became almost a blank, compelling him to give up stage work. He recovered, but he was never himself afterward. He bought the Victoria Hotel about fifteen years ago.

"The Girl Patsy," which comes to the New Plainfield theatre on Saturday, is described as a comedy drama of fashionable country life. Its scenes are laid at a retreat not far from New York—Westchester county, one may believe, since the author, Mrs. Jane Mauldin Feigl, has a summer home near Mount Kisco Station. The venue of Mrs. Feigl's plays is an important matter since she chooses her characters from life, and not infrequently bases her story on fact. In "The Girl Patsy" this claim is made for certain types that will readily be recognized.

WEDDED THREE WOMEN; GETS EIGHTEEN MONTHS.

That's All the Punishment Bigamist Gets at Hands of Hudson County Judge.

Six months in the county penitentiary for each marriage, or eighteen months in all, was the penalty meted out by Judge John I. Blair in the Court of Quarter Sessions, of Hudson county, to Antonio Mascetelli, of North Bergen, who admitted having married three different women in less than five years, and was courting a fourth when the complaint of wife No. 3, on which he was arrested, cut short his wooing. Wife No. 1 was an Italian, who acted as a bridesmaid at her husband's wedding to No. 2, an Irish girl. Mascetelli concluded a separation from her was equivalent to a divorce and married a German girl. It is presumed that the bigamist's claim that his ignorance of the law of the land was the foundation of his trouble had much to do with the court's lenient sentence.

GOOD ROADS IN JERSEY.

State Commissioner Indorses Auto Law and Oil For Laying Dust.

State Road Commissioner E. C. Hutchinson has submitted to Gov. Stokes the annual report of the work of his department, the important features of which are statistics which show that during 1906, twenty counties of New Jersey spent $471,574.50 for roads and that 40.46 miles of roads were completed, 27.52 miles are approaching completion, 20.09 miles are under contract and 79.56 miles surveyed, making a total mileage for the year of 177.63.

Commissioner Hutchinson shows that under the Frelinghuysen automobile act the State has already derived $75,000 to be distributed among the counties as the State's portion toward road improvements. He observes that the law is a good one except that not enough inspectors are provided to properly police the roads which are most favored by automobilists.

The Commissioner has this to say of the use of oil or tar for the protection of roads: "There has been considerable inquiry in regard to protecting the surface of our roads in general by the use of tar or oil. From what I can learn, the application of an oil containing not less than 50 per cent. of asphaltum has proved a decided success. The great obstacle seems to be its cost. We are following the matter up and hope to be in a position next year to recommend some application to our roads that will prevent dust and preserve the surface intact."

—Daniel VanWinkle has secured the appointment of substitute letter-carrier at the local post office and is now learning the route in the business section of the city.

After the Sunday-school session at the Park Avenue Baptist church, yesterday afternoon, the boys held a meeting to form an athletic association for the purpose of joining the Sunday-school Athletic League, recently formed here.

WOMAN GETS $20,000 VERDICT.

Her Health and Strength Wrecked as the Result of a Trolley Accident.

A jury in the Hudson County Branch of the New Jersey Supreme Court awarded Friday to Miss Grace VanEmburg, of Arlington, a verdict for $20,000 damages against the North Jersey Street Railway Company. This sum was the full amount for which Miss VanEmburg sued the company for injuries sustained on a trolley car accident Sept. 20, 1904.

She was a healthy and robust young woman at the time of the accident. According to the evidence she is at present a complete physical wreck. The company will appeal the case.

RECORD SAYS NOT GUILTY.

He and Justice Higgins Plead to Indictments for Libel.

Corporation Counsel George L. Record and Police Justice Frank J. Higgins, of Jersey City, pleaded not guilty Friday when arraigned on indictments charging them with criminal libel against Col. Samuel D. Dickinson, Hudson county's Republican leader and Secretary of State.

The arraignment did not take place in open court, but in the office of County Clerk John Rotherham. Both were paroled on their own recognizances. Date for the trial was not settled.

The case grew out of utterances at a cart-tail meeting during the last primary campaign which reflected on Col. Dickinson's honesty.

REMARKABLE JANUARY SALE FEATURE.

Real Old-Time Kid Glove Sale.

OLD TIME? The sort possible years ago, when the kid glove business was not on such a firm basis—a sort of a sale made practically prohibitive by the remarkable advance in prices the past year, clinched by the prospects of a still further rise this year and next. Still, here are prices not matcht for lowness in years, that may never be met with again—gloves of high grade, that women KNOW to be best of their kinds. More profitable than placing the money in the bank to buy now and here the gloves you need for a year to come, and remember the Sale Lasts Two Days More Only—Tuesday and Wednesday.

Women's $1.75 Majestic Kid Gloves—Two clasp, glace kid, pique sewn, Paris point silk embroidered backs, made from choicest skins, clean, soft, pliable, black, white, tan, golden, brown, mode, gray and oxblood, no equal at $1.75, few as good at $2.00; while they last, at $1.45

Women's Best $1.25 Kid Gloves—Fine kid, two clasp, Paris point embroidered backs, made from prime selected skins, pique sewn, standard quality, pliable and serviceable, black, white, champagne, oxblood, navy, tan, golden brown, green and gray, our famous $1.25 glove, at $1.10

Newark's Store Beautiful

BROAD NEW & HALSEY STREETS

A Most Notable Exposition and Extraordinary Sale of Gorgeous Ostrich Plumes.

THE EXPOSITION.

One of the most remarkable exhibitions ever given in any store will be the show of Ostriches and Ostrich Feathers in all their varying stages which we will give in our Millinery Store beginning Monday, January 21, continuing thruout the week.

This exhibit comes direct from Milano, Italy, having been sent to Italy through the courtesy of the English and French Chambers of Commerce, and where it created a decided sensation. It will be shown here for the first time in this country and is certain to attract widespread attention, as not only the public but people in the trade will be greatly interested in it. It will be immensely instructive and educational also to old and young. It will be a show that all school children should see, and whether you receive a personal invitation to come or not, we want every reader of this announcement to consider themselves invited—every man, woman and child in and about Newark—to see and enjoy this remarkable exhibition.

SOMETHING ABOUT THE OSTRICH.

There are three hundred thousand birds in South Africa and the total production amounts to one million pounds sterling, or five million dollars, and the industry is employing more people for the amount of material used than any other industry of its size.

The ostrich is a very peculiar bird in its habits. It is somewhat different from other birds and assists in hatching the eggs and caring for the chicks. After being paired for some little time the hen lays eggs, one in every five days. When she has laid from ten to fifteen she begins the setting process, setting on the eggs by day, the male taking his turn at night; and the hours of setting seem to be regulated by the pair as if they had a clock before them, as it rarely, if ever, varies. It takes six weeks to hatch the chicks. As soon as born they are taken away from the old birds for taming, otherwise they would run wild. Should either male or female bird die they are never known to mate again, remaining loyal to their first love.

The first plucking is made eight months after the chick is hatched, and the second eight months from that time. It takes twenty-four months for a bird to develop to its full plumage, and they produce until they are twenty-two years of age. The sex of a bird is determined by the color. There is no telling how old the octrich will live to be. When it becomes old the feathers begin to fall off in quality and begin to be useless as the bird grows older.

SALE OF PLUMES.

In conjunction with this exhibition we are going to conduct what will positively be the greatest sale of Ostrich Feathers that has ever been held in the State of New Jersey. Doubtful if any sale of greater magnitude has been held in any city in this country. Certainly none have been conducted in which the finest of feathers have been sold so cheaply.

That this might be the biggest event of the kind on record we purchased enormous quantities of ostrich feathers and secured them at a price that will enable us to sell them at figures that are almost unbelieveable, less, in fact, than it would cost the average manufacturer to make them today.

These beautiful plumes are largely in black and white, but there are some in delicate colors and they are all beautiful, fluffy, bright and fresh.

Black Ostrich Plumes—Fine French stock, rich and glossy, full 10 inches long, actual regular value $1.50, to be sold at only ..... .98

Fine Ostrich Plumes—Brilliant stock, beautifully curled, fluffy heads, in black, white and colors, at these astonishing prices:

12-inch Plumes, always sold at $2.25, at $1.39

14-inch Plumes, always sold at $3.00, at $1.95

15-inch Plumes, always sold at $4.50, at $2.69

16-inch Plumes, always sold at $5.00, at $3.25

17-inch Plumes, always sold at $7.00, at $3.95

18-inch Plumes, always sold at $8.00, at $5.45

19-inch Plumes, always sold at $10.00, at $5.25

20-inch Plumes, always sold at $12.00, at $6.45

Colored Tips—3 in a bunch, worth $1.50, at 85c

In this connection we would say that late advices from Paris indicate that Ostrich will be largely used in hat trimmings this Spring, so that those who buy need not consider only the present or the next Fall season, but can count on using them throughout the year to splendid advantage.

Mr. and Mrs. George M. Rittenhouse, of Sandford avenue, sailed on Saturday for a two weeks stay in Florida.

Mrs. Fred Ivamy, of West Second street, who recently underwent an operation at the hospital, is improving rapidly.

Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Hegeman, of Myrtle avenue, have gone to New York, where they will remain for several weeks.

John Gaub, of Duer street, who has been detained at home several days by a severe attack of bronchitis, is much improved.

Mrs. Winfield Decker, of West End avenue, who recently fell down stairs and sprained her ankle, is slowly recovering. She has also had an attack of the grip.

Louis Olson Barton, formerly stenographer and typewriter with Corporation Counsel Marsh, entered upon the duties of his new position as court stenographer at Elizabeth today.

Mrs. Everett Colby, who was formerly Miss Edith Hyde, of this city, has greatly improved from a recent severe illness. She is at present recuperating at the Marlborough-Blenheim, Atlantic City, but hopes to return to her home at Llewellyn Park in a few days.

Fred Armstrong, of Duer street, who is employed by the Ingersoll-Rand Company at the shops in Easton, is quite ill at his home. He was taken first with a severe attack of grip, bordering on typhoid fever. During the past day or two there have been signs of improvement.

STOKES' ADDRESS TO STATE BOARD.

Spoke Friday of Progress of Agriculture Throughout the State in Past Year.

An address by Governor Stokes was the principal feature of the second day's session of the New Jersey State Board of Agriculture at the State House, Trenton, Friday.

The Governor spoke of the great progress agriculture had made in the State and of the plans made for the future advancement of the argicultural interests. He highly congratulated the farmers upon their work and said that their earnest efforts were responnsible for the great strides made in the agricultural line during the past few years. As a method of illustrating how the farmers of the State were not only making money, but saving it, he pointed out the prosperity of the banks, the number of new banks and uarticularly the large increase in the farmers' banks, which are supported almost solely by the men who follow the tiling of the soil.

The executive called attention to the short courses given at the State Agricultural college in New Brunswick, and showed how beneficial these were to farmers and their children. The State Board of Education, Governor Stokes said, is greatly interested in the State college and its system, with the idea of having a preliminary agricultural education taught in the public schools. The Governor said he was in sympathy with such movement.

He told of several experiences he had in farming while a boy and closed by wishing the farmers of New Jersey all the prosperity obtainable. The address brought forth a hearty cheer and applause.

HIS OWN LAWYER; WON.

Standing alone and arguing his own case in a suit he brought against the Pennsylvania Railroad Company for $19 due him as wages, Charles Multerer Friday won out.

He had been a dining car conductor and resigned Jan. 5. When he went to collect the wages due him he was offered a paper for his signature as a preliminary to the payment, setting forth that he had been discharged. He declined to sign the paper and was refused his money.

His suit was brought in the First District Court of Jersey City. Multerer had violated the rules of the company and his dismissal had been ordered, but anticipating the action of the company he resigned before the notice of dismissal had been served.

Judge Carrich's verdict was for the full amount, and he also made it obligatory on the company to pay the costs of the suit.

FOUND BOX OF GOLD COIN.

As a number of laborers were engaded in razing an old stone building at Millville, Friday, Dominick Lascolzo found a box which contained a large sum of money in gold. The building was erected in 1768 by the owners of an iron foundry, and for almost a century and quarter was used as the company's store. The laborer was using a crowbar and unearthed a heavy box.

Withdrawing it he saw several gold coins fall out and taking the box was last seen hurrying toward his home. The owners sent men in pursuit, but be succeeded in eluding them. His wife said he was not in, and standing in the door defied with a knife anyone to attempt to enter. Both disappeared later. The authorities believe that he is hiding in Little Italy and they will make a search.

LEE'S PLACE IN HISTORY.

That any correct estimate of a public man's real rank in life can only be obtained after a lapse of years from the time he passes into memory is exemplified in the case of Robert Edward Lee. So long as Northerners would wave "the bloody shirt," not even the true worth of this model Christian and soldier could be brought home to his countrymen. Happily sectional feeling has now passed away and the North vies with the South today in paying tribute to the few really great men that took up arms against the union of States. The greatest of these was unquestionably the commanding general of all the Confederate forces—the son of "Lighthorse" Harry Lee, of Revolutionary fame. The centenary celebration of this brilliant officer on Saturday was marked by the remarkable tributes paid him by a galaxy of the foremost historians and military men of the country in addition to those of President Roosevelt, and others whose opinions are really valuable.

The splendid eulogies of General Frederick D. Grant, the son of General U. S. Grant, and Charles Francis Adams, of Massachusetts, who styles himself a "Yankee of the Yankees," were particularly noteworthy. In paying homage to the Confederate chieftain, Adams, the historian, declared "as the result of much patient study and most mature reflection I confess that under similar conditions I would myself have done exactly as Lee did." He was referring, of course, to Lee's action in resigning from the Federal army to side with Virginia, holding that loyalty to his own State should be placed before duty to his country.

The homage paid by Mr. Roosevelt was none the less remarkable. In a letter to the Centenary Committee the President said to Lee:

"His campaigns put him in the foremost ranks of the great captains of all time. But his signal valor and address in war are no more remarkable than the spirit in which he turned to the work of peace once the war was over. The circumstances were such that most men, even of high character, felt bitter and vindictive or depressed and spiritless, but General Lee's heroic temper was not warped nor his great soul cast down. He stood that hardest of all strains, the strain of bearing himself well through the gray evening of failure; and therefore out of what seemed failure he helped to build the wonderful and mighty triumph of our national life, in which all his countrymen, North and South, share. Immediately after the close of hostilities he announced, with a clear-sightedness which at that time few indeed of any section possessed, that the interests of the Southern States were the same as those of the United States; that the prosperity of the South would rise or fall with the welfare of the whole country; and that the duty of the citizens appeared too plain to admit of doubt. He urged that all should unite in honest effort to obliterate the effects of war and restore the blessings of peace; that they should remain in the country, strive for harmony and good feeling and devote their abilities to the interests of their people and the healing of dissensions."

"ONE BEST BET."

If John E. Dryden's candidacy proves futile, the next United States Senator from New Jersey will be Frank O. Briggs—at least that's what they say "on the inside."

Died of Rare Disease.

New York, Jan. 21.—Acromegaly, or enlargement of the bones, which physicians say is one of the rarest diseases, caused the death of Ferdinand Schuckman, thirty-three years old, Saturday, at Bellevue Hospital. Leading surgeons of the city performed an autopsy and gave this decision.

PAY OF STATESMEN.

Denmark Is Stingiest of All with Her Legislators.

The Norwegian member of parliament gets only 13 shillings a day, and if the hard-working legislator takes a day off he loses his pay, says London Answers. The same is the case with members of the Swiss diet. They are rewarded with 16 shillings a day, on condition that they do not absent themselves from work.

To go fulther east, we find that Roumania thinks her lawmakers worth one pound sterling a day. Sixteen shillings a day is the salary of those who compose the Bulgarian sobranje, but members who live in the capital get 12 shillings daily.

Denmark is about the stingiest of all European countries, so far as remunerating her lawmakers is concerned. Danish members of parliament get but six shillings eight pence a day; but, on the other hand, they have the odd privilege of a free seat in the Royal theater at Copenhagen.

While the members of the German reichstag are not salaried, yet the lawmakers of the various German states do not work for nothing. Saxe-Coburg members of parliament are paid 13 shillings, of Bavaria ten, and of Hesse nine.

At first sight Hungary seems to do her lawmaking on the cheap plan, for her members get £200 a year in cash. But they are not so badly off, after all, for a liberal allowance is made into the bargain for house rent. Austria-Hungary's two legislative assemblies cost the country about £160,000 a year in all. Both the Austrian and Hungarian legislators can travel first-class with second-class tickets.

Besides the United Kingdom, Italy and Spain are the only countries which pay nothing to their members of parliament. Nevertheless, the cost of the Italian parliament is estimated at £85,000 a year.

In Portugal, also, the state does not remunerate legislators, but they receive free railway passes, and their constituencies are legally permitted to pay those who represent them a sum of about 15 shillings for each day of the session.

Peculiarity of Turks.

"Turks are extremely peculiar," writes a traveler, "in regard to the quality of water they drink, and are willing to be at much trouble and expense to obtain water of the kind they prefer. To be a perfect beverage, water must issue from a rock, fall from a height, be of medium temperature, flow rapidly and copiously, taste sweet, spring in high and lonely ground and run from south to north or east to west. The excellence of any water is accordingly determined by the number of these conditions it fulfills. It is remarkable how much pleasure Turks find in visiting a famous spring in the country, to spend the whole day beside it, under the shade of trees, doing little else but drink carafe after carafe of the water, as the elixir of life. Resorts of this description abound on the shores of the upper Bosporus under such names as the Water of Life, the Silver Water, the Water Under the Chestnut Tree, the Water Beside the Hazels. The spectacle of the great gatherings there on Fridays, arrayed in bridal colors, seated tier above tier on the terraced platforms built against the green slope of the hill, the women above, the men below, all in the deep shade of the branches meeting overhead, forms a picture beyond a painter's power to reproduce."

Queens Are Tallest.

There is hardly a king in Christendom to-day whose wife does not overtop him by a head. The czar is overtopped a full head by the czarina. Kaiser Wilhelm is of medium height, but the German empress is tall, and that is why the proud kaiser will never consent to be photographed beside his wife unless she sits while he stands. The king of Italy, short and squat, hardly comes up to the shoulders of the tall, athletic Queen Helena. The king of Portugal, though fatter, is less tall than his queen. Even the prince of Wales is a good four inches shorter than the princess. The young king of Spain is several inches shorter than Queen Victoria. The queen of Denmark towers above her royal spouse.

Cooperation in Germany.

There are in Germany 2,508 cooperative stores societies, having a membership of over 1,200,000. The value of goods sold by them increased from 147,000,000 marks (mark 23.8 cents) in 1903 to 230,000,000 in 1905. The profits realized (which accrue to the benefit of the members) were 12,000,000 and 18,000,000 marks respectively, for the years mentioned. Many of these various retail cooperative stores have their wholesale purchasing companies which supply them at original cost; they are thereby enabled to secure lowest wholesale prices.

Trading with Japan.

There is a probability of Argentina and Brazil supplanting Australia in the trade with Japan so far as the supply of foodstuffs is concerned. Not only has the Japanese government granted a subsidy to a Japanese-South American line, but the immigration of Japanese workers to South America is also to be encouraged, especially to Brazil, where a Japanese bank is to be established.

professed intention of opposing Mr. Dryden to the last, is exceedingly problematical.

Senators Colby and Ackerman and the four Union county Assemblymen, along with Assemblymen Taylor and Fake, are expected to persist in their refusal to abide by the dictators of the bosses that Dryden must be elected. If they do it will accomplish the defeat of the Newarker. In fact, if only four of the Republicans continue to vote against Dryden he cannot be elected, as it would leave him with only 40 votes, while it requires 41 to elect.

There is a strong belief prevalent that in the event of a deadlock that threatens to carry over the election of a Senator until the next session, the factions will unite upon Governor Stokes, with the understanding that he will not assume the office until his term as Governor shall have expired.

Some of the political wiseacres are predicting that former Governor Griggs or some South Jerseyman will enter the contest and secure enough support to defeat the Dryden forces.

Senator Dryden is apparently sanguine as to the result.

Powder Blows Uu Train.

Terre, Haute, Jan. 21.—Twenty-two charred, broken, mutilated bodies were taken from the ruins of an accommodation passenger train on the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis Railroad following its destruction Saturday night by the explosion of a carload of powder as it passed a freight train at Sandford, Ind., nine miles west of this city. Parts of other bodies recovered indicate at least twelve more deaths, while at least thirty-five persons were wounded, some of whom will die. The shock of the explosion was felt for thirty-miles, many believing it to be an earthquake. The three cars of the passenger train were filled. The entire train, including the locomtive, was blown from the track and the cars were demolished. The engine was hurled fifty feet, and the passengers were tiher blown to pieces, consumed by fire or rescued in an injured condition.

Joseph Harrigan, of East Fourth street, was out today for the first time in two weeks because of rheumatism.

Miss Roxana Love, daughter of Rev. Edward Love, of East Ninth street, has been chosen as accompanist of the orchestra of Mt. Holyoke College, where she is a student.

PREPARE SUBSTITUTE FOR THE BISHOPS' BILL

HUDSON ASSEMBLYMEN HEAR THE MEASURE READ AND GIVE APPROVAL.

The much talked of Excise bill that is to take the place of the Bishops' law will make its appearance at Trenton tonight. It has been prepared by former Senator Robert N. Hudspeth, acting for the German-American Alliance, and Assemblyman Charles Blohm, of Hudson county, will be its sponsor.

This was decided on at a conference of the Hudson Assemblymen held Saturday night at the clubhouse of the Robert Davis Association in Jersey City. Former Mayor Adolph Lankering, of Hoboken, who is the President of the Alliance, and Mr. Hudspeth were present at the conference.

Mayor Lankering told of the widespread opposition to the Bishops' law and said that German-Americans were practically a unit against it. He said he believed in personal liberty and that if a man felt like having a glass of beer Sunday he should not be denied that privilege. That there were some good features in the Bishops' law he admitted, but he thought that on the whole it was a blow at personal liberty, and for that reason it ought to be taken from the statute books or modified so as not to abridge the rights of the public.

The bill as prepared by former Senator Hudspeth was read section by section and unanimously endorsed by the Hudson delegation. It contains many of the provisions of the Bishops' law. Back rooms are prohibited and minors are safeguarded. Under the present law a saloon-keeper who violates any of its provisions is charged with keeping a disorderly house. This is changed, making it a misdemeanor, thus removing what the saloon-keepers regarded as an unjust reflection on them.

Another important change is that owners of premises on which saloons are conducted will not share responsibility with the keepers of the saloons. Under the present law if a license is declared forfeited the owner of the building thus affected is prohibited from leasing the premises for saloon purposes for a period of one year.

The main feature of the bill, and the one in which the German-American Alliance is particularly interested, is a clause which allows saloons to be open after 1 p. m., Sundays. This is in the shape of local option, as it must first be ratified by a vote of the electors. In the event of favorable action being taken it is not intended that the saloon shall be wide open as on other days of the week. The doors will be closed and curtains drawn and business will be conducted as quietly as possible.

Another bill indorsed by the Hudson delegation and which will be introduced by Assemblyman Daab, amends the Vice and Immortality act, so as to permit the playing of Sunday baseball, golf, tennis, croquet and similar pastimes.

NO CHURCH UNION IN SOUTH ORANGE.

Members of Trinity Said To Be Opposed to First Presbyterian Plan.

South Orange, Jan. 21.—Although no public announcement has been made by the joint committee of members of the First and Trinity Presbyterian churches, of South Orange, to consider the advisability of uniting the two congregations, it is said that the plan has been practically dropped, because the sentiment of the Trinity church members is against the union, being contended to retain their present status.

The merging plan was broached by members of the First church congregation, who, after discussing the subject, appointed a committee and then extended an invitation to Trinity to appoint another and hold a conference. It is understood now, that though they appointed members to the joint committee the congregation of Trinity church did not look with favor upon the proposition.

Dr. J. H. Cooley, of the borough, has returned from a visit with friends in New York.

PLEASURES OF CAMPING OUT.

Have you ever under a tent—
Spent
A few days of unalloyed bliss?
This
Is what you'll find it out to be!
We
Tried it this year just for a spell.
Well,
Rain fell in torrents every day.
Say,
Noah never had such a flood.
Mud
Up to our ankles; we were doused,
Soused!
And then the insects, brutes with wings,
Things
You've read about, but never seen,
Green,
Red, yellow, black, of every hue.
Phew!
We thought our Nemisis had come!
Hum
Like fury all the day and night.
Bite,
Sting, get into your drink and food!
Good
Heav'ns! not to speak of emmets' nests,
Pests
That crawl down your neck, and a score
More
Of beastly insects—not for me!
He,
Who says this sort of thing's all right,
Might
Be reasonably on the spot Shot!
—N. Y. Sun.

The Ideal

"Pop."

"Yes, my son."

"When a fellow goes to a circus and gets red lemonade and peanuts, doesn't he have to give money for 'em?"

"Certainly he does, my boy."

"Well, this paper says here that money won't buy happiness."—Yonkers Statesman.

A Species.

"Mrs. Kwivvery is one of those anticipatory people, and I simply can't carry on a conversation with her without getting so nervous I feel as though I should fly to pieces," says the lady with the jade brooch.

"Anticipatory?" says the lady without any long gloves. "How is that?"

"She listens faster than you talk to her."—Life.

Angels

"What is your idea of heaven?" asked the man who asks blunt questions.

"Heaven," answered Mr. Stormington Barnes, absent mindedly, "is a place where angels are so plentiful that there should be no difficulty in finding one to back a production."—Washington Star.

Couldn't Risk It

Clara—I don't think Jack is very sincere.

Bess—Why?

Clara—Just before we left the summer resort he wanted me to give him back all the snap shots that had been taken of us in silly positions.—Detroit Free Press.

Before and After.

A man said to a friend one day:

"Do you think two can live as cheaply as one?"

"Before my marriage I thought they could," the friend replied.

"And afterward?"

"Afterward I found they had to."—Cassell's Journal.

Something to Heal.

"What'll you have on your face, sir?" asked the polite barber.

"Little arnica and court plaster, if you don't mind," replied the victim.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

HIS FUTURE ASSURED.

"If you learn nothing, baron, you will remain stupid and never amount to anything in the world!"

"O, I shall be a heriditary imperial councilor all the same!"—Jugend.

Electric.

"Oh, what will bring that matchless light
To your dear eyes?" said I.
"A matchless light? Why, sparking, sir!"
The maiden made reply.
—Judge.

Aboard Ship.

First Passenger—Did you eat any of that combination salad at dinner?

Second Pasesnger—No. I was afraid the weather'd grow rough, and I'd lose the combination. — Detroit Tribune.

Distinction of Riches.

"I do wish we were rich, father."

"How rich would you like to be, Arabella?"

"Oh, awfully rich. So rich that people would ask what set we were in."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Getting Wise.

"How is it you are going to the moonlight excursion this week and last week I couldn't get you to go?"

"There was too much moonlight last week."—Houston Post.

The Difference.

She—Is there any difference between a fort and a fortress?

Her Husband—Well, I should think that a fortress would be harder to silence.

KISSING BEE IN COURT.

Mother's Effort to Separate Bride from Husband Fails.

A bridegroom of a week, William Lyet, twenty-five years old, of No. 518 Avenue C, Bayonne, was arraigned Saturday before Recorder Lazarus chanrged by his mother-in-law, Mrs. Rebecca Cranmer, with having abducted her daughter Gussie. Mrs. Cranmer declared the bride will not be sixteen until next Monday.

The couple married on the sly, and the ceremany was performed by Justice James Rafferty, Mrs. Lyet tearfully told the Court she was happy and contented with married life and did not want to be parted from her husband.

The case was dismissed, and Mrs. Cranmer declared she will try to have the Court of Chancery annul the marriage. The young couple had a kissing bee in court and then went home.

Snowball May Cost Eye.

New York, Jan. 21.—While remonstrating with a crowd of schoolboys who were making life miserable for residents and pedestrians in East Ninety-eighth street by pelting them with snowballs, Dr. Julius Jaricho, a physician well known in Harlem, was struck in the face by one of the missiles, and as a result is confined to his home, No. 19 West 115th street, seriously injured. Dr. S. N. Meuer, of No. 186 Seventh avenue, who is attending him, says Dr. Jarcho is in grave danger of losing the sight of one eye.

THIS TOWN'S LIGHTING PLANT IS NOW FOR SALE.

Park Ridge Authorities Purpose to Fight to Keep It From Auction.

The municipal ownership electric light plant at Park Ridge was advertised Friday to be sold at public auction at the court house, in Hackensack, on the afternoon of Feb. 19. The plaintiffs against the Park Ridge Borough Council are C. E. Hewitt & Co., who built the plant. United States Marshal Alcott levied on the plant to satisfy a judgment of $6,000 secured in the United States District Court, at Trenton, before Judge Lanning.

Lawyer C. J. Roe, of Jersey City, counsel for the borough, will endeavor to secure an injunction to stop the sale of the plant, pending an appeal.

The contract price for the plant was $16,500. When it was said to be finished the borough had paid the contractors $12,500, but still owed $8,000 for alleged extra work, in addition to a balance of $4,000. The contractors sued to recover the $12,000, but Judge Lanning, after visiting the plant, cut this amount down to $6,000. Expert engineers testified at the trial that the plant was defective in many particulars.

Mayor Robert A. Sibbald told yesterday a reporter that the borough had spent $5,000 to reconstruct the plant before it could be put in operation.

"These contractors did not treat us right in this matter, and before we are through with them we will probably show that they owe us money. The borough will sue them for damage done to its land and individual property-owners will institute separate suits."

This municipal lighting plant is a success. The results for December showed the receipts from commercial lights to be three times the amount of cost, and this with 270 free street lights. Nearly a dozen new private ordwers were received the present month.

WIFE BEATER'S SON AVENGES HIS MOTHER.

Throws Father to the Floor and Administers a Sound Thrashing.

Joseph D. McGrath, of No. 25 Norfolk street, Newark, who has been drinking the past three weeks, during which time he frequently has beaten his wife, arrived home drunk early Friday morning and dragged Mrs. McGrath by the hair from bed.

McGrath's two daughters, hearing their mother's screams, awakened their brother Frank, sixteen years old, who ran to the room where his father was beating his mother. He threw McGrath to the floor and gave him a pummelling that he will not forget. While this was going on Mrs. McGrath escaped to the apartments of a neighbor, where she spent the rest of the night.

After her children had gone to work and McGrath had gone out Mrs. McGrath returned to her rooms. Soon her husband returned and rushed at her to beat her again. Before he reached her she dashed a pan of ashes in his face, temporarily blinding him. She then ran to the Second Precinct Police Station and while she was there word came over the 'phone that murder was being done at the Norfolk street house.

The reserves were sent there and found McGrath, who said he had sent the call in for fear his wife would return and kill him. He wanted them to know who it was in case his fear proved true.

McGrath was taken to the station where, after promising to quit drinking and abusing his wife, he was placed in the care of the probation officer for one year.

HILLERY SEES PITNEY ON THE SENATORSHIP

Conference in Paterson Friday Interests the Politicians About the State.

Politicians are deeply interested in a conference yesterday between Senator Hillery and Justice Pitney. The justice is conducting the trial of Harry Leddy, indicted for the murder of Mamie Ricker, his former sweetheart. Senator Hillery arrived at the courthouse while the trial was in progress yesterday morning, and after the noon recess he and Justice Pitney held a half hour's conference in the Justice's private chambers.

Politicians who have been following the United States Senatorship controversy were convinced that the conference had to do with this question, but Senator Hillery left Paterson without giving any information, and Justice Pitney declined to discuss the subject. The Morris Senator believes that Pustice Pitney would be the most acceptable candidate for Dryden's toga.

None of the Republican leaders in Paterson could throw any light on the conference.

Stole, Got Salary Raised.

York, Pa., Jan. 21.—Warren L. Lock, a clerk in the employ of John E. Detwiler, a box manufacturer of Red Lion, confessed Friday before Alderman Walter F. Owen, of this city, of having robbed his employer of $600. Instead of being prosecuted for the offence Lock was retained in his old position and given an increase in salary of $10 per month. "He was too good a man to lose," said Mr. Detwiler, "and I will not prosecute him."

No Decision in Appeal Case.

New Brunswick, Jan. 21.—The Chancery suit brought by Perth Amboy property owners to prevent the purchase of land in Madison Township by the Water Board, from Asbury Fountain and others, at $500 an acre, a price alleged to be excessive, was recalled Thursday in the proceedings instituted by Perth Amboy to secure a reduction of the assessment placed upon its water plant in Madison Township. The land and plant have been valued for taxation at the rate of $38 an acre, for 717 acres. It is claimed that the city owns only 478 acres, and the acre valuation should be only $7 or $8 per acre. The board reserved decision.

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

BY HARRY LEON WILSON AUTHOR OF THE SPENDERS

COPYRIGHT 1903 BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

In due time came Brigham, strolling between Elder Wardle and Bishop Wright, bland, affable, and benignant. On the platform about him sat his Counsellors, the more distinguished of his suite, and the local dignitaries of the Church.

Among these came the little bent man with an unwonted color in his face, coming in absorbed in thought, shaking hands even with Brigham with something of abstraction in his manner. Prudence and Follett came late, finding seats at the back next to a generous row of the Mrs. Seth Wright.

When they had settled into their seats, the Wild Ram of the Mountains arose and invoked a blessing on those present and upon those who had gone behind the veil; adding a petition that Brigham be increased in his basket and in his store, in wives, flocks, and herds, and in the gifts of the Holy Spirit.

They sang another hymn, and when that was done, the little bent man arose and came hesitatingly forward to the baize-covered table that served as a pulpit. As President of the Stake it was his office to welcome the visitors, and this he did.

There were whisperings in the audience when his appearance was noted. It was the first time he had been seen by many of them in weeks. They whispered that he was failing.

The words of official welcome spoken, he began his discourse; but in a timid, shuffling manner so unlike his old self that still others whispered of his evident illness. Inside he burned with his purpose, but, with all his resolves, the presence of Brigham left him unnerved. He began by referring to their many adversities since the day when they had first knelt to entreat the mercy of God upon the land. Then he spoke of revelations.

"You must all have had revelations, because they have come even to me. Perhaps you were deaf to the voice, as I have been. Perhaps you have trusted too readily in some revelation that came years ago, supposedly from God—in truth, from the Devil. Perhaps you have been deaf to later revelations meant to warn you of the other's falseness."

He was still uneasy, hesitating, fearful; but he saw interest here and there in the faces before him. Even Brigham, though unseen by the speaker, was looking mildly curious.

"You remember the revelation that came to Joseph in an early day when there was trouble in raising money to print the Book of Mormon,—'Some revelations are from God, some from man, and some from the Devil.' Recalling the many chastenings God has put upon us, may we not have failed to test all our other revelations by this one?"

Deep within he was angry at himself, for he was not speaking with words of fire as he had meant to; he was feeling a shameful cowardice in the presence of the Prophet. He had seen himself once more the Lute of the Holy Ghost, strong and moving; but now he was a poor, low-spoken, hesitating rambler. Nervously he went on, skirting about the edge of his truth as long as he dared, but feeling at last that he must plunge into its icy depths.

"In short, brethren, the Book of Mormon denounces and forbids our plural marriages."

Even this astounding declaration he made without warmth, in tones so low that many did not hear him. Those on the platform heard, however, and now began to view his obvious physical weakness in a new light. Yet he continued, gaining a little in force.

"The declarations on the subject in the Book of Mormon are so worded that we cannot fail to read them as denouncing and forbidding the practice of the Old Testament patriarchs in this matter of the family life."

In rapid succession he cited the passages to which he referred, those concerning David and Solomon and Noah and Ripkalish, who "did not do that which was right in the sight of the Lord, for he did have many wives."

lings among the people now, and on his right he heard Brigham stirring eminously in his chair; but he nerved himself to keep on his feet, feeling he had that to say which should make them hail him as a new prophet when they understood.

"But besides these warnings aginst the sin there are many early revelations to Joseph himself condemning it."

He cited several of these, feeling the amazement and the alarm grow about him.

"And now against these plain words, given at many times in many places, written on the golden plates in letters that cannot lie, or brought to Joseph by the angel of the Lord, we have only the one revelation on celestial marriage. Read it now in the light of these other revelations and see if it does not too plainly convict itself of having been counterfeited to Joseph by an evil spirit. Such, brethren, has been the revelation that the Lord has given to me again and again until it burns within me, and I must cry it out to you. Try to receive it from me."

There was commotion among the people in front, chairs were moved at his side, and a low voice called to him to sit down. He heard this voice through the ringing that had been in his ears for many days, like the beating of a sea against him, and he felt the strength go suddenly from his knees.

He stumbled weakly back to his chair and sank into it with head bowed, feeling, rather than seeing, the figure of Brigham rise from its seat and step forward with deliberate, unruffled majesty.

As the Prophet faced his people they became quite silent, so that the robins could be heard in the Pettigrew peach trees across the street. He poured a glass of water from the pitcher on the table, and drank it slowly. Then, leaning a little forward, resting both his big cushiony hands on the green of the table, the Lion of the Lord began to roar—very softly at first. Slowly the words came, in tones scarce audible, marked indeed almost by the hesitation of the first speaker. But then a difference showed; gradually the tone increased in volume, the words came faster, fluency succeeding hesitation, and now his voice was high and searching, while his easy, masterful gestures laid their old spell upon the people.

"It does not occupy my feelings to curse any individual," he had begun, awkwardly; "in fact, I feel to render all thanks and praise for the discourse to which we have just listened, but I couldn't help saying to myself, 'Oh, dear, Granny! what a long tale our puss has got!'"

An uneasy titter came from the packed square of faces in front of him. He went on with rising power:

"But it is foretold in the Book of Mormon that the Lord will remove the bitter branches, and it's a good thing to find out where the bitter branches are. We can remove them ourselves. We can't expect the Lord to do all our dirty work. Now hear it once more, you that need to hear it—and damn all such poor pussyism as sniffles and whines and rejects it! We don't want that scrubby breed here!—Listen, I say. The celestial order of marriage is necessary for our exaltation to the fulness of the Lord's glory in the world eternal! Where much is given much is required. Understand me,—those that reject polygamy will be damned. Hear it now once for all. I will give you to know that God, our Father, has many wives, and so has Jesus Christ, our Elder Brother. Our God and Father in heaven is a being of tabernacle, or, in other words, He has a body of parts the same as you and I have. And that God and Father of ours was Adam."

Again there was a stirring below as if a wind swept the people, and the little man in his chair cowered for shame of himself. He had meant to do a great thing; he had thrilled so strongly with it; it had promised to master others as it had mastered him; and now he was shamed by the one true Lion of the Lord.

"Hear it now," continued Brigham. "When God, our Father Adam, came into the garden of Eden, he came into it with a celestial body, and brought one of his wives with him,—Eve. He made and organized this world. He is Michael, the Archangel, the Ancient of Days, about whom holy men have written and spoken. He is our Father and our God, and the only God with whom we have to do. I could tell you much more about this; but were I to tell you the whole truth, blasphemy would be nothing to it, in the estimation of the superstitious and overrighteous of mankind. But I will tell you this, that Jesus, our Elder Brother, was begotten in the flesh by the same character that was in the garden of Eden, and who is our Father in Heaven."

He turned and went to his seat with a last threatening gesture, amid many little sounds of people relaxing from strained positions.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

At the New Plainfield theatre Wednesday night local theatregoers will be served a treat in the appearance of that exceedingly droll and whimsical English comedian, Lawrance D'Orsay, in "The Embassy Ball," a three act play, the latest from the pen of Augustus Thomas. With his delightful aid of good breeding, stiff dignity and unruffled temper, along with his monocle, drooping mustache and inimitable drollery, Mr. D'Orsay is declared to be the natural successor of the elder Sothern in Lord Dundreary. This will be Mr. D'Orsay's first appearance in this city. It is said that in many respects the Captain Hawarden-Kellie, military attache of the British Embassy in Washington, is even a more happily defined type of the good natured, slow thinking Englishman than Mr. D'Orsay's "Earl of Pawtucket," although both characters are from the same pattern.

Pierce Kingsley's great American play, "Deserted at the Altar," will hold the boards at the New Plainfield theatre Friday night. No elaborate resume of the play is required; its best recommendation lies in the fact that this is its fourth season, and it will be many more seasons before its popularity wanes. It is a pure, clean American play by an American author, who knows how to feel the pulse of the people, and a past-master in stagecraft. In many respects this is stronger than any other pastoral play ever written.

The freshness, delicate humor, and unconventionality of "The Girl Patsy," J. Mauldin Feigl's new comedy, which will appear at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night, will appeal to all lovers of pure romance. The scenes are laid near New York, and the story revolves around the life of a stolen child of wealthy parents whose place is usurped by the illegitimate child of a household servant. The continuity of the story is refreshing, and the climaxes are sufficiently thrilling. The stellar role, that of Patsy, is unusually seductive and attractive. In many respects "The Girl Patsy" will prove as great a popular success on the road as it did at the fashionable Savoy theatre in New York. J. Mauldin Feigl, the author, is also the author of "Texas" and "A Paris Model" and has stepped to the front rank of writers of plays dealing with our national life.

Day Defends Corporations.

New York, Jan. 21.—In a ringing speech, delivered Friday night at the Hotel Astor, Chancellor James A. Day, of Syracuse University, made a stinging reply to J. G. Phelps Stokes and Mrs. Rose Pastor Stokes, who had preceded him with addresses on socialism and who sat within arm's length of him. In his boldest terms Dr. Day made a daring defence of men of capital and corporations, denounced labor unions as the greatest despotism since the beginning of the world, and said that instead of being underpaid and oppressed workingmen were in many instances overpaid and invariably seeking to do as little as possible and to get as much as possible for it. These remarks caused a sensation among the listeners, all members of the New York alumni of Syracuse University.

Senate May Have to Explain.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 21.—Although for six weeks President Rosevelt has been in the attitude of explaining to the Senate his action in dismissing negro soldiers who "shot up" Brownsville, Texas, there is now at least an even chance that the Senate will be put in the attitude of explaining to him that its inquiry about the affray will not presume to question the legality of his action. This situation has been brought about through the proposal of Senator Blackburn, of Kentucky, Democratic leader, that the resolution directing an inquiry should be passed "without more questioning or denying the legal right of the President to discharge without honor enlisted men from the army of the United States."

Gorman's Son Ambitious.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 21.—Arthur P. Gorman, son of former Democratic leader of the nation and State, will in all likelihood be a candidate for the seat made vacant by his father's death. Young Gorman's candidacy is designed in a measure to defeat Governor Edwin Warfield, who is said to have intentions to succeed William Pinkney Whyte in the Senate and will also be in the nature of fulfillment of a death bed promise to avenge the alleged wrong that Governor Warfield did to his father. Money will be no object in the campaign inspired by the widow of Senator Gorman. She inherited wealth, supposed to be millions, left by the dead statesman.

Blow at Lighting Trust.

New York, Jan. 21.—In granting permission to the Long Acre Electric Lighting and Uower Company to use conduits now used exclusively by the Lighting Trust, the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court Friday gave a body blow to the trust and paved the way for competition in electric lighting. The Trust will go to the Court of Appeals and much time will be consumed in disposing of the case, but the lawyers who represented the independent company expressed confidence last night that the decision would be sustained.

WEST END FANS ANGRY

Inter-City Baseball League's Refusal to Take In the Suburban A. C. Nine.

FROZE OUT, SAYS PENNY

New Team Has Good Players and Strong Backing—May Play On Crescent Oval.

The refusal of the Intercity Baseball League to admit into its ranks the Suburban A. C., of the West End, has created no end of dissatisfaction among the fans of that section. It is the general feeling that the new organization is making a big mistake in refusing to include the Suburbans in its circuit.

It has been proven in past years that the major portion of support to baseball in Plainfield comes from the West End. While it is true that that section of the town will be represented by the Clinton Avenue team, it must be considered that the Clintons, while they are good league players and have a good record, they lack one important asset which a ball team must have, and that is a following.

The Suburban team, which has selected James Penny as its manager, will be composed of players from the shops, all of whom have thei coterie of friends. Their supporters number some of the best and most substantial fans in that part of the city. And yet, despite all these favorable accompaniments, the Suburban team is barred from the new league, although the organizers of the team were among the first to make applications when steps were taken to formulate the organization.

Manager Penny claims that the league did not treat his club fairly from the start, and in a conversation with a Daily Press reporter Saturday, declared it was simply a case of freeze-out. He said he had put his claims before Secretary Listman, of the league, but that official has repeatedly turned him down and given him the cold shoulder.

In the meantime Mr. Penny is going ahead and getting things in shape for next season. He has in view a location for the grounds, and it would not be a surprise if the Suburbans played their games on Crescent Oval. Mr. Penny has received several offers to play out of town games with well known clubs.

NEW ATHLETIC CLUB FORMED IN DUNELLEN.

Rooms in Apgar's Hall Open Nightly; Big Smoker to Be Held.

Young men of Dunellen have formed a club, for the purpose of advancing social and athletic interests in the borough. They have rented Apgar's hall and it is open nightly as a club room.

Part of the hall is fixed up as a gymnasium in which is installed athletic apparatus, including basketball court, quoits, push ball and exercisers. They also have euipped a reading room with the latest magazines and good literature. A large number of the young men of the town are already interested and the hall is filled nightly with enthusiasts who are rapidly becoming proficient in the various athletic sports. They expect to form a basketball team and already have many coming players as candidates. Later in the season the club expects to take up all outdoor sports and no doubt will be among the leaders of amateur sports in this vicinity.

The officers are: L. T. Churchill, president; Frank Rhinehart, vice-president; Stephen Kennedy, treasurer; A. S. Coriell, secretary. Any one desiring to join may see one of the officers.

The club expects to hold a rousing smoker on January 28, at which they will have amateur sparring matches, basketball game, songs and comic recitations by artists, a sleight of hand performer, ending with a goodly supply of refreshments.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Addison Moe.

Mrs. Experience Moe, wife of Addison Moe, died at her home on West Fifth street, yesterday, following a short illness. She was taken ill Saturday noon with a rheumatic affection of the heart. She was seventy-six years old and had resided in the house where she passed away for a great many years. The funeral will be held from the residence Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Thomas F. Casey.

Thomas F. Casey, a cousin of Patrick Casey, of West Third street, died at his home on Grand street, New York, Friday night. He had lived in that section of the city for thirty-eight years and was well known in Plainfield, having visited here at frequent intervals. His funeral was held this morning and was attended by Mr. Casey and local friends.

Stephen D. Mangam.

Stephen D. Mangam, aged seventy-two years, died this morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Samuel G. Taynor, of Lincoln place. He had been ill about a week. The funeral will be held at Mrs. Taynor's residence Wednesday afternoon, at 4:30 and interment will be in Evergreen cemetery, Brooklyn.

Henry J. Walden.

Henry J. Walden, a well known resident of the West End, died Saturday afternoon at his home on West Third St. He had been ill for a long time with a complication of troubles. Mr. Walden was in his fifty-fourth year and was a painted by trade. He was an expert scene painter and the last stage sets made for Music Hall were his work. At that time he was employed by Woolston & Buckle, having been with the firm for many years. He leaves a widow, four sons and two daughters. The sons are Clarence, Richard and John, and the daughters the Misses Josie and Annie Walden.

The funeral will be held at St. Mary's church tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock and interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

CATHOLIC SOCIETIES HAVE BIG MEETINGS.

Plans Made by Holy Name Society of Cathedral at Last Night's Meeting.

A mammoth meeting in the interest of the American Federation of Catholic societies will probably take place in Taylor Opera House, Trenton, within the next few weeks for the purpose of having local societies join the federation. The initial move was made last night at the meeting of the Holy Name Society, of St. Mary's cathedral, when a committee was appointed to intrest the other Catholic societies of Trenton, and have them appoint committees who will arrange all details of the proposed meeting.

It is the plan to have many noted speakers to make addresses. Among them will be Bishop McFaul. The presiding officer and other details will be arranged by the various committees of the different organizations under whose auspices the demonstration will take place.

The American Federation of Catholic societies has been founded and fostered by Bishop McFaul. Although it has only been in existence for the past few years it has already increased to a great extent, and now includes man prominent Catholic organizations throughout the country with a membership of thousands.

For its aim it has the closer union of Catholics, and the solidifying of the ties of faith. Pope Pius X. recently conferred the papal blessing on the federation, when he received Bishop McFaul during the latter's recent tour of Europe.

President to Force Fight.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 21.—President Roosevelt, realizing that a contest between himself and the Senate is inevitable, has decided to force the fighting immediately and has selected the battleground. The fight will be over the Blackburn amendment to the Foraker resolution providing for an investigation of the Brownsville episode. The matter is of so much more importance than the mere discharge of the negro troops and the significance so much wider that the final vote will be of great national importance. If the President can have his way, he and the anti-administration Senators will have their fight out now. If he wins, he will stand before the county with prestige unimpaired. If he losses he will be in the attitude of a repudiated leader, tossed aside on the eve of a presidential campaign.

BEATEN TO DEATH WITH FENCE PAILING.

Body Found in Village Street and Man Arrested on Suspicion.

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 21.—With his head frightfully mutilated the body of Manning Reilly, thirty-five years old, of Parker, was found Saturday evening on the pavement of Califon's principal street. Lying near by was a fence pailing which was the weapon used in battering out the man's brains. It had been wrenched from a fence. Early this morning Deputy Sheriff Jacob Dilts and Prosecutor George H. Large hastened to Califon. The body is said to have been discovered by John Schuyler, of Califon.

Schuyler is thought to have been implicated in the murder, and early this morning he was taken into custody at his home by Constable John Reed, of White House, and C. Tomson, of Lebanon. Schuyler was in bed when the detectives arrived. He made no resistence and claimed to have no knowledge as to who committed the murder.

Schuyler was held at Califon during the day while Prosecutor Large and Deputy Sheriff Dilts were working on the case, and last night he was brought to Flemington and committed to the county jail.

Recently, it is asserted, Schuyler and the murdered man became involved in a quarrel and Reilly came out best man in a fistic encounter that is reported to have followed.

PAINTING FOR SECOND REG'T.

Portrait of Colonel Collins To Be Gift of Citizens.

A life-size painting of Colonel Dennis F. Collins is to be presented to the Second Regiment by several Elizabeth citizens in the near future. An artist for whom President Roosevelt sat for a portrait has been at work on the Collins picture for some time, and it is now nearly completed. It is probable that the picture will be presented to the regiment on the night of the review by Governor Stokes, the date for which has not been definitely set, but which will be on or about January 30.

The presentation of the picture is mainly in recognition on the fact that the Second Regiment has come to Elizabeth so often to take part in celebrations. The regiment was at Elizabeth on Battle Day, in June, 1905, and also on the occasion of the unveiling of the Soldiers and Sailors' Monument. Colonel Collins was the means of bringing the soldiers to Elizabeth for these events.

When the officers of the Second Regiment were told that it was the intention to give them a picture to hang in their armory they immediately suggested a portrait of the colonel.

P. H. S. GIRLS WON.

Defeated Englewood School Lasses Easily Saturday In Basketball.

The girls' basketball team of the Plainfield High School defeated the girls' team of the High School at Englewood, Saturday, in the Plainfield High School gymnasium, by a score of 29 to 1. Last year this team defeated the Plainfield High School girls 34 to 9. The tables were turned completely, it being easy work for P. H. S. from start to finish. Miss Minnie Line deserves especial credit for her work.

Suicide Mania in Grip.

New York, Jan. 21.—Eight cases reported to the Coroner's office yesterday included five attempts at suicide, two of which up to last night had resulted in death. This bore out the statement of Coroner's Physician Hartung that there is a grip epidemic in Brooklyn and that sufferers from the disease are being affected at an alarming rate with a suicide mania. In the five cases reported to the police which are recorded as suicides or attempts at suicide the victims had been suffering from that illness and were mentally unbalanced when they tried to end their lives. Investigation of three other sudden deaths showed that two of the victims had been in fair health until the recent depressing weather began.

The annual dinner of the Seventh-Day Baptist church Men's Club occurs this year on February 12.

$1,600 YEGGMEN'S HAUL IN ELIZABETH.

Safe-Crackers Move Strong Box to Back of Store.

A safe in the department store of M. Levy & Company, 201 Second street, Elizabeth, was cut open by yeggmen sometime between 2 and 4 o'clock yesterday morning, and about $1,600 in bills were stolen. The safe-breakers got away with the goods without leaving a clue behind for the police.

The first intimation the firm had of a robbery was when Emmanuel Levy went to the store between 9 and 10 o'clock yesterday morning and found that the safe, which usually stood near the front of the main store, had been moved back to the rear.

MEN'S CLUB ACTIVE.

More Members Added to Seventh-Day Baptist Society

The regular monthly meeting of the Men's Club of the Seventh-Day Baptist church was held in the church parlors last night. Dr. A. H. Lewis, H. B. Greene, C. H. Greene, Arthur Titsworth, W. C. Hubbard and William Stillman were elected members.

William Stillman entertained the club with selections on his talking machine, the greater number of which were from Grand Opera. After the club adjourned refreshments were served.

PASTOR PREACHED, SITTING.

Injured in Accident, Minister Conducted Service in Chair.

For the first time during his twenty years' pastorate of the Second Reformed church of Somerville, the Rev. Dr. E. G. Read preached a sermon sitting down. The Rev. Dr. Read was thrown from his carriage several weeks ago by a runaway horse and his ankle broken.

He has since been confined to his house, but he ventured out yesterday on crutches and he will continue to preach to his congregation seated at his putpit until he can bear his weight on his broken ankle.

MOOSE FOR NEW ZEALAND.

Canada Will Send a Herd to the Antipodes.

An interesting attempt is to be made to accclimatize the moose in New Zealand, and steps are being taken in the dominion to collect a herd of both sexes for shipment to the antipodes.

The moose is a magnificent animal, but, like all beasts of its size, certain to become extinguished at the hands of man in any country where it s not protected.

To say that the bull moose has the heart of a lion would be but to compliment the lion. If the lion had the heart of a bull moose he would be a terrible thing indeed.

But often the courage of the moose assists in his destruction, and his strength is of no use to him against modern rifles. Both in Canada and in the American states, where the noble animal is still to be found, measures more or less adequate have been taken for its preservation; but if its range can be extended, the danger of extinction will be by so much reduced. Science, as well as New Zealand, will be interested in the experiment.—Country Life.

Questions Worth Answering.

Col. Sanger's bloodhounds, when they found three-year-old Raymond Dowd in Nine-mile swamp, near Sangerfield, Otsego county, gathered around the boy and licked his face. The child wandered away last Friday when his father was picking hops. An all-night search by 300 men was fruitless. Lanterns were carried and fires built to attract the lad's attention, but he gave no sign. Saturday morning the four bloodhounds arrived. After smelling of a jacket belonging to the lost boy they began searching for his tracks and soon found them. Following a circuitous course, estimated to be ten miles long, they came upon the child lying at the foot of a tree, exhausted from hunger and exposure. There was a tremendous demonstration when one of the horsemen took the boy home perched on the pommel of a saddle, and the dogs came in for their share of the ovation.

Famous St. Bernard Dogs.

Motor cars have been adopted by the monks of St. Bernard, which innovation has caused some people to wonder if the dogs of that famous hospice will be replaced in the life-saving business by automobiles. St. Bernard dogs, whose ancestors are believed to be a Danish bulldog and the shepherd's dog of the Alps, were threatened with extinction in 1812, when, contrary to the rules, the mother dogs were sent out to the dreaded pass. None returned from the terrors of the winter storm and the monks had to seek a new race, which, although not of the ancient strain, was found to be no less intelligent than its blue-blooded cousins. The new dog with its Newfoundland blood very soon became extremely popular.

Flattering the Judge.

Uncle Solon Chase, of Chase's Mills, Me., famous throughout the country as the expounder of the "them steers" doctrines, is as famous locally for his rough-and-ready appearance. He is what some would call plain. On one occasion his friend, Judge Foster, of Portland, who never loses a chance to banter Uncle Solon, met him at the local grange, and said: "Uncle they tell me that you and I look almost exactly alike when we are before the public." Uncle Solon touched the judge in a friendly way and said: "Don't you believe them, judge; don't you believe them. They are only trying to flatter you."

City Gudgeons Are Easy.

There are certain confidence games so grossly crude that all the victim may expect is a laugh. There is no sympathy for him and he deserves what he gets, which is a lesson in experience. But the representative from the back counties who buys a gold brick, who bets that he can open a lock, who wagers his money upon the location of a nimble pea under a shell compared with the city bred gudgeon, who reads the personal of a "widow" and is moved thereby to "loosen up" is a monument of wisdom, dignity and astuteness.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Only Too Well Satisfied.

The husband who is always growling over everything from his meals to his laundry looked up from his paper and remarked sulkily:

"Madam, I see where a Chicago man went from home, remained 30 years and then returned and gave his wife $5,000. If you don't do better you may find me doing the same trick some day."

The patient little wife looked up from her sewing and replied sweetly:

"All right, James, but if you will only remain away the 30 years you needn't trouble yourself about the $5,000." And after that he stopped growling.

Thankful for Doughnuts.

A Sunday school teacher in Dover, Mass., was teaching a Thanksgiving lesson. She requested her class to tell her what they were thankful for, and said she would write each answer on the blackboard. All were ready to respond, and curious were the answers.

The board was nearly filled, when one little fellow suddenly raised his hand and, upon being asked for what he thanked God, replied: "Oh, I thank God for doughnuts!"

GUN BURST, BOY DIED

Elven-Year-Old DeWitt Giles Instantly Killed By Fragment.

STRUCK TO HIS HEART

Tragic Ending To Hunt After Sparrows With a Civil War Musket —Man Held Fatal Gun.

Struck by a section of the barrel of a bursting gun, DeWitt Giles, eleven years old, son of John Giles, of South Plainfield, was killed almost instantly, yesterday afternoon, in the front yard of his home. A jagged chunk of metal three inches in diameter pierced his side to the heart.

The gun was in the hands of Thomas Johnson, 27 years old, a neighbor of the Giles family. Johnson and James Giles, fourteen years old, brother of the dead boy, were shooting at sparrows together when the accident occurred. Neither was hurt by the flying fragments.

DeWitt and James had gone into their yard, with a double-barrelled gun, to pepper the sparrows flying about, shortly after noontime. A few minutes after the shooting began the boys saw Johnson on his way from his house to the barn. They called to him to join them, and he did so. He armed himself with an ancient muzle-loader, that had been used by his uncle in the Civil War.

James had the double-barrelled gun when Johnson joined the boys. Twice the old muzzle-loader was fired safely, DeWitt Giles standing at Johnson's left, watching the old gun go off with boyish interest.

The third time Johnson pulled the trigger the musket roared with a new note, and the barrel burst. DeWitt Giles screamed. He ran two steps and dropped. When the frightened man and his boy companion bent over him, DeWitt was dead; death must have followed his scream instantly.

Coroner Harry Bishop, of Perth Amboy, was notified of the death, and came to South Plainfield at 3 o'clock. After investigation he decided that neither inquest nor arrests were necessary. He gave a burial permit to Undertaker Cole, of this city.

Only the one fatal piece of metal struck the dead boy. It pierced two coats, a sweater and two shirts, and drove on until one sharp corner touched the heart.

Johnson is the son of Samuel Johnson, a former resident of Park avenue, beyond the city line, who is known to many Plainfielders. No blame for the fatality attaches to him. The fact that a piece of the barrel, and not part of the charge, struck the boy, removes even the possibility of technical suspicion.

The Giles family lived in this city, on Lake street, until recently.

The boy's funeral will be held at the home of his parents on the Thomas VanNest farm, near the Lehigh Valley's coal storage plant, Thursday morning at 11 o'clock. Interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

SOCIETY ARRANGES BACHELORS' DANCE

AFFAIR TO BE HELD AT THE CASINO ON FEB. 11.

Plans are about complete for a bachelors' dance to be given at the Casino, Monday night, February 11, by several young men prominent in the society circles of the city. It will be the first event of the kind given in Plainfield in several years and promises to be a success. The bachelors who are arranging the affair have issued invitations asking their friends to subscribe to the dance and thereby assist in making it one of the events of the season.

The committee in charge consists of J. Whitney Baker, Robert H. Cox, Morris J. Dumont, Harvey Fisk, J. Hartley Mellick and Willard Wadsworth, and these young men have secured the following well known society women to act as patronesses:

Mrs. J. Edgar Corlies, Mrs. Charles J. Fisk, Mrs. Benjamin A. Hegeman, Mrs. Chapman Fisk, Mrs. David H. Rowland and Mrs. William B. Wadsworth.

It is planned to decorate the assembly hall in a novel fashion and there will be a number of features combining to make the affair one of great pleasure to all who attend. All replies to invitations should be sent to J. Hartley Mellick, 218 East Seventh street, on or before February 2.

DR. B. VAN D. HEDGES ON TUBERCULOSIS

HEALTH BOARD PRESIDENT TELLS OF TREATMENT OF "WHITE PLAGUE."

Dr. B. VanD. Hedges, president of the Plainfield Board of Health, was one of the principal speakers at a meeting in the Y. M. C. A. Hall, Elizabeth, last night, which marked the opening there of the campaign against tuberculosis. The meeting was similar to the one held here a year ago and was very largely attended.

Dr. Hedges spoke on "The Cause and Prevention of Tuberculosis." Among other things he said that the sole danger and cause of contagion in tuberculosis lies in the sputum of a person suffering from the disease, and that the spread of the disease can be prevented by the proper care being exercised in the expectoration. He suggested that persons so afflicted should be educated and taught to expectorate in vessels provided for that purpose and that great care should be taken to see that the sputum is disposed of under sanitary conditions. He dwelt at some length on the practice of people suffering from tuberculosis in spitting in public places and urged that every effort be made to put a stop to such practice, for in this way the germs are quickly spread.

Rev. Dr. Henry Elliott Mott, of Elizabeth, presided at the meeting, and among the other speakers, all physicians of Elizabeth, were Dr. Thomas N. McLean, Dr. Arthur Stern, Dr. Frederick R. Bailey, Dr. Stephen Quinn and Dr. Norton L. Wilson.

PHELPS STOKES' VIEWS

Millionaire Socialist Talks on Society's Responsibility for Individual Poverty.

THE PRESENT DAY ILLS

Tenements and Unclean Workshops and Their Consequences Pointed Out By Rich East Side Settlement Worker.

Society's responsibility for the hinderances under which individuals suffer was the subject of the talk delivered by James G. Phelps Stokes, millionaire and socialist, before the Men's Club of the Crescent Avenue church last night. He interested a good-sized audience. The attendance was swelled by members of other church clubs, which had been invited to be present.

Things like disease, tenements and unclean workshops, Mr. Stokes pointed out, could not be corrected by the individual, and could only be corrected or removed by collective effort. It followed, therefore, that if society failed to remove or correct them society was to blame for the conditions and for the evils that grew from them.

Disease, it had been proved, could be controlled. Smallpox, for instance, and typhus, had been wiped out in civilized communities. Remained, then, tuberculosis and the other unconquered diseases, and intelligent, co-operative measures by society were necessary to eradicate them. Disease could be controlled, and it was obviously society's duty to control it.

In introducing the tenement subject, Mr. Stokes touched on poverty in general terms. Poverty was thought by some to be permanent, he said, but the only thing to support that was a misquotation of Jesus' words, "The poor ye have always with you." The Lord had spoken in the present tense and not, as He is generally quoted, in the future. Jesus, Mr. Stokes pointed out with emphasis did not say "The poor ye shall have always with you."

Tenements, the speaker said, were unsanitary, encouraged immorality through the conditions enforced by them, and checked the individual in self-advancement to a terrible degree. The old story of objection to the improvement of tenement property by law from rich families controlling the properties, and the Trinity church, New York, Corporation was told to indicate the difficulties under which the reformers work. The same objection of the dollar-worshippers arouse whenever improvements of the deadly conditions in some industries were attacked. It was only after year of suffering on the part of operatives that New York had passed a law compelling cloth mills and other industries leading to dusty workrooms to install blowers to clear the air.

Conditions threatening health and morality all over the country, all over the world, are allowed to continue because men preferred to go on making much money to saving lives or souls. That sort of thing prevailed, Mr. Stokes said in closing, to a degree that was appalling.

Mr. Stokes remained a half-hour after the meeting, and met the members informally at a social in the parlors. Refreshments were served.

NO CHOICE FOR SENATOR

On the first ballot cast for United States Senator in the joint session of the Legislature this afternoon, John F. Dryden, Republican, received thirty-six votes.

Next to him was E. L. Stevens, Democrat, with sixteen votes and Woodrow Wilson, Democrat, with eleven.

James E. Martine, Democrat, of Plainfield, received nine votes.

The vote as cast by the Senate follows: Dryden, Republican, 12; Stevens, Democrat, 3; Briggs, Republican, 2; Wilson, Democrat, 2; Pitney, Republican, 1; Martine, Democrat, 1.

In the House this was the vote: Dryden, Republican, 24; Griggs, Republican, 3; Briggs, Republican, 2; Stevens, Democrat, 13; Wilson, Democrat, 9; Martine, Democrat, 8.

On the last ballot, before adjournment at 2:30 this afternoon, Dryden still had only thirty-six votes.

The vote of the Senate follows: Dryden, 12; Griggs, 2; Pitney 1 (cast by Ackerman); Martine, 1; Wilson, 2; Stevens, 3.

In the House: Dryden, 24; Griggs, 3; Briggs, 2; Stevens, 13; Martine, 8; Wilson, 9.

There being no majority the Speaker of the House declared there was no election. The same announcement was made in the Senate.

FAVORS CONSOLIDATION

Former Mayor Saunders on Invitation of Commission Addresses That Body.

AN ABLE PRESENTATION

For Two Hours the Father of the Merger Proposition Discusses the Subject Before Investigating Body.

For more than two hours yesterday afternoon former Mayor William L. Saunders, father of the movement, discussed the proposed scheme to consolidate Plainfield and North Plainfield at a meeting of the bi-municipal commission in the city Mayor's office. After reviewing the inception and history of the plan, which dates back ten years, Mr. Saunders explained his reasons for believing that it is eminently desirable for the welfare of the two municipalities to bring about the union as speedily as possible.

It was the first time since the commission organized that anyone having thorough knowledge of the subject had appeared before it to press the claim for a merger, Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh having only dwelt on the legal aspects of the idea. It is said that Mr. Saunders quoted from a mass of data that he has collected in a decade and volunteered to be of any assistance he could be in the future. He preferred, it is said, to remain in the background, having been the active leader of the movement for so long a period that it was time others led in advocating the plan.

Respectful attention was given Mr. Saunders and he was frequently interrupted by members of the commission to explain points that were not quite clear to them. The arguments he used, it is said, were practically the same as set forth in his pamphlet "Thirty Reasons for Annexation and Consolidation," issued at the time the annexation campaign was on five years ago. He also dwelt on the arguments used in the past by those who disagreed with him, explaining that he gave them full credit for being sincere in their views and having the best interests of the borough at heart.

It was just ten years ago this Thursday night that former Mayor Saunders launched the consolidation idea at a meeting held at the home of President of the Board of Trade Lemuel B. Woolston in North Plainfield. On that occasion he made an elaborate address giving ten cardinal reasons why the community should have but one municipal government. Then, as yesterday, his argument was based on a purely business view of the subject, although he incidently dwelt on the sentimental side of the question.

At the first meeting, a decade ago, Mr. Saunders said during the course of an able presentation of the subject:

"If it is a good thing to consolidate two shops which manufacture the same product; if it is a good thing to join under one head two department stores which sells the same goods and to the same people, then it should be a good thing to consolidate two cities which are joined together by nature and in which are people whose interests are identical. Home rule is not an argument against, but a reason for the union of Plainfield and North Plainfield. We are the same

KREBS LAUDS JACKSON

Educator Declares That Lee's "Right Arm" Was a Master of Strategy.

ON HIS ANNIVERSARY

Vivid Picture of Famous Confederate General Painted in Words By North Plainfield's School Principal.

An interesting and exhaustive sketch of General Stonewall Jackson and his campaigns during the Mexican and Civil Wars was given last night by Prof. H. C. Krebs, principal of the North Plainfield Public Schools, before the Men's Club of the First Baptist church. It was the eighty-third birthday anniversary of the sterling Christian warrior.

Prof. Krebs referred to Gen. Jackson as Gen. R. E. Lee's chief lieutenant and his strong right arm. He said that a rather peculiar co-incidence was that four men of prominence in the Civil War—Jefferson Davis, Abraham Lincoln, U. S. Grant and Gen. Jackson were all born in the Blue Ridge range of mountains, within a short distance of each other. Jackson was born in the backwoods and although he lived a pioneer life, he never lost gentleness and kindness, which was largely due to his mother's influence. He had great ambition, he declared, and his desire was to become a noble man. His uncle was a man of means and young Jackson lived most of the time with him. He was noted for his courage. He was considered the most skillful rider of horses in the vicinity in which he lived. At the age of seventeen years he held his first office, that of a country constable, and at the end of two years he learned through a friend of a vacancy in his district at West Point.

He immediately sought the appointment to the Military Academy, going first to the congressman in his district and to the secretary of war. Finally the later said to Jackson, "Go to West Point and if any man insults you knock him down and charge it to my account."

Jackson was placed in the lowest division of the lowest class and it was said of him that no one could use more crayon at the blackboard than he. He worked hard, however, always keeping in mind his motto, "I can do whatever I will do." At the end of the first, second and third years he stood low in his class, but at the end of the fourth year he was graduated seventeenth in a class of seventy.

Prof. Krebs then traced young Jackson's career in detail, and telling of his excellent work as an instructor for nine years in a southern military institute. He was interested in religious work, started a Sunday-school for colored children and was for years a deacon in a church. He was a quicker thinker and had little patience with those who were not.

When the Civil War broke out he declared that he would stand by his country, meaning by that the State of Virginia. He was perfectly sincere in his opinions regarding the south, as against the northern invasion. He always carried three books with him, the Bible, Webster's dictionary and Napoleon's Maxims of War.

Prof. Krebs said that Gen. Jackson was always calm in battle and a master of strategy. As a soldier Jackson was stern, but withal kind-hearted. He was devoted and affectionate in his home and always had confidence in God. In conclusion Prof. Krebs described the last days of Jackson and his death as the result of being shot at the Battle of Chancellorsville.

Study of Pre-Historic Age.

The study of "Primitive Man in America" has been selected for the latter part of the year by the Monday Afternoon Club, and the first paper of the series was given by Mrs. Albert E. Barclay at its meeting at the Casino yesterday afternoon. Her subject was "Prehistoric Age" with the subdivisions "Antiquity of Man and Fossil Beds." The theme proved full of interest and elicited earnest discussion. The paper was preceded by the business of the day.

Birthday Surprise.

Miss Mary Baldwin, stenographer in Frank J. Blatz's law office, was tendered a surpise party in honor of her birthday last night, at her home in Dunellen. Games, music and refreshments were enjoyed. Miss Baldwin received a number of gifts. Among those present were Harry Rush, Fred Miller, Edward Miller, Wade Lapham, Fred Wilcox, Miss Annie Ace, Miss Edna Coriell, Miss Bertha Peck, Miss Ida Humpston, Thomas R. Beck.

A HEALTH FORECAST FOR FEB. 12—INDIGESTION

PHYSICIANS PLEASE NOTE DINNER COOKED BY RECTOR AND VESTRY.

Storm signals, presaging heavy weather and steady work, have been sent to all the local doctors, for February 12. That is the day after the night on which the men of Holy Cross church will cook and serve a supper all by themselves.

The supper will be served in the parish house, after a purely male preparation in the new kitchen. Prominent boroughites have been signed for the culinary staff and the serving force. Charles L. Nichols, Edwin S. Hooley and Samuel Townsend are among the cooks—the heavy cooks. Rev. George A. Warner, the rector, will do the light and artistic with bread and cake. That is, he hopes for lightness. Only those who bite his bread and pastry will know how successful a light cookist he is.

W. L. Saunders is head waiter. He has proved, in a small matter of consolidation, that nobody knows how to wait better than he does. The waiters will take all the tips handed to them.

Some of his fellow-workers say that they will not expect Mr. Nichols to act as a waiter on that account inasmuch, as they explain it, the Standard Oil doesn't believe in graft.

For the benefit of Plainfielders who will make the trip to "Canada" to partake of this cuisine, may it be said that the Plainfield "Dels" on that night will be located in Mercer avenue just off Washington avenue.

KING'S DAUGHTERS PLAN AFFAIR FOR DAY NURSERY.

Will Be Held the Third Week in April to Raise Funds For Charity.

The presidents and secretaries of the various King's Daughters' Circles in the city and borough, to the number of twenty met this morning at the home of Mrs. S. St. John McMutchen, on Myrtle avenue, to plan ways and means for raising funds with which to support the Day Nursery, one branch of the King's Daughters' work. The members organized by electing Mrs. Frederick W. Butler chairman, and Miss Bertha Whitney secretary.

As a result of this conference no definite ideas were decided upon, except that some form of entertainment will be given the third week in April after Easter. After hearing of the plans discussed this morning it was the expressed desire of the different officers to take them up with their circles and get their opinions as to the best form of entertainment. This will be done and reports will be presented at a meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. Butler on East Ninth street, Thursday morning, January 31. In the meantime Mrs. Butler will make her own selection of committees and get matters in shape for future work.

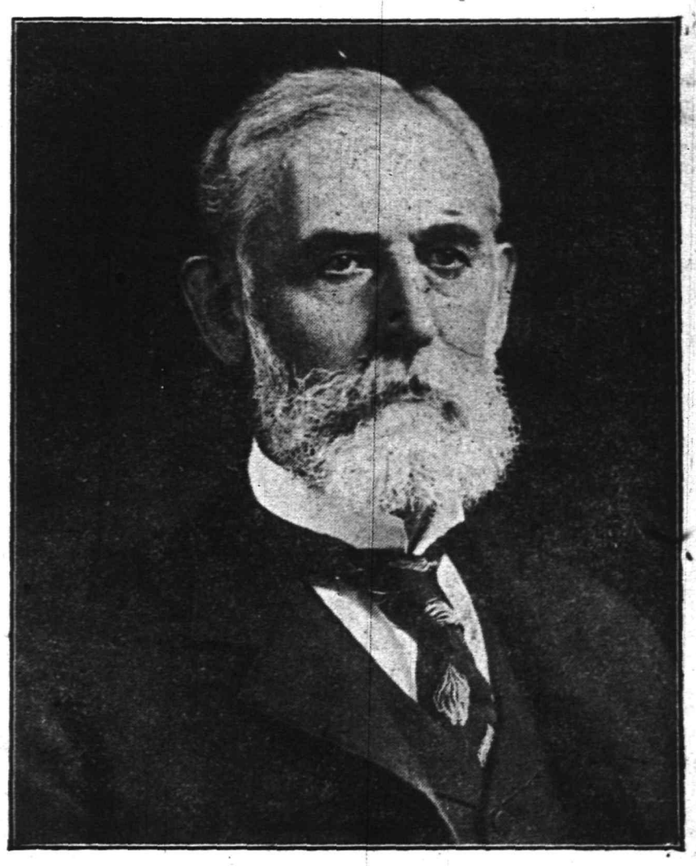
DRYDEN CAUCUS CHOICE

Ackerman, Perkins and Smalley Among Those Who Remained Outside.

GETS 27 OUT OF 44

In Caucus Wakins gets 2, Briggs 3 and Pitney 1 Vote— Anti-Drydenites Firm.

After ten hours of conference and caucus, the Republican Senators and Assemblymen adjourned after midnight with John F. Dryden the caucus nominee for United States Senator.



United States Senator John F. Dryden.

The result of the caucus at midnight was 27 for Dryden, Watkins 2, Briggs 3, and Pitney 4. Thompson, of Mercer, blocked the attempts to make the vote unanimous. It was understood that the Dryden forces would today seek the re-election of Dryden on the opinion of the Attorney General McCarter that all that is required is a majority of the quorum of each House. Mr. Dryden has more than this number.

The anti-Dryden men showed up strongly, led by Everett Colby, of Essex.

When they went into the caucus at 10 o'clock last night eight members remained out, and it was conceded that Dryden had at least 25 votes on the first ballot and at least 35 on the second ballot. It is necessary to get 41 for an election. Those who remained out of the caucus were Senators Colby, of Essex; Wakelee, of Bergen; Ackerman, of Union, and Assemblymen Fake and Devine, of Bergen; Drake, of Middlesex; Smalley, of Somerset, and Perkins, of Union.

The fight commenced early yesterday afternoon when the Republican members of the Legislature went into joint conference and the Dryden men attempted to force a caucus. There was nothing doing with such tactics, and they were abandoned. After many hours of wrangling an informal vote was taken showing the following result: Dryden, 25; Bradley, 9; Hand, 1; Stokes, 1; Griggs, 5, and Pitney, 3.

Senator Colby lead the fight on Dryden. He attacked the Senator savagely, and Senator Frelinghuysen and Assemblyman Barber defended him. Senator Colby is said to have made a speech in which he made a very emphatic attack upon the Senatorial record of the Newark candidate. Mr. Barber, of Mercer, attempted to refute the arguments as to why the Senator should not be re-elected. Then the Colby people attempted to take a secret ballot with the hope of eliminating Dryden, but this failed, and an open ballot was forced with the result that the following members voted against Dryden: Senators Colby, Wakelee, Avis, and Assemblymen Tillman, Perkins, Moxon, Fake, Devine, Cattell, Taylor, Thompson, Drake and Smalley.

Ballot after ballot was taken, but no agreement on Dryden resulted.

The Democrats did not caucus last night on the Senatorial question, preferring to wait until this morning, after the Republicans finished their

AUTO ABUSES ARE GREATLY REDUCED

NEW JERSEY IN VANGUARD FOR LEGISLATION ON MOTORING.

Notwithstanding the fact that the report of J. B. R. Smith, commissioner of motor vehicles, which has just been presented to Governor Stokes, makes many suggestions for betterment of the Frelinghuysen automobile law, it is shown that the law worked more successfully than was even expected by those who desired an act which would secure adequate enforcement of the provisions against abuses by autoists.

Commissioner Smith points out that the abuses have been reduced as much as 75 per cent., and declares that it is not too much to say that New Jersey has taken its place in the vanguard of States for the progressive legislation upon the automobile question. He claims that, with certain changes, New Jersey will have practically a perfect automobile law. It is Mr. Smith's opinion that all future legislation on the subject should be directed only to the elimination of abuses connected with the use of motor vehicles. He suggests a new system of registration and identification, and illustrates how an interstate system of registration would be of benefit not only to autoists, but also New Jersey. The report touches to a considerable extent on speed regulation, and says the average justice's court is not the proper place for the trial of those accused of violating the motor vehicle act, and suggests that such cases be brought before the Court of Common Pleas or a special court. The report contains a strong condemnation of selfish autoists.

"While it cannot be said that the Frelinghuysen law is by any means the last legislative word to be spoken on the subject—nor did its framers have any idea that it would be—it is probably true that the law has more nearly fulfilled the expectations of those who have desired a measure which would secure an adequate enforcement of the provisions against abuses of the motor vehicle traffic than any law yet enacted. It was not the purpose of the act unnecessarily to interfere with or retard the development of the motor vehicle, but rather to protect the rights and privileges of those persons who use such vehicles in a lawful and proper manner. To this end the rights and privileges of the motorists were more properly conserved by this law than by any previous legislation on the same subject in this State, or, in fact, by the laws of most of the other States. The most important feature of the act, however, were those providing for the enforcement of the provisions against violations of the law and the rights of others.

"It is not claimed that the law has given absolute security to the rights and privileges of motorists or that it has entirely eradicated the abuses attending the use of motor vehicles, but the best information at our hands leads to the conclusion that there is undoubtedly a much clearer and more charitable understanding of the proper place and function of the motor vehicle, while the reports from the different localities of this State warrant us in believing that the abuses have been reduced in some places as much as 75 per cent. In others a much less percentage of gain has probably been attained. Such results for the first six months of its operation would seem to establish the wisdom of its framers, and it is not too much to say that New Jersey has taken its place in the vanguard of States for progressive legislation upon this subject. With certain changes, as their need becomes apparent, we may confidently hope to have in the near future a practically perfect law.

"The broad principles of equity and of equal rights should underlie all attempts at regulation on this as well as any other subject, and all legislation should only be made with such principles in view. A person is neither more nor less a law abiding citizen because he is in a motor car, and a vehicle is neither more nor less 'a vehicle' because it is propelled by its own power. Any legislative or executive discrimination, either in favor of or against the motor car or its occupant, is a direct violation of the fundamental principles of liberty, and our courts could rightfully nullify such discrimination. The motor vehicles, the beast of burden, the pedestrian, and all other lawful users of the road have equal rights each with the other, and any infringement of these by any user, by legislation, or by a misguided conception of the proper method of the law's enforcement, is wrong.

"All regulation and all legislation on the subject should be directed only to the elimination of abuses connected with the use of motor vehicles. Its recent advent and rapid progress, its great power, its novelty, the many abuses as well as uses of which it is capable, have served to perplex the user, the legislator, the politician and the public alike, and because of this neither should be hastily censured. The great majority of each class is desirous of doing right, but time is necessary to comprehend it all clearly. The well intending motorist is liable to overestimate his rights and the tendency of older users is to resent the trouble caused in making a place for the new arrival, while the defiant and selfish motorist disgusts

JERSEY BOUNDARY FIGHT UP.

Washington, Jan. 22.—Under suspension of the rules the House of Representatives yesterday considered the following measures:

Senate bill giving consent of Congress to the establishment of the boundary line between Delaware and New Jersey, fixed by the commission appointed by the two States in 1905. The dispute out of which the appointment grew originated in the desire to control certain oyster beds near the mouth of Delaware river, the course of which has been changed by a delta. Passed.

Senate bill directing an investigation into the industrial, social, moral, educational and phsical conditions of women and child workers in the United States by the bureaus of labor and child labor. With no important change the bill was reported to the House and passed. At 5:05 the House adjourned until tomorrow.

"The whole question will eventually fit itself to reason and justice, and that desirable end can be hastened or retarded according to the zeal and sincerity with which all persons in interest endeavor to learn and to apply the principles of right and equity to others as well as to themselves. Statute laws can then be framed which will unerringly set out the rights and privileges, not only of motorists, but of all who use the roads, and will also provide the proper punishment, for those who transgress, while the executive officers will understand their duty clearly in protecting these rights and in punishing those who offend against them."

NEW JERSEY INDIVIDUAL CHAMPIONSHIP TOURNAMENT.

Many Prizes Will Be Offered the Winning Bowlers in This Great Contest.

Tally one for Elizabeth! "Joe" Nolte was elected president of the New Jersey Individual Championship Tournament, complete arrangements for which were completed at a meeting recently held at the Oxford Bowling Academy, Newark. All that is now left for Nolte is to go in and win one of the many prizes that are offered the winners. The prize money will amount to $425, and will be distributed as follows:

To the individual winning the most series, $80; to the one finishing second, $60; third, $45; fourth, $35; fifth, $30; sixth, $25; seventh, $22.50; eighth, $20; ninth, $17.50; individual prizes average in the following order: First, $20; second, $15; third, $12; fourth, $10; fifth, $8; sixth, $7; seventh, $5; eighth, $3. The individual high score prize will be $5, and for the best average in any one series, $5.

Each of the members in the competition will meet every other member in a series to consist of the best three in five games. In case of a tie the games will be rolled over, but the tie game will count in the averages. There will be three series rolled each night, the first series beginning promptly at 8:30 o'clock. The alleys will be open for practice at 8:15 o'clock, and between the series there will be ten minutes intermission. The winner of the first series shall have the privilege of continuing in the second series, or laying off, with the exception of C. F. Strohmenger, of Hackensack, who shall have the privilege of bowling in the first two series in order to allow him to make train connections. The rule regarding postponements reads as follows:

"There shall be no postponements in this tournament, with the exception of a participant being physically disabled or having death in his family. In this case he must notify the secretary at the earliest possible moment, and the secretary shall get the consent of his two opponents for the night he is scheduled to such postponement, or otherwise his series shall be forfeited. Any member failing to keep his scheduled engagements in the tournament for any other reason than being physically disabled or having death in his family shall forfeit his right to roll in the tournament, and all series previously rolled by him in the tournament shall be thrown out, and be the same as games not rolled."

The first matches will be decided Monday night, January 28, and a complete schedule is to be announced soon.

BAYONNE ELKS' NEW HOME.

Bayonne, Jan. 22.—The officers of Bayonne Lodge, No. 434, Brotherhood Protective Order of Elks, have completed negotiations for the purchase of the clubhouse on West Thirty-fourth street of the Newark Bay Boat Club. The purchase price is $18,000, and the Elks will take possession on May 1. In the interval the lodge will receive $150 a month rent from the boat club. The latter organization will erect a $50,000 country house facing Newark Bay at West Thirty-third street, and work is to be started early in the spring.

Although the youngest society in Bayonne, the Elks are the first to acquire a home of their own. The building they have purchased is well adapted for their use. It is completely and handsomely furnished and contains four regulation bowling alleys, a large hall for entertainments, dances and meetings and billiard room, parlors and committee rooms.

The lodge numbers 300 members, including many prominent citizens. Already plans are under way for the dedication, and lodges within fifty miles of this city will be invited to participate in the ceremonies.

PRAISE FOR THE ROADS

In Annual Report of Commissioner Hutchinson to Governor Stokes.

THE AUTO LAW IS O. K.

Application of Oil to Roads a Decided Success—Union Spent $22,790.35.

Trenton, Jan. 22.—Showing the prosperity of road-building in New Jersey during the past year under the act passed last winter by the Legislature, by which all fines for violations of the automobile law should go toward the fund for the repair of county roads, the report of State Road Commissioner Elijah C. Hutchinson, which was handed to Governor Stokes Friday, also gives an interesting account of the flourishing condition of the State roads. Many counties receive much praise for the work done by them in regard to road-building and their proper maintenance, while others are censured for not taking advantage of the opportunities available. Under the new automobile law about $75,000 is to be distributed among the different counties as the State's contribution toward repairs.

In referring to the automobile law, Commissioner Hutchinson says that it has been operated successfully, but points out one weak spot in the act, and that is the failure to make provision for inspectors enough to properly enforce the law.

In discussing the use of oil or tar for the protection of roads, the commissioner declares, "There has been considerable inquiry in regard to protecting the surface of our roads in general by the use of tar or oil. From what I can learn, the application of an oil containing not less than fifty per cent. of asphaltum has proven a decided success. The great obstacle seems to be its cost. We are following the matter up, and hope to be in a position next year to recommend some application to our roads that will prevent dust and preserve the surface intact.

"The amount spent by Union for road repairs during the year 1906 was $22,790.35."

WOMEN FIGHT FOR A NEWARK PROPERTY.

Sisters Institute Suit Against Their Uncle, R. A. Sherlock.

Trenton, Jan. 22.—In the Court of Chancery Mrs. Sarah S. Gordon, of New York city, and her sister, Mrs. Jane S. Lesoir, of Florida, N. Y., have brought a suit seeking to compel their uncle, Robert A. Sherlock, to surrender to the complainants the premises located at 195 Broad street, Newark. Mrs. Schenck, the mother of the complainants, who died in May last, owned the premises, but before her death she transferred it to her brother, the defendant.

According to the bill of complaint, Mr. Schenck disappeared from his home a long time ago, and after he had gone for a great many years Mrs. Schenck received an order from the Chancellor allowing her to dispose of the property, the same as though her husband had died, he having absented himself for such a long time the court assumed that he was dead—legally dead.

The complainants allege that in December, 1905, Mrs. Schenck executed a deed to her brother for the purpose of holding the property in trust for them, and with a view that it would strengthen the court proceedings if the question arose of the equity of the missing husband. The bill declares that this course was pursued upon advice of the defendant, who was then doing some legal work for the complainants, who claim that no consideration was given, and that Mr. Sherlock frequently stated in conversation that he held the property only in trust for the sisters.

The defendant did not record the deed given by Mrs. Schenck until five days after her death, and this fact is held as proof that the property was left in trust. The property some time later was conveyed by Sherlock to his wife.

This was done, it is averred, without consideration, and was a part of a plan to deprive them of the rights which the complainants had in the premises.

CIVIL SERVICE FOR NEW JERSEY.

General interest will be taken in the fate of the bill introduced in the State Senate last night providing for a bi-partisan civil service commission of three members to be appointed by the Governor. Such a statute is sorely needed in this State, where it has been demonstrated time and again that competent employees of the State are at the mercy of designing politicians who would use them for political purposes. That there will be some stubborn opposition to the passage of the measure may be taken for granted but hope for its enactment lies in the fact that there is more independence shown among the legislators in the present session than there has been for some years.

Senator Colby is the father of the bill in question which requires that no officer having the appointment or employment of persons to the civil service shall appoint any subordinate except under the provisions of the civil service statute. This civil service will be divided into unclassified and classified service. The unclassified list will include all officers elected by the people, all officers subject to the Senate's confirmation, all principals and superintendents of public schools, all heads of State government departments, also city and county departments, all persons appointed by name in any statute and certain unskilled laborers. The classified service will include all other officers. The commission will be empowered to prescribe the necessary examinations for all candidates for positions and it will also have the right to frame proper rules for the appointment and advancement of men in the service.

The Jersey City Journal has made a wonderful discovery. It announces that "The People's Lobby seem to have everything in their favor except the people."

Herr Direktor Conried must have breathed a sigh of relief when he heard that the monkey house is to be removed from Central Park.

That bill introduced by Senator Gebhardt to abolish monopolies in this State does not cover the U. S. Senatorship.

That trouble with Governor Swettenham was only a case of too much Jamaica ginger.

The weather man is certainly unkind to the coal dealer.

WILL ISSUE "MESSENGER."

Crescent Avenue Church Club to Handle Monthly Magazine.

Two departments of church work were taken over by the Men's Club of Crescent Avenue church at a meeting last night. The "Messenger," the church magazine, which has been issued by the session hitherto, will now be controlled by the club, and the ushering, which has been volunteer work at the services, will be arranged by it.

The "Messenger" will still largely be under the direction of W. D. Murray. He has consented to serve as chairman of the committee in charge of it. There is every indication that the "Messenger" will be self-sustaining this year.

It was announced last night that James Kimball had been made president by the executive committee, to succeed H. C. Munger, resigned. Mr. Munger found his other duties too pressing. The club election will be held in April.

Held For Grand Jury.

Edward Cuff, colored, who stole $5 worth of junk from A. M. Griffen's workshop Saturday night, pleaded guilty to a charge of petit larceny before Judge Runyon this morning. He was held in $200 bail for the grand jury. The alleged theft of a watch from L. M. French was not referred to.

IMPORTANT MEASURES IN THE LEGISLATURE

BILL FOR ELECTION OF U. S. SENATORS BY DIRECT VOTE OF THE PEOPLE.

Senator Gebhardt introduced in the Legislature last night an application for a constitutional convention to be called by Congress for an amendment to the Federal constitution for the election of United States Senators by the direct vote of the people.

Other important measures introduced in the Senate included:

S. J. R. 4. By Mr. Gebhardt. Makes application under article 5 of the constitution of the United States for a constitutional convention to be called by Congress for the purpose of submitting to the States for ratification and amendment to the Federal constitution providing for the election of United States Senators by direct vote of the people. (Judiciary).

S. 33. By Mr. Gebhardt. Fixes railroad passenger fares at not more than two cents per mile for day coaches and not more than two and one-half cents per mile for parlor or sleeping cars. (Railroads and Canals).

S. 34. By Mr. Gebhardt. Makes it unlawful for the State to sell or convey riparian lands in fee; empowers leasing for any term not exceeding 25 years. (Riparian Rights).

S. No. 23. By Mr. Colby. Providing for a civil service commission of three members to be appointed by the Governor, both political parties to be represented. Requires that no officer having the appointment or employment of persons to the civil service, shall appoint any subordinate, except under the provisions of this act. The civil service shall be divided into unclassified and classified service. The unclassified will include all officers subject to Senate's confirmation, all principals and superintendents of public schools, all heads of State government departments, also city and county departments, all persons appointed by name in any statute, and certain unskilled laborers. The classified service shall include all other officers. The commission shall prescribe examinations to be passed for positions in the classified service, and shall make rules for appointments and promotions. The bill covers 29 printed pages, and was introduced last session by Mr. Colby. (Judiciary).

In the House these bills were introduced:

H. 87. Mr. Perkins. Requires every vehicle drawn by a horse or horses from one hour after sunset to one hour before sunrise, and whenever foggy to carry at least two lighted side lights showing white and visible at least 250 feet in both directions. Penalty, $10 for each violation. (Revision of Laws).

H. 88. Mr. Perkins. Amends the act relative to factories and workshops so that no minor under 16 years of age shall work more than 10 hours in a day, 55 hours in a week, nor between the hours of 6 a. m. and 6 p. m. (Labor and Industries).

H. 76. Mr. Hendrickson. Provides that all principals and teachers after a probationary period not exceeding three years shall be thereafter retained during good behavior and efficiency, and can only be dismissed or have salary reduced after written charges and trial. (Municipal Corporations).

HOBOKEN BOY A HERO.

He Is Badly Scorched Trying to Save Bonfire Victim.

Hoboken, Jan. 22.—Although his heroism was unavailing, 12-year-old George Wilson, of 519 Jefferson street, is the idol today of all the boys and girls in his neighborhood, and his bravery yesterday in endeavoring to extinguish the flames which enveloped little Alice Kirk has brought him unstinted praise from all the grown-up folks.

Alice was playing at a bonfire which had been kindled near her home. The wind veered the blaze toward her and ignited her dress. In a moment the flames had enveloped her entire body. She started to run toward her home and young Wilson ran to the rescue. He tried to beat out the flames with his hands and was badly scorched. A neighbor finally procured a blanket, and, rapping Alice in it, succeeded in putting out the flames. The child was severely burned, however, and will probably die. She is 7 years old and lives in the same house as young Wilson.

ANNOYED BY CHICKEN COOP.

Wife of Handwriting Expert Kinsley Sued by Neighbor.

The cacking of hens, crowing of roosters and cooing of pigeons on the premises of Mrs. Elvira Rose Kinsley, wife of the handwriting expert, in the exclusive Prospect Heights section of Nutley, has been so annoying to Clarence B. Iliffe and other neighbors that Mr. Iliffe has filed a bill in Chancery, asking that an injunction issue that will put an end to the annoyance from the birds.

Mrs. Kinsley and her husband caused to be erected a chicken-house within forty feet of the dining-room window of the Iliffe house and in the estimation of Mr. Iliffe this is a violation of the restrictive deed conveying the property.

NOT AN EARTHQUAKE, ONLY AN EXPLOSION.

But Rumble and Roar Drove Folk to Streets, Where They Long Remained.

Two terrific explosions alarmed Sunday night Perth Amboy and towns within a radius of five miles of it. They caused many to remain out of doors several hours until they learned the cause of the rumble and roar which shook buildings as though there was an earthquake.

It was found that a carload of molten slag at the C. Pardee Steel Works had been dumped into a pit in which there was some rain water. The side of a large building near by was blown in and one workman injured.

At the Perth Amboy City Hall, more than a mile away, Sergt. James Mulligan thought an attempt was being made to rob the safe in the Collector of Revenue's office.

He promptly surrounded the building before making an investigation in an attempt to prevent the escape of the supposed thieves.

It was several hours before the cause of the explosion was made known.

SUICIDE ENGAGED UNDERTAKER

Told Him to Cremate Him, Went Home and Shot Himself.

Elizabeth, Jan. 22.—Beujamin Rosenstiehl, 64 years old, of 519 First avenue, met Charles J. Jensen, an undertaker, on the street Saturday, told him that he was convinced his end was near, and asked Jensen to take charge of the body and have it cremated. Jensen laughed the matter off and told Rosenstiehl that he was apt to live many years yet.

Rosenstiehl died in the Elizabeth General Hospital this morning from the effects of a bullet wound back of his right ear, inflicted by himself some time late Saturday night or Sunday morning.

His daughter, Mrs. Anna Schick, went to his room about 11 a. m. yesterday and found him in bed with a pool of blood around his head. In his right hand he gripped an old-fashioned revolver with which he had shot himself. Nobody in the house had heard the report of the pistol. He had been somewhat crippled for years and it is believed that he had recently become despondent. He is survived only by his daughter.

RAFFLE WAS A FRAUD.

Man Who Conducted It Convicted of False Pretenses.

Frank Johnson, accused of getting up a "fake" raffle, was convicted yesterday in Jersey City of obtaining money under false pretenses. Johnson, claiming to own a farm in Sussex county, decided to dispose of it by chance. He issued 10,000 tickets at fifty cents each.

On the strength of the money he expected to realize, he borrowed $300 from Albert Paymer, of Hoboken. The proposed raffle was a failure, and Paymer did not get his money. He made an investigation and found that the farm Johnson claimed to own belonged to his wife.

caucus. At the end of the session it was announced that the Democratic caucus would be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. It was learned that Col. Edwin A. Stevens, Hoboken, could not land the Democratic nomination for the United States Senatorship. Hudson men are for him solidly, but Stevens does not suit ex-United States Senator Smith, and Essex and Passaic would stand together for either Woodrow Wilson, President of Princeton University, or former Assemblyman John R. Hardin, of Essex.

According to the common construction of the constitution, it takes a majority of the members elected to both houses to elect a Senator. Considerable speculation over this matter was indulged in last night. Attorney-General McCarter holding that a majority of a quorum of both houses in joint meeting would be sufficient to elect.

FAILED TO PROVE THAT HE STOLE SPANISH ROOSTER.

Erastus Johnson Brown Ably Defended by W. S. Angleman at Juniors' Mock Trial.

Although it was impossible to convict the defendant at the mock trial held by Plainfield Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., who was accused of stealing a Spanish black rooster, the verdict of the jury was supplemented with a recommendation that in the future the prisoner exercises care as to the particular color of meat he eats.

Charles M. Knowlton, impersonating Erastus Johnson Brown, was accused of stealing a Spanish black rooster from George Washington Johnson, who was Harry Hartley, and it was a difficult matter to prove the charge, despite the strong testimony of E. B. Smith, Joel Pennington and A. H. Peck, the latter being the son of the man who lost the rooster.

G. W. V. Moy presided as judge at the trial. H. C. Runyon represented the plaintiff, while W. S. Angleman appeared for the defendant. The following acted as jurors: E. Gibson Smith, Peter H. Bennett, Adam Scott, F. E. Sebring, Daniel J. VanWinkle, George B. Cratsley, Samuel H. Cratsley, Julius G. Williams, W. H. Freeman and H. H. Webb. P. H. Bennett was court court crier, William Giles the clerk and Peter Wooden was the court officer. The fact that the latter persisted in going to sleep called forth some caustic remarks on the part of the plaintiff's lawyer, which were met with stinging rebuke.

All those participating in the trial were attired in farmer style of dress, presenting a decidedly rural picture. There was no end of fun throughout and as a novel form of amusement was a great success. There was a large attendance of Juniors, the members of Franklin, Somerset and Benevolent Councils, as well as Plainfield councils being largely represented.

Gift For Mr. Campbell.

As an evidence of the esteem and good will held for him by his associates, William Campbell, former lieutenant in the borough fire department, was made the recipient of an elaborate silver shaving set, last night. The presentation was made at his home on Somerset street by Captain Edward Terry and John Mowry, who explained that it came from the members of the department in which he had served for so long. They declared that his resignation had caused regret among them and they had been waiting a forable opportunity to express themselves toward him in a substantial way. The former lieutenant thanked the donors warmly and assured the representatives that the feeling was reciprocated.

TRAIN TUBERCULOSIS PATIENTS FOR NURSES.

Dr. Wright Makes Suggestion in His Annual Report—To Use Glen Gardner for Purpose.

In his annual report to Governor Stokes, the Rev. George B. Wight, D. D., States commissioner of charities and corrections, suggests that in order to make the new tuberculosis sanitarium at Glen Gardner an eminently practical institution, the buildings which are now being erected should be used jointly as a hospital for tuberculosis patients of the indigent class and as a training school in which those affected in a less serious degree with the white plague may be trained as nurses for tuberculosis patients throughout the State. He also suggests the manner in which such nurses might be of the most use. Dr. Wight also urges that the State should not relinquish its right to employ its prisoners upon contract work.

Dr. Wight says the Glen Gardner sanitarium buildings are approaching completion. He cites that this institution, furnished and equipped, will cost $300,000 and will accommodate 108 patients to be selected from the so-called thousands of curable cases of consumption now in the State. "How the selection is to be made and what number will be assigned to the respective counties, does not yet appear," comments Dr. Wight, "but the board of managers will doubtless solve the problem. The act creating the sanitarium provides that only those patients shall be admitted who are found by the court of common please to be indigent and a physician shall certify to be curable. It follows, therefore, I presume, that when a patient is found to be incurable he must be discharged. The managers report that it will require $8.83 a week for the maintenance of each patient. At present there is no appropriation for maintenance, the legislature of last winter having repealed the previous appropriation and omitting to make one for 1907. The matter will, of course, be presented to the present Legislature."

COURT FROZEN OUT.

Council Chamber Too Cold For District Court Session.

Lack of heat in the Council chambers compelled Judge Newcorn to hold the District Court session in the clerk's room this morning. The Council chamber was so cold that the judge found it out of the question to hold court there.

Only three of the eleven cases listed were disposed of. William F. Gaston was awarded $42.51, on contract, against Carmack Coyle; G. W. V. Moy appeared for the plaintiff. T. E. Raub was given judgment for $91.53 against Harry A. Norton, on proof: Ellery Robbins, of Trenton, was his lawyer. The contract case of A. M. Griffen against M. A. Rose was reported settled.

An Appreciation.

The notice in your paper some days ago of the death of Mrs. C. F. V. Nevius at Readington, brought to mind the grateful and loving memories of the faithful and loving woman, who in the days of the small beginnings of our Children's Home in the cottage on Grove street, was the loved "Ma Ne," of our children; later in the Hillside Home, during the sad days of malignant scarlet fever, she was faithful mother and nurse in one.

For years she was loved and praised by all our officers for her faithful and loving care of our interests. After almost thirteen years of constant services her own health and strength began to fail. Several times she said to me "I fear I shall die some night here all alone with these children." Realizing the need of an entire change and rest for her a vacation of some months was given her. She came back to take up her work again but it was soon evident that the task was too heavy for her. She reluctantly gave her work into the hands of our present most faithful matron, who in February completes her sixteenth year—the loved "Ma H." Tonight all over our land, east and west, in their own happy homes are young men and women who recall to their own children the blessed memory of "Ma Ne," the only real mother they ever knew. From the "Children's Friend," the Saviour loved and served so well she has received the glad welcome "Well done, good and faithful servant."

EWRY WILL APPEAR.

Champion Jumper Promises to Take Part in Y. M. C. A. Circus.

Roy Ewry, holder of six world's records for broad and high jumps, will appear at the Y. M. C. A. circus February 12. His acceptance was received by Physical Director Listman this morning.

Ewry's broad jump of 9 feet 11 3/4 inches, and his standing high jump of 5 feet 2 1/2 inches, are the records of the world in those events. He took part in the last Olympic games at Athens, and won both those events there. He will give an all-around exhibition here.

Fire In New Bank Building.

Evidently originating from sparks dropped from a workman's fire pot, a small blaze broke out in the upper part of the Plainfield Savings Bank's new building on East Front street at 5:37 last night. It was detected by tenants in adjoining buildings and an alarm was turned in from box 12. The department responded promptly and had the blaze out in a few minutes. It was confined principally to rubbish and small pieces of material and the damage will not exceed $25. Tinners had been at work on the floor with fire pots all afternoon and they had left the place only a short time before the blaze was noticed.

Civil Marriage Followed by Another.

In order to have a religious ceremony in additional to the civil one already performed, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Howes, of West Third street, who were united by Justice Hand last Saturday, were married again by Rev. L. R. Howard, last night. The ceremony took place at the home of Mrs. Howes' father, James Chamberlain, of West Third street, and was witnessed only by relatives of the young couple. The original wedding was brought about without the knowledge of Mr. Chamberlain and it was at his request that the second one was decided upon.

Will Visit Naples and the Nile.

The Honeyman tourist party sailed from New York today on the steamship Princess Louise for a two months' trip abroad. They will go to Naples, Italy and take the famous trip up the Nile. Among the Plainfielders who will be in the party are Mr. and Mrs. William M. Sandford and daughter, Miss May Sandford and Mrs. H. F. Ege.

Y. M. C. A. Basketball League.

Plainfield will play Montclair Saturday night in the Y. M. C. A. basketball league. The teams here will meet again Monday night at Montclair.

—The case of Grannatt against Allegar, for commissions due on the sale of real estate, instituted in the District Court, was amicably settled today.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The delightful D'Orsay with his aristocratic swagger, delicious drawl, immaculate clothes, monocle and drooping mustache, will be introduced at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night to local playgoers. As Mr. D'Orsay is a decided favorite his appearance will doubtless be welcomed by an enthusiastic audience. In "The Embassy Ball" it is said that Augustus Thomas has provided even a better vehicle for displaying the D'Orsay methods and mannerisms than he did in "The Earl of Pawtucket." The play is declared to be a charming comedy with just enough situations to complete the humor.

Pierce Kingley's great American play, "Deserted at the Altar," will appear at the New Plainfield theatre Friday night. This play has had a long and successful career, being in its fourth season on the road, and it has been endorsed by the press and public in every large city in the United States and Canada. This year it is stronger and better than ever. Mr. Kingsley has fitted out the production in a most elaborate manner. The story is told in a powerful way, and so simply that any child can follow it. The humor is clean, there being over 200 laughs in 120 minutes.

A new comedy-drama from the pen of Mrs. Jane Mauldin Feigl, with the rather puzzling title of "The Girl Patsy," is to be presented at the New Plainfield theatre Saturday afternoon and night. The name is taken from a line, oft repeated in the play, and referring to a winsome little waif about whom the love interest centers. Life at an exclusive summer retreat near New York is the theme of the play, and it is said that the writer has constructed a drama, not with a moral, but a moral play. Patsy, a girl of delightful personality, poses half unwillingly in woodland dells to a young city artist. He comes to profane, but stays to worship. This sylvan love affair reaches other ears, of course, and as the artist has already a fiancee and the day is set for the wedding, complications ensue. A crafty man-servant gets hold of the sketch book and shows it to the daughter of the house, the girl the artist does not want to marry. But the plotters and the French maid overreach themselves. The sketches lead to Patsy's recognition as the true heiress. There is a big scene in act third, in which the father, an old judge, sees the likeness between Patsy and his dead wife. An elopement of the coachman and the false heiress follows and the road is cleared for the artist and his pretty model. All in all it is a good play, sans melodramatic effect, sans grotesque characterization.

COLBY MOVEMENT RESTRAINED POPULISM.

So Called by Member of New England Society of Orange.

Orange, Jan. 22.—Following the presentation of the report of a special committee on the revision of corporation laws of New Jersey there was a wordy war at the meeting of the New England Society of Orange Saturday night One of the severest attacks upon the report was made by Camillus G. Kidder, who is now the moving spirit in the Orange Board of Excise. He called the report "restrained populism."

"The report of the committee is very thorough," he said, "and very choice in its language, but if it is the report of the professional reformer I do not know that it ought to be entertained by this society. It seems to me that the reformer in the true sense should not be lightly considered. I do not think the Colby movement was in its true sense a reform movement."

Mr. Kidder urged the members of the society to be cautious in handling the subject.

Edward K. Sumerwell, who was defeated as a candidate for Mayor on the Citizens' Union or reform ticket, in East Orange, and who is a member of the committee, defended the report, denied it was "restrained populism," and also denied he was a professional reformer.

Absalom P. Backman stood with Mr. Kidder, and the two lawyers on the committee who defended the report were Mr. Summerwell and Albridge C. Smith. F. W. Kelsey, chairman of the committee, denied the committee was in smypathy with populism or "restrained populism," or hanging on the coattails of "the professional reformer."

CHANGES FAITH FOR LOVE.

When Henry Finkelstein, an 18-year-old musician, of Newark, appeared at the Elizabeth City Hall Saturday afternoon with Gertrude Bautsch, a 17-year-old girl, of Roselle, and asked Mayor Ryan to marry them, he did not tell the Mayor that they had already been married by a rabbi on Thursday night. When the Mayor refused to perform the ceremony it was because he had learned the young man did not have the consent of his parents to the wedding.

Rabbi Bernstein, of the Synagogue Holcha Yosher, had made no objections to marrying the couple on the score of age or parental consent Thursday, but he did object to uniting Finklestein, who is a Jew, to Miss Bautsch, a Gentile. Miss Bautsch, after talking matters over with her lover, said she would become a Jewess.

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

A TALE OF THE OLD WEST

By HARRY LEON WILSON AUTHOR OF THE SPENDERS

COPYRIGHT 1903 BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

But then, before another could arise, a wonder came upon them. The little man stood up and came quickly forward, a strange new life in his step, a new confidence in his bearing, a curious glow of new strength in his face. Even his stoop had straightened for the moment. For, as he had listened to Brigham's last words, the picture of his vision in the desert had come back,—the cross in the sky, the crucified Savior upon it, the head in death-agony fallen over upon the shoulder. And then before his eyes had come page after page of the New Testament with a wash of blood across two of them. He felt the new life he had prayed for pouring into his veins, and with it a fierce anger. The one on the cross who had been more than man, who had shirked no sacrifice and loved infinitely, was not thus to be assailed. A panorama of wrong—wrong thinking and wrong doing—extended before his clearing gaze. For once he seemed to see truth in a vision and to feel the power to utter it.

There was silence again as he stood in front of the little table, the faces before him frozen into wonder that he should have either the power of the temerity to answer Brigham. He spoke, and his voice was again rough with force, and high and fearless, a voice many of them recalled from the days when he had not been weak.

"Now I see what we have done. Listen, brethren, for God has not before so plainly said it to any man, and I know my time is short among you. We have gone back to the ages of Hebrew barbarism for our God—to the God of Battles worshipped by a heathen people—a God who loved the reek of blood and the smell of burning flesh. But you shall not—"

He turned squarely and fiercely to the face of Brigham.

"—you shall not confuse that bloody God of Battles with the true Christ, nor yet with the true God of Love that this Christ came to tell us of. Once I believed in Him. I was taught to by your priests. War seemed a righteous thing, for we had been grievously put upon, and I believed the God of Israel should avenge our wrongs as He had avenged those of His older Zion. And hear me now—so long as I believed this, I was no coward; while you, sir—"

A long forefinger was pointed straight at the amazed Brigham.

"—while you, sir, were a craven, contemptible in your cowardice. I would have fought in Echo canyon to the end, because I believed. But you did not believe, and so you were afraid to fight. And for your cowardice and your wretched lusts your name among all but your ignorant dupes shall become a hissing and a scorn. For mark it well, unless you forsake that heathen God of Battles and preach the divine Christ of the New Testament, you shall come to hold only the ignorant, and them only by keeping them ignorant."

The commotion among the people in front was now all but a panic. On the platform the sires of Israel whispered one to another, while Brigham gazed as if fascinated, driven to admiration for the speaker's power and audacity. For the feverish, fleeting moment, Joel Rae was that veritable Lion of the Lord he had prayed to be, putting upon the people his spell of the old days. Heads were again strained up and forward, and amazed horror was on most of the faces. Far back, Prudence trembled, feeling that she must be away at once, until she felt the firm grasp of Follett's hand. The speaker went on, having turned again to the front.

"Instead of a church you shall become justly hated and despised as a people who foul their homes and dishonor beyond forgiveness the names of wife and mother. Then your punishment shall come upon you as it has already come for this and for other sins. Even now the Gentile is upon us; and mark this truth that God has but now given me to know: we have never been persecuted as a church,—but always as a political body hostile to the government of this nation. Even so, you had no faith. Believing as I believed, I would have fought that nation and died a thousand bloody deaths rather than submit. But you had no faith, and you were so low that you let yourselves be ruled by a coward—and I tell you God hates a coward."

He stopped, waiting as if he were not done, but the spell was broken. The life, indeed, had in the later moments been slowly dying from his words; and, as they lost their fire, scattered voices of protest had been heard; then voices in warning from behind him, and the sound of two or three rising and pushing back their chairs.

The little bent man tried again to smile, hoping for a friendly glance, perhaps a hand-clasp without words from some one of them. Seeing that he was shunned, he stepped down off the platform at the side, twisting his hat in his long, thin hands in embarrassment. A moment he stood so, turning to look back at the group of priests and Elders around the Prophet, seeking for any sign, even for a glance that should be not unkind. The little pafned smile still lighted his face, but no friendly look came from the others. Seeing only the backs turned toward him, he at length straightened out his crumpled hat, still smiling, and slowly put it on his head; as he turned away he pulled the hat farther over his eyes, and then he was off along the dusty street, looking to neither side, still with the little smile that made his face gentle.

But when he had come to the end of the street and was on the road up the hill, the smile died. He seemed all at once to shrink and stoop and fade,—no longer a Lion of the Lord, but a poor, white-faced, horrified little man who had meant in his heart to give a great revelation, and who had succeeded only in uttering blasphemy to the very face of God's prophet.

From below, the little groups of excited people along the street looked up and saw his thin, bent figure alone in the fading sunlight, toiling resolutely upward.

Other groups back in the square talked among themselves, not a few in whispers. A listener among them might have heard such expressions as, "He'll be blood-atoned sure!"—"They'll make a breach upon him!"—"They'll accomplish his decease!"—"He'll be sent over the rim of the basin right quick!" One indignant Saint, with a talent for euphemism was heard to say, "Brigham will have his spirit disembodied!"

To the priests and Elders on the platform Elder Wardle was saying "The trouble with him was he was crazy with fever. Why, I'll bet my best set of harness his pulse ain't less than a hundred and twenty this minute."

The others looked at Brigham.

"He's a crazy man, sure enough," assented the Prophet, "but my opinion is he'll stay crazy, and it wouldn't be just the right thing by Israel to let him go on talking before strangers. You see, it sounds so almighty sane!"

Back in the crowd Prudence and Follett had lingered a little at the latter's suggestion, for he had caught the drift of the talk. When he had comprehended its meaning they set off up the hill, full of alarm.

At the door Christina met them. They saw she had been crying.

"Where is father, Christina?"

"Himself saddle his horse, and say, 'I go to toe some of those marks.' He say, 'I see you plenty not no more, so good-bye!' He kissed me," she added.

"Which way did he go?'

"So!" She pointed toward the road that led out of the valley to the north.

"I'll go after him," said Follett.

"I'll go with you. Saddle Dandy and Kit—and Christina will have something for you to eat; you've had nothing since morning."

"I reckon I know where we'll have to go," said Follett, as he went for the saddles.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

The Little Bent Man at the Foot of the Cross.

It was dusk when they rode down the hill together. They followed the canyon road to its meeting with the main highway at the northern edge of Amalon. Where the roads joined they passed Bishop Wright, who, with his hat off, turned to stare at them, and to pull at his fringe of whisker in seeming perplexity.

"He must have been on his way to our house," Prudence called.

"With that hair and whiskers," answered Follett, with some irrelevance, "he looks like an old buffalo bull just before shedding time."

They rode fast until the night fell, scanning the road ahead for a figure on horseback. When it was quite dark they halted.

"We might pass him," suggested Follett. 'He was fairly tuckered out, and he might fall off any minute."

Down out of Pine valley they went, and over more miles of gray alkali toward a line of hills low and black in the north.

They came to these, followed the road out of the desert through a narrow gap, and passed into the Mountain meadows, reining in their horses as they did so.

ACQUIRING A FORTUNE

Coopea's St. Louis Success Has Been of Phenominal Character.

STATEMENTS VERIFIED

Internal Parasites Are Undoubtedly Responsible For Much Ill Health—Some Interviews.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 21.—The remarkable results that are being accomplished in St. Louis by L. T. Cooper have become a topic of universal interest during the past week.

Reports that preceded his visit to this city told of Mr. Cooper's great success in the east. But the man and his medicine did not attract widespread attention until the beginning of his second week here. Then, the interest in him became very noticeable and has steadily gathered headway until his preparations are now being sold in enormous quantities and his headquarters is a most interesting place in which to spend a half hour.

People are coming from all parts of the city to see him. The young man and his assistants are surrounded by swarms of humanity from early until late—some to tell what has been accomplished for them by the Cooper medicines; others to buy the remedies.

Perhaps nothing has done more to arouse this interest than Mr. Cooper's statement concerning internal parasites, or tapeworms, as they are commonly called. At the commencement of his visit to this city, he claimed that these creatures were responsible for much of the ill health of this generation; he claimed that a large percentage of all chronic stomach trouble was caused by them; he stated that his "New Discovery" medicine would prove this theory to be correct as it would remove hundreds of these tapeworms before he left the city.

These statements seem to have been completely verified. During the past two weeks hundreds of people who have been taking the Cooper preparation for some form of stomach trouble have been relieved of one of these parasites. In consequence, Cooper and his theories have been growing into greater prominence each day.

Mr. Cooper's statement that a general lassitude was the surest indication of this trouble seems to be correct. Statements by people who have had this experience seem to be very much alike. All saying that a feeling of extreme weariness and a lack of energy which they attributed to stomach trouble, had afflicted them.

A statement of this character, which is almost identical with all those given by people who have had the same experience is as follows:

Mrs. B. Prengel, living at 4040 St. Ferdinand street, who was relieved of one of these parasites by the Cooper preparation, when seen by a reporter, said:

"I have been in poor health for six years. I was in a general rundown condition; I attributed this to stomach trouble, as I had a very irregular appetite, and would have a bloating sensation after meals. My chief trouble was that I felt tired all the time. Even in the morning after a night's sleep. I would wake up feeling no more refreshed than when I went to bed. I had dizzy spells and would see spots before my eyes, and the least exertion would tire me. It was an effort to attend to my duties and even my mind seemed dull and sluggish.

"My eyesight has been getting poorer lately, and I noticed that my memory was not as good as it used to be. If I stood for any length of time I would have a dull pain in the lower part of my back and if I ascended the stairs quickly my heart beat very rapidly.

"I tried every sort of preparation, hoping to throw off this dull feeling. I heard so much about this man Cooper, that I decided to try his preparation. I bought two bottles of New Discovery. I took only a few doses of the preparation and a tapeworm left my system. It was about fifty feet in length, as near as I could judge. Now I know what has been the matter with me all these years and I am sure I will be all right again."

The success of these new preparations in St. Louis is confined largely to cases of stomach trouble, but the medicine seems to be remarkably successful in cases of rheumatism. Mr. Cooper ascribes this to the fact that stomach trouble is indirectly responsible for many diseases, rheumatism being among them.

Doesn't Agree With Day.

The Rev. Charles Stelzle does not agree with Chancellor Day of Syracuse University, whose views on workingmen were heard at a dinner of the alumni of the university several evenings ago. The clergyman spoke at the West Side Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon, taking for his subject, "Labor's Champion." He said that Chancellor Day's charge that workingmen worked as little as possible to get as much as possible was untrue.

Keep Your Policies In Force!

In September, 1905, a resident of New Brunswick, N.J., took out a Prudential policy for $1,000. Afterwards he removed to Steelton, Pa., where he let his policy lapse, but through the persuasion of the Company's agent it was revived again in June, 1906. On September 28th, the policyholder was killed while at work. The Prudential paid the claim of $1,000, for which it had received $71.68 in premiums.

'VARSITY FIVE WON FROM Y. M. C. A. FIVE

HEAVY TALENT TOO MUCH FOR THE LOCAL PLAYERS.

The college team, so-called, of the Columbia University, defeated the Y. M. C. A. basketball five last night 45 to 17. The visitors were supposed to represent the second five of the Columbia basketball string, but four of the players were members of the 'varsity team, men who played against West Point in the recent game. The local players made a good showing against them, handicapped in the first half by the intercollegiate rules. Had the Y. M. C. A. rules been used all through the game, instead of in the second half only, the tale might easily have been different. But there is no doubt that the visitors were a winning combination. They had brawn and reach enough to overbear any ordinary combination the locals could get together.

The first half, with the dribbling allowable under intercollegiate rules, resulted in a score of 30 to 7. The second half, with the enforcement of the style of play familiar to the local men, showed only five points' difference in the scoring. The check sustained by the visitors was a significant comment on the slog under which the Plainfielders struggled in the first half. Gilmore and Schoonmaker distinguished themselves under the adverse conditions, the former by shooting and the latter by guarding.

The line-up and summary:

Gilmore	Hall
Collier	White
forwards
Scull	Spencer
center
Loizeaux	Graham
Schoonmaker	Cerussi
guards

Goals from field—Gilmore, 5; Collier, 1; Loizeaux, Hall, 4; White, 9; Spencer, 2; Graham, 2; Cerussi, 4. Goals from fouls—Collier, Loizeaux; one allowed Plainfield.

BOWLING.

Tourney games scheduled for tonight at McLaughlin's are as follows: VanEmburgh and Blatz against Woolston and Cunningham; Radin and Ackor against Reville and partner; Causebrook and McLaughlin against Mullen and Conklin.

"Pete" Feiring and Fred Ivamy have arranged a series of eleven games to be rolled at McLaughlin's for the Fourth ward championship. Feiring has recently maintained an average of 143 and Ivamy frequently comes to the front with scores anywhere from 98 to 205. Jack Payne will referee the match and will immediately challenge the winner.

John Conklin, who is a member of the "pony" team, has been out of the game for the past week or ten days. Steady rolling put his thumb in bad shape and there is a possibility that his tourney matches may have to be held over.

Bert Sutphen, one of the city's best known and most expert rollers ten years ago, has returned to the game. He bowled for the first time this season at McLaughlin's Saturday night and kept every score above 160. He has a ball that describes an "S" as it goes down the alley and gives the gallery the razzle-dazzles by trying to follow it.

—Neuman Brothers have inaugurated a flour special to last but a few days. They quote a special price per barrel for Pillsbury's Best, Hecker's Superlative and Washburn & Crosby's Gold Medal brands.

At the next meeting of the Commission, Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed, of North Plainfield, will address the body. Yesterday afternoon the members of the Commission present were former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, chairman, and School Director Floyd Woodhull, representing Plainfield, and Charles W. McCutchen and Elston M. French, representing North Plainfield, as well as Mayor Fisk, of this city, and Mayor Smalley, of North Plainfield.

G. W. Hayes Returns to Plainfield.

Frank M. Harder, who has been employed by J. Hervey Doane, the Park avenue jeweler, has resigned his position, and today he leaves for his former home at Williamsport, Pa. Later he will take a position as travelling salesman for a Rochester optical goods house. Mr. Harder's place will be taken by George W. Hayes, who was formerly with Mr. Doane, but who has since been located at Richmond, Va. He is expected to arrive here today or tomorrow.

James Stewart's Funeral.

With a gathering of relatives and friends in attendance, the funeral of James Stewart was held at his home on Almont place, yesterday afternoon. It was conducted by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue church. Interment was made in Hillside cemetery. Those who acted as pall bearers were George Schlereth, Andrew Stiglitz, A. D. Pope, Benjamin Moore, J. B. Higgins and J. S. Miller.

Wedded at St. Joseph's.

Miss Catherin Hoban, of Rockview avenue, and Joseph S. Hand, of Brooklyn, were married in St. Joseph's church Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Miller and was witnessed by a large gathering of friends. The attendants were Patrick J. Hand, of Brooklyn, and Miss Julia Sloyan, of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Hand will make their home in Brooklyn.

S. S. A. L. Organization.

Trinity church Sunday-school effected temporary organization of an athletic squad to represent it in the S. S. A. L. There are about twenty-five boys available for the organization. Edgar F. Shepard was made chairman and Arthur Williams secretary. A meeting will be held next Monday to prepare representation at the S. S. A. L. meet at the Y. M. C. A. February 1.

Henry Walden's Funeral.

The funeral of Henry Walden, of West Third street, was held at St. Mary's church, this morning, before a large gathering of friends. The mass was said by Rev. Father Delehanty. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery, the pall bearers being Morris Shannon, Patrick Breen, Frank Cullen, Edward Smith, Chas. McGinley and William Smith.

MANUFACTURERS DISCUSS TAX ASSESSMENTS

NO ACTION TAKEN BECAUSE OF SMALL ATTENDANCE—MAYOR FISK PRESENT.

The representatives of various manufacturing plants in Plainfield, who are dissatisfied with the tax assessments levied upon their plants by the county board met last night in Mayor Fisk's office to discuss the advisability of having an expert engaged to place a valuation on the several properties. This action was in compliance with a suggestion made by the County Board in a letter to Mayor Fisk.

David E. Titsworth, of the Potter Press Works, was chosen chairman and David T. Kenney secretary. After an hour's discussion it was decided to defer action until there was a larger attendance. Another meeting will be called by Secretary Kenney.

AGRICULTURAL BOARD WANTS BETTER SEED.

The State Board of Agriculture, at its closing session, adopted the resolution introduced Wednesday, petitioning the legislature to amend the limited franchise act to make it applicable only to counties of the first class. At the suggestion of the committee on resolutions there was eliminated from the measure as passed the part of the preamble setting forth that under exisiting legislation the right to carry freight is subject to such reasonable or unreasonable conditions as any municipality may impose, and stating that it is within the power of one municipality along the line to deprive all others of freight facilities by the imposition of unreasonable conditions.

The board also passed a resolution petitioning the New Jersey senators and members of congress to use their influence to direct that the $242,000 or a large proportion of it now expended by the United States department of agriculture for free seed distribution, be expended for the distribution of rare and valuable seeds from all parts of the world and for the benefit of the agriculture colleges and experiment stations of the various states.

The board passed the resolution petitioning the legislature to appropriate $100,000 for buildings and equipment at the agriculture experiment station at New Brunswick and $15,000 per year for maintenance.

AUTOIST WITH A HEART.

Picked Up Child Machine Hurt and Took Her to Doctor.

Beatrice New, seven years old, of No. 66 Burnet street, Newark, was run down and seriously injured yesterday afternoon at Aimes and Eagle streets, by an automobile driven by Raymond S. Joo, of Hedden Terrace. The girl was crossing the street at the time.

The driver of the car took the injured girl in his vehicle and hastened to the residence of Dr. David A. Kraker, in Burnet street, who cared for her injuries and sent her home.

MAN MADE HIS NEW LEGS.

Both Cut Off by Train, He Whittles Artificial Ones.

Bayonne, Jan. 22.—Henry Blare, of 31 Cottage street, Bayonne, who had both legs taken off on the Central Railroad some time ago, has whittled out a pair of wooden legs. Blare is a painter, and yesterday mounted a ladder as well as any one.

"There is no use in buying legs when I can cut them out just as well myself," said Blare. Last night the stork brought a ten-pound baby boy to the Blare home.

Boy Burglars Caught.

Four boy burglars was sentenced yesterday at New Brunswick to the State Home at Jamesburg. Mrs. Anna Warren reported Sunday to the police that her house on Commercial avenue had been robbed Thursday and $5.48 in money taken. Detective Dwyer soon rounded up John Saults, fifteen year;s Harry Collins, fifteen; Thomas Coleman, twelve, and William Keetch, fifteen. They admitted breaking a window catch. They had been tempted by seeing a bank bill protruding from under a dish which had been Mrs. Warren's savings bank.

Sorrow Over Priest's Transfer.

Much sorrow was expressed yesterday by the pupils in St. Peter's College and by the congregation of St. Peter's Roman Catholic church, Jersey City, when announcement was made of the transfer of Rev. Father John W. Fox, S. J., to Holy Cross College, Worcester, Mass. He will be succeeded by Rev. Edward J. McGrath, S. J. Father Fox had been many years president of St. Peter's College and the rector of St. Peter's church.

Short Strike of Teamsters.

Fifteen teamsters in the Street Cleaning Department of Jersey City struck yesterday for an advance of wages. The men had been paid 25 cents an hour for every hour of actual work. They insisted on a regular salary of $15 a week. To make their position stronger the teamsters joined the local Teamsters' Union. After listening to their grievances the Board of Street and Water Commissioners granted the increase. The teamsters will return to work today.

He was born at Washingtonville but moved away from here a number of years ago, locating at Milville. This is his first visit here since leaving Plainfield years ago.

CLOSED PORTALS.

The officers of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, will be installed tonight.

The Potter Press Works' Mutual Aid Society met Saturday night in Scheuer's Hall, on West Front street, with the president, George Dufford, in the chair. Francis L. Burke, the secretary, read the annual reports which showed a large membership and a good balance in the treasury. A committee of five was appointed by the chairman to revise the by-laws and make needed changes. An appropriation was made to a retired member of the society. Thomas Caleen, a past officer of the society, presented the members with a handsome ebony gavel. President Dufford accepted the gift in a short speech. The rest of the evening was devoted to vocal and piano solos and a general good time.

BRIBERY CHARGE REPLY

Dryden Issues Statement Regarding the $10,000 Bait For Ex-Assemblyman.

AN OLD TRICK, HE SAYS

Former Legislator of Ocean County Declares Erie's Lobbyist Offered Him Bribe in 1902.

This affidavit, charging an attempt at bribery in the election of John F. Dryden as United States Senator four years ago, was made public yesterday. It is signed by former Assemblyman George W. Holman, of Ocean county, and declares Thomas Palmer, a lobbyist for the Erie Railroad, was the offerer of the bribe. The affidavit is as follows:

"State of New Jersey,

"Ocean county, ss:

"George W. Holman, Jr., of full age, being duly sworn on his oath, saith that he was a member of the Legislature of New Jersey from Ocean county in 1902; that during said session there was an election for United States Senator and that John F. Dryden, of Newark, was a candidate for said Senatorship.

"And deponent saith that previous to the Republican caucus for said Senator one Thomas Palmer, who was known as the legislative agent of the Erie Railroad Company, approached this deponent and told him that he would give deponent five thousand dollars ($5,000) if he, deponent, would cast his vote in said caucus for the said John F. Dryden; that deponent laughed at said Palmer and told him that this deponent and the said Palmer could not do business along that line.

"Whereupon the said Palmer said he thought he could get deponent ten thousand ($10,000) if he would vote for the said Dryden for United States Senator; that this deponent told the said Palmer that he, the said Palmer, could not trade with this deponent and the said Palmer left him.

"GEORGE W. HOLMAN."

Sworn to and subscribed this 15th day of January, A. D., 1907, before me.

I. W. CARMICHAEL,
Master in Chancery.

Palmer died four years ago and Holman served only one term in the Legislature.

Senator Dryden issued last night the following statement in refutation of the allegation contained in the affidavit of Holman:

"For several weeks past there have been stories current that my opponents were preparing to make some sort of bribery charge and it has been strongly intimated that they might even go so far as to have some representative actually offer a bribe to a legislator with a view of injuring my candidacy. I did not think that they would resort to such an old campaign trick as to make a charge so transparently ridiculous as that contained in the affidavit purporting to have been made by Mr. Holman.

"The affidavit charges that one Thomas Palmer made an offer to Mr. Holman in my behalf. Since the publication of the affidavit I have been informed that Palmer was a professional legislative agent who died three or four years ago. It was the first time I had ever heard of him. He was not known to me and certainly was not authorized by me or by any of my friends to make a proposal of any kind to any legislator. At the time I was aware that Mr. Holman was pledged to the election of Gov. Griggs, and no one was ever authorized by me to solicit his vote.

"In my campaign for re-election I have emphatically and distinctly made my position clear, and warned my friends that under no circumstances would I countenance any attempt to improperly influence any legislator. As the recognized candidate of my party I made the fight at the primaries and at the polls last fall and won; and if my record as a Republican and a Senator does not warrant my re-election I do not want the office. The majority of the Republicans in the Legislature have decreed in caucus that I shall be elected, and I expect, of course, that the rule of the majority will continue."

Who Holman Is.

Toms River, N. J., Jan. 23.—Former Assemblyman George W. Holman, who represented this county in the House in 1902, and who made an affidavit some time ago which was made public yesterday that he was offered money to vote for Senator Dryden four years ago, is a man of standing and recitude. He could not be seen last night.

J. P. Owen's Condition.

John P. Owens, who was recently injured in an accident, is slowly improving. It will be a couple of months before he will be around again. His practice is being attended to by Francis J. Blatz.

UNIDENTIFIED BODY THAT OF PLAINFIELDER

SUCH IS THE BELIEF REGARDING NEGRO KILLED ON RAILROAD TRACK.

James Babbitt, of East Front street, has received a letter from Samuel P. Sutphen, of the undertaking firm of Dunster & Sutphen, Somerville, asking him to assist in identifying the body of a negro who was killed on the New Jersey Central tracks at Finderne, Sunday afternoon. The body is now at Dunster & Sutphen's morgue, Somerville, and unless identified by tomorrow afternoon, will be buried.

The undertaking firm gives the following description of the body and clothing:

Age, about twenty-five years; weight, about 165 pounds; height, five feet six inches. The body was clothed in a mixed plaid suit, black outside shirt, white underwear and high top rubber boots. The man also wore a cap size 7¼ and in the pockets were found a small mirror and two programmes of the New Plainfield theatre.

The fact that the theatre programmes were found in the man's pockets gives rise to the belief that he may be known in this city or may have resided here. Mr. Babbitt is now busily engaged in visiting the colored quarters of the city and borough acquainting the colored people with the facts in the hope of ascertaining who the dead man is.

DEPARTMENT OFFICERS VISIT LOCAL G. A. R. POST.

Commander Atkinson and Others Speak at Winfield Scott Post Affair.

Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., received an official visitation last night from Department Commander Alfred Atkinson, of Elizabeth, and several members of his staff. In addition there were past department officers present and the first part of the evening was largely devoted to speech-making and a general exchange of war experiences.

Department Commander Atkinson was accompanied by Senior Vice Commander Joseph Tents, of Paterson; Junior Vice Commander Alfred Winans, of Millville and Past Department Commanders James Atwood, of Trenton; William C. Smith, of this city, and Assistant Adjutant General Baldwin, of Elizabeth. Each of the visiting officers had something of interest to say. The local Post was complimented for its excellent showing. Commander Dr. Joseph F. Berg had charge of the programme.

After the Post opened, the members of the Women's Relief Corps were invited to join in the festivities and after the programme, the women served refreshments. Features of the entertainment were vocal and instrumental selections by Miss May Smith and vocal solos by Mrs. John Manley.

FIRE IN LUNCH WAGON.

Fred Meeker's Lunch Emporium Narrowly Escapes Destruction.

A can of gasolene in Fred Meeker's lunch wagon at North and Park avenues, sprung a leak shortly after 1 o'clock this morning. The fluid ignited from a lamp and inside of a few seconds the interior of the vehicle was a mass of flames. Meeker tried to extinguish them but without success and was forced to turn in an alarm from box 13.

The department responded quickly and killed the flames in short order. The inside of the wagon was scorched and blackened from end to end and will have to undegor a thorough overhauling. The damage will amount to about $50.

Phonograph Concert a Success.

The phonograph concert at the First Church of Christ, last night, given by Henry C. Brose and Elston Leonard, was attended by a large audience. At the completion of the programme coffee and cake was served by the women of the church. The proceeds were gratifying and will be added to the church fund.

Mrs. J. C. Akerman Surprised.

Mrs. J. C. Akerman, of 230 West Second street, was tendered a birthday surprise party, last night, by a large number of friends from Somerville, Raritan, Bound Brook, Neshanic and this city. Dancing was the feature of the evening and refreshments were served at midnight.

Civil War Talk.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, will speak on "Civil War Memories" at the North Plainfield High School next Friday. Dr. Chambliss was a chaplain in the Confederate army.

FEUD ENDS IN ASSAULT

Frankfort's Postmaster and His Family Attacked by the Breem Gang.

REVENGE THE MOTIVE

Sourland Hillside Stickler For Etiquette—Slight At a Social Function.

Great excitement has prevailed in the hamlet of Frankfort, near Somerville, yesterday, over the assault of its postmaster, F. M. Cox, by a band of Sourland Mountain desperadoes. Cox was knocked down and dragged out of his store. His wife and sister-in-law, who went to his assistance, were also roughly handled by the gang.

Mrs. Cox had two fingers of her right hand crushed and is a physical wreck today as the result of the assault. After Cox escaped from the band he ran a mile across country to the nearest telegraph office, where he spent the night in sending messages to the police of near-by towns for assistance.

Frankfort is in an isolated spot near the foot of the Sourland Mountains and no officials reached the place until an early hour t is morning. When County Detective Totten reached the scene Cox's assailants had fled.

The assault on Cox was the outcome of a feud between the Cox and Breen families of Frankfort. F. M. Cox and Max Breen are rival storekeepers of Frankfort, between whom there has long been bad blood. Cox some time ago caused Breen's arrest by preferring a charge of cruelty to dumb animals.

A little later Cox was held up one dark night on a country road by a man who seized his horse by the head. Cox drew his revolver and was about to shoot the hold-up man, who flashed a lantern on him from under his coat. By the light of the lantern Cox recognized the man as a friend of Breen's. The hold-up man treated the matter as a joke and Cox replaced his gun.

Later Cox was arrested on a charge of carrying concealed weapons, preferred by Breen. By a recent law enacted by the New Jersey Legislature the penalty for this offense is a heavy fine and imprisonment. This charge against Cox is still pending. The relations between the rival storekeepers were still further strained last Friday night when Breen had a house party at which all the countryside except the Cox family was invited.

Breen to make room for the horses of his guests took his own animals from his barn and placed them in Cox's stable just across the way. When Cox discovered the horses in his stable he locked the doors and refused to allow Breen to take out the animals when he called for them Saturday afternoon. Cox kept the animals in his possession until yesterday afternoon when Breen began a legal process to recover them.

The matter was finally adjusted last night by Breen paying Cox $3 for the board of his horses during the time that they had remained in the stable. This act of Cox's was an unpardonable breach of Sourland Mountain etiquette.

Breen told the story to a band of mountaineers who were seated on the cracker barrels around the big cylinder stove in his store last night. The band soon drifted over to Cox's store and one by one inquired for their mail. As Cox shoved the mail through a little window to them they berated him for his inhospitable treatment to his neighbor.

Cox scented trouble, and he stepped from the little post office inclosure to invite the band to leave the store, when he was knocked down and jumped on by members of the band, who took him by the heels and dragged him into the road, where they took turns in dancing upon him.

Mrs. Cox and her sister ran to the rescue. In the fight that followed they were accidentally knocked down and trodden on. The heavy boot of a mountaineer crushed Mrs. Cox's fingers and caused her to faint.

Cox from his position at the bottom of the heap called for his clerk, James Martin, to bring his gun from the store. Martin started on a run to obey the order, and was knocked down and jumped on as he was about to enter the store. Cox and his family finally escaped from the band and took refuge with their neighbors. Cox says he had $19 in his fob pocket of which the crowd relieved him before he escaped.

The men who committed the assault are well known. No arrests were made yesterday, but a general round-up is promised by the authorities today.

Public sentiment over the affair is about evenly divided between the Breen and Cox factions in Frankfort, and more trouble is expected to follow.

MARTINE IS SURPRISED

Didn't Expect any Votes In the Senatorial Balloting.

FEELS MUCH HONORED

He Thinks Dryden Will Be Re-Elected—Regards Him As Wholly Typical of the Republican Party.

Surprise was the chief emotion experienced by James E. Martine when he learned of the nine votes cast for him by Democratic legislators at the joint session for the Senatorial balloting. He had heard his name mentioned for the Democratic nomination early in the preliminary skirmishes, but he didn't expect to get any votes.

"The votes were wholly unexpected," said Mr. Martine to a Daily Press reporter today. "But the compliment is one I appreciate. I feel the honor of those nine votes highly. I enjoy them the more, because I have no room for worriment as to election or defeat. To have been voted for is all any Democrat appears to have any hope for in this legislature, and so my nine friends have given me about as much honor as I could well expect to receive at Trenton this winter."

"How does the Republican situation strike you?" Mr. Martine was asked.

"Oh, Mr. Dryden will be elected," was the unhesitating reply. "One thing the Republicans can say of Dryden—that he is typically Republican. He stands for all the Republican party stands for. Not for what the Colbyites stand for, of course, but what the Republican party, as a party, represents."

Mr. Martine took off his glasses and rubbed them vigorously. He looked through them with a dry twinkle in his eyes.

"Dryden stands for all the pre-eminent features of Republicanism. He stands for high tariff, for favoritism to corporations and for the use of money for campaign purposes. Yes, he stands for them all, and he is as logical a choice for Republicans to make as one can imagine."

REAL NICE FAMILY EXCITES A NEIGHBORHOOD

MADE A GOOD IMPRESSION BUT DUPED BOARDERS AND TRADESMEN.

Residents in the vicinity of Richmond street, near the Scott Press Works, are greatly upset over the sudden departure from their midst of what they supposed was a real nice family that came to their notice a few weeks ago. The members of it were unusually affable and the social atmosphere was warming up like a spring day when they went away as quietly as they came only a heap sight quicker.

It has since been learned that the family, without attracting notice from the neighbors, took in four boarders and, it is said, collected $6 from each one in advance. It is also stated they had piled up some accounts with the butcher, the baker and the groceryman and when they went away they carelessly forgot to square up. The tradesmen and boarders, who came home expecting to find full value for their money, reached the conclusion at the same time that they had been beautifully "stung."

No one knows what became of the family but it has been learned indirectly that the members are extending the glad hand to new neighbors over on Long Island.

CHILD CUT HAND.

Two-Year-Old Crashed Through Thin Glass Case.

Left by herself for the first time in her life, two-year-old Agnes Walker, daughter of Thomas A. Walker, of Clinton avenue, celebrated her freedom Monday afternoon by pushing her hand through a glass case. Her small hand was severely cut.

Mrs. Walker went downstairs for a moment, leaving Agnes apparently asleep on a rug on the floor. Agnes awoke before Mrs. Walker returned and toddled about in search of amusement. On a low stand was a stuffed parrot, protected by a thin glass case. Agnes could just see into the case. She had long been interested in the parrot, and she made up her mind to get it. The only way to reach it was to push through the glass, and Agnes did that without hesitation. The crash and her wail of pain were heard by Mrs. Walker as she was coming upstairs, and she hurried to the tot's assistance. Agnes' hand was cut in several different places, but not seriously enough for medical attendance.

LABOR NOW CONTENTED

Walking Delegates Idle Because of Harmonious Relations With Capital.

PAINTERS WANT RAISE

They Alone Have a Grievance and It Is Said That the Contention Will Be Settled Amicably.

According to the opinions of the leading contractors as well as journeymen in all branches of construction work in this city, there never has been a time when the relations between the bosses and their men have been more harmonious and the prospect for plenty of work so good. There is no apparent trouble in sight, except in the case of painters and tinners, who intend to ask for an increase in pay in the spring.

At present the painters and tinners each receive $3 a day and they want a raise of fifty cents a day, putting them on a basis of other trades of about the same standing. However, it is not believed that there will be any trouble over the request for more money, as an arbitration committee will probably adjust the matter to the satisfaction of the bosses and their men.

In all lines of trade, including carpenter, mason, bricklayers, lathers, painters, tinners and plumbers there is considerable work ahead and no causes for complaint have been heard. So peaceful are the relations at present that the journeymen are thinking seriously of abolishing the office of walking delegate, believing it to be an unnecessary expense. The interests of bosses and journeymen are so well provided for by good committees that they really take the place of a walking delegate in maintaining harmony. The question of abolishing this office is likely to come up in the near future.

Among the duties required of a walking delegate is that he shall visit weekly all jobs where union men are employed and keep in close personal touch with the work and know that the rules of the union are not being violated. The class of men in Plainfield is such that such inspection is hardly considered necessary and it is said that a majority of the men favor abolishing the office.

One thing that has had tendency to bring about harmonious relationship is the formation of the Master Mechanics' Association. When any trouble arises among the journeymen or the bosses a conference is called and before any strike is declared every effort is made to settle differences by arbitration. The success of this method was shown in the recent trouble which developed at Dr. A. W. Anderson's new building on Watchung avenue. The journeymen and the bosses are well organized and their interests are not permitted to suffer.

TOLD OF TRIP ABROAD.

Rev. Mr. Thompson Addresses Men's Club of Monroe Avenue Church.

Rev. Mr. Thompson, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, Bound Brook, gave a delightful lecture before the Men's Club of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, last night. He gave a sketch of his recent trip abroad and described in particular his visits to Ireland and Italy. He told in an entertaining way of the curious customs of the people in these countries, which was greatly enjoyed by all. His lecture was interspersed with many amusing incidents.

Following the address a fine musical programme was furnished by Joseph Sattels' orchestra of three pieces. The rest of the evening was spent in a social way, games affording a pleasant diversion.

Refused Hospital Treatment.

A young woman who described herself as Mary Cassidy, 25 years old, a servant, was reported to Overseer of the Poor Aleck Ayers, last week, from the house of a colored family on West Second street. Mr. Ayers found her suffering from grip in squalid surroundings, but she objected to attendance. The colored woman in charge of the house wanted her removed, but the young woman refused to leave. Arrangements were made to have her sent to the hospital, but she would not consent to go. She was not sick enough to worry about, and the overseer dropped the case. She appeared averse to investigation. No particular explanation of her presence in a colored family was given.

Mrs. Kelley In Brooklyn.

Mrs. Florence Kelley, secretary of the Consumers' League, who aroused Hugh F. Fox to a defence of New Jersey by strictures on the State child labor laws in an address at the Monday Afternoon Club, will speak on the same subject before the Congregational Club, of Brooklyn, next Monday night. Mrs. Kelley has not replied publicly to Mr. Fox.

THIRTY DAYS IN JAIL FOR STEALING CHICKENS

LUCIUS TAYLOR AMONG THOSE INDICTED BY GRAND JURY.

The Union County Grand Jury finished its labors this morning and returned seventeen indictments to the court, among those indicted being Lucius G. Taylor, colored, who was accused of stealing two chickens from Mulford Cole, of West Front street. Taylor admitted having taken the two chickens but claimed he was justified as Mr. Cole owed him some money. The court sentenced him to thirty days in the county jail.

The Grand Jury to whom was referred the matter of investigating the acts of the Elizabeth Board of Excise, regarding the removal of screens from the windows and doors of saloons in Elizabeth, reported that the board had adopted a resolution calling for the removal of the screens.

The court instructed the Grand Jury to investigate the matter and if it was found that the Board of Excise had not notified the saloonkeepers concerning the provisions of the law, that body was indictable.

F. O. E.'S NEW OFFICERS TAKE THEIR PLACES.

Installation Conducted Last Night by District Deputy R. P. Kampf.

At last night's meeting of Plainfield Aerie, No. 866, B. O. E., the following recently elected officers were installed by District Deputy Past Worthy President Rudolph P. Kampf:

Past worthy president, Michael J. Higgins; worthy president, Daniel V. Force; worthy vice presidents, Sylvester Abernest; worthy chaplain, Frank Hart; worthy conductor, Fred Shepherd; worthy inside guardian, John Vardon; worthy outside guardian, J. H. Adams; worthy secretary, H. G. Adams; worthy treasurer, A. G. Adams; worthy physician, Dr. A. H. Dundon; worthy trustees, R. P. Kampf, Thomas Kane and Hugh Reilly. Following the installation, speeches were made by the officers and a social time was enjoyed. On assuming his seat, last night, Worthy President Force begins his third term as the head of the aerie.

In the regular order of business, the committee having plans for the Eagles' ball at Saengerbund Hall on February 8 in charge, reported that the decorations would be a feature and that an attempt would be made to eclipse anything in this line that has ever been seen in Plainfield. The advance sale of tickets indicates a record-breaking attendance.

APPOINTED RECEIVER.

J. H. Crane Named to Take Charge of Match Company's Affairs.

Vice Chancellor Bergen, of Trenton, appointed Counsellor J. Henry Crane, of Park avenue, receiver of the Empire Match Company, a concern which operates a match factory at Bound Brook. The suit in which the appointment was made was brought by Counsellor George W. Anderson, deputy surrogate of Somerset county, on behalf of Abraham Gro and others. The company was represented by W. S. Angleman, who stated to the court that the debts of the company amount to nearly $9,000.

Mr. Angleman suggested the appointment of Mr. Crane as receiver, and Mr. Anderson made no objection on behalf of the complainants. Vice Chancellor Bergen in making the appointment fixed the bond to be given by the receiver at $2,000.

Generous Contributions to Charity.

The King's Daughters who are in charge of the Day Nursey work at 444 West Third street, appreciate the generous contributions given to the charity at the first anniversary held last week and find that the dry groceries, as well as the money received through the silver offering and several checks will help greatly in carrying on the work. The Day Nursery is finding new friends constantly and much encouragement is given to the workers.

Dog Poisoners at Work.

A dog poisoner has made his appearance on Pearl street and as a result the pets of four families in that section have been killed. The animals in every instance were valuable and the owners have asked the borough police to help them in finding the miscreant.

Mother Goose Bazaar.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Grace M. E. church is planning to hold a Mother Goose Bazaar at the church on February 21 and 22. All the familiar characters of Mother Goose and her large family will be represented in true style.

Greenbrook Council, Royal Arcanum, will install officers on Monday night, January 28, and in connection with this there will be an informal programme.

2 BALLOTS, DEADLOCK!

Dryden Stills Lacks the Five Votes to Secure His Re-election to the U. S. Senate.

LAWMAKERS ADJOURN

No More Balloting Until Next Tuesday—Ackerman and Perkins, of Union, Vote As They Did Yesterday.

United States Senator John F. Dryden is no nearer being re-elected than he was yesterday although two more ballots were cast today in joint session at Trenton. The result was that he lacked five votes of obtaining the necessary majority. He got thirty-six votes in each of the two ballots taken today; the same number as on the two ballots taken yesterday.

The results of the first ballot in joint session shortly after the two bodies convened at noon follow:

John F. Dryden, Republican	36
Mahlon Pitney, Republican	2
John W. Griggs, Republican	6
Woodrow Wilson, Democrat	10
James E. Martine, Democrat	6
Gottfried Krueger, Democrat	5
Edwin L. Stevens, Democrat	16

Total vote, 81; necessary to elect, 41.

A second vote was taken with this result:

John F. Dryden, Republican	36
Mahlon Pitney, Republican	2
John W. Griggs, Republican	6
Woodrow Wilson, Democrat	15
James E. Martine, Democrat	6
Edwin L. Stevens, Democrat	16

Total vote, 81; necessary to elect, 41.

On both ballots Senator Dryden got 12 votes in the Senate and 24 in the House; Griggs 2 in the Senate and 4 in the House and Pitney 1 in the Senate and 1 in the House.

This was the way that the Senators cast their vote on the first ballot: Ackerman for Griggs; Colby for Pitney; Gebhardt for Martine; Hinchcliffe for Stevens; Minturn for Stevens; Price for Wilson; Silzer for Stevens; Wakelee for Griggs; Cornish for Wilson; rest for Dryden.

In the House the vote was the same as yesterday excepting that on the first ballot five Democrats, Bachus, Brenuic, Corish, Groel and Brady voted for Krueger. On the second ballot these five turned their votes over to Wilson.

While James E. Martine, the "farmer-orator," did not run as well today as yesterday, something will be sprung probably Tuesday that will boost his vote considerably, it is said.

The Senate and House met in joint session in the Assembly chamber at noon. President of the Senate Minch was chosen as presiding officer by an unanimous vote. The clerk of the Senate was named as clerk and the clerk of the House as his assistant.

It had been agreed in the Senate that no nominating speeches were to be made today, but the House was unaware of this and some trouble ensued. After a short debate, the House readily agreed to the Senate's position but not until after Barber had made a "break" by attempting to make a ringing campaign speech in seconding the nomination of Mr. Dryden.

When nominations were in order, State Senator Colby presented the name of Mahlon Pitney, of Morris county. Senator Joseph Frelinghuysen, of Somerset county, named John F. Dryden, and it was at this juncture that Mr. Barber in seconding the nomination launched forth in a laudatory address. He was stopped in short order. James E. Martine was placed in nomination by Senatod Gebhardt. Senator Minturn named Edwin L. Stevens and Senator Cornish, Woodrow Wilson.

After the two ballots had been taken and the presiding officer had declared that there had been no election, Senator Hillery, of Morris, made a motion to arise.

Senator Ernest R. Ackerman stood by John W. Griggs as he did yesterday, following out his announcement made some months ago that if the position was to go to a North Jersey man, Mr. Griggs would be his choice.

Praising his action in remaining out of the caucus to choose a Republican candidate for the United States Senate Senator Ackerman yesterday

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN.

Plumbing, gas fixtures and a heating plant have been put in one of the new Hardingham houses on Mountain View Terrace by A. S. Giles.

As a result of too strenuous playing, Charles Thomson, Jr., is detained from school. He strained one of the arteries in his chest.

It is expected that the revival meetings at the Methodist church will continue all month. Interest in them still holds.

Duer Randolph of New London, Conn., a former resident here, has returned home after a stop with Dunellen friends.

Sanford Ramsey has returned to his home in Bound Brook after a stop with his sister, Mrs. S. C. Fisher.

The lavatory installed at the rear of the Holy Innocents' church has been completed and is ready for use.

W. L. Larrabee paid $550 for the Stevens lot, on North avenue, at the administrator's sale last week.

A. J. Hamley's account as station agent have been audited by the railroad accountants.

Mrs. Herbert L. Pierce has returned from a stop with friends in New York.

Edward Hellick has been made engineer of the "pusher" in the Central yard.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred VanMirs are happy over the arrival of a daughter.

Mrs. William Ackerman entertained the G. E. Club lasf night.

John Eick has succeeded A. J Hamley as station agent.

Friendship Circle will meet this afternoon.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Fanwood Council, R. A., held its semi-monthly meeting last night in the Library rooms. Supervising District Deputy Jessup Van Vliet, of Newark, was present and installed the newly elected council officers. During the good of the order the council members enjoyed cigars and speechmaking. The officers installed were: Regent, William H. Carter, orator, Frederick H. Boe; chaplain, William R. Buckley; guide, William S. Corey; warden, John Bornmann; collector, William B. Noble; sentry, Samuel Hollingsworth; past regent, James B. Guttridge; trustee, William Rapp.

Excelsior Hook and Ladder Company held its annual meeting Monday night in the company parlors. The report of President John Robison showed the company to be in a flourishing condition. The annual election of officers held, resulted in the reelection of the same officers that had guided Excelsior during 1906, namely, President, John Robison; foreman, Philip Jahn; first assistant, John Z. Hatfield; second assistant, William Reynolds; treasurer, William H. Lake; secretary, Samuel MacCauley.

William Jamison is able to be about again after a week's illness, being detained at home with a severe attack of the grip.

Mrs. Joseph Schwalbach, who underwent a serious operation Saturday at Muhlenberg Hospital, is doing very nicely, it is reported.

John B. Stillgers, who has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Stillger, has returned to his home in Brooklyn.

Mrs. Charles Newell Flanders, of East Front street, has been detained at home for a week suffering from a severe cold.

"The Embassy Ball" is the attraction tonight at the New Plainfield theatre.

The Township Committee meets Friday night in the town rooms.

NORTH BRANCH.

Rev. T. Walker Jones, of Brooklyn, formerly pastor of the Reformed church at Bedminster, has been calling on old friends in that place.

A sociable, under the management of the Ladies' Association, was held in the chapel of the Reformed church, in this place, last evening.

Mrs. Arthur A. Bergen, of Bound Brook, has been visiting her sister, Mrs. H. Bert Ten Eyck, for a few days this week.

Miss Rose Shea, of Bedminster, left last week for an extended visit to relatives in Newark and New York.

Miss Jennie Dilts, of North Branch Depot, has been spending a few days with Miss Mary Van Fleet, in this place.

Misses Elsie and Gwendolyn Ingrahm, of Bedminster, have returned from a visit in Plainfield.

Miss Jennie Jamison, of New York, has been spending a few days with relatives at Milltown.

There will be no services in the Reformed church in this place next Sunday morning.

Ralph Van Pelt has returned from a visit to his son, Ralph W. Van Pelt, in New York.

Miss Bessie Moore, of Pluckemin, has been a guest of friends in Morristown.

BOUND BROOK.

William Connors, Jr., and Edward Lovering, of South Bound Brook, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. Connors' aunt, Mrs. Julia Connors, in John street, Plainfield.

After spending a week at the home of her sister, Mrs. Andrew Compton, of Pluckemin, Mrs. Anna Hodge has returned to her home in Main street, South Bound Brook.

The Misses Nellie and Mamie Heagney, who have been visiting friends in Passaic, have returned to their home in Franklin street, South Bound Brook.

Miss Jennie Sutton, of High Bridge, is being entertained at the home of her aunt, Mrs. John H. Staats, in Main street, South Bound Brook.

Mrs. Kaziah Corzat, of South Bound Brook, is spending some time with friends at Bedminster.

Mr. and Mrs. William Frank, of Bound Brook, spent Sunday with friends in Plainfield.

WESTFIELD.

An effort is being made by a combination of Westfield and Plainfield business men to establish a national bank in Westfield. J. Herbert Case, of the Plainfield Trust Company, is doing the organizing. A national bank was organized in Westfield about fifteen years ago, but was turned into the Westfield Trust Company three years ago. The trust company has been prosperous and many of the business men of the town doubt the advisability of starting another banking institution in the town.

Bertha Schneiper, a servant in the employ of George Davis, of Central avenue, has been taken to the Elizabeth General Hospital for treatment for Bright's disease.

A general meeting of the Westfield Fire Department members was held at headquarters last night to take up the organization of a relief association.

A meeting of the Republican executive committee of Westfield has been called for next Friday night at the town room.

Steals $5,000 Truckload.

New York, Jan. 23.—Search was begun yesterday by the Brooklyn police for a thief who drove away in a truck which contained a shipment of shoes and drugs valued at nearly $5,000, owned by Mrs. Charles F. Mahland. She conducts a business in the Wallabout Market, and yesterday sent Joseph Mohen, a driver, with the consignment of goods to the Morgan line pier. In the truck were eighteen cases of shoes, to be delivered to merchants in Texas and California, and seventeen cases of drugs, consigned to the Southern Drug Company, of Huston, Texas. Mohen left his truck at Fulton and York streets to get a meal, and when he returned to the street the truck was gone. The wagon, stripped of its contents, was found several hours later at Clermont and Myrtle avenues.

Wave Interrupted Bridge Game.

New York, Jan. 23.—While playing bridge in the first cabin of the Red Star liner Zeeland, which arrived in port yesterday from Antwerp, a number of passengers were suddenly hurled from their seats and across the cabin by a great wave, which Isidore Dubois, the purser, described as at least thirty feet high. None of the passengers was hurt seriously. The vessel encountered heavy seas and came into port covered with ice.

POLICE SAY THEY ARE DRAWING NET TOGETHER.

Circumstances, Authorities Claim, Point Closer to Suspect as Murderer of Man Killed.

Califon, Jan. 23.—Circumstances, the police say, point closer and closer to John E. Schuyler, of Vernoy, who was arrested and lodged in the Hunterdon county jail Sunday, as the slayer of Manning Riley, thirty-eight years old, of Parker, here late Saturday night. Evidence has been obtained, Coroner Eugene Hoffman says, that the instrument used to cause the deadly blow was carried by Schuyler on his way to where the body was found and that he was seen returning from the spot within thirty feet distance.

He later visited the hotel and, it is said, marks of blood on his hands were noticed by two or three persons. When Prosecutor Large and Deputy Sheriff Dilts examined his clothing Sunday afternoon, they say spots of blood were on his hat and sweater. The statement made to the prosecutor by Schuyler has been contradicted in many particulars.

Dr. Maywell S. Simpson, of Middle Valley, who viewed the body of Riley, has filed a sworn statement, which in part follows:

"In my professional opinion the injury was produced by an angular and blunt weapon, struck with great force from behind, hitting the head in direction from the left ear toward the right shoulder. The wound was sufficient to produce immediate unconsciousness and death within a short time."

It was reported here today that Schuyler had been to Morristown Saturday, withdrew his deposits from a bank there and that his intentions were to go West yesterday.

Riley's body still remains in Apgar's hall. It will be turned over to his brother, Alexander Riley, of Parker, who will arrange for burial.

THE CARE OF SHOES.

Don't put on patent leather shoes without first warming them.

Don't wear any kind of cold leather without rubbing or warming it.

Don't neglect to put shoe trees in boots, when not in use.

Don't oil leathers unless they become stiff.

Don't make the mistake of putting a calf skin polish on box, velour or Russia leather, and vice versa.

Don't let light-colored suedes become too soiled before cleaning.

Don't fear to use warm water and soap to cleanse leathers.

Patent leather boots cannot be too carefully treated during cold weather if they are to be kept from crackling. They should always be placed in a comparatively warm room, though not so near heat that they will dry out for this kind of leather warps quickly.

Don't forget, in addition to warming a pair of patents before wearing, that they should be gently kneaded with the fingertips to make sure the leather is soft and pliable and will not crack when put on the feet. Care should be taken to have the feet warm, too, for many such leathers that are well heated before being placed on the feet crack afterwards because the flesh is cold.

MRS. WILLIAMSON GETS APPOINTMENT.

She Is Made Probation Officer of Middlesex County.

New Brunswick, Jan. 23.—Judge Theodore B. Booraem yesterday appointed Mrs. Emily E. Williamson, of Elizabeth, the probation officer of Union county, as probation officer of Middlesex county, at the same time relieving Constable Cornelius Buckelew, who has held the office for years, of further duty. Buckelew was appointed by Judge Strong soon after the passage of the law providing for the appointment of probation officers. Judge Booraem made the following statement regarding the appointment:

"It has been my wish ever since I was made judge and began to be acquainted with the duties of my office, to have the probation system of the county of Middlesex organized upon scientific lines, as suggested by the experience of those engaged in similar work in other parts of the county. The need of such organization has been particularly emphasized to my mind by the increasing number of juvenile offenders who have been brought before me for commitment to the reform schools. These schools are institutions thoroughly well equipped and managed, and are doing excellent work in their own sphere, yet I cannot help feeling that to send a child to either of these institutions in some degree throws upon him the stigma of crime.

"If the young people of this community who have been led into crime can only have their energies turned in the right direction by influences surrounding them in their homes and among their playmates, without being sent to a reformatory institution, I believe it to be far better for society as well as for the children. It is certainly wiser and less expensive to save children than to punish criminals, and, at the best, incarceration of children in a reformatory institution is regarded by the public as in some measure a punishment for crime.

"With these ideas in mind I have availed myself of the opportunity to appoint Mrs. Emily E. Williamson probation officer of the county of Middlesex, she having agreed to accept this position and to bring to it all her large and wide experience in reformatory and charitable work. Her labors will not, of course, be limited to the children, but the saving of children is, to my mind, the most important and far-reaching feature of the work that is to be done.

"Mrs. Williamson expects to organize her office on a fairly scientific basis and to keep those paroled in her custody under strict surveillance, so that the court at all times will be able to ascertain what results are being accomplished in the way of reformation."

PERSONAL.

Mrs. G. R. Vanderhoef, of West Front street, is detained at home by illness.

Hugh H. MacMurray, of West Seventh street, has recovered from an attack of the grip.

J. H. Staats, of Chatham, has been visiting his son, J. A. Staats, of the Hotel Kensington.

Mrs. Andrew Cox, of West Second street, is able to be out again after a few days' illness.

Mrs. Alexander Milne, formerly of North Plainfield, is stopping for the winter at Truell Court.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dayton, of Mariners place, are parents of a daughter born to them a few days ago.

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Reynolds, who have spent the past month south, have returned to their home on Westervelt avenue.

Mrs. Charles Swift and son, Russell, of Grand Island, Nebraska, are visiting Mrs. Swift's aunt, Mrs. A. Vanderbeek, of East Front street.

Miss Mary Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Thompson, of Rockview terrace, has gone to New Orleans, La., where she will spend the winter.

Oliver B. Leonard, of Arlington avenue, has purchased the house corner of Mercer and Sycamore avenues, now occupied by G. L. Howard. Mr. Leonard is planning to remove to the borough in the spring.

Clyde Doane, of East Seventh street, who fractured his leg several weeks ago, while playing basketball, is improving rapidly and is now able to attend school. He is still obliged to use crutches in walking.

Mrs. H. Worthington Paige, of Oneonta, N. Y., is visiting her mother, Mrs. D. J. Yerkes, of Grove street. Mrs. Paige and her husband, Dr. Paige, recently moved from New York to Oneonta, where he will practice medicine.

Rev. John A. VanNest, of Ridgewood, called on his former college mate, Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, yesterday. He also spent a portion of the day with Rev. A. C. McCrea and the night at the home of his friend, Peter Garretson, of Sherman avenue.

—The committee on jail inspection from the Board of Freeholders, of which Freeholder J. Hervery Doane, of this city, is a member, will make its first inspection of the county jail at Elizabeth, this afternoon.

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet tomorrow night and initiate several members.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Lawrence D'Orsay, the star of the great success, "The Earl of Pawtucket," will appear at the New Plainfield theatre tonight in Augustus Thomas' comedy "The Embassy Ball." Mr. D'Orsay has been provided with one of the strongest supporting companies of his career and the production has been made complete in every detail.

"Deserted at the Alter," a great American play by one of the kind that some managers put out for one season to catch the dollars and then sends some other catch-penny affair out for the next. "Deserted at the Alter" is now in its fourth year, and will return year after year and will never wear out its welcome. To do this a play must have merit, and this "Deserted at the Altar" surely has. From the rise of the curtain on the first act until its final fall there is not a dull moment. Tears, laughter and cheers predominate throughout. This play was written to please all classes of theatregoers—rich and poor alike. It will be at the New Plainfield theatre Friday night.

"The Girl Patsy," which comes to the New Plainfield theatre on Saturday afternoon and night, may be listed as an important dramatic novelty. The author, Jane Mauldin Feigl is by no means a tryo in this line of endeavor. She has written no less than a half dozen plays, several of which have been successful from the Broadway point of view, and at least one that is still on the road and proving a big money maker. In "The Girl Patsy" Mrs. Fiegl has chosen a theme that is capable of artistic development. The scenes are laid at an exclusive summer resort near New York city. The story deals with a young artist who chances upon a little waif of a girl in the woods and uses her as a model in many a rustic sketch. How these sketches ultimately lead to establishing the girl's identity as a person of some importance in the world makes a very absorbing play. Several well known names appear in the cast. Among them are June Mathis, Grace Cahill, Lida Merab, Jane Tree, Marie Haynes, Alice Knowland, W. Clinton Hamilton, Morris Burr, John Sutherland, France Herblin, David Herblin, Harry Griffin, Chester Guyer, Charles Soest, M. R. Schwerin and William Gough. The piece is well mounted and shows excellent stage management.

Storrs, southeasterly side East Third street, 210 feet northeasterly of Richmond street, Plainfield, $1.

Isaac N. Wyckoff et ux. to Lottie A. VanFleet, southwesterly side Monroe avenue, 195 feet northwesterly of West Seventh street, Plainfield, $1; Alfred I. Smalley et ux. to John H. Kitchen, southerly side Third place, corner J. B. Bonnell, Plainfield, $1; Edward S. F. Randolph to Annie E. Murphy, lot 78, "Map of Central Park," Plainfield, $1; Wm. H. Cooper et ux. to Annie R. Tull, lots 95, 96, 160, 162, 163, same map, Plainfield, $5.

Annie R. Tull to Annie R. Murphy, same as above, $5.

Bailey Re-elected.

Austin, Texas, Jan. 23.—Joseph Weldon Bailey was yesterday re-elected United States Senator from Texas after the hardest and most intense political conflict ever waged in the Lone Star State. The enemies of Mr. Bailey fought to the last gasp, and were still fighting when the noon hour arrived, which, under the constitution, signalled the balloting for Senator. Last night Texas was red with bonfires kindled in celebration of the victory. The enemies of Mr. Bailey are hard to find, while his friends are everywhere in evidence. Bailey received 108 votes out of a possible 164, and while this victory seems small at first when it is recalled that there was no real opposing candidate, yet it is large considering the personal and political enemies of Senator Bailey who are to be found in Texas.

Rhode Island Undecided.

Providence, R. I., Jan. 23.—The Rhode Island Legislature remains in deadlock on the question of selecting a United States Senator to succeed Senator George Peabody Wetmore. Two ballots were taken yesterday, but they showed no material change from those of last week. Col. Goddard still leads, with 41 votes; Col. Colt received 38, Senator Wetmore 31 and former Governor Utter 1. Fifty-six votes are necessary for a choice.

Slashed by Jealous Lover.

New York, Jan. 23.—Slashed in the face with a razor by a discarded sweetheart, who was determined that her beauty should never again attract a rival, Loretta Arnhour, sixteen years old, of No. 921 Atlantic avenue, Brooklyn, broke away from her assailant last night. She ran in terror more than a mile through the streets and then fell unconscious. The man escaped. The girl said he was Juan Lerandero.

GERMS CAUSE DYSPEPSIA

IF YOU DON'T KILL THE DISEASE GERMS THEY WILL KILL YOU. PEPSOIDS DRIVE THE GERMS OUT OF THE STOMACH AND REBUILDS IT. WRITE FOR A FULL SIZED BOTTLE—FREE.

A noted physician of Pittsburg, Pa., in a recent letter to Dr. Oidman says:

"In your prescription known as 'Pepsoids' you have given the medical world the greatest and most valued discovery in medicine of the present century. You have at last solved the problem that has baffled the skill of the best physicians of recent times, how to cure permanently all Acute or Chronic Stomach Diseases known as Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Catarrh of the Stomach and Digestive Weakness. I have used your prescription, 'Pepsoids,' in hundreds of cases without a single failure. I attribute the success of your treatment mainly to the fact that the disease germs of the stomach cannot resist Pepsoids. Your theory that most Stomach Diseases are brought about by multitudes of nefarious disease-breeding germs must be correct, judging from the remarkable results attained from the use of your 'Pepsoids.' I consider 'Pepsoids' the best and most valuable remedy yet discovered, for the treatment of stubborn stomach ailments."

Pepsoids cure Dyspepsia and all Stomach Diseases, in a new way, by repairing the wornout lining of the Stomach and at the same time, destroy all disease-breeding germs. Dyspepsia and the worst forms of Stomach Disorders once cured in this way never returns.

Pepsoids are sold at drug stores at 50c. a bottle on an absolute guarantee or money refunded.

If you have not used Pepsoids before, we will send you a 50-cent bottle FREE. Send us your name and address and you will receive promptly, a full sized bottle.

You do not obligate yourself to pay a cent. All we ask, after Pepsoids have cured or greatly benefitted you is, that you recommend Pepsoids to your friends. Try Pepsoids to-day—they will cure you. The Vio Chemical Co., Chicago, Ill.

The First Baptist church will hold a regular business meeting tonight.

The Young Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will meet Friday afternoon and present an entertaining programme.

Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor, will address the Young People's Association meeting at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church Friday night.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the First Presbyterian church will give the annual reception to the pastor, Rev. C. E. Herring, tomorrow night.

Until further notice, the parish house of St. Stephen's church will be closed on Sundays until immediately after the 4 o'clock vesper service in the church.

Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Cubberley and children, of East Sixth street, will leave this week for New York State, where Mr. Cubberley has accepted a call to the pastorate of a Baptist church.

The entertainment committee of the Epworth League of the First M. E. church, of which Miss Helen Whitney is the chairman, is planning an elaborate programme for the February meeting.

The women of St. Stephen's church who have been preparing a modern cook book have about completed their task and it will soon be ready for distribution among the members of the parish.

The Sunshine Mission Band of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will hold a sewing meeting in the chapel this afternoon at 4 o'clock. Members are requested to bring pictures for the scrap books.

The Women's Home Mission Circle of the Park Avenue Baptist church met at the home of Mrs. Charles F. Dayton, on East Sixth street, yesterday, and spent the time sewing for a missionary box to be sent out later.

The Brotherhood of the First M. E. church will hold a business and social meeting Friday night to complete arrangements for the illustrated lecture to be given Saturday night by Commander Robert E. Peary, on "Farthest North."

Among the valuable acquisitions to the equipment at St. Stephen's church parish house is a large lantern suitable for picture work, it being the intention of the rector, Rev. A. S. Peck, to arrange for a number of entertainments.

The sewing meeting of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will be held Friday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock. All contributions for the missionary boxes should be brought in at that time.

Among the events you do not want to forget is the annual turkey supper to be given by the Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church, on Thursday and Friday nights, February 7 and 8, from 6 to 9 o'clock. A fine supper will be served for a nominal sum.

Miss Blanche Miller, of St. Stephen's church, has presented the church with a handsome oil painting to be hung in the reading room at the parish house. It is a picture of the nave of Christ church, Oxford, England. Mrs. Godwin has also presented a number of fine books for the reading room.

During the past month the prizes awarded to the members of the Junior Auxiliary Society of St. Stephen's church, for regular attendance, were received by the following: Margaret Bowe, Hazel Runyon, Bertha Knowlton, Gertrude Knowlton, Lucy Johnson, Jennie Bremble, Clementine Bremble, Annie Smith.

Under the auspices of St. Faith's Guild of St. Stephen's church, an entertainment, "Ye Olde Time Synging Skule," will be given at the parish house tomorrow night. All the pupils will be in costume and the programme will include old time songs and melodies. A week from tomorrow night the Plainfield Band will give a concert at the parish house.

Judge Runs Two Courts.

New Brunswick, Jan. 23.—Circuit Court Judge Lloyd introduced an innovation Monday by running two courts at one time. The lawyers in the suit of Charles Winders against Charles Parker wished to close their cases with the summing up for the jury. Another case was ready for argument. As the addresses in the Winders-Parker case were solely for the jury, Judge Lloyd went to the rear courtroom. He left the door open, so that he was in touch with the main courtroom, but heard the argument in the second case and disposed of it. Then he returned to the main courtroom and charged the jury in the Winders-Parker case briefly, from the evidence.

All Ready for College Smoker.

Everything is in readiness for the college smoker to be held at the Casino tomorrow night and the committee is planning to outshine last year's affair. The smoker will begin at 8:30 o'clock and the speeches a half hour later. Dr. B. VanD. Hedges will be the toastmaster. Among the speakers will be Dr. F. C. Ard, Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh, W. B. Tyler and Owen H. Fleming. Supper will be served at 10:30 o'clock. There will be plenty of good music, including a double quartette from Yale and the famous Eureka Quartette from New York, singers and dancers.

Fred Armstrong, who has been quite ill at his home on Duer street, continues to improve.

ACKERMAN MISQUOTED.

"Senator Ackerman," declares an exchange, "has unequivocally announced that he will never vote for Dryden." Just where this startling information was obtained would be hard to discover. Certainly the Senator, himself, never gave utterance to any such sweeping assertion and anyone who knows the man would be convinced that no one is authorized to speak for him. The truth is that the representative of Union county in the upper house does his own thinking and is very guarded in whatever he has to say, particularly on political matters. That's why the "bosses" don't like him.

It will be recalled that the first signs of any opposition among the recognized regulars was when Mr. Ackerman issued a signed statement setting forth that the result of the election convinced him that Governor Stokes, as a representative of South Jersey, was the logical candidate and that in the event of the office coming to North Jersey his choice would be former Attorney General Griggs. Subsequently, he explained that in opposing Mr. Dryden he was carrying out the wishes of the people of Union county and more particularly of its Republican voters. His stand was the only proper one for him to take for no matter what the merits or demerits of the Senatorial controversy might be, it can not be denied that the Republican Equal Tax League is right when it declares that Union county is overwhelmingly opposed to the caucus nominee.

There is no ground, however, for any logical conclusion such has been drawn by the paper in question. Circumstances may arise where the Senator should feel it his duty to cast a vote for Mr. Dryden. For instance, if his single vote would decide the contest between the Newarker and a Democrat, it is reasonable to suppose that he will prefer a Republican to represent New Jersey at Washington. Hence he would probably be impelled to favor Dryden. But so long as there is the slightest chance of defeating the Republican caucus candidate, it may be taken as an accepted fact that Ernest R. Ackerman will stubbornly oppose him in the joint caucus.

HIDDEN SALOONS.

In an address before a church temperance society last night, Rt. Rev. Dr. David Greer, of New York, championed an excise measure for the Empire State which would even be more drastic than the Bishops' laws of New Jersey. From the tone of his remarks it is quite evident that the prelate has been in communication with his Episcopal brethren in New Jersey after whom, together with the Catholic bishops, our present excise statutes were named. The Bishops' laws only provide for a clear, unobstructed view of the interior of saloons from the street after business hours and on Sundays, but Dr. Greer believes that the screens should be removed at all times. His contention is exactly that advocated by the four New Jersey bishops when the matter was under discussion in the Legislature. An amendment or change, however, was made in the original bills as a sort of compromise between the liquor interests and those advocating the most stringent sort of exercise regulations.

It is safe to say, nevertheless, that the day is not far off when the screens will be removed and the business conducted just as any other is at the present time, that is in clear view of the public gaze. Dr. Greer's argument along this line is interesting, especially when he says: "If the saloon business is legitimate and the business is recognized by the law as such, why then should it not be carried on openly? We are demanding that the business of our trusts and corporations should be conducted openly, so why should this business, which the law recognizes as such, be carried on behind screened doors?"

MAYOR FURBER, OF RAHWAY, RESIGNS

REQUEST THAT RESIGNATION TAKE EFFECT IMMEDIATELY.

James J. Furber presented his resignation as Mayor at last night's meeting of the Rahway Common Council, and asked that the resignation take effect immediately. The matter was laid on the table.

Mayor Furber asked to be relieved of official duties, after reading his annual message. In the communication the Mayor recommended the installing of signal stations for the police department and that the payment of delinquent taxes be enforced. He referred to the fact that in his message last year he predicted the present overcrowded condition of the city schools, and that citizens were now having a good water supply.

It was directed that the tax receiver have the names of all in arrears for taxes published, and that the Water Board turn over all money to the Rahway City Treasurer, as required by law. The committee on fire and water recommended that the Franklin Engine Company be disbanded. The matter was referred.

Thomas M. Potter, in a communication, said that if the Council did not have an alleged floor nuisance on East Hazelwood avenue and Main street abated they "ought to go to hell." Considerable other business was transacted and there were some interesting debates on various questions.

GEORGE O. STEVENS AS CHIEF KITCHEN MECHANIC.

Visits Oscar at the Waldorf and Others to Get Ideas for Holy Cross Feast.

George O. Stevens, chief premiere of the Holy Cross men's dinner to be given on Feb. 11, has been paying visits to the famous kitchens at Cafe de Beaux Arts, the Waldorf-Astoria, the Cafe Martin, the Holland House, "Dels," Sherry's and the Cafe des Ambassadeurs getting lines on the latest French dishes for the elaborate menu to be offered local epicures on that occasion.

All the committees have been appointed for the feast that will be cooked and served by the men of the parish. Edwin S. Hooley, J. L. Watson, and Samuel Townsend have been selected as commissaries and J. O. Stevens and Frederick Harrington as kitchen mechanics. Charles A. Reed will be the J. B. Martin of the dining hall and his head waiters will include B. A. Hegeman and Robert H. McCutcheon. The corps of waiters consists of C. E. Murray, H. R. Loder and Morgan Townsend. J. W. Hegeman and Paul Brakeley will have charge of the cloak rooms, while William L. Saunders, C. J. Randall and Mr. Voorhees will print the menu cards.

In addition to making some more of those fluffy biscuits, Rev. George A. Warner will serve as the chairman of the reception committee together with George P. Dupee and Dr. J. H. Carman.

ALL-DAY SEWING MEETING IN THE INTEREST OF MISSIONS.

Women of the First Baptist Church Spend a Pleasant and Profitable Day.

An all-day sewing and social meeting was held at the First Baptist church, yesterday, under the auspices of the Women's Home Missionary Society. There were about twenty women present and all of the work planned for the day was accomplished and more beside. The women are now working on articles to be sent to one of the home mission stations and already much has been accomplished.

At noon a box luncheon was enjoyed by the women, under the direction of a committee of which Mrs. Harold Serrell is the chairman. After the lunch an interesting letter was read from Mrs. McMurray, the Baptist missionary in charge of the work among the Highlanders of the South, and who resides at Oneida. She told of the progress of her work. There was also a note read about Mrs. Cook, who is known in mission circles as the "Saint of Second avenue," New York. For fifty years she has been an invalid and has been unable to leave her room. Thousands of dollars are sent to her every year and she directs the expenditure of the money to various missions and charities.

Last Entertainment of Series.

The entertainment in Grace M. E. church, last night, the last in the winter series of three, was enjoyed by a large audience. The Metropolitan Male Quartette and Miss Helen Miller, reader, furnished the programme. The quartette rendered a wide variety of selections and fully met expectations. Miss Miller is a reader of delightful charm and she swayed her audience with humor and pathos.

SKETCHED BONAPARTES' CAREER IN NEW JERSEY.

Subject of Lecture Before the Alliance Francaise.

Joseph Bonaparte and his life in New Jersey was the subject of a lecture before the Alliance Francaise, Monday night, in the assembly hall of the North Prudential building, Newark. M. Poul de Monthule, of Columbia University, was the speaker. Among other things he said:

"Joseph Bonaparte, the oldest brother of Napoleon the Great, was king of the two Sicilies and of Spain. When the empire fell he shared the fate of the Napoleonic dynasty, and on the advice of his brother he decided to seek refuge in America, where he arrived in 1816. He decided to locate between Philadelphia and New York. A magnificent estate was for sale at Bordentown, N. J.; he bought the same and transformed it into a royal residence. Here in New Jersey, is where he received the visits of many great personages of his age, both Americans and Frenchmen. The future Emperor Napoleon the Third, his nephew, stayed with him for some time at Bordentown. Joseph Bonaparte assumed the name of the Count of Darvillien. One of his daughters lived with her husband in a house which still exists at the entrance of the park.

"One of his nephews, the Prince Murat, who had married an American, also established himself at Bordentown. The memory of Prince Mura is still fresh in the minds of many inhabitants of Bordentown, and many a story is still told of which he is the hero. After a stay of twenty years in New Jersey, Joseph Bonaparte returned to Europe. His heirs sold the property, which has since passed through many hands, and retains but a feeble vestige of its former splendor."

M. de Monthule also entertained the assemblage with recitations and monologue. Mlle. Tillie Fitzgerald presided at the piano.

BISHOP SCARBOROUGH DECLARED SOCIALIST.

Vineland, Jan. 23.—Nearly 50 delegates attended the Convocation of Burlington, in Trinity P. E. church yesterday, at which Bishop Scarborough presided. Bishop Scarborough said the church had a great work to do, but just how to reach down and save the bomb-thrower was a problem. He said he was a socialist himself, but believed bomb-throwers should be imprisoned. "They are wild beasts of the street," he said.

BOY NOMAD MUST GO HOME.

Little Globetrotter Says "It's Cinch to Beat Railroads."

Bayonne, Jan. 23.—John Noonan, the 14-year-old boy who ran away from his home in Charleston, S. C., early last summer and has traveled several thousand miles, deadhead, to satisfy his ambition to see the country, is going to be sent home on a steamer tomorrow. The police of Charleston will be notified to meet the vessel and return the lad to his parents.

"Of course I'll go home. I want to see my parents, but they know I'm all right, for I have written them every week," the boy said last night at police headquarters, where he is a prisoner.

"Of course, I would rather see the rest of the country and I'm going to before I'm much older. I've had a bully time, and, say, it's a cinch to beat those fly railroad conductors if you only know how. Why, I've even rode in Pullman cars without paying anything."

The boy was arrested in this city a week ago charged with larceny, but the case has been dropped.

FOR BETTER FIRE PROTECTION.

Jersey City's Chief Demands More Engines, Trucks and Men.

Jersey City, Jan. 23.—Chief John Conway, of the fire department, advises the establishment of four new engine companies, in order to afford better protection to the city.

He advises the establishment of an engine company and a truck company in the Greenville section, which is building up at a marvelous rate.

In addition to the demand for new fire houses, he suggests that the growth of the city and the consequent extra fire risk make necessary the addition of three men to each of the fire companies, as the work of the firemen has almost doubled in the few years last past. He asks the commissioners to go to the Legislature and secure the authority to increase the fire fighting force to this extent.

There were 181 more fires in 1906 than in 1905, and the losses last year were $442,685 heavier than in 1905, amounting in all to $729,244.

Col. Stevens to Go to Europe.

Jersey City, Jan. 23.—Colonel Edward A. Stevens, of Hoboken, Democratic candidate for United States Senator to succeed Dryden, will leave for Europe Saturday on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Groose, which sails for her Mediterranean trip. Colonel Stevens, who is much improved in health, will visit Italy and Sicily. He will so regulate his visit that he will be able to spend Easter in Europe or at home.

STOKES SIGNS HANGMAN BILL.

Full Text of First Act to Become a Law This Year.

Trenton, Jan. 23.—Governor E. C. Stokes yesterday signed the bill passed under suspension of rules in both Houses, taking from sheriffs the duty of conducting criminal executions by hanging. The measure, the full text of which follows, places this duty in the hands of under sheriffs:

"A supplement to an act entitled 'An act relating to courts having criminal jurisdiction, and regulating proceedings in criminal cases (revision of 1898)' approved June 14, 1898.

"Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey:

"1. In inflicting the punishment of death by hanging, an under sheriff, duly appointed and qualified, shall have the same power and authority as the sheriff by whom he was appointed; but before such punishment shall be so inflicted by an under sheriff an order of the Court of Oyer and Terminer to that effect shall be first obtained.

"2. This act shall take effect immediately.":

HANGED AS SHERMAN RAIDER.

But Veteran Lived Forty-two Years After That Experience.

John McGrogan, one of Sherman's raiders, died yesterday at his home in Paterson at the age of 84. Mr. McGrogan enlisted with the Thirteenth New Jersey Volunteers, and continued to serve through nineteen battles and skirmishes until his regiment was mustered out in 1865.

In Sherman's march to the sea he, with a forging party of eight, was captured by guerrillas. The prisoners were hanged to trees and the guerrillas departed.

A detachment of Union cavalry reached the spot a moment later. The men were cut down, but Mr. McGrogan was the only one who could be revived. The choking he experienced destroyed the sight of one eye.

GIRL DIES FROM OVERSTUDY.

Elizabeth Gorman, of Jersey City, Wanted to Be a Teacher.

Jersey City, Jan. 23.—Love of study, to enable her to be a school teacher, and a continual plodding for knowledge, so undermined the health of Elizabeth Gorman, 16 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Gorman, of 204 Ninth street, that she died suddenly at her home today. She was taken ill at the High School. "Heart failure, due to overstudy," was the declaration of the family physician.

The funeral will be from St. Michael's R. C. church, which is adjacent to the dead girl's home, and six of her girl classmates will be the honorary pall bearers.

Legislature Receives Join Resolution to Spend $2,000.

Trenton, Jan. 23.—A joint resolution asking that portraits of eight former Governors of New Jersey be purchased by the State at a cost of $2,800, was presented yesterday by Assemblyman James Baker, of Hudson. The former Governors mentioned in this connection were:

William Livingston, William Patterson, Aaron Ogden, William C. Pennington, Mahlon Dickerson, Philemon Dickerson, Samuel L. Southard and Elias P. Seeley.

2 BALLOTS; DEADLOCK!

received a letter from citizens of Plainfield which said "your course delights and fulfills expectations of your many Plainfield admirers."

Talking to a reporter Mr. Ackerman said that he was perfectly satisfied that the people were behind him. Referring to his future course he was not prepared to make any definite statement. When asked if he would cast his vote for a Democrat if it were necessary to do so to defeat Dryden, he replied firmly that he would not vote for a Democrat under and circumstances.

Randolph Perkins also said that he was doing what he believed the people of Union county wanted him to do when he stayed out of the caucus of the majority of his fellow Republican legislators.

Senator Ackerman received a large batch of telegrams and letters today from Union county representatives endorsing the position he had taken.

The Republicans and Democrats of both the Senate and Assembly reached a "gentlemen's agreement" this afternoon, whereby there will be no more joint meetings until Tuesday, January 29, at 12 o'clock noon. At that time another attempt will be made to elect a successor to Senator Dryden.

Immediately after reaching this agreement, both the Senate and House adjourned. The law provides that the members of the Legislature shall remain in session until a choice is reached in the selection of a Senator, but as all of the members have agreed to remain away, nothing further can be done at present. The next regular session of the Legislature will be held Monday night, the usual time for taking up legislative matters.

Burning their bridges behind them, the eight Republican legislators who failed to respond to the crack of the bosses' whip by their refusal to participate in a caucus to nominate John F. Dryden for United States Senator, assumed a position yesterday that makes it almost morally impossible for them to retreat. When the vote was taken these legislators bolted the party nominee and thereby voiced their unequivocal opposition to the re-election of the Newarker. This stand, if maintained, can have only one result—the defeat of Mr. Dryden. It was freely predicted after the vote had been taken that this would be accomplished and that Dryden would be forced to retire from the race.

In one of his characteristically matter of fact speeches Mr. Barber, who has been leading the fight in the House for Senator Dryden's re-election, placed his candidate in nomination first yesterday. He told of how Mr. Dryden had been elected to succeed to the vacancy caused by the death of Senator William J. Sewell five years ago, and declared that during his incumbency Mr. Dryden had proven himself a capable and painstaking statesman and had given a good account of his stewardship. He stated that Mr. Dryden had worked himself from the ranks to a high position and was entitled to another term as the State's representative.

Mr. Perkins followed by nominating former Governor and former Attorney General John W. Griggs. He said that in naming Mr. Griggs he did so purely as a recognition of exceptional merit and ability. "He is not from my county," said Mr. Perkins, "but he is known throughout the State as one of New Jersey's ablest sons. The offices he has held were awarded him as the result of his ability, and he has rendered his city, state and nation distinguished services.

"He was a member of this body, and its leader. He was promoted because of his efficiency. He was later made its president. Then he was elected governor, and during that trying period of the Spanish-American war he was called into the cabinet of President McKinley, who had surrounded himself with some of the brainiest men of these United States. A man who possesses such a distinguished record could not fail to reflect credit upon New Jersey if he was called to represent it in the United States Senate."

Mr. Crowther, in seconding the nomination of Senator Dryden, made a "wave the flag" speech.

Mr. Fake, of Bergen, seconded the nomination of Mr. Griggs, while Mr. Sullivan, of Hudson, seconded Colonel Stevens' nomination. Without preable, Mr. Firth, of Warren, nominated James E. Martine, of Union, and Mr. Boarder, of Essex, nominated President Woodrow Wilson, of Princeton University.

Meanwhile, a lively, although much briefer session was going on in the Senate. Senator Frelinghuysen, of Somerset, started the ball rolling by nominating Mr. Dryden. This duty was assigned to him because of the fact that Mr. Dryden resides in Somerset county during the summer months, and Senator Colby, who is from Essex—Mr. Dryden's home—refused to assume the duty that naturally would devolve upon him.

Senator Wakelee, nominated Mr. Griggs, Mr. Colby nominated Judge Pitney, Senator Minturn nominated Colonel Stevens, Mr. Martine was nominated by Senator Gebhardt, of Hunterdon, and Mr. Wilson was nominated by Senator Cornish, of Warren.

Mrs. J. A. Blatz and her daughter, Mrs. A. A. Cannon, are ill with grip at their home on Somerset street.

CHIEF CAPTURES BURGLARS.

They Had Obtained Big Haul in Westfield Hotel.

Westfield, Jan. 23.—Chief of Police Thomas O'Neill, of Westfield, has distinguished himself by effecting the capture of a clever pair of burglars. The men are known as Mike Cross and James Leo, and claim their residence as 102 Mott street, New York. They were captured here after doing a second-story job at the Glenside Hotel, conducted by Isaac Josephson.

When searched a gold watch and locket, five rings, two breastpins, a 44-calibre revolver, a pair of kid gloves and $10 in cash was found in their possession, in addition to several pawntickets. Both pleaded guilty to a charge of burglary and entering, and are now in the county jail at Elizabeth.

All of the stolen articles found upon the men were taken from the Glenside Hotel. The burglars locked the doors leading to the rooms which they ransacked and were making their escape when the proprietor of the hotel heard them. He notified the police and their arrest folllowed.

Telegraph Strike Not Likely.

New York, Jan. 23.—First of a series of conferences looking toward a readjustment of the wages of the thousands of Postal Telegraph operators was held yesterday afternoon, and at its conclusion both the company and union representatives declared there was every prospect of peace and no indication of a split. It was made known by the delegates representing the telegraphers, however, that they must have an increase in wages. By them it was pointed out that there has been no change in wages in years and that in that period the cost of living has gone up nearly fifty per cent. Courteously, but firmly, the telegraphers let it be known that they want peace, but that they also want an increase in wages.

CHURCH LUNCHEON.

Elaborate Programme In Connection With First M. E. Affair.

An elaborate programme has been prepared by the committee from the Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church, for the luncheon to be held in Vincent chapel, Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock. The affair is given not only for the benefit of the society, but to promote acquaintance and sociability among the women of the church and congregation. There has been a great demand for tickets and the success of the affair is assured.

The general committee in charge consists of Mrs. Henry A. McGee, chairman; Mrs. James W. Jackson, Mrs. L. M. French, Mrs. G. H. Whitney, Mrs. Charles E. Horne, Mrs. J. C. Peck, Mrs. Nelson Y. Hull, Mrs. Nelson A. Miller, Mrs. A. C. McCrea and Mrs. Harry Gee.

Mrs. G. H. Whitney is in charge of the musicale and the programme will consist of piano selections by Miss Beth Martin and Miss Mary Clark; vocal solos by Miss Leila Druse and Miss Helen Whitney; recitations by Miss Bertha Whitney, concluding with selections on the phonograph by Elston M. Leonard.

Timbo Club's Annual Smoker.

The Timbo Social Club will install its recently elected officers Friday night and afterward hold its annual smoker. A large number of invitations have been issued and the affair promises to be largely attended. Professional talent aided by the pick of local amateurs will furnish a vocal and instrumental programme of music.

Henry G. Davis, the vice-presidential candidate, will build a Presbyterian church to cost $50,000 at Gassaway, W. Va. The Davis Memorial Presbyterian church at Elkins, W. Va., was built by Mr. Davis for his son, who was drowned off the coast of Africa.

Representative John E. Andrus, of New York, the richest man in Congress, gladdened the hearts of the page boys, doorkeepers and most of the other employees of the national house by giving them each a brand new two dollar bills as a Christmas gift.

A. A. Thatcher, of Washington, has in his possession the anvil upon which the armor of Captain John Smith, the hero of the early English settlers in Virginia, was forged. This anvil was also used for forging some of the parts of the first temple built in Nauvoo, Ill. The date on the steel of teh anvil is 1406.

Although John D. Rockefeller has been generally considered the richest man in the United States, this is disputed by certain people, who claim to know and give that credit to Frederick Weyerhaeuser, of St. Paul, a recluse, who owns, they claim, timber tracts in the northwest worth at least a billion dollars. Weyerhaeuser was born in Germany in 1834 and came to this country as an immigrant.

SCHOOL PRINCIPAL'S ESCAPE.

Had to Hang On to a Train With His Feet Close to Rails.

Rockaway, Jan. 23.—C. Herbert Walling, principal of the Rockaway public schools, had a thrilling experience Monday. He attempted to board a train after it had started from the Grove Street station, East Orange. Mr. Walling, who carried a dress suit case with his right hand, ran in the direction the train was moving, and with his left hand seized the rail above the car steps.

The train was going faster than Mr. Walling had been able to realize in the darkness; he was raised from the ground and, retaining his grip on the hand rail, was turned around completely and landed on the lowest car step in a sitting position. His dress suit case was flung across his knees, one end being wedged in between the car steps and the other end held fast by the flange of the step, pinioning his right hand behind his back.

He had to raise his feet to avoid contact with the ties and switches as the train dashed past them. Whether he would be killed or live depended on the grip he had on the hand rail. Mr. Walling knew that the train stopped at Brick Church, and strained every muscle to cling to the rail. When the train came to a halt he dropped from the step, completely exhausted, and was picked up by two men and placed on a seat in the car.

Stephen Blazier, of Elmwood place, who has been detained at home by an attack of the grip, is much improved.

T. C. Smith, of Madison avenue, has recovered from an attack of the grip that detained him at home for a few days.

MODES OF THE MOMENT.

Tucks diagonal, cross, horizontal, wide and narrow are a feature of all the silk blouses.

Nets of all kins continue among the most popular materials both for separate waists and evening gowns, with stripes bayadere, bias and vertical as novelties.

In the new mode the front and sides of the gown are princess, with the back empire, and the result is one of the most charming designs we have had in many a season.

Plaid belts make a charming addition to a silk lingerie blouse when it is worn with a short skirted suit. They are especially attractive with the simple harness buckles which are so much in vogue just now.

Very few plain sleeves are noted even where the gown itself is comtume makes any pretensions at all to dressiness the sleeves are often the most elaborate part of it.

Station Agent Missing.

William Growman, twenty-six years old, a ticket agent at the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad station at Montclair, is missing, and auditors were busy yesterday trying to adjust certain discrepancies in his accounts. Growman had been employed at the Montclair office about two months. He is a single man, and is said to be a member of a highly respectable family residing at Bethlehem, Pa.

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

A TALE OF THE OLD WEST

By HARRY LEON WILSON, Author of "The Spenders"

COPYRIGHT 1903 BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

Before them the meadows stretched between two ranges of low, rocky hills, narrow at first but widening gradually from the gap through which they had come. But the ground where the long, rich grass had once grown was now barren, gray and ugly in the moonlight, cut into deep gullies and naked of all but a scant growth of sage brush which the moon was silvering, and a few clumps of shadowy scrub oak along the base of the hills on either side.

Instinctively they stopped, speaking in low tones. And then there came to them out of the night's silence a strange, weird beating; hollow, muffled, slow, and rhthymic, but penetrating and curiously exciting, like another pulse cunningly playing upon their own to make them beat more rapidly. The girl pulled her horse close in by his, but he reassured her.

"It's Indians—they must be holding the funeral of some chief. But no matter—these Indians aren't any more account than prairie dogs."

They rode on slowly, the funeral drum sounding nearer as they went.

Then far up the meadow by the roadside they could see the hard, square lines of the cross in the moonlight. Slower still they went, while the drum beats became louder, until they seemed to fall upon their own eardrums.

"Could he have come to this dreadful place?" she asked, almost in a whisper.

"We haven't passed him, that's sure; and I've got a notion he lied. I've heard him talk about this cross off and on—it's been a good deal in his mind—and maybe he was a little out of his head. But we'll soon see."

They walked their horses up a little ascent, and the cross stood out more clearly against the sky. They approached it slowly, leaning forward to peer all about it; but the shadows lay heavy at its base, and from a little distance they could distinguish no outline.

But at last they were close by and could pierce the gloom, and there at the foot of the cross, beside the cairn of stones that helped to support it, was a little huddled bit of blackness. It moved as they looked, and they knew the voice that came from it.

"Oh God, I am tired and ready! Take me and burn me!"

She was off her horse and quickly at his side. Follett, to let them be alone, led the horses to the spring below. It was almost gone now, only the feebiest trickle of a rivulet remaining. The once green meadows had behaved, indeed, as if a curse were put upon them. Hardly had grass grown or water run through it since the day that Israel wrought there. When he had tied the horses he heard Prudence calling him.

"I'm afraid he's delirious,' she said, when he reached her side. "He keeps hearing cries and shots, and sees a woman's hair waving before him, and he's afraid of something back of him. What can we do?"

At the foot of the cross the little man was again sounding his endless prayer.

"Bow me, bend me, break me, for I have been soul-proud. Burn me out—"

She knelt by his side, trying to sooth him.

"Father—it's all right—it's Prudence—"

But at her name he uttered a cry with such terror in it that she shuddered and was still. Then he began to mutter incoherently, and she heard her own name repeated many times.

"If that awful beating would only stop," she said to Follett, who had now brought water in the curled brim of his hat. She tried to have the little man drink. He swallowed some of the water from the hat brim, shivering as he did so.

"We ought to have a fire," she said. Follett began to gather twigs and sage brush, and presently had a blaze in front of them.

In the light of the fire the little man could see their faces, and he became suddely coherent, smiling at them in the old way.

"Why have you come so far in the night?" he asked Prudence, taking one of her cool hands between his own that burned.

"But, you poor little father! Why have you come, when you should be home in bed? You are burning with fever."

"Yes, yes, dear, but it's over now. This is the end. I came here—to be here—I came to say my last prayer in the body. And they will come to find me here. You must go before they come."

"Who will find you?"

"They, from the church. I didn't mean to do it, but when I was on my feet something forced it out of me. I knew what they would do, but I was ready to die, and I hoped I could awaken some of them."

"But no one shall hurt you."

"Don't tempt me to stay any longer, dear, even if they would let me. Oh, you don't know, you don't know—and that devil's drumming over there to madden me as on that other night. But it's just—my God, how hot."

"Come away, then. Ruel will find your horse, and we'll ride home."

"It's too late—don't ask me to leave my hell now. It would only follow me. It was this way that night—the night before—the beating got into my blood and hammered on my brain till I didn't know. Prudence, I must tell you—everything—"

He glanced at Follett appealingly, as he had looked at the others when he left the platform that day, beseeching some expressions of friendliness.

"Yes, I must tell you—everything." But his face lighted as Follett interrupted him.

"You tell her," said Follett, doggedly, "how you saved her that day and kept her like your own and brought her up to be a good woman—that's what you tell her." The gratitude in the little man's eyes had grown with each word.

"Yes, yes, dear, I have loved you like my own little child, but your father and mother were killed here that day—and I found you and loved you—such a dear, forlorn little girl—will you hate me now?" he broke off anxiously. She had both his hands in her own.

"But why, how could I hate you? You are my dear little sorry father—all I've known. I shall always love you."

"That will be good to take with me," he said, smiling again. "It's all I've got to take—it's all I've had since the day I found you. You are good," he said, turning to Follett.

"O God, I Am Tired and Ready! Take Me and Burn Me!"

"Oh, shucks!" answered Follett.

A smile of rare contentment played over the little man's face.

TO AILING WOMEN.

A Little Sound Advice Will Help Many a Sufferer in Plainfield.

No woman can be healthy and well if the kidneys are sick. Poisons that pass off in the urine when the kidneys are well are retained in the body when the kidneys are sick. Kidneys and bladder get inflamed and swollen, crowding the delicate female organs nearby and sometimes displacing them. This is the true cause of many bearing-down pains, lameness, backache, sideache, etc. Uric poisoning also causes headaches, dizzy spells, languor, nervousness and rheumatic pain.

When suffering so, try Doan's Kidney Pills, the remedy that cures sick kidneys. You will get better as the kidneys get better, and health will return when the kidneys are well. Let a Plainfield woman tell you about Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. O. C. Moore, of 63 Manning avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "My kidneys were diseased for years and I also had trouble with my heart. I have endured the severe torture of a backache that comes from diseased conditions of the kidneys and likewise that heavy dull aches in the head. Many nights I have been unable to rest at all, and when I awoke in the morning my limbs would be so stiff and sore that I would be obliged to slide out of bed. When I caught cold it always settled on the kidneys and any little strain or over-exertion that involved the muscles of my back would cause intense pain. I have doctored with physicians at Washington, D. C., and here at Plainfield, but none of their medicines ever did me the good that I got from Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Randolph's pharmacy. This remedy went right to the seat of the trouble, dispelled the pains and aches, corrected the kidney derangement and made me feel like a different person."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

SALES ARE ENORMOUS

Cooper Preparations Have Become Leading Topic in St. Louis.

WHAT THE PEOPLE SAY

Interviews Obtained With Number of Callers at Young Man's Headquarters in the Mound City.

St. Louis, Jan. 22.—The most interesting feature of the enormous sale of the Cooper preparations, now going on in this city, is what the medicines are actually accomplishing among the people of St. Louis.

At the commencement of his visit here Mr. Cooper prophesied that during the latter part of his stay he would receive hundreds of callers daily who came simply to thank him for what the preparations had done. He also stated that stomach trouble is the foundation for a great many diseases, and that his New Discovery, as it is called, would prove very effective in all cases of rheumatism, simply by getting the stomach in working order.

That this prophecy has been fulfilled cannot be doubted after a half hour spent at the young man's headquarters, listening to what his callers have to say.

A reporter who watched to ascertain, if possible, some light on the reasons for the immensity of Cooper's success interviewed about twenty of his callers yesterday afternoon. The statements made by those seen indicate that physicians who claim that Cooper is merely a passing fad, have not looked into the facts.

Some of these statements were as follows: Mrs. Anna B. Hampton, living at 1422 Michigan avenue, upon being questioned, said:

"I have been troubled with general debility, weakness, dizziness, headache, sleeplessness and stomach troubles for over three years. I had tried a number of medicines and visited several doctors but none helped me. I heard on all sides of these Cooper Remedies and decided to try them. Any one who says that they are not wonderful medicines, does not know what they are talking about. After I used the first bottle, I noticed a decided improvement. I have taken three bottles of the New Discovery and I now feel as well as I ever have in my life. I sleep and eat as I have not done for years, and I am happier than I have been for a long time. I have come here to thank Mr. Cooper for what he has done for me."

The statement of John F. Ehrndal, living at 927 N. 11th street, was as follows:

"I have suffered with stomach trouble and constipation for a year or so. When I ate I would have bloated spells, sour stomach, fermentation, bad taste in my mouth. In the morning, I was as tired as when I went to bed. I had a dull pain in the lower part of my back, and had to get up several times in the night. I have almost taken one bottle of the New Discovery and I am so wonderfully improved that I have come down here to thank Mr. Cooper in person and obtain more of the medicine."

Another statement was made by Miss Margaret Gordan, living at 210 Center street, who said: "I have been a sufferer with rheumatism for several years. I have tried many remedies, and have been treated by a number of physicians. Nothing helped me in any way and I despaired of finding relief. I was in a general rundown condition, also, and had some stomach trouble. I was told by friends of the Cooper remedies and decided to try some of them. I purchased some of the New Discovery medicine, although it took me three hours to do so, as the crowd was so dense. This was last Thursday. I was improved almost immediately.

"I have continued to take this wonderful medicine and I am now without a sign of rheumatism. My general health is also greatly improved, and I have not felt so well for years. I would not have believed that there was a medicine on earth that would do what this has done for me. I am so much happier that I am very grateful to the man that has made it possible for me to regain my health. He has the most wonderful medicine that I know anything about."

Other statements taken from those who had previously used the medicines seem to prove that Cooper's success throughout the country is genuine.

Seat for Every Passenger.

BOWLING TOURNEY GAMES.

Woolston and Cunningham Take Two From VanEmburgh and Blatz.

VanEmburgh and Blatz dropped two games to Woolston and Cunningham in the tourney last night. They were the only ones rolled out of the three matches scheduled, the other participants being kept out for various reasons.

In the first game, Woolston only piled up 141 and the opposing team finished over himself and Cunningham by 49 pins. He rallied in the second with 197 and his partner got 192, giving them a lead of 18. They won the last game by 19. The high score for the three games was a 204 made by VanEmburgh.

The scores:

Woolston	141	197	165
Cunningham	195	192	200
	336	389	365
vs.
VanEmburgh	186	204	191
Blatz	199	167	155

Runninng High Jump.

The running high jump event will be run off in the all-around athletic championship competition at the Y. M. C. A. tomorrow night. Walter McNaughton holds the record, 5 feet 11 inches, made in 1904. The mark is a heart-breaker to top.

IRA C. BOWERS, JR., JOINS RANKS OF THE BENEDICTS.

Was Married on January 10 Last to Miss Gertrude Porter VanFleet, of Somerville.

Local friends received with much surprise today the announcement that Ira C. Bowers, Jr., of East Third street, is a benedict. He was married on January 10 last to Miss Gertrude Porter VanFleet, daughter of William H. VanFleet, of Somerville. The ceremony was performed by Rev. William H. Cramer, pastor of the First Reformed church, at Somerville, at his home, and was witnessed by the bride's brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. William H. VanFleet, Jr.

The young people kept the matter quiet and have since been living at their respective homes but the facts were made known today. Mr. Bowers is employed by U. B. Crane and is widely known as a dancer. He is a member of the Gold Medal minstrel troupe and has appeared with the organization at nearly all of its performances in this vicinity.

D'Orsay Here Tonight.

The dramatic event of the week at the New Plainfield theatre will take place tonight when Lawrence D'Orsay, the celebrated English actor, appears in his latest play, "The Embassy Ball." He is supported by a company of well known artists selected by Charles Frohman and the production is said to be in every way one of the most pretentious that has yet held the local boards.

SINGER OMPANY ASKS FOR REDUCTION OF TAXES.

Petitions to Have $450,000 Taken Off of $1,000,000 Personal Assessment.

The State Board for the Equalization of Taxes met at Elizabeth this morning and will remain in session for three days. There are a number of important cases to be considered by the board during its session at Elizabeth, the first of which will be that of the appeal of the Singer Sewing Machine Company.

The Singer case was to come up today, but as the company was not quite ready consideration of it was put off until tomorrow. The company was assessed $1,000,000 as personal tax, which includes machinery, stock, etc., and in its appeal asks that $450,000 be taken off. Today's session of the board was taken up with the consideration of two or three Rahway cases.

Officers Installed.

Officers were installed at the meeting of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, last night. District Deputy W. J. O'Keeffe was in charge. The officers installed were as follows: Grand knight, A. A. Cannon; deputy grand knight, M. D. O'Keeffe; chancellor, Robert McCormack; financial secretary, J. J. Hines; treasurer, F. S. McCarthy; recording secretary, R J. Birmingham; warden, W. H. Schaefer; inside guard, John Carty; outside guard, D. B. Doyle; advocate, F. J. Blatz; lecturer, A. E. Kenney; chaplain, Rev. B. M. Bogan; trustees, Patrick Traynor, J. C. Traynor and John Kenney. Refreshments were served after the installation.

Will Speak at Anniversary Service.

Rev. A. C. McCrea, pastor of the First M. E. church, will address the young people of the First M. E. church, Somerville, tonight, in connection with the seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of the church at that place, which began on Sunday. It was exepected that Rev. G. H. Whitney, of this city, who was one of the early pastors of the Somerville church, would be one of the speakers last night, but owing to weather conditions he was prevented from going to Somerville.

Dinner Tickets Still Available.

Additional time in which to procure tickets for the Y. M. C. A. dinner has been granted those who have failed to sign the banquet list. The time limit originally set expired yesterday, but there will be room for more than the 125 ticketholders listed so far, and the dinner committee has extended the time.

Wesleyan Glee Club to Appear Here.

Arrangements have been made for the appearance of the Wesleyan University Glee and Banjo Clubs at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church on Tuesday night, April 2. This will be the annual concert given by these clubs at the local church.

Auto School Opens.

The first lecture of the auto school course was delivered by Clarence B. Brokaw at the Y. M. C. A. last night. Seven pupils were signed. Three more are necessary to the organization of the class. The course will be the same as last year.

THE EARS OF CRIMINALS.

Said to Differ Widely from Those of Normal Persons.

Before the annual congress of German anthropologists at Gorlitz, Prof. Blau, a well known authority on diseases of the ear, read an interesting paper on the formation of the ears of criminals and lunatics. Prof. Blau has taken accurate measurements of 1,061 ears. Of these 255 are the ears of lunatics and 343 those of male criminals. The examination, moreover, was confined to men of one race and one country.

The professor comes to the conclusion that in the vast majority of cases the various parts of the auricle, or external ear, are larger in the case of criminals and lunatics than in the case of normal persons. This is especially noticeable in the helix, or incurved outer border of the ear, and also in the lobe. According to Prof. Blau, the larger the helix is the lower the state of mental development. The hearing faculty, on the other hand, is keener, and Prof. Blau illustrates his theory by reference to the auricle of apes, who are all in possession of this extended outer border. Prof. Blau added the curious remark that an abnormal development of the outer border was more noticeable among criminals charged with sexual crime than among other classes of criminals.

LINGERS IN THE MEMORY.

Simple Words of "Now I Lay Me" Seldom Forgotten.

If a census could be made, one would probably be amazed at the vast number of grown folks who close their day with the unrevised "Now I lay me."

Many of them make it the conclusion of prayer involving more elaborate petitions, prayer actually said as they kneel at their bedside. Many, in subconscious protest against the formalism which dominates so much of the public and private devotions of the times, do not kneel, but they do not forget the words they learned to lisp as babies.

Some, immersed in world affairs and carrying their business cares and worries into the real of their dreams, may not consciously plan to pray, but they find their minds dwelling at midnight upon the familiar lines and they are better men and women for that.

Such folks naturally resent the recent suggestion of revision of the line "If I should die before I wake." They are not afraid for any terror by night, and many of them, as they close their eyes in final sleep, will give their last thought to "Now I lay me."—Southern Farm Magazine.

Latest.

The night officer found the old farmer sitting on the steps of a vacant house contentedly shewing a straw.

"Waiting for anyone?" asked the officer, suspiciously.

"Yep," responded the old man in confidence, "I am waitin' for the scientist to get back."

"What scientist?"

"Why, the one with my ten dollar bill. He slapped me on the back and told me that thar be 17 different crawling germs on every ten dollar bill. He said if I'd let him have a ten dollar bill a few minutes he would take it down to the arc light around the corner and stick a pin through each germ so I could see them with my own eyes. He's been gone about half an hour, but I reckon it takes him quite a little while, cause them germs are pesky small to see."

And the old farmer settled himself comfortably to await the return of the "scientist."

Spoiled.

"Are you making anything of a hit with Miss Prettygirl?"

"I fear not. Can't seem to interest her. I have lauded her beauty, but my strongest superlative make absolutely no impression."

"Hold on! I forgot to tell you, old man. She was formerly engaged to the press agent of a circus."

HUMOR OF 'FRISCO DISASTER.

How the Spirit of the People Manifested Itself in Hour of Trial.

The spirit of the San Francisco people after the great disaster expressed itself in lighter ways, too, writes French Strother, in the World's Work. A steel building on Van Ness avenue, with every window space gaping from a gutted interior, bore a freshly painted sign—"The Hotel Baltimore Is Now 'Open' for Business."

It was—wide open.

In front of every house was a stove set up in the street and shielded from the wind, because no fires were allowed in the houses until the chimneys could be inspected. These windbreaks almost invariably bore some jocular legend. Some were named "Zinkands" or "Taits" or "The Poodle Dog," after famous restaurants of the city. One sign read, "Well Shaken," and below it a finger pointed to the next shack, on which was painted: "Same Alive." There were dozens of "Happy Homes." In San Jose I saw a building, completely wrecked from which a sign announced that—"E. W. Jack Has Been 'Earthquaked' to 15 West St. John Street (Just Around the Corner)." Another—"From These Ruins Will Rise San Jose's Greatest Grocery Store."

But perhaps the most effective expression I saw of the spirit with which losses were borne was on a street car on Devisadero street. A well-dressed young woman recognized a young man standing by a seat several feet away.

"Burned out?" she inquired.

He smiled pleasantly and answered quite simply, "yes." Nothing more was said.

NECKLACE FROM THAMES.

Lost for Year, Recovered by Workman Who Didn't Know Its Value.

A valuable pearl necklace lost in the Thames over a year ago by a lady of title has just been recovered by its owner, says the London Tribune.

Some months ago a Henley-on-Thames workman walking by the side of the river, near Shiplake Ferry, saw something glistening in the water, and getting the object out, he found that it was a pearl necklace. Thinking the gems, however, were only imitation, he casually carried the necklace home in his pocket and gave it to his wife.

She occasionally wore it, but never dreamed of its real value until some little time ago, when she broke the clasp and took it to a local jeweler to be repaired. The jeweler at once saw that the pearls were valuable, and, not satisfied with the woman's story, he sent for the police. The pearls were handed over to the custody of the police, and in due course were advertised by them as found.

A few days ago the necklace was identified and claimed by a lady well known in fashionable circles, who had dropped it into the river while staying at a Thamesside mansion near Henley.

The pearls are valued at £40 or £50, and the man who found them has received a check for five pounds sterling.

TWIN BROTHER NO RELATION.

Returning Hero Refused to Recognize Members of His Family.

Back in the early '50's there lived in the little town of Francestown, N. H., a large family by the name of Foote. They were illiterate, but honest, hard-working people, and the boys were often hired out by the neighboring farmers.

Two of the boys, Jim and Dan, were twins, closely resembling each other. They were the butt of many good-natured jests. From "Old Ike," their father, they received a little strain of negro blood, which showed itself in speech and good humor.

Dan went to war, and, returning, felt himself to be a hero. He finally decided that the family name was not quite good enough for him, so he had it legally changed from Foote to Bartlett.

Shortly after this he appeared one evening in the little country store. The usual number of loafers were present. One of them, thinking to torment him by using his old name, said: "Why, how do you do, Mr. Foote!"

Drawing himself up to his full height, Dan replied, with great dignity: "You're mistaken in the man, sah! I'm Mr. Bartlett, sah. You must be thinking of my twin brother, Jim. He's no relation of mine, sah!"

The Cotton Loss.

It is estimated that at least 2,000,000 bales of cotton are lost throughout the south every year because of frost and scattered cotton left in the field by the pickers. According to a correspondent of the Manufacturer's Record, of Baltimore, a machine has been invented, called the cotton separator, which will save nearly all this loss.

The Difference.

Bishop Mandell Creighton was once asked the difference between a Cambridge man and an Oxford man. The professor, as he was at the time, replied: 'An Oxford man looks as if the world belonged to him; a Cambridge man as if he didn't care to whom the world belonged."

SENATORIAL BRIBERY?

He Quotes Ex-Governor Griggs As Saying That Men Who Took Money Were Marked.

Ex-Assemblyman George W. Holman, Jr., of Ocean county, N. J., read in the papers yesterday his affidavit made before a Master in Chancery last week, in which he told of the $10,000 bribe offered him to vote for John F. Dryden for United States Senator in the contest of 1902.

He told a newspaper reporter who saw him at his home in Pinewold, 7 miles from Toms River, aditional details of the efforts to buy his vote for Senator Dryden, and he gave way to merriment when he saw Senator Dryden's statement that he never had heard of Thomas Palmer, the Trenton lobbyist.

"How they must have laughed in Trenton when they read that statement from Dryden," said Mr. Holman. "Why, for any one who was around the Legislature of 1902 to deny knowledge of Tom Palmer is like saying they didn't know the State House. Everybody knew Palmer. He was an all-around lobbyist, but such a pleasant fellow that he was popular even with those who despised his business."

Mr. Holman for some years has represented the Holland Trust Company in their unfortunate real estate investment at Barnegat Park, now known as Pinewold. He is the son a millionaire manufacturer of medical goods and his wife is the daughter of General Rawlins, Grant's chief of staff, and a ward of General U. S. Grant. He served in the New Jersey Assembly for a single term, 1902, and was not renominated because the politicians couldn't "handle him."

In explaining why he made his affidavit Mr. Holman said to the reporter:

"Though I have kept out of State politics for several years the attempt of Senator Dryden to force himself as a candidate a second time made me so indignant that I wrote to a political friend in Newark, asking if it was possible after the disgraceful debauchery of the Legislature in 1902, that Dryden could again be elected. This friend came at once to see me and I gave him the affidavit to use as he saw fit.

"Only such a surprising situation as arose in 1902 could have made it possible for a man like Dryden to have a chance. Senator Sewell died between election day and the opening of the Legislature, leaving an unexpired term of five years to be filled. This gave an opportunity for any political freebooter to jump in and try and get votes by any means, legitimate or illegitimate. Dryden never had been known in politics or statesmanship, but he had money and he became a candidate against Griggs and Stokes, both men of Senatorial calibre.

"Nineteen ballots were taken. Griggs held the balance of power. Dryden could not have been elected without the Griggs votes, and every means was resorted to to get them. Tom Palmer, who offered me first $5,000 and then $10,000 to flop from Griggs to Dryden visited my room in the Windsor Hotel and later in the Trenton House and talked and persuaded unceasingly. More than once I went to sleep with him sitting by my bedside talking.

"One Sunday a stranger drove here to my house from Toms River, and in this very room produced a roll of $1,000 bills and told me they were mine if I would vote for Dryden. I refused and then he begged me to introduce him to Mrs. Holman.

"'You leave me alone with your wife and walk around the grounds,' he said. 'Then you be advised afterward by her about your vote for United States Senator.'

"Of course I turned down this proposition, and he left without seeing Mrs. Holman. He did not register at Toms River, and I never was able to find out what county he came from.

"They even attempted to work upon my employers, the Holland Trust Company. I received a letter from James B. VanWert, the secretary, asking me if I could consistently, to vote for Mr. Dryden. No effort was overlooked in the Dryden campaign, which, it was common talk that year, cost him $400,000.

"Ex-Governor Griggs told me afterward that all the men who finally deserted him on the last ballot and voted for Dryden were marked and the money showed in each instance, sooner or later. One man built a house within a year. Another paid off a mortgage. A third shared in the good fortune of a relative who became suddenly prosperous.

PLAINFIELD WOMAN NAMED IN DIVORCE SUIT

SHE WAS THE CAUSE OF SUIT BROUGHT BY MRS. DE GROFF, OF JERSEY CITY.

A Plainfield woman figured prominently in a suit for divorce which was brought in Jersey City recently and which has been granted in behalf of the petitioner on the advice of Master in Chancery, Charles S. Hartshorne, of Hudson county.

The application was made by Mrs. Carrie L. DeGroff against her husband, Frederick R. DeGroff, until recently engineer of a "flier" between Communipaw and Philadelphia. In her testimony Mrs. DeGroff said she found in her husband's pocket a letter addressed to Mrs. Anna Messenger, of 189 North avenue, Plainfield. She had suspected that he was spending most of his spare time in this city and when questioned about the letter, admitted that he knew Mrs. Messenger and it is alleged he said that he thought a great deal of her. For a few weeks, however, he was more attentive to his wife and she took no action.

Eventually DeGroff began absenting himself from home again and the wife secured the help of relatives to get evidence against him for divorce proceedings. On February 2 last, she came to Plainfield accompanied by her nephew, William T. Latimer, of 63 Claremont avenue, Jersey City, and they asked Detective McCarthy, of the local force, to accompany them to Mrs. Messenger's home. DeGroff and Mrs. Messenger were arrested and it is said the evidence was obtained on which the divorce suit was based.

DeGroff made no contest and the application was granted. The decree carried $60 a month alimony for the wife.

MISS WHEELER NOW MRS. JOHN R. HALSEY

WEDDING CEREMONY IN GRACE CHURCH CHANTRY, NEW YORK.

Grace hurch chantry, New York, was the scene of a pretty wedding yesterday afternoon, when Miss Helen Garthwaite Wheeler, of Orange, was married to John Reboul Halsey, of Astoria, L. I., in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends, including many from this city, where the bride has been spending the winter. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Frank Crowder, of Staten Island.

Mrs. Joseph Davis Phillips, of Netherwood, sister of the groom, was the matron-of-honor, and the best man was Dr. Robert Hurtin Halsey, of New York, brother of the groom. The ushers were Joseph Davis Phillips, of Netherwood, and Duff Green Maynard, of New York city.

The bride was gowned in cream colored gros-grain silk, made in Princess style, trimmed with a real lace collar and medallions. She also wore a tulle veil, caught up with real orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white lilacs. The matron-of-honor wore an imported lace gorn, trimmed with real lace anud her hat was straw color, trimmed with straw colored ostrich plume, red roses and meline. She carrfed American Beauty roses, tied with with green ribbons.

Prior to the ceremony the chimes of Grace c hurch were played and at the ceremony the organist, James Helfenstein, an intimate friend of the groom, played the wedding marches. No reception followed the ceremony. The couple will reside at the San Remo, Central Park West.

The groom's gift to the bride was a diamond bow knot and wreath, and an attractive adornment of the bride's trousseau was the wedding pin of the groom's mother.

TO HAVE ELECTRIC LIGHTS.

Congregational Church Trustees Decide On Immediate Installation.

Plans have been completed for the installation of electric lights in the Congregational church. The Board of Trustees voted to proceed with the work without further delay, this week.

A. B. Laing was given the contract. The parlors, as well as the auditorium, will be hung with lights. The improvement was voted several months ago.

Gold Medals Latest Date.

The Gold Medal minstrel troupe takes to the road again next Tuesday night when it will hold the boards at New Market. One of its well known black face entertainments will be given in Friendship Hall for the benefit of the New Market school piano fund. An entirely new first part and olio has been arranged and the show will be one of the best the troupe has ever put on.

ALL FOR BOROUGH BILL

"Dory" Strong Swings Around in Favor of Incorporation of South Plainfield.

NEW MARKET WAITING

Has An Idea the Village Might Get Lehigh Coal Storage If Road Disliked New Borough Conditions.

In Piscataway, Trenton and the other quarters interested, the passage of the bill to make South Plainfield a borough is regarded as an assured thing. The Lehigh Valley Railroad and "Dory" Strong, ruler of Middlesex county, who, it is said, saw to it that the borough movement came to nothing last year, are said to be resigned to the creation of the new municipality. Having heard that on sufficient authority, the South Plainfielders are confidently preparing to take over the reins of government.

Mr. Strong is propularly credited with having been the insurmountable obstacle in the way of the borough bill last year. The South Plainfield electorate convicted him of legislative murder immediately after the old bill was smothered to death, and they turned to with a will to encompass his punishment. What happened to Mr. Strong and his favorite sons at the poll in South Plainfield in November in a matter of history. Surveying their work and the general result of the election in Middlesex with vast satisfaction, the South Plainfielders calmly reanimated the borough movement and allowed Mr. Strong the pleasure of estimating its strength again.

Mr. Strong blinked and admitted that he had seen a great light. Assemblyman Drake, of Stelton, which is part of Piscataway township, and not very far from South Plainfield's backyard, took the borough bill under his protecting arm. He knew the sentiment for it in South Plainfield, and he told Mr. Strong that row active it was. Mr. Strong is said to have admitted that it was too strong to be overruled, no matter what the fears of the Lehigh Valley Railroad or the rest of Piscataway, including officeholders, were. Those who are in a position to know say he promised unreservedly to "keep his hands off."

The Lehigh management is said to have seconded Mr. Strong's promise. The railroad was naturally afraid, when borough talk began, that the South Plainfielders intended to make the Lehigh coal storage in the proposed borough bear pretty much all the expense of municipal government. They had nightmares of a sudden and shocking rise in taxes. It is said that the prominent men of South Plainfield have given assurances that no tax rampage is contemplated, and the railroad heart is not beating so high with apprehension.

New Market, the chief village of Piscataway, opposed the separation of South Plainfield, and is not now wildly enthusiastic over the prospect of the divorce. The ratables of the township will materially shrink with the withdrawal of South Plainfield, New Market, however, has heard that the road to boroughdom has been cleared and smoothed for quick passage, and has resigned itself to the inevitable. It is busy with plans to make the best of the new conditions when they arrive, and has already slipped a heavy card under its sleeve.

It is New Market's hope that things will become too uncomfortable for Lehigh comfort in the proposed borough. If the railroad finds that taxation under a borough government is too expensive for corporate taste, New Market will call attention to the spacious township territory available for coal storage. There is all the room the Lehigh might desire along the tracks at New Market. It is said that the New Market men who would have the say-so over such a plan have come to the understanding looking to every encouragement of a coal storage removal whenever that might become a possibility.

The borough bill under consideration was drawn by District Judge Newcorn. There is no referendum clause in it, and the passage of the measure, and subsequent signing by Governor Stokes, will create the new borough. The bill is in the hands of the borough and Borough Commission Committee Judge Newcorn will speak in its favor if a hearing is held. He is using what influence he possesses as a former assemblyman to further the passage of the measure, and that influence is not inconsiderable.

Police Board Meets Tomorrow Night.

The Councilmanic Police Board is scheduled to hold a meeting tonight to talk over several matters of special interest to the department. Owing to the lack of a quorum it was impossible to hold a meeting last week.

"HAM" KEAN DENIES THREATENING SENATOR

County Leader Declares He Never Said That Union County's Legislators Would be Politically Dead.

Reports current in political circles during the last few days that former County Chairman Hamilton F. Kean, brother of United States Senator Kean and the recognized Republican leader in Union county had threatened Senator Ackerman and Assemblyman Perkins, Tillman and Moxon, brought forth a vigorous denial from him today. In plain language it had been spread broadcast that Mr. Kean had declared that the Senator and the Assemblymen were politically dead for not going into the party caucus and abiding by its decision to vote for the re-election of John F. Dryden to the United States Senate.

Mr. Kean gave the following signed statement to a correspondent of The Daily Press at noon today:

"As a member of the State Republican Committee and the Union County Republican Committee for twenty years I conceived it my duty to urge the Senator and Assemblymen of my county to attend the Republican caucus. I urged this in the strongest manner I possibly could and urged it upon other Republicans from Union county whom I met in the corridors of the State House in order that they could likewise urge upon the members of the Senate and Assembly to attend the caucus.

"Since the holding of the caucus I have made no statement to anyone and I emphatically deny having said that Senator Ackerman, or Mr. Perkins or Mr. Tillman or Mr. Moxon or any of them were politically dead. This in my opinion would be entirely beyond my province as my duty ceased when the caucus met."

ACKERMAN INTRODUCES TWO MORE MEASURES

BOTH BILLS FATHERED BY RIPARIAN RIGHTS COMMITTEE OF SENATE

The following measures were introduced in the State Senate yesterday by Senator Ackerman:

Gives consent of the State to the acquisition by the United States of State land for government use.

Authorizes the Governor "to cede jurisdiction over and convey to the United States right, title and interest of this State in and to submerged land in the Delaware river, between the States of New Jersey and Delaware, for the purpose of aiding in the improvement of the ricer."

Mr. Colby introduced these measures:

Provides that not less than ten legal voters of this State, who are members of the same political party and residents in the same ward, township or borough without wards, may prepare and sign a petition to the municipal clerk to print the names of candidates on the official ballot. Petitions are to be filed not less than twenty days prior to the primaries.

Supplement to the Election act, providing for nominations to county boards of elections by chairman of parties; requires chairmen to nominate persons from principal factions; gives voter right to petition Circuit Court to select such members in case chairmen fail to do so.

Supplement to the Elections act; provides for qualification of candidates in case of error or omission in petitions; gives Circuit Court power to correct errors and to order a recount of primary ballots, if deemed necessary; gives Circuit Court power to delay holding of conventions or printing of ballots until question of error has been passel up.

Junior League Social.

The Junior Epworth League of the First M. E. church, held a social in Vincent chapel, yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Thomas MacDonald, the superintendent, was in charge of the formal programme, which included games and music. Refreshments were served afterward.

—The North Plainfield High School five will play the Y. M. C. A. second basketball team Monday night.

—The Sioux defeated the Apaches, 24 to 12, in the local basketball league, Tuesday night. The Mohicans still lead.

ACQUIRED A PARSONAGE

Park Avenue Baptist Church Gets Pastor's Home on Easy Terms.

UNUSUAL PROVISIONS

Church Is To Pay Mrs. Frances E. Stevens, Aged Philanthropist, Small Annuity Until She Dies.

Through the generosity of Mrs. Frances E. Saunders, of Elmira, N. Y., a former resident of this city, the Park Avenue Baptist church is about to acquire a parsonage. At a meeting of the congregation, last night, an offer from Mrs. Saunders to turn over the property at 111 East Ninth street, to the church on liberal terms was unanimously accepted. Details of the title transfer will be settled at once.

The house is now occupied by Rev. A. E. Finn, the pastor, and his family. It is a spacious brick structure, admirably situated. It lies almost directly opposite the church.

It was the house in which Mrs. Saunders and her late husband lived for years. Mr. Saunders was wealthy. He came here from New York, when he retired from the harvester business in 1888, buying the property on Ninth street at that time. He died about two years, and shortly afterwards Mrs. Saunders went to Elmira to make her home with a brother. The pastor's family moved into the house in April, 1905.

Mrs. Saunders' terms for the sale of the property are unnusual. During her lifetime the church is to pay her a certain sum yearly, practically no more than the present rental, and at her death full title to the property will pass to the church corporation. Mrs. Saunders is well-to-do, and the annuity is not, so far as is known, necessary to her support. The proposition is virtually one of gift, for, as Mrs. Saunders herself has said, her life is not likely to go on for more than a few years. She is 76 years old.

The proposition was laid before the meeting last night in the form of a communication from Rev. Dr. Judson, of the Judson Memorial Baptist church, New York, of which Mrs. Saunders is a member. He acted for the aged philanthropist. Although a member of the Judson church, and no longer a resident here, Mrs. Saunders retained her interest in the Park Avenue church, and has been one of its staunchest friends. After the proposition was accepted, a resolution of thanks was passed, and the clerk was instructed to send a copy to Mrs. Saunders.

DAUGHTERS OF REBEKAH INSTALL NEW OFFICERS.

Mrs. W. J. Ford Presented With a Handsome Past Grand Regalia.

Friendship Lodge, No. 4, Daughters of Rebekah, installed the officers-elect last night, Deputy Mrs. William Westphal and staff being in charge. The deputy, Mrs. P. A. VanFleet, on behalf of the lodge, presented to Mrs. William J. Ford, a handsome past grand collar, embroidered and trimmed with gold lace. Mrs. Ford thanked the members for the expression of their appreciation.

During the present term eighteen new members have been initiated and several have been elected. After the meeting refreshments were served. The new officers are as follows:

"Mid-Winter Excursion."

The Epworth League of Grace M. E. church has arranged a novel entertainment for tomorrow night, called a "Mid-Winter Excursion to the Catskill Mountains." The train will leave the church at 8 o'clock. Refreshments will be served at the Mountain House. Round trip tickets, one smile and a hand-shake.

Civil War Memories.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss will address the students of the North Plainfield High School tomorrow morning at 10:55, subject, "Reminiscences of the Confederate Army." The people of the borough are invited to hear the talk.

ANTI-DRYDENITES TO STICK OUT TO THE LAST

Independent Eight Likely to Be Reinforced by Ten Caucus Votes on Tuesday.

For Every Democratic Vote Cast for Dryden, One Drydenite Will Desert Him.

It is reliably reported that the first break away from the candidacy of John F. Dryden will come at the very latest after one more ballot is taken in joint session of the Legislature on next Tuesday. Already it is stated Assemblyman Moxon and Tillman, of Union county, as well as at least eight others have intimated that they desire to be released from any further obligations incurred by attending the Republican caucus. Among the number, it is said, is Senator Hillery, of Morris, who is known to be favorable to Justice Pitney but who agreed to abide by the caucus which picked Mr. Dryden.

Equally important is the announcement from Trenton that the eight Republican legislators who have voted solidly against the caucus nominee are more than ever determined not to cast any votes for the insurance president. In fact the "Independent Eight" are resolved to fight it out on the line originally adopted by them if it takes all winter. This being the case, John F. Dryden can never hope to be re-elected. Even should the Drydenites be able to capture some Democratic votes, and they say that they do not want them, there will be no chance of his success. For every Democratic vote that goes over to the Republican caucus nominee, the vote of one regular Republican will be lost to him forever. This means that if ten Democrats desert their party, ten Republicans will quit John F. Dryden. "Treachery will be fought with treachery," is the way one well-informed Republican leader who knows what's going on put it.

It is stated that a formal demand will be made next Monday night by Republican legislators who went into the caucus to be relieved from their promises. To whom their votes will be switched is problematical. Some are likely to rally under the banner of Justice Pitney while others will reinforce the friends of John W. Griggs. Ten votes taken away from Dryden will leave him with only twenty-six. This would mean eighteen Republican votes against him on the Republican side and would make fifty-six votes against him altogether on joint ballot. When this condition presents itself, it is believed that the State leaders will convince Mr. Dryden that all hope for him is lost and that in the interests of the Republican party he should withdraw from the race.

Not until today was it known that the "Independent Eight" had resolved not to vote for Mr. Dryden under any circumstances. Heretofore none but Senator Colby had announced any such radical plan, but it is said that the other seven have been convinced that they should take the same stand.

VICTIM OF THE RAIL WAS CLINTON NERONIS

BODY IDENTIFIED BY CARMAN TERRY, BY WHOM HE WAS EMPLOYED.

The body of the young colored man found on the tracks of the New Jersep Central at Finderne, Sunday afternoon, was identified by Carman Terry, of Cushing road, yesterday afternon, as that of Clinton Neronis, twenty-two years old, who had been employed by him. He viewed the remains at the morgue in Somerville and then had them removed to this city. The funeral will be held at Runyon & Son's undertaking rooms, Saturday morning at 10 and interment will be in Evergreen cemetery.

Neronis was taken from a home by Terry when he was a small boy and had always worked for him. He was sober and industrious and no one can account for his being at Finderne, unless it was that he started for Somerville to visit freinds. He left the Terry home early Saturday night for the purpose of going to the New Plainfield theatre and the fact that two programmes were found in his pocket, is taken to show that he was there. It was through the programmes that the authorities were led to look to this city for identification purposes.

The young man had no relatives so far as known but he was widely acquainted in the city and borough.

MARY CASSIDY GETS HELP FROM THE CHURCH

FATHER DELAHANTY HAS HER SENT TO THE HOSPITAL.

Mary Cassidy, the servant, whose plight—ill and friendless except for the kindly colored family that had given her shelter—was reported in yesterday's paper, has been succored by St. Mary's Roman Catholic church. She was visited by Father Delehanty, to whose attention the case was called, and arrangements were made at once to have her taken to the hospital. She is at the institution now, and her return to health in only a matter of days. Grip had fastened on her, but not strongly enough to make her recovery doubtful.

Father Delehanty expressed warm praise for the Walkers, the colored family with whom the girl found refuge, this morning. They did not know the girl, but when she came to their door, ill and worn, last week, they took her in without hesitation and ministered to her as to one of their own. Father Delehanty said that reports of squalid conditions in the house were wrong. The house is neatly kept and cleanliness in every room is marked. The priest thanked the family in the name of the parish for what they had done in caring for one of the faith.

Funeral of Gun Victim.

The funeral of DeWitt Clinton Giles, the young boy killed by the explosion of a gun held by Thomas Johnson, Monday afternoon, took place at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Giles, of South Plainfield, this morning. The house was filled with a gathering of relatives and friends from this city and other places. The services was conducted by Rev. Dr. E. M. Rodman and was very simple. There were numerous floral tributes, one of the best set pieces being from the boy's schoolmates. Interment was at Hillside.

Taxes Reduced By $600,000.

In response to the appeal of the Singer Sewing Machine Company at Elizabethport, the State Board for the Equalization of Taxes has taken off $600,000 on the personal assessment of $1,000,000 placed on the company's property.

Coal Stealers Fined.

Oscar Green, nineteen years old, and Harold Hill, eighteen years old, both colored, were fined $3 apiece by City Judge Runyon this morning for stealing coal from the railroad. They were arrested this morning by Patrolman Myers.

Dr. Ard Called Home.

Dr. Frank C. Ard, of Park avenue, was called to his home at Westfield, N. Y., today, by the death of his brother, Dr. William E. Ard, of that place.

—Good flour must be used in baking or poor results are sure to follow. Neuman Brothers are conducting a special sale of the best brands: Hecker's Superlative, Pillsbury's Best and Wasburn & Crosby's Gold Medal. Special price per barrel for a few days only.

DR. ZELIE TO SPEAK.

Will Repeat His Address On "Religious Places of Interest in England."

At the request of the officers of the Young People's Association of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church Dr. Zelie will repeat at the meeting of the association tomorrow night, his address on "Religious Places of Interest in England," which he delivered before the Wednesday night meeting in October last.

Dr. Zelie's account of some of the incidents in visit to Great Britain last summer was so much enjoyed that he has several times been requested to give the public another opportunity to hear it, and the association extends an invitation to all interested to be present tomorrow night.

THE CONVENIENCE

of having one's credit good possibly at this time of the year, is a little more noticeable than at any other. Perhaps yours is in excellent shape, but you have already used it as far as you care to go, and are still a little short. Then step in and let us assist you. We're taking care of winter's needs for hundreds whose credit is good, but who hesitate to obligate themselves any further to their friends, and particulary for a loan of a little cash. We loan any sum for any time and accept return payment weekly, semi-monthly or monthly.

We give you a written statement showing the exact cost of a loan, also the exact discount we allow every month the loan is paid before contract time. You will find us always willing to give you facts at our office. If you cannot call, write or 'phone us, and our confidential agent will call and give you full particulars.

The possession of household goods, piano, organ, horses and wagons are sufficient evidence of your ability to pay.

THREE RUTGERS MEN MYSTERIOUSLY ABSENT.

Two New Jersey Students and a New Yorker Disappear from New Brunswick College.

New Brunswick, Jany 24.—Considerable excitement has been caused here by the disappearance of three Rutgers College students. They are Kenneth Franklin, of Mohawk, N. Y.; Samuel Demarest, of Bergenfield, and Howard Diltz, of Flemington. They are members of the sophomore class.

They attended college last Friday, and nothing has been seen of them since. The parents of the students have been notified, and Mr. and Mrs. Demarest had an interview with President Demarest, of the college, yesterday. It is said that they left for Texas or some Western State.

All three are honor men in their class, each pursuing the civil engineering course. Demarest is a member of the 'varsity football team, playing tackle. Franklin is secretary of the 1909 class, while Diltz was vice president in his freshman year.

Patents for Jerseymen.

The following patents were issued yesterday to residents of New Jersey: Edward L. Buschman, Orange, machine for cleaning bags; Charles B. Day, East Orange, flushing apparatus; Julius Degen, Trenton, centrifugal pump; Robert M. Dixon, East Orange, steam trap; Benne von Eigen, Newark, corner fixture for bag frames; William H. King, Newark, cloth-cutting machine; Frank F. Knothe, Ridgewood, belt; Oskar Martin, Bergenfield, folding mat; Penrose M. Milsted, Newark, lamp; August E. Nienstadt, Newark, explosive; David E. Olds, Newark, rail-fastener; Harry S. Parker, Trenton, refrigerating device for milk; Eugene Pearl, Passaic, hose-supporter and weeder; Armin H. Pikler, Montclair, electromagnetic apparatus; John F. Robinson, Rockaway, horseshoe; John L. Sommer, Newark, shoe buttoner and horn; Charles C. Tomkinson, Plainfield, sheet piling; Oscar Wiederhold, Jersey City, incandescent gas lamp.

Beefsteak Makes Her Steal.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 24.—"I just simply cannot resist the odor of beefsteak when it is cooking. It makes me steal," was the manner in which Miss Mary Laughlin, aged twenty-three years, excused herself for several thefts which she has committed in the last year. This statement was made when Miss Laughlin appeared before Magistrate Gallagher yesterday to answer the charge of robbery. According to the testimony she is honest until she smells good things to eat cooking. She declares that as soon as she comes within smelling distance of a steak she begins to look for something valuable to steal. The odors of other things have various effects. The odor of baked apples, for instance, she said, made her wish to pray. Her evidence was supported by medical testimony. Dr. W. P. Warner testified that he had examined the girl and found her affected strangely by her sense of smell. Nevertheless, the Magistrate held her in $600 bail.

Students to Hear President.

Cambridge, Jan. 24.—President Roosevelt has consented to deliver an address to Harvard students on February 23, under the direction of the Harvard Union and the Harvard Political Club. The address is expected to be simply an informal talk to the undergraduates and Harvard men generally.

Jerusalem Chapter, No. 24, R. A. M., will hold a communication tonight and confer degrees on several candidates, including Assemblyman Randolph Perkins.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Women's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will meet tomorrow afternoon for sewing. The women are preparing articles to be sent to a home missionary.

The Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church, has an established reputation for serving a fine turkey supper, and the women will sustain it at the annual supper to be given Thursday and Friday nights, February 7 and 8, from 6 to 9 o'clock.

The Women's Home Missionary Society of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church has elected these officers for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Robert L. Lee; vice-president, Mrs. W. B. Grannatt; recording secretary, Miss Anna Stafford; corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. B. Grannatt, Jr.; treasurer, Miss May Brouwer.

Ship Subsidy Message.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—The President yesterday sent to Congress a message calling attention to the "great desirability of enactment of legislation to help American shipping and American trade by encouraging the building and running of lines of large and swift steamers to South America and the Orient." The urgent need of our country's making an effort to do something like its share of its own carrying trade on the ocean has been called to his attention, the President says, in striking fashion by the experiences of Secretary Root on his recent South American tour. State aid to steamship lines, the President says, is as much a part of the commercial system of today as State employment of consuls to promote business. The President says that the proposed law which has been discussed in Congress is in no sense experimental. It is based on the best and most successful precedents, as, for instance, on the recent Cunard contract with the British government.

Many Japanese Arrive.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 24.—The three hundred and six Japanese laborers brought by the steamer Alameda from Honolulu have all been landed. Only thirty-seven were detained on the steamer's arrival, and they were released yesterday. The Korea arrived from Japan yesterday with 437 Japanese and 59 Korean laborers aboard. Up to last evening the majority of the arrivals had been landed. When Commissioner of Immigration Sargent was in Honolulu he found that in spite of the increasing number of arrivals from Japan, Hawaii's Japanese population was steadily decreasing. He found that Honolulu was being used merely as a stopping place and that after a brief sojourn there the Japanese coolies took their departure for the Pacific coast mainland.

Must Remove All Screens.

New Brunswick, Jan. 24.—Judge Booraem has issued the formal court order requiring the removal of all screens from the windows and doors of saloons, as provided by the "bishops' law." When the law was first enforced Judge Booraem held that the act did not require the issuing of the order, but since the law has been interpreted as requiring the county judge to issue the removal order, he has served official notice upon saloons licensed by the Court of Common Pleas that the screens must come down.

Her Appointment a Surprise.

New Brunswick, Jan. 24.—New Brunswick and Middlesex county have not quite recovered yet from the surprise occasioned by Judge Booraem's action in appointing Mrs. Emily E. Williamson, of Elizabeth, probation officer of the county, in place of Cornelius Buckalew, who had held the place since it was first established by legislative enactment. Buckalew had been a ward worker and election day challenger, a constable and a general utility man.

Congressman Gardner Very Ill.

Atlantic City, Jan. 24.—Dangerous symptoms of pneumonia have developed in the illness of Congressman John J. Gardner into a stage where his physicians are worried over his chances for recovery. Bulletins issued from his home here Tuesday said that the Representative was suffering from a relapse and that he has been compelled to give up any consideration of business or political affairs.

Brass Pans.

Brass pans that have stood for some time should be rubbed with vinegar and salt to remove verdigris. Clean with polishing paste or with bath brick dust and water. Then rinse out well with hot water and polish with soft cloths. Treated like this your brass pans will be perfectly safe for any kind of cookery.

For Reddish Hair.

A shampoo that should give a blond cast of reddish hair is made of one-half ounce of honey, half an ounce of rhubarb stalks and three ounces of white wine. Let the three stand together for twenty-four hours, then drain. Wet the hair evenly with the liquid, rub and let it dry. Then wash off in clear water.

Carnegie Gives Yale Pool.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 24.—Andrew Carnegie has given to Yale University $40,000 to build a swimming pool as an annex to the university gymnasium. The gift meets one of the greatest needs of the gymnasium. This is the first gift made directly to Yale by Mr. Carnegie.

HIS REPORT CAUSES A STIR.

Former Comptroller's List of Expenditures Creates Comment.

Long Branch, Jan. 24.—Former Comptroller Walter S. Reed's annual report, which was presented to the City Council at its last meeting, giving a detailed statement, together with the beach and park expenditure of over $400,000, has caused quite a stir because of the direct attack made on committee legislation by him. Dr. Reed, who is a former member of the New Jersey Assembly, was a candidate for re-election, but was defeated by former Mayor Thos. R. Woolley, a Democrat.

Dr. Reed's report shows that the $400,000 is not only expended in ocean front improvements, but an additional $50,000 is already gone, and the work is not yet completed, while the general account shows a deficit for the year of over $36,000. The part of Dr. Reed's report which "sits down" upon the City Council, particularly the committees having charge of the works, reads as follows:

"I will resent all responsibility that has been shifted upon me, because of unpaid bills and the condition of finance, it being only a subterfuge on your part for the very careless manner in which the various committees have transacted their business, and who have taken upon themselves to make such large expenditure of money without first presenting the matter to your whole body for consideration. No knowledge on my part, nor was my attention ever drawn to any expenditures until after they had been made, and rightly so, because you were the only ones who had the power of spending the people's money, hence I say, in good faith, that it would be well for you not to palm off any stigma for which you are responsible for upon innocent parties."

ULIANAS DISCHARGED FROM THE COUNTY JAIL.

No Proof That Father and Son Caused Mrs. Uliana's Death in November Last.

Theodore and Charles Uliana, father and son, who for the past two months have been confined in the Union county jail charged with the murder of Mrs. Georgiana Uliana, the wife of Theodore, were yesterday afternoon discharged from custody, as there was no proof on which the Grand Jury could find an indictment against them. Lawyer William R. Wilson made the motion for the discharges and the order was signed by the foreman of the Grand Jurk, John W. Whelan, and Prosecutor of the Pleas N. C. J. English.

The Ulianas reside in New Providence township. In November last the dismembered body of Mrs. Uliana was found in a piece of woodland near Elkwood avenue. As the dead woman was known to have left her home some weeks before, suspicion of causing her death fell upon the husband and son, and they were arrested and committed to jail.

—William Wright, of West Front street, who recently purchased the business property at Watchung avenue and Fifth street, is having an addition erected on the Fifth street side of the building.

—Eugene Higgins, formerly chief clerk at the Elizabeth office of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company, has been transferred to the Plainfield office of the company, succeeding John DeMeza, resigned.

INTRODUCE MEASURE TO REVISE CONSTITUTION.

Minturn Resolution Provides for Joint Committee of Legislature to Prepare Act.

Senator James F. Minturn, of Hudson county, Democratic leader in the upper branch of the eLgislature, at Trenton, moved yesterday by the introduction of a joint resolution for a convention to revise and modernize the State constitution, which is generally conceded to be far behind the times. The resolution provides for the appointment of three members of each House, who shall sit during the present session and report a constitutional convention bill previous to final adjournment.

Senators Colby and Stizer introduced several election reform bills, the principal purpose being to bring about the selection of United States Senatorial candidates by a direct expression of the voters.

Senator Ackerman introduced two bills to permit New Jersey to transfer riparian lands to the Federal government when such tracts are desired for navigation improvement.

In the House the Democrats named Assemblymen Baker, of Hudson; Lane, of Essex; Holcombe, of Hunterdon; Brady, of Essex, and Klennert, of Passaic, as a steering committee to pass on all partisan legislation or other matters with a political tinge during the session.

Governor Stokes yesterday signed the Colby bill, passed by the Legislature this week, to permit the under sheriff of Essex county to hang a murderer awaiting execution, Sheriff Sommer, of that county, being now ill in the South.

MURDER INQUEST PRIVATE.

No Verdict Made Public in Califon Slaying Case.

Califon, Jan. 24.—The coroner's inquest over the body of Manning Riley, who was murdered Saturday night, was concluded late Tuesday. The verdict will not be announced until it is filed at Flemington and made a public record. For miles around persons came here Tuesday to witness the inquest and were disappointed when it was decided that a private inquest be held.

Prosecutor George K. Large and his father, former State Senator George H. Large, of Flemington, were present to look after the interest of the State. While an autopsy was being performed by Dr. Isidoré Tompkins, of this place, and Dr. O. H. Sproul, of Flemington, the coroner swore in the jurors.

Riley's body was taken yesterday morning to the home of his brother, Hansom Riley, at Fairmount. The funeral services were held yesterday in the Fairmount Presbyterian church by the pastor, Rev. Dr. Baker Smith. Interment was in the Presbyterian cemetery.

Mr. Riley was the son of the late John Riley, of Fairmount, who died about twenty-seven years ago. He belonged to a large family and he leaves the following brothers and sisters: Alexander Riley and Ransom Riley, of Fairmount; Frank Riley, of Chester, and Henry Riley and Philip Riley, of Madison; Mrs. William E. Stroud, of Ironia; Mrs. Adaline Thompson, of Whitehouse, and Mrs. George Haldeman, of Orange. Mr. Riley was thirty-eight years old last April. He was unmarried.

Horse Kills Man in Stall.

New York, Jan. 24.—Michael McCarthy, thirty-seven years old, while caring for a horse, owned by a friend, in a stable at No. 325 West Thirteenth street, yesterday afternoon, was stricken with an epileptic fit, and fell to the floor. The horse became frightened and fell on the man, killing him. The horse could not get to its feet and employees of the stable ran into the stall and dragged the animal out.

TALKS OF BIG BRIBES

"In Trenton the boodle talk was common enough. Everybody knew what was going on. Why, I remember after the last ballot, when I was the only member of Assembly who voted for Griggs, I met a man on the street who is a Judge on the bench today and he seized my hand and exclaimed:

"'I'm glad there's one honest man's hand I can shake.'

"When the whole miserable business was over and Dryden had been elected and the price of votes was gossiped about, I came home here on the train with Thomas Fisher, editor of the New Jersey Courier. I remember saying in my ignorance—I was a first year member, you know—that I supposed the papers of the whole State would reek with the doings at Trenton, the vote-buying and the scandal.

"'You won't see a word,' my friend said. 'You watch.' And sure enough the scandal was not exploited."

Mr. Holman's affidavit did not cause the surprise among his friends and neighbors that it occasioned in Trenton and elsewhere. There were two reasons for this. In the first place the politicians of Ocean county are highly sophisticated and keep fairly good track of the doings at the State capital. Then again Mr. Holman's independence in large and small things has always been a matter of good-natured comment.

What will cause surprise and some gossip in Ocean county, however, is the announcement that within the last three months Mr. Holman made application to Senator Dryden as the head of large business enterprises in New Jersey for a position. His letter of application was characteristic of the man. He wrote:

"Hon. John F. Dryden.

"Dear Sir:—As the Holland Trust Company, my present employers, are liquidating their affairs and will shortly go out of business, I am looking for a new position. I have excellent references, but I know of none which will appeal to you more strongly than the fact—of which you have knowledge—that I did not accept your bribe and vote for you in the Senatorial contest of 1902. Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

"GEORGE W. HOLMAN, JR."

When Mr. Holman was asked about this letter yesterday he said he could recall the text almost exactly, and agreed that the foregoing was the language used.

"I saw no reason why I should not write to Mr. Dryden as a man of affairs and the head of corporations employing men in capacities of trust such as I have occupied," said the ex-Assemblyman. "As a business man surely no recommendation could be higher to him than that I couldn't be bought or bribed. And he knows that. But I never received an answer to my letter, though I marked it 'personal.'

"When I wrote to Mr. Dryden," added Mr. Holman, "I had no idea that he would be a candidate for United States Senator again. I believed that one such election as he obtained five years ago would satisfy any man not absolutely insensible to public criticism. It turns out I was mistaken."

D'ORSAY ADMIRABLE IN "THE EMBASSY BALL."

Actor and Play a Delightful Combination at the New Plainfield Theatre.

"The Embassy Ball," a three act play from the pen of Augustus Thomas, fully repaid a large and fashionable audience for braving the cold to attend the New Plainfield theatre, last night. Built frankly as a vehicle for Lawrance D'Orsay, an actor with an impersonating personality, it is replete with "Thomas touches" and as a whole is funnier tsan "The Earl of Pawtucket," by the same author, and in which Mr. D'Orsay appeared for an entire season in New York.

The scenes of the play are laid in Washington, Mr. D'Orsay having the role of "Captain, the Honorable Hawarden-Kellie," military attache of the British Embassy. He returns from England, engaged to an English maid he has never seen, falls in love with an American girl in Paris, is jilted by both, goes to Washington and becomes engaged to another girl, who was in Paris when he rescued her and her bicycle from the gendarmes and both signed a marriage license, stupidly issued to them in mistake for a bicycle permit.

In the three acts all sorts of perplexing and comical situations arise, but the slow but gallant captain is unjustly suspected of love intrigues with women, married as well as single, and is the innocent cause of several lively family scenes or disturbances. In the last act the captain wins back the heart of his first love. Mr. D'Orsay's work throughout was admirable and all his peculiar little mannerisms were keenly appreciated.

The cast included Harry Harwood, Joseph Drake, Forrest Robinson, Lyster Chambers and Rose Hubbard.

Fowler's Latest Bill.

Washington, Jan. 24.—Representative Fowler, of New Jersey, chairman of the Committee on Banking and Currency, Tuesday introduced a bill to amend the national banking act so as to permit the retirement of a maximum of $15,000,000 of national bank notes a month instead of $3,000,000, the present limit.

THE FORUM.

Confederate Generals.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Is it not about time to call a halt on the panegyrics that are being delivered on General Robert E. Lee and Stonewall Jackson? Conceding their deeply religious natures and that they were fully satisfied with the rectitude of their conduct, two facts exist, neither of which can be controverted: 1. Both were educated at the expense of the Government of the United States, after taking a solemn oath to support and sustain it. 2. After so doing they employed the knowledge thus acquired, coupled with great natural abilities in a prolonged effort, defeated only by vast outlay of blood and treasure to destroy the best government the world ever saw.

Had their efforts succeeded this country would probably be a series of petty states instead of one to which the whole world looks for encouragement and assistance.

I submit that such examples are neither to be followed nor extolled.

Clinton Avenue Team.

Editor, the Daily Press:

In your Monday night's issue of your paper our friend, Mr. Penny, manager of the Suburban A. C., of the West End, made a few remarks regarding the following given the Clinton Avenue Baseball Club. I will admit that the following of our team for the past twenty odd years, with the exception of last year, hasn't been what it should be. Why? Just because we had a gang of kickers and dissenters in our midst. Now that these have been gotten rid of and who, by the way, help to make up our Suburban Club, we find that running a baseball team in the West End isn't so bad after all, as our treasury will easily show. I think if Mr. Penny will patiently wait until next season he will easily see which team gets the largest following a team which has a long and good record, having held its own with all the amateur and semi-professional teams in this vicinity, or a team made up of a few has-beens and soreheads. Hoping to see this in print,

ADAM SCOTT.

JERSEY BUILDING READY.

State Has An Excellent Location at the Jamestown Exposition.

Newport News, Jan. 24.—Within the last few months great progress has been made in the construction work for the Jamestown Tercentenary Exposition, and in no instance is the evidence of this more pronounced than in the case of the New Jersey State building.

With the exception of the inside trimmings, the plumbing, the electric light fixtures, and the mantels, the building is now complete, but under the contract the exterior is to receive another coat of paint. It is apparent at a glance that the work on the New Jersey building has been done in a thorough, workmanlike manner, and a critical examination of it shows nothing that is not fully up to the requirements. In fact, much of it appears to have been particularly well done. This is especially true of the plastering. In the front and rear of the building the cement walks are all completed, and the grounds around the structure have not only been graded, but sown with grass, which has already begun to make a showing. In this respect the Jersey grounds are far ahead of the other structures.

An excellent location has been assigned to Jersey for its exhibit building, and the structure is now practically in shape for the commission to take possession of it. The contract for laying the platform over the site was awarded last week by Secretary Lewis T. Bryant, of the New Jersey Commission, and it is said by him and by others that the space will be ample for any exhibit that the State may choose to make there. The assignments for other exhibits will also be of a satisfactory nature. One of the most interesting of these will be the history exhibit. The work of preparing this is progressing rapidly, and, it is said, it will be a credit to the State.

The exposition authorities are making rapid headway with the work. Not a few of the exhibit building have been completed, but there is still much work to be done. No effort will be spared, however, to have everything in readiness to open the exposition on time. Many of the State buildings are now well under way, and all appear to be well built, and unusually attractive, but the consensus of opinion is that the New Jersey building will compare favorably with any of them.

Record Files an Objection.

Elizabeth, Jan. 24.—Corporation Counsel George L. Record, of Jersey City, appealed before the State Board for the Equalization of Taxes here yesterday, and presented a petition which set forth that Jersey City was the only municipality in Hudson county where the land and whatever property stood on it were assessed separately. Mr. Record thought this was unfair, on the part of the other municipalities, as Jersey City in consequence was paying more than its share of the county tax. The board fixed Friday, February 1, at Jersey City, as the time when it would give a hearing in the matter.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Under teh auspices of the young people of the Baptist church a "Skiff, Scaff, Scuff Mouse Social," was held last night. The evening was spent playing games of all kinds. An amusing feature was the presentation to the pastor, Rev. C. W. F. Attlee, of a mouse, which was received with a few words of thanks. Refreshments were served after the entertainment.

It is understood that there are some residents who object to the proposed incorporation of the place into a borough. Their objections are not known, but those who advocate the incorporation are anxious that the objectors state their objections for discussion.

The skating on the pond was never better and crowds of young people are enjoying the sport. The ice is four inches thick.

Miss Florence Johnson, of Newark, is spending the week with relatives here.

P. F. Kane is in Boston, this week, looking after some business interests.

COMMANDERY AUXILIARY'S MUSICAL AND RECEPTION.

Newly-Elected Officers Arrange Enjoyable Programme for Members and Friends.

The newly-elected officers and members of the Ladies' Auxiliary to Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., gave a reception and musicale in Masonic Hall, yesterday afternoon, to the wives and sister of the sir knights, some of whom are not members of the auxiliary. There was a large attendance of women and the social features together with the musicale combined to make the event one of great pleasure. Mrs. Matthew H. Ewart, as president of the auxiliary, was in charge of the programme.

There were vocal solos by Miss Helen Whitney and Miss Leila Druse, accompanied on the mandolin by Miss Steele, and recitations by Miss Aimee Emmons. Their selections were of the best and they were given a cordial reception by the assemblage of women. Refreshments were served after the entertainment.

The new officers are as follows: President, Mrs. Matthew H. Ewart, vice president, Mrs. James Pray; treasurer, Mrs. W. R. Codington; secretary, Mrs. H. W. Marshall; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Edward Cooley.

At the next meeting on February 8, the auxiliary expects to have an address by Rev. A. C. McCrea, pastor of the First M. E. church, on "The Crusade."

To Publish "The Creation."

The action of the treasurer of the American Sabbath Tract Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, in placing the bequests of Sarah E. V. Stillman, of $500 and George S. Greenman of $3,500 in the permanent fund has been sustained by the executive board of the society. The board has voted to publish another edition of 1,000 copies of the tract by Rev. H. H. Baker, entitled "The Creation Described."

Mrs. Moe's Funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. Addison Moe was held at her late home on West Fifth street, yesterday afternoon. It was conducted by Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis and was attended by a gathering of relatives and friends. Interment was made at Hilside cemetery, the pall bearers being Thaddeus O. Doane, James Armstrong, H. N. Holder and William Milligan.

Relief Work at Kingston.

The Salvation Army has established a relief corps at Kingston for the earthquake sufferers. Each corps in the United States will receive special contributions on Sunday, January 27. CHILDREN'S DAY AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

BOOKS FOR BOYS AND GIRLS TO BE SHOWN BY LOCAL WOMEN.

Children's Day will be observed at the Plainfield Public Library tomorrow afternoon and all day Saturday. Grown-ups will, however, be admitted when unaccompanied by children. There will be no admission for adults, but for children the requirement for admission, as the poster in the children's department has it, will be "2 clean hands." About 400 new books for children, just purchased, will be displayed upon tables in the reading room and the tables will be in charge of about twenty parents and teachers.

Those taking part in the exhibit are: Miss Maud Bateman (North Plainfield Public School), Saturday morning; Mrs. A. H. Chamberlain, Saturday afternoon; Miss Ethel Ferry (High School), Saturday morning; Mrs. E. H. Foster, Friday afternoon; Mrs. Hugh F. Fox, Saturday afternoon; Miss Annie Gilbert, Friday afternoon; Miss Flora Griffin, (Principal of the Bryant and Lincoln schools), Friday afternoon; C. H. Mead (Mr. Leal's school), Friday afternoon and Saturday morning; Miss Anne Miller (Hartridge school), Saturday afternoon; W. D. Murray, Saturday afternoon; Mrs. P. B. Macintyre, Saturday afternoon; Mrs. W. D. Murray, Saturday morning; Mrs. W. H. Murray, Saturday afternoon; Mrs. M. O'Malley Nott, Friday afternoon and Saturday morning; Miss Genevieve Petrie (Principal of the Irving school), Friday afternoon; Miss Helena Pope (Stillman school), Saturday morning; Mrs. J. W. Sandford, Jr., Friday afternoon and Saturday morning; and Mrs. S. H. Voorhees tomorrow afternoon.

All about the room will be hung bright picture posters and other material illustrative of the books shown. Among them are some charming Japanese color illustrations of child life, a number of artists' drawings, mounted illustrations and the like.

While all tables will be attractive, the most popular is likely to prove the picture book table, where the needs of very little people have been met most generously. Many of these books are illustrated by the best English and American artists, and will have an attraction for all who care for really good illustrative work. Mother Goose books will be displayed here, and it will interest the children to know that Mother Goose herself has come out from New York, where she has been staying temporarily, to visit this exhibit and meet her many child friends in Plainfield. She returns to New York immediately after the exhibit.

The animal story books will be sure to interest. Here are books by Long, Seton, Lang, Roberts and others who know wild life and how to make it interesting to others.

And the fairy tale table, all the boys and girls who have been telling us that they want more fairy tales must be sure to come and see the treasure laid up for many a long day ahead. And such beautiful pictures too, of real fairies and elves. There are some about make-believe fairies, but these are not half as nice as the real fairies.

Boys and girls who like to "make things" may learn how to make very bewitching dolls out of such easy things to get as hickory nuts, radfishes, &c., while older brothers and sisters may learn how to make rugs and baskets, boats, motors, &c. There are also at this table books which tell of new games and tricks.

Then at the Romance table are some new books about Robin Hood, King Arthur and his knights, stories from Chaucer and Spencer, Dante and Shakespeare, and many others, together with many books of poetry and short stories, especially good for reading aloud.

For the boy or girl who likes adventure, there are tales of sea voyages, and of pirates, of Indians, &c. Wholesome little home stories there are too, in abundance, and a very good number of books about school life, both at boys' and girls' schools. Every state and age has been consulted, and the boy or girl who cannot find here plenty to his statte, must be difficult to suit.

Books exhibited will be put in circulation on Monday.

Funeral of Stephen D. Mangam.

In the presence of a gathering of relatives and friends, the funeral of Stephen D. Mangam was held at the home of his daughter, Mrs. S. G. Taynor, of Lincoln place, yesterday afternoon. Rev. Charles E. Herring was in charge and during the service two hymns were sung, "Homeland" and "Face to Face." Interment was made at Rahway.

February Tea.

Invitations have been issued by Mrs. Leander Newton Lovell and the Misses Lovell for a tea to be given at their home, 112 Crescent avenue, on Thursday afternoon, February 7, from 4 to 6 o'clock. Mrs. Harry Borden Lovell, of West Fourth street, will receive with them.

ARRESTS MADE IN THE SOURLAND FEUD

FOUR MEN ACCUSED OF ASSAULT ON FRANKFORT POSTMASTER.

Crook Sutton, Nicholas Ernest, David Dilts and Clarence Miller were rounded up yesterday by County Detective Totten as the principals in the Frankfort outrage Monday night in which J. M. Cox, the postmaster of Frankfort, was knocked down and dragged out of his store by the Breen faction of the Sourland Mountain.

The prisoners were taken before Justice William P. Sutphen, where they were charged with assaulting and robbing Cox and also with assault on James Martin, Cox's partner; Mrs. Mary Cox and Miss Julia Mutchler, the wife and the sister-in-law of the postmaster. They were released under heavy bail to await the action of the Grand Jury.

The prisoners were accompanied to court by a number of well-to-do farmers who sympathized with Breen in the fued now existing between the Cox and Breen families. They deny the charge of robbery, which they say Cox has trumped up against them. Ernest, one of the prisoners, owns a big farm in the Sourland district, and Sutton, Dilts and Miller are well-known young men who work on farms near Frankfort.

In their defense the prisoners said they were compelled to knock down Postmaster Cox and drag him out of his store, as he had threatened to shoot them.

LAST RECITAL PROVED A MUSICAL FEAST.

Miss Beebe and Mons. Dethier Delight Society Audience.

The last of the violin and piano recital series by Miss Beebe and Mons. Dethier was given at the home of A. H. Atterbury in West Seventh street, last night. At this recital the numbers represented the modern composers, containing sonatas by Brahms, Grieg and Richard Strauss.

The work of both these artists display a fine conscientiousness and careful preparation, their ensemble evincing a high regard for discriminating detail and scrupulous nicety of execution. The thorough enjoyment of the audience was manifested by warm applause after each number and the artists were forced to add a response number after the regular programme, giving very delightfully the immortal air of Bachs for the G string from the suite in D. It speaks much for the musical appreciation of a community that recitals such as these call forth such generous support.

The programme in full follows:

Brahms, 1833-1897—Sonata in D Minor, I Allegro, II Adagio, III Un Proco Presto E Con Sentimenta, IV Presto Agitato; Grieg, 1843—Sonata in G, I Lento Dolorso, Allegro Vivace, II Allegretto Tranquillo, III Allegro Animato; Strauss, 1854—Sonata in E Flat Major, I Allegro, Ma Non Troppo, II Andante Cantabile III, Andante Allegro.

Men Will Cook and Serve Supper.

J. B. Cottrell, as chairman of the committee in charge of the arrangements for the men's annual supper at the Seventh-Day Baptist church on Tuesday night, February 12, is planning a novel entertainment in connection with the supper. The men will cook and serve the supper, without the aid of women.

Plainfield Council Will Install.

Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, will meet tonight when the officers-elect will be installed in their respective stations. Armstrong Mulford, the present regent, will retire from his office at that time. The installation will be followed by an informal time and the serving of refreshments.

Will Read Letters from Missionaries.

The Young Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will meet tomorrow afternoon and in addition to an interesting programme, there will be read several letters from missionaries towards whose support the society contributes.

Jan. 27: "The Saviour of All." (Missions.)

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

Isa. xliii, 6, 7; Matt. xv, 22-28; Mark ii, 15-17; Luke ii, 29-32; John iv, 6-26; Acts x, 34, 35.

All men need a Saviour. No people and no individual has been found who is not conscious in some measure of the need of deeper and purer knowledge of God. We need some one who shall guide us to the truth and show us what we ought to do.

But we have not done as well as we knew how to do. We need one who shall give us the power of a better life. Beyond this we have done much we ought not to have done, and we are guilty and cannot rest until the past be so adjusted as to give us peace with that past.

We need absolution or forgiveness for the past sins, power to lead the right life for the future and guidance in the way of truth that we may know what is the right way. This has been the search of all true hearted men in all ages and all lands.

The expectation has been kept alive through long ages and among many different people that some one would at last arise who should be able to tell men the truth of God all need to know and impart power for holy living. There have been many teachers of religion who have given some help and some light on the difficult places of life, but the only one who has come claiming to fully know all the mind of God and to be able to impart all needed help to men to live pleasing to God is Jesus of Nazareth.

The Christian religion is different from all other religions the world now has or ever had in that it presents a perfect Saviour from sins and claims the universal allegiance of all men. It professes to be adapted to the needs of all men everywhere and under all circumstances. It goes still further and starts its believers out into life with the definite purpose to make all men know the truth and induce them to enter into fellowship under the terms of this teaching.

It has a unique conception of the world and God and the relation men bear to God, the world and to each other. God is most profoundly a Father to men. Men are essentially brothers in nature and should be so in fact and work out their life under that thought. One man, the God man, has lived the ideal life and called us all to follow in His path. Whoever will commit himself to the Christ receives the impulse of new existence and spiritual uplift to love God and his fellow man. He becomes conscious of forgiveness for the wrongdoing of the past and is saved from the power of the evil within and without.

Another peculiarity of this religion lies in the impulse it imparts to all who truly come into its fullness to carry the glad news to all whom they can reach. Indeed, this is one of the insistent demands of the renewed nature. The saved one must tell others of the Saviour and invite them to come and share in the benefits of the great salvation.

The last and abiding command also of the Saviour Himself refers to this very matter and places on every follower of Christ the obligation to carry the tidings to all the world.

The church has been slow to understand her full duty in this regard, and many individual Christians even at the present time but dimly discern their obligation to help evangelize the whole world. But clearer and clearer this blessed work is coming into view as the great work laid upon us by the Master. With increasing zeal our people are rising to the fulfillment of the great commission.

Jesus is the Saviour of all men. It is our work to carry the tidings of salvation to all. Does this press on your heart? Are you helping?

God's Plan and Ours.

There are two different courses open to each of us. One is to choose God's will for us as our own will and to do the work which he plans for us. The other is to reject God's will and to push out upon a course of our own. If we do the latter, there are again two courses open to us. One is to stifle our moral sense, the voice of God within us, calling us back. The other is to hearken to the discontent of our own hearts and to turn back to do the will of God.

"From childhood," writes a young man, "I have felt impressed that my life should be devoted to Christian work, and this fact kept me from becoming a Christian for some time. I felt that if I became a follower of Christ I would have to enter His work. About six months after my conversion there came to me a very definite impression, while studying the Bible, that God had a work for me to do. But there was present in my heart a spirit of rebellion, for I had planned for myself a business career. God has permitted me to carry out my own plans, until I have found out that a business life can never satisfy me. I long for some work that is soul satisfying."

It is a good thing that God does not abandon us: that His patience never wears out; that even when we succeed in escaping from His will and apparently prosper in our own course He follows us and whispers to us until, if we are wise, we turn back and do what He wills for us. That is the only thing that in the end can satisfy. We cannot possibly plan for ourselves a career as wonderful and successful as God can plan for us.—Forward.

Erect Life.

If we look down, then our shoulders stoop. If our thoughts look down, our characters bend. It is only when we hold our heads up that our bodies become erect. It is only when our thoughts go up that our lives become erect.—A. McKenzie.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Jan. 27.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Home missions. The progress of the Indian.—Isa. xliii, 16-21.

There is probably no nation on the face of the earth to which some prophecy of them coming unto God does not apply. In the reference from Isaiah there are several descriptions that are particularly applicable to the American Indian. The Indian of today remembers not the former things nor considers the things of old, but is absorbed with the new conditions of his life which God has brought to him. The prophecy, "I will make a way in the wilderness," is also descriptive of them, and of the Indian it may be truly said, "This people have I formed for Myself; they shall show forth My praise." In the bringing about of these changes we can easily trace the progress of the Indian along new spiritual lines.

If we will glance at the condition of the Indian when Columbus discovered America and at his condition today we will be able to see the progress he has made.

The Indian of the past was the original inhabitant of America. Whence he came to this country has never been discovered. When Columbus came to America he was here, with every appearance of having been here from remote antiquity. The character of the Indian has been variously estimated. Some have idealized him, and others have scarcely found language in which to express their opinion of the cruelty and treachery of the Indian character. He had a passion for war, and his false and barbarous principles of warfare largely account for the cruelty of his character. His religious life was most marked. His "untutored mind saw God in the cloud and heard Him in the wind." He called his Deity the Great Spirit, but in addition to the Great Spirit he saw "indwelling spirits in everything." He also believed in a future life—his "happy hunting ground" beyond the grave. The medicine man was the prophet and priest of his religion, but in his religious life he was far from the true God, and, like all the nations and races that knew not God except through nature and natural instinct, the Indian was very much in need of the God of revelation, revealed in His inspired word, and especially in His Son Jesus Christ.

The present religious condition of the Indian is in marked contrast to his past religious status. And this change has been brought about through mission work among these aborigines of America. The Protestant church began its missionary work among the Indians in New England in 1643, and this work has been carried forward so successfully under the blessing of God that the tribes in America today are practically civilized and Christianized. They now worship the true "Great Spirit." Their hope for the future life is based upon faith in Jesus Christ. The pagan rites of their former religion have been abandoned for the true worship of the true God. The missionaries are still at work among them, and especially effective work is done in the Sabbath and day schools for the young. Few races of men have been so completely transformed by Christianity as have the Indian races. The American people owe them a great debt, and it can best be paid by giving them the gospel of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

BIBLE READINGS.

Isa. lii, 7; Nah. i, 15; Matt. v, 11, 12; xxviii, 19, 20; Acts i, 1-11; Rom. ix, 1-5; x, 14, 15; I Cor. iii, 5-10; II Cor. ii, 23-33; Rev. xxii, 17.

From Trinidad.

J. A. Scrimgeown, president of the Trinidad Christian Endeavor union, writes thus enthusiastically about the movement in his part of British West Indies:

"The Christian Endeavor movement in Trinidad, which now comprises sixteen societies with about 700 members, is steadily growing and we believe has a very decided influence in the training of our young people. We have a very cosmopolitan union, as among the most active members are East Indians, both from the Bengal provinces and from Madras; Chinese, Creoles, Portuguese, English, Scotch and Canadians and the present and past executive committees have had members of all or nearly all these races."

Advance, Endeavor!

Oh, brothers, the task is tremendous
To which we have given our hand;
The Master is waiting to send us;
Our part in the struggle is planned;
From some the new way may be hidden,
To others revealed at a glance,
But all who have started are bidden
Advance.

The ruts of unbroken convention
Are deeper and rougher with use,
Though paved with the finest intention
And patched with the neatest excuse;
The pathways the highest achieving
Lead over the peaks of romance;
The tracks of formality leaving,
Advance.

"Enough" is the knell of Endeavor,
Complacence the end of the wedge
That, finding a cranny, will sever
The bonds of the prayer and the pledge;
"Content" is a signal of warning
And "comfort" a dangerous trance;
Press onward, ye sons of the morning—
Advance.

The step that awaits you this moment
May lead you to peril or loss,
Provoke some unmerited comment
Or add to the pain of your cross;
The comrades of old may allure you,
And round you the devils may dance,
But count it all joy and be sure you
Advance.

Tomorrow the foe may be stronger
Or set a new snare in your way;
Tomorrow the road will seem longer
Unless it is shortened today.
Oh, brother, of custom so careful,
So careless of missing your chance,
Come, vigilant, earnest and prayerful,
Advance.

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

A TALE OF THE OLD WEST

By HARRY LEON WILSON, AUTHOR OF THE SPENDERS

COPYRIGHT 1903 BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

In the silence that followed, the funeral drum came booming in upon them over the ridge, and once they saw an Indian from the encampment standing on top of the hill to look down at their fire. Then the little man spoke again.

"You will go with him," he said to Prudence. "He will take you out of here and back to your mother's people."

"She's going to marry me," said Follett. The little man smiled at this.

"It is right—the Gentile has come to take you away. The Lord is cunning in His vengeance. I felt it must be so when I saw you together."

After this he was so quiet for a time that they thought he was sleeping. But presently he grew restless again, and said to Follett:

"I want you to have me buried here. Up there to the north, 300 yards from here on the right, is a dwarf cedar standing alone. Straight over the ridge from that and half-way down the other side is another cedar growing at the foot of a ledge. Below that ledge is a grave. There are stones piled flat, and a cross cut in the one toward the cedar. Make a grave beside that one, and put me in it—just as I am. Remember that—uncoffined. It must be that way, remember. There's a little book here in this pocket. Let it stay with me—but surely uncoffined, remember, as—as the rest of them were."

"But, father, why talk so? You are going home with us."

"There, dear, it's all right, and you'll feel kind about me always when you remember me?"

"Don't—don't talk so."

"If that beating would only stay out of my brain—the thing is crawling behind me again! Oh, no, not yet—not yet! Say this with me, dear:

"'The Lord is my Shepherd; I shall not want.

"'He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters.'"

She said the psalm with him, and he grew quiet again.

"You will go away with your husband, and go at once—" He sat up suddenly from where he had been lying, the light of a new design in his eyes.

"Come—you will need protection now—I must marry you at once. Surely that will be an office acceptable in the sight of God. And you will remember me better for it—and kinder. Come, Prudence; come, Ruel!"

"But, father, you are sick, and so weak—let us wait."

"It will give me such joy to do it—and this is the last."

She looked at Follett questioningly, but gave him her hand silently when he arose from the ground where he had been sitting.

"He'd like it, and it's what we want—all simple," he said.

In the light of the fire they stood with hands joined, and the little man, too, got to his feet, helping himself up by the cairn against which he had been leaning.

Then, with the unceasing beats of the funeral drum in their ears, he made them man and wife.

"Do you, Ruel, take Prudence by the right hand to receive her unto yourself to be your lawful and wedded wife, and you to be her lawful and wedded husband for time and eternity—"

Thus far he had followed the formula of his church, but now he departed from it with something like defiance coming up in his voice.

"—with a covenant and promise on your part that you will cleave to her and to none other, so help you God, taking never another wife in spite of promise or threat of any priesthood whatsoever, cleaving unto her and her alone with singleness of heart?"

When they had made their responses, and while the drum was beating upon his heart, he pronounced them man and wife, sealing upon them "the blessing of the holy resurrection, with power to come forth in the morning clothed with glory and immortality."

When he had spoken the final words of the ceremony, he seemed to lose himself from weakness, reaching out his hands for support. They helped him down on to the saddle blanket that Follett had brought, and the latter now went for more wood.

When he came back they were again reciting the psalm that had seemed to quiet the sufferer.

"'Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for Thou art with me; Thy rod and Thy staff they comfort me.'"

Follett spread the other saddle blanket over him. He lay on his side, his face to the fire, one moment saying over the words of the psalm, but the next listening in abject terror to something the others could not hear.

"I wonder you don't hear their screams," he said, in one of these moments; "but their blood is not upon you." Then, after a little:

"See, it is growing light over there. Now they will soon be here. They will know where I had to come, and they will have a spade." He seemed to be fainting in his last weakness.

Another hour they sat silently beside him. Slowly the dark over the eastern hill lightened to a gray. Then the gray paled until a flush of pink was there, and they could see about them in the chill of the morning.

Then came a silence that startled them all. The drum had stopped and the night-long vibrations ceased from their ears.

They looked toward the little man with relief, for the drumming had tortured him. But his breathing was shallow and irregular now, and from time to time they could hear a rattle in his throat. His eyes, when he opened them, were looking far off. He was turning restlessly and muttering again. She took his hands and found them cold and moist.

"His fever must have broken," she said, hopfully. The little man opened his eyes to look up at her, and spoke though absently, and not as if he saw her:

"They will have a spade with them when they come, never fear. And the spot must not be forgotten—300 yards north of the dwarf cedar, then straight over the ridge and half-way down, to the other cedar below the sandstone—and uncoffined, with the book here in this pocket where I have it. 'Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: Thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over. Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever.'"

He started up in terror of something that seemed to be behind him, but fell back, and a moment later was rambling off through some sermon of the bygone year.

Slowly, then, the little smile faded—the wistful light of it dying for the last time. The tired head fell suddenly back and the wan lips closed over lifeless eyes.

From the look of rest on the still face it was as if, in his years of service and sacrifice, the little man had learned how to forgive his own sin in the flash of those last heart-beats when his soul had rushed out to welcome Death.

Prudence had arisen before the end came. Follett was glad she did not see the eyes glaze nor the head drop. Then he sprang quickly up and put his arm about Prudence.

"Come, sit here close by the fire, dear—no, around this side. It's all over now."

"Oh! Oh! My poor, sorry little father—he was so good to me!" She threw herself on the ground, sobbing.

Follett spread a saddle blanket over the huddled figure at the foot of the cross. Then he went back to take her in his arms and give her such comfort as he could.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

The Gentile Carries Off His Spoil.

Half an hour later they heard the sound of voices and wheels. Follett looked up and saw a light wagon with four men in it driving into the meadows from the south. The driver was Seth Wright; the man beside him he knew to be Bishop Snow, the one they called the Entablature of Truth. The two others he had seen in Amalon, but he did not know their names.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

"Deserted at the Altar," which appears at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night, is from the pen of Mr. Pierce Kingsley and is a story well adapted to arouse and sustain interest from rise to fall of curtain. There are thrilling scenes, startling climaxes, bright comedy, pathos—in fact one goes through the whole range of human emotions. The play opens in the mountain home in the Adirondacks of the heroine, showing the glory of the autumnal foliage and the distant mountain peaks. In the next act we see a drawing room, then a beautiful church interior and altar. In the third act is shown a counterfeiter's den where the U. S. Secret Service men capture the chief of the band. In the final act we see the interior of the Adirondack home at Christmastide, where explanations are made and virtue receives its reward, while wickedness is justly punished. Many new and up-to-date specialties are introduced. Miss Darrell as "Janey" is especially entertaining. She will star shortly in a new American comedy written for her.

Miss June Mathis, the pretty Miss who takes the part of "Patsy" in Jane Mauldin Feigl's beautiful comedy, "The Girl Patsy," is the youngest leading woman in the profession. Miss Mathis has made a pronounced hit in this play. When "The Girl Patsy" comes to the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night one of the best performances will be seen. The production is direct from the Savoy theatre, New York, and the company carries a carload of stage effects. The play, cast and production is classed as one of the best in the country. Theatregoers everywhere highly praise "The Girl Patsy."

Three hours of continuous laughing interrupted by gasps and surprises is a good definition of the effect of the entertainment given by Mildred and Rouclere. You sit and look, and feel your hair rise in wonder and amazement at what they do and then you burst out into an uncontroable ha-ha, and before that ha-ha has fairly ceased they are again raising your hair and taking your breath away with some new wonder they are parading before your eyes, and presto change your sides are being tickled and once more the gladsome notes of a real laugh are issuing from your throat. They are wonderful artists and they are irrestistible laugh-makers. They are artistically fantastic and fantastically artistic and that is what has made them world famous. There is nothing too good for the public is their manager's slogan and he at great expense it is true has secured Mildred and Rouclere and is presenting them, not to the chosen few but to the general many. On next Monday night this remarkable entertainment will be given in this city at the New Plainfield theatre.

The French Seam.

The French seam is always used on fine underwear. To make it the cloth is seamed on the right side, taking a very narrow seam, and then trimmed off as closely as possible. It is then turned and stitched on the wrong side, the first seam being entirely inclosed.

PARASITE SYMPTOMS

Many St. Louis People Interviewed Upon the Subject.

STATEMENTS SECURED

Cooper Claims That Monster Worms Cause Fifty Per cent. of So Called Stomach Troubles.

St. Louis, Jan. 23.—Nothing has done so much to arouse the people in St. Louis as the immense number of parasites or tape-worms that are being removed from individuals by a preparation known as Cooper's New Discovery.

This preparation is being introduced in this city for the first time by L. T. Cooper, the young philanthropist, who has made and is making a fortune by its sale. The medicine is prepared at Dayton, Ohio, and is sold for various forms of stomach trouble. It is now being sold in St. Louis in such enormous quantities as to have caused a general discussion by physicians throughout the city.

Cooper claims that much suffering is the result of tapeworms, and stated early during his visit that the creatures were responsible for fifty per cent. of all stomach trouble. This claim seems to be verified as fully one-half of the individuals who have taken this preparation have been relieved of one of these creatures.

A reporter who spent an hour at Cooper's headquarters, secured statements from a number of people, who brought one of the creatures to the young man, yesterday. The following are some of these statements and are similar to all the rest:

Mr. Chas. H. Muetz, living at 4031 Easton Ave., who brought with him a tapeworm about fifty feet in length, when questioned, said: "I have been in poor health for eight years. I have attributed it to my stomach, although I was not certain just what was the matter with me. I felt dull most of the time and the least exertion tired me. I had a very irregular appetite and always had a coated tongue. I was troubled with shortness of breath, headaches, dizziness, sleeplessness and would see specks before my eyes if I stooped over and raised up quickly.

"My worst trouble was that I seemed to lack all ambition and it was difficult to attend to my business as I always felt tired even after a night's sleep. My mind seemed dull and sluggish most of the time and I had difficulty in remembering. I have had headache a great deal and have done everything possible, but could get no relief.

"I heard so much of this man Cooper, that last Wednesday I bought a bottle of his preparation. I did not use it till yesterday when I took two doses of it and about two hours ago a parasite left my system. I know now what made me feel so badly all these years. I consider this the most remarkable preparation I ever heard of. It has made life worth living for me once more and I am very thankful."

The statement of Mr. William Bracken, of 720 Morgan St., was as follows: "I had suffered with stomach trouble for three years. I was not sick enough to be in bed, but just felt bad all the time. My greatest trouble was that I always felt tired, would get up in the morning feeling as tired as when I went to bed.

"I had a very irregular appetite and was troubled with dizzy spells. If I stood for any length of time I would have a dull pain in the lower part of my back. I was nervous and felt all the time as though something terrible was going to happen. My memory has been getting bad during the past year and my eyesight is not as keen as it was. I have tried many kinds of medicines but nothing ever helped me.

"I had about given up all hope of ever being in good health again, when I heard so much of Cooper and decided to try his medicines. I bought one bottle of his New Discovery, as it is called. I took just three doses of the medicine and this tapeworm, which is over seventy feet in length, left my system. I never suspected that I had this thing. I feel better already and believe I will get back some of the flesh I had lost during the past few years. I would not have that thing in me again for a thousand dollars."

These statements and others like them go far toward accounting for Cooper's immense success here and elsewhere. So far every claim made by the young man seems to have been verified.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Father Delehanty, of St. Mary's church, made an address before the Holy Name Society, of St. Columba church, Jersey City, on Sunday.

The Episcopal Church Choir Guild, of Plainfield and vicinty, will hold its first general rehearsal for practice in the auditorium of Grace church parish house on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. W. E. MacClymont, the precentor, will be in charge.

So as to conform with the custom of other Baptist churches throughout the country, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, proposed at the business meeting of the church, last night, that in the future the communion service be held monthly, instead of bi-monthly. The question was proposed for consideration and will be acted upon at the next business meeting to be held two months later. The custom of holding communion services bi-monthly has been in force since the organization of the First Baptist church, and it is simply to conform to the custom of other churches that the change is proposed. Two new members were received by letter.

RECORD SCORES MADE IN SWEEPSTAKES CONTEST.

Independent Gun Club's Competition Brought Out Some Crack Shots.

Three matches and some fine sweepstake shooting was witnessed on the grounds of the Independent Gun Club, yesterday afternoon. In the first match, fifty birds, $15 a side, W. Krausse won from S. S. Sabbacher, by a score of 38 to 35. In the second match, the same number of birds and $15 a side, S. S. Sabbacher won from John W. Wirth, by a score of 35 to 32. Thomas Brantingham won an easy match from Firman Bissett, of South River, twenty-five birds, $25 a side, the score being 23 to 21. Another match between Brantingham and Bissett, 100 birds, will be held at the Plainfield Driving Park, Wednesday, January 30, for a purse of $50 a side.

In the sweepstake shooting the scores averaged the best ever made on the club range. Those who participated and their scores were as follows:

Thomas Brantingham, 10; W. C. Terry, 9; Den. E. Gavin, 9; Firman Bissett, 8; S. S. Sabbacher, 8; Henry Haurand, 8; W. Krausse, 8.

BISHOP SAYS THAT HE IS NO BOMB-THROWER.

Head of Episcopal Diocese of South Jersey Explains His Attitude as a Socialist.

Trenton, Jan. 24.—There has gone broadcast throughout the United States yesterday through the medium of newspaper reports, the information that Bishop John Scarborough, of the Episcopal Diocese of New Jersey, yesterday declared himself, at Vineland, as a Socialist in the strictest sense of the word.

Bishop Scarborough was seen today at his home here, and when shown the printed reports he characterized them as placing him in the wrong light and as putting a wrong interpretation on what he said at the Vineland meeting.

"I am not a long-haired bomb-thrower," said the bishop with a laugh. "I am a Socialist, the same as you are, in so far as you are interested in the uplifting of your fellowmen. I am interested in men and am seeking to do something for mankind. That's the kind of a Socialist every man is who is interested in the betterment of man."

GEN. ALGER DEAD.

Washington, Jan. 24.—Senator Russell A. Alger, of Michigan, formerly Secretary of War, died at 9 o'clock this morning at his home in this city, 1401 Sixteenth street. The cause of death was heart trouble, from which he had been suffering for some time.

Big "Pork" Barrel.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—"Pork" to the value of $83,466,138 is contained in the Rivers and Harbors Appropriation bill which will be reported to the house in a day or two by Representative Burton, chairman of the Committee on Rivers and Harbors. A preliminary report of the appropriations carried by this bill, issued yesterday, indicates that "log rolling" tactics necessary to pass such an enormous raid on the Federal Treasury have been used to "salt down" enough votes to carry the "pork" through the House. Thirty-four States are represented by appropriations in cash or authorized continuing contracts, and an element of decency is contributed in appropriations allowed to Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico, which have no vote.

New Congregational Church.

New York, Jan. 24.—At a conference held recently by residents of Flatbush plans were made for the formation of a new Congregational church. A committee consisting of Marshall E. Rice, Harry W. Little, Leonard W. Renfrew, George Wells and Edwin H. Du Bois was named to make arrangements to perfect the organization. The first sermon will be preached on Sunday evening, at No. 694 Flatbush avenue, which has been rented for services. The Rev. Robert J. Kent, of the Lewis Avenue church, will preach the sermon. It is the intention of the congregation to obtain a plot and erect a church in the spring.

Frozen In, Will Thaw Out.

Winsted, Conn., Jan. 24.—John Jasmin was found frozen in Mud Brook, New Hartford, last night, but was taken out alive and will recover. J. K. Gillette was driving along the side of the brook and noticed a human face just above the ice and water. The body lay entirely in the water under the ice, which had formed on the shoulders. Gillette got the body out, called help and Jasmin was removed to William Peck's house.

Kills Father Defending Mother.

Laurens, S. C., Jan. 24.—J. J. Smith was shot and killed by his son John yesterday. It is said that the elder Emith was beating his wife and had drawn a gun on her when the son interfered. Smith levelled the gun at his son, when the young man shot his father dead. Young Smith is in custody of the sheriff.

Whole Store Stock Stolen.

New York, Jan. 24.—Burglars broke into the store of Israel Lipsky, No. 2,891 Atlantic avenue, East New York, early yesterday morning, and escaped with clothing worth $2,500. They took all the stock in the store and the police are convinced that they used a wagon in their work.

Henry Osgood will speak at the Rescue Mission tonight. There will be good singing.

Mr. and Mrs. William L. Lockwood and Master Lockwood, of this city, are spending the week with Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Lockwood, at their home in Jersey City.

ZERO WEATHER IS HERE

One Degree Below This Morning But Rising Temperature is Predicted.

THE ICE MEN HAPPY

Frozen Water Five Inches in Thickness On Washingtonville and Other Ponds Nearby.

The official record of the temperature at 8 o'clock this morning as issued by Weather Prophet John Neagle, shows that it was one degree below zero, and the coldest 24th day of January in sixteen years. The previous below-zero temperature for January is as follows:

January 18, 1893, eight below zero; January 6, 1896, one below; January 2, 1899, seven below; January 5, 1904, thirteen below; January 26, 1905, the lowest was zero.

All day yesterday the temperature remained low and towards night there were indications that the lowest temperature of the season would be recorded. Persons who have been expressing sympathy for the coal dealers and thinking how much anthracite they would have left on their hands next spring, changed their minds and instead began ordering coal, which they wanted delivered at once. Stoves and furnaces were stoked with a will in an attempt to keep warm.

The drop in the temperature brought a smile to the ice dealers' countenances, although the spell of cold weather has not been of sufficient length to permit of the cutting of ice. At Tier's pond and the lake of the Plainfield Ice and Cold Storage Company at Watchung ice was reported this morning to be five inches thick. The frozen water will have to be at least eight inches thick before it can be cut. It is reported that about one inch was added to the thickness of ice in local waters, and that it will require about four or five such nights as last night to bring the ice up to the needed thickness.

Neagle says: "Slowly rising temperature with rain or snow."

White Hall, N. Y., Jan. 24.—Last night was the coldest of the season here, the thermometer registering 30 degrees below zero. At Putnam, on Lake Champlain, it was 31. Hulett's Landing, on Lake George, reports 33 below zero.

Glen's Falls, N. Y., Jan. 24.—This is the coldest day of the winter, the mercury having dropped to 25 below zero. At Lake George 30 below was registered, while various Adirondack resorts report 35 and 40 below.

OBITUARY.

John G. Martin.

John G. Martin, aged forty-nine years, died yesterday morning at the home of his sister-in-law, Mrs. William Hartin, on the Samptown road. He leaves one brother, George W. Martin, of Elizabeth. The funeral will be held at Runyon & Son's undertaking parlors, Saturday afternoon and interment will be in Evergreen cemetery.

Mrs. Anna M. Hobbs.

Mrs. Anna M. Hobbs, who came to this city from Newark, died at the home of her daughter, Miss Laura M. Sydenham, of Westervelt avenue, yesterday. The funeral will be held at her late residence tomorrow morning at 11:30 and the interment will be at Newark.

CLOSED PORTALS.

Under the auspices of the Women's Relief Corps a chicken supper will be given in G. A. R. hall Thursday night, January 31, from 6 to 9 o'clock.

H. A. Todd, of East Third street, was made a member of Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., last night. Several propositions were received to be acted upon later.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—William Totten, 20 years old, charged with vagrancy, was released under suspended sentence by Judge Runyon in the city court this morning.

—All bills against the borough of North Plainfield must be in the hands of Borough Clerk Rowley by tomorrow night in order to insure prompt payment.

JIM WAS WISE.

An excited, middle-aged lady bounced into the local police-station the other day and accosted the inspector on duty.

"Where's my Jim?" she demanded.

"Beg pardon, madam—dog, I presume?" said the officer.

"Don't you dare to presume nothing of the kind," snapped the lady. "Dog, indeed! No, sir, husband—my husband. He's missing, disappeared, decamped—"

"You don't say so!"

"But I'd have you to understand that I do say so, young man. How dare you sit there and flatly contradict a ratepayer—leastways, the lawful wife of one. I'll report you, sir. Do you hear that? I'll report you! Where's my husband?"

"My dear madam—"

"How dare you call me your dear madaf? Do you think I come here to be insulted? I tell you my husband has decamped, and you sit there like a dummy! What do you think of that?"

"Well, madam," responded the polite inspector, "I haven't the pleasure of your husband's acquaintance, but I should say he's a very wise man. Constable Blunt, show this lady out."

Revenge.

The reporter had been sent to get an interview out of the noted burglar who had been caught in the act and was behind the bars at the police station.

"The boys say you put up a pretty stiff fight, Bill," said the reporter. "I'd like to have your version of the affair. It ought to make a good story."

"It'll make a good story, all right," sullenly answered Bill, "but I'll see you in Pittsburg before I'll give it to your paper. It was in your society columns that I saw the item that the Thompsons had shut up their house and gone away for the summer—and they hadn't."—Chicago Tribune.

WASHINGTON PARK PLAN

The Residents of That Section Working to Have It Incorporated as Separate Borough.

IS STRONGLY OPPOSED

Former Mayor Saunders and Others Firmly Against Any Such Scheme—Discussed at Recent Meeting.

While the bi-municipal consolidation is aggesively pursuing its investigations of the feasibility and desirability of merging North Plainfield with Plainfield, a movement is underway in the borough to have its Washington Park section set apart as a separate municipality. The residents of that part of North Plainfield are mostly of the commuter class and the property is of exceptionally high value. The section itself is to North Plainfield what West Seventh and Eighth and Ninth streets are to Plainfield.

It was just two years ago that a New York broker having large holdings in the Washington Park section advocated among his friends that they work for the separation of that part of the borough from the rest. Since then he has found a number who agree with his views. Only a week ago a meeting was held at the home of former Senator Chas. A. Reed and this subject came up for discussion. At this conference former Mayor W. L. Saunders and others opposed the idea.

The proposed division line of the suggested Washington Park borough, it is said, would be Grove street. All east of that line would remain as North Plainfield borough. The argument used for such separation is that the interests of the Washington Park section are not those of the ward composed of townspeople and that the former has to pay out the larger part of the revenue for public improvements in the borough.

Rockview Heights, in which Mr. Smalley is a third owner, would be included in the new borough.

BICYCLE THEFTS.

Two Within Twenty-four Hours Reported to the Police.

Two bicycle thefts within twenty-four hours has awakened fear in police circles that wheel-stealing is about to be revived as a regular industry. Every so often an epidemic of bike thefts occurs, and the police are afraid one is about to begin.

Dr. R. W. Emerson reported the disappearance of his Cleveland bicycle from in front of the Babcock building at headquarters last night, and the disappearance of one from in front of the City National Bank building the night before was reported yesterday morning. The fact that both wheels were taken after dark leads to the suspicion that one man with a fondness for working after dark is out after bicycles.

George Wharton Edwards Honored.

George Wharton Edwards, of Franklin place, has received high honor in having one of his paintings accepted for exhibition to be held under the auspices of the Contemporary Exhibition of American Artists in Washington on February 5. Out of 800 paintings submitted by New York artists only forty were accepted and one of these was that of Mr. Edwards. This will be one of the most important exhibitions of artists' work of the season.

Sunday-school Conference.

The Primary and Junior Sunday-school Teachers' Union will hold a meeting Monday night at the Congregational church at 7:45 o'clock. The programme will include a primary lesson taught by W. D. Murray; "Junior Hints," Miss Edith Cairns, and a rounnd table, questions to be answered by competent teachers in the beginners, primary and junior departments. All superintendents and Sunday-school teachers are cordially invited.

Reception for Mrs. Tilney.

Mrs. Joseph Webster Sandford, Jr., of West Seventh street, has issued invitations to a reception which she will give on Saturday afternoon, February 9, from 4 to 7, for her sister, Mrs. A. A. Tilney, formerly of Boston, but who is now residing in this city.

Making Ready to Cut Ice.

The Natural Ice Company placed a gang of men and four horses at work on the lake at Watchung this morning to remove the snow. The ice has now reached a thickness of seven inches and if the cold continues will be fit to cut Monday morning.

Y. M. C. A. Tea.

The Women's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. will hold a tea in the auditorium of the association Monday afternoon, from 3 o'clock to 5 o'clock. L. E. Hawkins, State Y. M. C. A. secretary, will speak.

BESSIE CAMPBELL BOBS UP FOR THE 'STEENTH TIME

IS STILL WORKING THE CONCERT GAME IN THE SAME OLD WAY.

Miss Bessie Campbell, who duped Plainfielders a year ago by selling tickets for a concert that was never given and by securing ads for a programme that that was never printed, is still working the same game. She recently extracted quite a few dollars from the pockets of Washington (N. J.) residents and this week made enough the same way at Bangor, Pa., to pay all her bills until spring.

Bessie's plan is to arrange a concert and then announce that it will have to be postponed or else cancelled. In the latter event she states that "the money paid for tickets and advertisements will be returned." She took the last-named course here and returned the money on the faith-cure" principle—that is the recipients held out their palms and imagined they got their money back. What Bess took away, though, was the real stuff.

The young woman's career has been known to the police but not an instance is recorded where she has been molested in her operations. She worked the concert swindle in a score of New England towns, all through New York State and from one end of Jersey to the other. She always gives the name of Campbell and adopts the same plan from beginning to end but no one gets "wise" to her until it is too late.

MANY WOMEN ATTEND A CHURCH LUNCHEON

MUSICALE A FEATURE OF FIRST M. E. CHURCH AFFAIR.

More than one hundred women attended a luncheon and musicale given under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church yesterday afternoon in Vincent chapel. The affair was a success, socially and financially.

The luncheon was served in the main part of the chapel. The numerous tables were garnished with carnations and asparagus ferns. Mrs. Henry A. McGee was the chairman of the general committee in charge, and two women presided at each table as follows:

Mrs. Nelson A. Miller, Mrs. Judd Stewart, Mrs. Charles E. Horne, Mrs. Harry Gee, Mrs. James R. Joy, Mrs. James W. Jackson, Mrs. A. C. McCrea, Mrs. George H. Whitney, Mrs. J. H. Howell, Mrs. J. C. Peck, Mrs. L. M. French, Mrs. Stephen H. Tugwell, Mrs. Nelson Y. Hull, Miss Sharp, Mrs. Matthew H. Ewart. The following served as waitresses: Mrs. G. Harold Whitney, Miss Helen Whitney, Miss Prior, Miss Helen Joy, Miss Agnes Bailey, the Misses Long, Miss Codington, Miss Laura Geiswein, Miss Runyon.

After the luncheon the musicale was enjoyed, the excellent programme being arranged by Mrs. George H. Whitney, as chairman of the entertainment committee. Each number was pleasing and the artists were given a hearty reception. The programme opened with a piano duet, "Cradle Song," Gounod, Miss Beth Martin and Miss Jubilee Rowley. Miss Mary Clark gave two piano selections, "Slumber Song" and "The Chase," and these numbers were followed with three selections by Miss Beth Martin, "Gavotte," von Wilm; "Farewell Dear Home," Hiller, and "Tarantele," Rogers.

Miss Bertha Whitney recited "Her Letter," by Brete Harte, and for an encore she gave an amusing sketch, "Widow Malone." The next number comprised two vocal solos by Miss Helen Whitney, "Beauty's Eyes," and "You'd Better Ask Me," and the programme closed with two soprano solos by Miss Leila Druse, " 'Twas My Heart," and "He Was a Prince." Miss May Vincent Whitney was the accompanist and her work assisted largely in making the entertainment a success. A feature of the programme was the selections on a phonograph given under the direction of Mrs. Clifton Wharton, Jr. A number of selections from the grand opera were heard, including solos by the best known singers now appearing in New York. The rest of the afternoon was spent in a social way.

Fall of a Gallery God.

James Smith, of 736 West Third street, took a jag with him to the theatre, last night, and made no attempt to keep it decently obscure. He addressed remarks to the actors from his seat in the gallery until he was ejected and landed in the arms of Patrolman Martin. It cost Smith $5 to get away from the city court this mornin.g

DORSEY HYDE, JR., A FIRE RESCUE HERO

CHEERED AS HE LED SAVING WOMAN AND HER CHILD.

Dorsey W. Hyde, Jr., of Netherwood, a student at Rutgers College, distinguished himself in a heroic rescue of a woman and child from a burning building in New Brunswick early yesterday morning.

The fire broke out in the Vliet building, at George and Albany streets, shortly after midnight. It was burning stubbornly and threatening to cut off the inmates of the building when discovered. Hyde was one of the first to reach the scene, and he realized the danger to the family of Patrick Harding, who lived upstairs.

He dashed into the smoke-filled building, followed by another young man and policeman. With their assistance he took Mrs. Harding and her infant daughter out. The crowd cheered him as he completed the rescue. He helped the firemen in such a way as to win commendation from the chief. His name figured in all the newspaper reports.

HOPE CHAPEL FANS TO GET IN GAME AGAIN

SUBURBANS CONSOLIDATE WITH THE CHAPEL TALENT.

After three seasons of quiet, Hope chapel is again to be a factor in amateur baseball in this city. Plans are afoot for the consolidation of the Suburbans and the baseball talent of the West End chapel, unnder the Aegis—whatever that is—of the Hope athletes. Whatever the aegis of a place like Hope chapel may be, the fact that Hope's name and following will be those of the remade team is a certainty.

Manager James Penny, who took over the helm of the Suburbans several weeks ago, will still be the managerial star when the combination is affected. He is an old chapelite, and was one of the old teams staunch supportems. He will be seconded and supported by the old baseball guard, including Johnny Cose and Judge Runyon.

An application for membership in the Inter-City League will be filed as soon as consolidation is effected. It is likely to be refused, and the chapelites know it, but the application will be sent in as a matter of form. It can't do any harm, it is figured, and may bear unexpected fruit.

From what was gleaned in a conversation with one of the mogules of the league yesterday, a Hope chapel fan gathered the idea that there was so little chance of admittance to the league that it wasn't worth considering. The schedule has been made up, the general league idea is for a fine club organization, and everything about the league make-up is unfavorably to the entrance of the chapel team.

Secretary Listman, of the league, would make no comment on the chances of admission yesterday.

"I cannot predict anything as to the disposition of the application," he said. "Personally, I would like to see eight clubs in the league, but I am not the league. The only thing for Hope chapel to do is to file the application."

Pony Sledding.

Miss Adele Ohl, professional equestrienne, attracted a lot of attention on Front street, this morning, by riding on a child's sled drawn by a pony. The sled was attached to the pony by slack traces, and Miss Ohl needed all her skill to keep the conveyance in line with the animal. She failed to do it near the Park avenue corner, and only a quick jump into the road saved her from an upset. She resumed her ride composedly.

Colonial Super Planned.

A Colonial supper to be held Feb. 19 in the lecture room of the First Baptist church was planned at the meeting of the Young Ladies' Missionary Society held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Robert Barnes, of Mountain avenue. An interesting paper on "Work of Medical Missionaries" by Miss May Shreve and the story of Mrs. Bella Cook, read by Miss Pauline Denten, preceded the business plans.

Court Plainfield Growing.

Court Plainfield, No. 1144, Independent Order Foresters, initiated one candidate and received six applications for membership at the meeting last night. The death claim of the late Michael Costello was paid, and the members agreed to visit Court Dunellen at its meeting in February. In the good of the order several short speeches were made and a smoker enjoyed.

THE FISKS' TUNNELS TO COST $60,000,000

BANKERS ARE GIVEN ESTIMATES ON THE WORK TO BE FINISHED MAY, 1908.

Figures have been presented to the management of the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad Company, which show that the total cost of the immense undertaking of tunnelling in two different directions under the North river, and establishing terminals in Manhattan and New Jersey, equipping the road, &c., will be about $60,000,000. Harvey Fisk & Co., bankers, of which Mayor Charles J. Fisk is a member, who underwrote the bonds, and furnished the money to the construction company to build the Hudson tunnels, have already sold $40,000,000 of the 4½ per cent. fifty year bonds.

These bonds are now owned by a syndicate, on which installments are being made. Data presented by the engineers, which show that the scheme covers only twelve miles of the railroad, indicate that the total bond issue of the holding company, the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad Company will be about $50,000,000. The proceeds of the sale of these bonds will complete the tunnel enterprise which at once time was popularly known as the McAdoo tunnels. They will be completed in May, 1908.

These facts came out yesterday in connection with a report that the control of the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad Company, the parent company of the two North river tubes, had passed to a syndicate dominated by Thomas F. Ryan and August Belmont. The story was characterized as untrue. It was said that Fisk & Co., who financed the project and shaped it to its present immense proportions, had not disposed of any interest in the scheme. Pliny Fisk, the senior member of the banking house of Harvey Fisk & Sons, and his partner, W. M. Barnum, continue to be the dominating factors.

New Market Party.

Miss Sarah Cole and Benjamin Cole were tendered a surprise party at their home at New Market, by a number of their young friends last night. Games were played, after which a musical programme was enjoyed. Richard Cook played selections on his phonograph. The Misses Mabel and Kathryn Cole sang duets. Frank Broshart and B. A. Cole rendered several violin selections, accompanied by Miss Mabel Cole. Refreshments were served and dancing and singing were enjoyed until midnight. Among those present were: Miss Gertrude Giles, Miss Eva Voorhees, Miss Marguerite Coriell, Miss Helen Fletcher, Miss Lorena Fletcher, Miss Lucy Clawson, Elston Lowry, Joseph Fisher, Leo Logan, Frank Coriell, Richard Cook, Harold Voorhees, Frank Fletcher, Frank Broshart.

STORY OF STARVING HORSES VIGOROUSLY DENIED.

Member of Applegate Family Says There Is No Truth In Article Printed in Another Paper.

A story printed in another paper in this city yesterday to the effect that horses in the Applegate stables on Somerset stret had been starved and neglected was vigorously denied by a member of the Applegate family today. He declared the animals had been receiving every attention and that competent men were in charge of them.

The newspaper story also incensed Chief Marshal Weiss, who declared today that the matter had had his full investigation and that Dr. Pocock had reported to him three weeks ago that the horses were getting proper care. A the time of Proprietor Applegate's death, the affairs at the stable had been left in charge of a colored workman who had been negligent in his work and nieghbors so informed the chief. He instructed the man to do better and also requested Agent Pangborn, of the S. P. C. A., to see that he did. There is no truth in the statement, he declares, t hat a mule at the stables died of starvation.

The chief said today that there was no need for Chief Kiely to be asked to look after affairs in the borough as anything in its limits needing attention would be looked after by the borough police.

Martine to Speak at Elizabeth.

James E. Martine has been invited by St. Patrick's parish, of Elizabeth, to speak at a bazaar to be given for its benefit in the hall of the Young Men's Catholic Lyceum, January 28 to February 12. The invitation has been accepted and Mr. Martine will address the gathering on Wednesday night next.

"Fifteen Years of History."

Rev. Dr. C. W. Parsons, pastor of Grace M. E. church, will at the morning service, 10:30 o'clock tomorrow, preach a sermon on "Fifteen Years of History," it being a sketch of the history of the church.

POLICE ALARM BOXES FOR PRIVATE HOUSES

MAYOR HAS DEVICE INSTALLED AT HEADQUARTERS FOR DEMONSTRATION.

Auxiliary police protection, through the medium of private call boxes, is open to the Plainfield citizens through a device offered by the Gamewell Alarm Telegraph Company, which installed the police alarm system in this city. The installation of the private box puts a house directly on the alarm system; each box is a direct police alarm.

Mayor Fisk approves the device. At his suggestion one of the boxes is being installed at police headquarters, to-day, to be used for demonstrations before householders who may be interested and wish to see the device work.

The box is arranged to send in three kinds of calls, governed by a pointer. There is a straight police call, an ambulance call, and a fire call. The device is so arranged as to permit of the location of push-buttons in different parts of a house.

Chief Kiely endorses the service. The demonstration box will be ready for operation by tomorrow morning.

HONOR "BOBBY" BURNS AND "WULLY" GLOAK

THISTLE CLUBBERS COMBINE MEMORIAL AND SURPRISE PARTY.

Members of the former Thistle Club and other Scots in Plainfield held a double celebration at the home of Councilman and Mrs. William L. Gloak, of East Second street, last night. It was a surprise to Councilman Gloak and also gave the folk from the land of the heather an opportunity to observe the anniversary of the birth of the immortal Burns. The guests numbered thirty in all and they enjoyed themselves with Scotch ballads, recitations from Burns' best known writings and violin and piano selections. Chief MacDuff acted as master of ceremonies and incidentally paid a glowing tribute to the Scotch poet and his works in an appropriate address.

The guest of honor at the affair was George Rice, known to his associates as "Cronje," who recently came to this country from South America. Mr. Rice lived nearly all his life near Mr. Gloak's brother in the Transvaal and his stories of the Boer uprising and customs in the far off country added to the entertainment.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Cowley, Mr. and Mrs. John Calder, Mr. and Mrs. Johnman, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholson, Mr. and Mrs. Thorn, Chief MacDuff, Edward Wolverton, Andrew Muir, Mr. and Mrs. Lawson, Mr. and Mrs. Craig, all of Plainfield; James Lindsey, of South Africa; Jack Robertson, of Delaware.

Howard Willett Very Ill.

Howard Willett, the second son of Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Willett, of Craig place, who was operated upon at the hospital on Thursday for the removal of mastoid behind the ear, is quite ill today. The little fellow, whi is six years old, was taken ill a week ago while at school with a severe pain behind the ear. The family physician advised an operation. Consultation with other physicans brought forth the same opinion and finally Dr. Ard operated on Thursday. The boy's condition was favorable yesterday and last night, but today he was reported as not being so well.

Special Musical Service.

J. Edmund Skiff, organist and choirmaster at the First M. E. church, has arranged the following special programme for tomorrow night's service: Anthems—"Hark, Hark My Soul," Shelley; "Tarry With Me O My Saviour," Baldwin; "From Thy Love as a Father," (Redemption) Gounod; solos—"Out of the Deep," Carlos C. Gallup; "Face to Face," Johnston, (by request) J. Edmund Skiff; duet, "The Lord Is My Light," Buck, Miss Bertha vanNuis Willis, and J. Edmund Skiff; contralto solo, Miss Sara Mesick.

Entertainment and Dance at Casino.

The Columbia College of Music, with studio in the Babcock building, gave an entertainment and dance at the Casino, last night. The young men and women who are members of the organization presented a programme of mandolin and violin selections, interspersed with humorous sketches by Emil Closs, of New York. From 10 until 2 o'clock this morning the young people danced.

Gave a Bridge Whist Party.

Mrs. Walter M. McGee gave a bride whist party at her home on Rockview avenue, yesterday afternoon. There were about twenty guests present to enjoy the game.

FORMER PLAINFIELDER WINS RACE AGAINST DEATH

SPEEDS ACROSS CONTINENT TO SEE HIS DYING MOTHER.

In a race from Colorado Springs, Cal., to Bound Brook to see his mother before she died, Ralph Bache, formerly of this city and until a short time ago superintendent of the local electric light plant, won out by a few hours Thursday afternoon.

The mother, Mrs. W. H. Bache, of High street, Bound Brook, was taken ill a week ago with pneumonia and began to sink rapidly. Word was telegraphed to the son, who is now general manager of the Colorado Springs Electrical, Heat, Light and Power Company, and he caught the first train out of the city for the East. Good connections were made all the way through and the journey of over 2,000 miles did not prove in vain. The mother was still conscious when the son arrived but passed away soon after greeting him.

Mrs. Bache was president of the Bound Brook Woman's Christian Temperance Union and superintendent of the kindergarten department of the Methodist Sunday-school. She leaves two other sons, Leigh Stanley Bache and J. Hugh V. Bache, of Beechwood Heights, a suburb of Bound Brook.

Ralph Bache is a member of the Plainfield Lodge of Elks and has a wide acquaintance all through this section because of his local connection with the Public Service Corporation. He will return to Colorado Springs within a short time.

TIMBO CLUB'S SMOKER PROVIDED A GOOD TIME

ANNUAL AFFAIR ENJOYED BY A GATHERING OF 150.

The Timbo Social Club's annual smoker and soiree took place in the club rooms on North avenue last night and provided a good time for 150 members and guests. Sociability, cigars and refreshments were on tap from 8 o'clock until long after midnight, served as only the Timbo Club knows how to do it.

Angelo and Arthur Minion, the Newark singing instrumentalists, were features of the programme and they doled out a bunch of song hits that earned them rounds of applause. Judge Runyon was grand high mogul at the piano and beside ripping off any quantity of inserumental numbers, gave several of his delightful vocal selections. W. J. Counihan scored with a song and dance and other vocalists who vocalized were Jack Todd, Jack Harr, Horace Martin, Jr., and Harry Roberts, the last named also acting as accompanist. The hit of the evening was made by "Mike" Shannon, who recited "Excuse Me While I Whimper, Boys, She's An Old Sweetheart of Mine." He used the selection several years ago in vaudeville and secured return dates through it.

The affair was arranged by a committee from the club composed of Henry J. Wierenga, Will Doud and Lorenzo Townley. John Gaffney was master of ceremonies.

Every Seat is Sold.

Every seat has been sold for the illustrated lecture by Commander Robert E. Peary to be given at the First M. E. church, tonight, on "Farthest North." The doors will be opened at 7:15 and the lecture will begin at 8 o'clock. No crowding will be allowed at the church and those who do not hold tickets of admission will be unable to gain admission. It is the purpose of the committee to provide seats only for the seating capacity of the edifice.

Mr. Lane's Taffy Pull.

Wesley Lane, of Plainfield avenue, entertained a large gathering of friends with a taffy pull at his home Thursday night. In addition to the pull, music, games and other features were enjoyed. The taffy was made from three gallons of genuine Louisiana molasses brought from New Orleans by Mr. Lane's uncle, Caleb Stephens, who hails from the Crescent City and is here on a visit.

Organ Recital Numbers.

William E. MacClymont, organist and choirmaster at Grace church, will give the following numbers at the recital tomorrow afternoon at 4:15 o'clock: "Sherzo," Gigout; "Pastorale from First Symphony," Guilmant; "Cantabile," Loret; prelude, "Et Cantilene," Roissean.

REPUBLICAN VOTERS TO VISIT TRENTON

Anti-Dryden Delegation From Plainfield and North Plainfield to Talk to Legislators.

SOME INSIDE DOINGS

A Chapter or Two of What Occurred Behind the Scenes This Week —Situation Interesting.

Large delegations of representative Republicans from both Plainfield and North Plainfield, it is reported, will be on hand at Trenton next Tuesday morning, their mission being to impress their views upon Senator Ackerman and Senator Frelinghuysen, respectively, and upon the assemblymen from Union and Somerset. These delegations will both be anti-Dryden.

Without any evidences of flagging interest, the contest for the United States Senatorship continues to be the all-absorbing topic in political circles throughout the State. The fact that the legislators will not meet in joint session to resume balloting until next Tuesday, far from lessening interest, has apparently whetted it, and the gossips are making all sorts of prognostications as to who will be chosen as John F. Dryden's successor.

The recess has given, and will continue to give, the emissaries of the insurance president an opportunity to get out and electioneer for their candidate, and if the sights at the State House during the balloting Tuesday and Wednesday are any criterion, the eight Republicans who are opposing his re-election must be kept busy dodging Dryden lieutenants.

But it is not only Senators Colby, Ackerman and Wakelee, and Assemblymen Smalley, Drake, Perkins, Fake and Devine, that the Dryden forces are kept busy watching. About a dozen of the thirty-six men who have cast Dryden votes are now considered very doubtful for further support, and the adherents of the Newarker are having their hands full in an endeavor to keep them regular.

It is expected, as already stated in The Daily Press, that a split in the Dryden forces will occur after the first ballot is taken next Tuesday. Several legislators, who have considered themselves bound by the caucus' choice, believe that they will then have fulfilled their caucus obligations, and will refuse longer to respond to the bosses' lash.

The sentiment in Princeton, which is Assemblyman Thompson's home, is very strong against Dryden, and Mr. Thompson feels that he owes it to his constituents to vote against the senator.

But when the stampede comes it will be a prophet indeed who can forecast where the votes will go to. The prevailing opinion is, however, that Dryden has ceased to be a factor and that the senatorial toga will go to either Governor Stokes, Senator William J. Bradley, of Camden, former Governor John W. Griggs, or Supreme Court Justice Mahlon Pitney.

The politicians at the state house yesterday had a fund of good stories relative to incidents that took place during the balloting Tuesday and Wednesday, and nearly all of them had to do with the schemes adopted by the Dryden men to secure votes for their candidate. One that went the rounds and was the source of much amusement recited how the Dryden forces had attempted to win over Assemblyman William W. Smalley, of Somerset county, who is one of the original eight that stood out against Dryden.

The first chapter of the Smalley story opened at the state house Monday night when the Somerset county man announced that he would not enter the caucus nor abide by its decision if Dryden was chosen as the party nominee. The bosses got after Smalley in great shape and, when persuasion failed, threatened him with all sorts of political punishment unless he would get back into line. To threats and promises alike Mr. Smalley replied that the people of Somerset did not want Dryden and he would not vote for his re-election.

One of the senator's campaign managers conceived the idea of attempting to show that Smalley was wrong in guaging his constituents' of having one's credit good possibly at this time of the year, is a little more noticeable than at any other. Perhaps yours is in excellent shape, but you have already used it as far as you care to go, and are still a little short. Then step in and let us assist you. We're taking care of winter's needs for hundreds whose credit is good, but who hesitate to obligate themselves any further to their friends, and particulary for a loan of a little cash. We loan any sum for any time and accept return payment weekly, semi-monthly or monthly.

We give you a written statement showing the exact cost of a loan, also the exact discount we allow every month the loan is paid before contract time. You will find us always willing to give you facts at our office. If you cannot call, write or 'phone us, and our confidential agent will call and give you full particulars.

The possession of household goods, piano, organ, horses and wagons are sufficient evidence of your ability to pay.

ALMOST A NONOGENARIAN.

Andrew D. Woodruff, Ager 89, Found Dead in Bed.

Westfield, Jan. 26.—Andrew D. Woodruff, aged 89 years, was found dead at his home on the Rahway road Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock. He was dressed and the keys of his home found in his pocket.

Mr. Woodruff was the last of the Woodruff family, and a son of Benjamin and Mary Woodruff. He was twice married and was the father of two children. Both wives and the children died years ago. He was an uncle of B. H., Robert W. and W. B. Woodruff, of Westfield, and the nephews had arranged with neighbors of the aged man to watch his home each day and report about his uncle. Thursday the neighbors failed to notice smoke from the Woodruff chimney and immediately reported to the family.

Mr. Woodruff was found by W. B. Woodruff and Warren V. Woodruff, who were compelled to break in the door of the cottage. County Physician Westcott was notified and gave permission for the removal of the body to Brown's undertaking establishment, where funeral services will be held on Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Andrew D. Woodruff was well known in this section as Dr. Woodruff and for many years sold patent medicines to the farmers for miles around.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. William Springer, of Newark, is visiting her father, Samuel Dreier, of West Front street.

Rev. and Mrs. J. O. McKelvey, of Grandview avenue, are expected home today from their trip to Florida.

Fred Armstrong, of Duer street, is much improved from a severe attack of grip which threatened typhoid fever.

Miss Ada Swackhamer, of Whitehouse, who has been spending several days with relatives here, has returned home.

John Cregar, of Annandale, who has been visiting his son, Dr. P. B. Cregar, of Grant avenue, has returned home.

Margery VanEmburgh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. VanEmburgh, of East Second street, has about recovered from a recent operation.

John Gaub, of Duer street, who has been ill with bronchitis, and who went out a few days ago, has had a relapse and is now confined to his bed.

Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Weightman, of Philadelphia, are visiting Mrs. Weightman's mother, Mrs. Rowland Cox, of West Seventh street, for a few days.

H. A. Todd, of East Third street, is contemplating the leasing of one of the apartments in the Stirling building on Park avenue, during the absence of his family from the city.

ESCAPED PRISONER CAUGHT.

Broke Out of Rahway Reformatory and Nabbed in Montclair.

Detective-Sergeant Edward Reilly, of Montclair, got a tip yesterday that Joseph Solatinow, an escaped prisoner from the Rahway Reformatory, was in hiding at Montclair Heights. Last night, accompanied by Policemen Mulligan and Walters, Reilly went to a house on Valley road, where it was said Solatinow was living.

As the three officers approached they heard some one singing. Passing around the house, they saw through a window Solatinow sitting in the kitchen. Reilly's informant had told him that the escaped prisoner was armed with a revolver and several heavy iron bars, and that he would make a desperate fight. Finding the back kitchen door unfastened, they opened it cautiously. Solatinow's singing prevented him from hearing any noise they made, and the officers sprang into the room.

"Well, you've got me all right," Solatinow is quoted as saying. Without the slightest resistence he allowed himself to be handcuffed and taken to the Montclair police station. On being searched no dangerous weapons were found concealed on his person. The authorities at Rahway have been notified, and the prisoner is being held in Montclair until some one from that institution calls for him.

Solatinow's home prior to his commitment to Rahway was in Passaic county, just over the line from Montclair Heights. He was sent to the reformatory from Paterson, on a charge of larceny, and had served eight or nine months of his sentence. He and a negro made their escape from the penal institution about two weeks ago by means of a false key, which Solatinow had manufactured from a spoon. The negro was caught several days ago.

Junction Borough Tax in Litigation.

The payment of taxes on the Central Railroad's coal storage plant at Junction is causing trouble and some weighty litigation is pending. The county board of taxation some time ago added $300,000 to the assessed valuation of the plant and the coal company refused to pay it. The amount involved is $1,362.61 and the Borough of Junction will be held accountable for it. This is evidenced in mandamus proceedings which were ordered started by the Hunterdon county freeholders a few days ago. The question will go up to the courts and is expected to be decided next month, but even then no definite conclusion will be reached because there will undoubtedly be an appeal taken. It is a question of considerable concern in Junction as to who will be the loser in case the borough pays the money and then loses the case against the coal company.

Church Stands by Its Pastor.

Long Branch, Jan. 26.—The official board of the Simpson Memorial M. E. church at a meeting Thursday night adopted resolutions pledging their support "to right a wrong" which they believe has been done their pastor, Rev. Dr. George L. Dobbins, in the Butterworth libel case at Camden, in which a verdict of $8,444 was returned against Dr. Dobbins and several others. The board, in the resolutions adopted, expresses its continued confidence in Dr. Dobbins and says the decision of the jury is unwarranted by facts.

School Teachers' Pay Raised.

Jersey City, Jan. 26.—Thanks to Mayor Fagan, the Jersey City Board of Education was able Thursday night to raise the salaries of 105 school teachers. Each will receive $48 more a year. These teachers constitute the lowest salary grade and have received $408 a year. Hereafter their pay will be $456 per annum. It will be a pleasant surprise for these teachers, for the increase was unsolicited by them. The raise will take effect February 1.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Baraca Bible Class will meet tomorrow afternoon at Faith chapel at 3 o'clock.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss will occupy his pulpit at the First Baptist church, tomorrow morning and evening.

The Men's Club of the First Presbyterian church will hold a dinner on Tuesday night, February 12, and well-known speakers will be on the programme.

It is quite likely that the Men's Club of the Seventh-Day Baptist church will take charge of the men's supper to be given at the church on Tuesday night, February 12.

Workers from the McCauley Mission in New York will have charge of the services at Hope chapel Sunday night. A son of the late S. H. Hadley will be one of the principal speakers.

This is the best season of the year for turkey and the Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church has made arrangements for a generous supply for the annual supper to be held Thursday and Friday nights, February 7 and 8, from 6 to 9 o'clock. The turkey will be accompanied by lots of good things.

MURDER SUSPECT COOL, DESPITE JURY VERDICT.

John E. Schuyler, Charged With Killing a Man at Califon, Stoutly Denies His Guilt.

Flemington, Jan. 26.—Despite the fact that the coroner's jury held him responsible for the murder of Manning Riley at Califon last Saturday night, John E. Schuyler stoutly denies his guilt and feels confident that he will be able to prove his innocence. When committed to the county jail here Schuyler showed no emotion, nor was it apparent that he fully realized the seriousness of the charge.

The bold front put on by Schuyler during the first few days of his incarceration has gradually worn off. The next grand jury will not meet until April, and it is not likely that Schuyler will be put on trial for his life before May or June. The inquest was conducted behind closed doors, and as the testimony will probably not be filed here for several weeks, the details will not be known until the trial begins.

Califon, Jan. 26.—There is almost as much comment here over the death of Manning Riley, who was found with his skull crushed in Philhowers avenue last Saturday night, as there was Sunday, when John E. Schuyler, of Vernoy, was arrested and lodged in the Hunterdon County Jail charged with the murder. For the past two days George A. Fuller, assistant superintendent of a detective agency in New York, has been on the case. Schuyler's movements from the time he left Morristown last Saturday for Ledgewood, High Bridge, Califon, up to the time he was arrested Sunday morning at his home in Vernoy, have been carefully gone over. Much evidence has been obtained that was not brought out at the coroner's inquest. A beer bottle, on which there was blood, was picked up near the tragedy, and it is believed was used by the murderer.

HAD HIS LITTLE JOKE BUT IT COST HIM $5.

Sheblick Will Think Twice Next Time Before Impersonating a Cop.

Hoboken, Jan. 26. When Frank Scheblick, 26 years old, of 270 Webster avenue, conceived the idea of playing a practical joke on Frank Wetz, a baker, of 19 Lincoln place, he says he did not think that the impersonation of a police officer would cost him $5.

Scheblick stepped into the bakershop where Wetz was employed and said:

"I am an officer. Come along; I have a warrant for your arrest."

"But what have I done?" pleaded Wetz.

"Don't you know it's a capital offense to sass a cop?" declared Scheblick.

"Excuse me, Mr. Policeman," I forgot," submitted the prisoner, and he scraped the dough from his hands and face, took off his apron and went along. The two men were proceeding along Bowers street when they ran into Roundsman Hertel.

"Hey, is this man a cop?" asked the prisoner of Hertel.

"Doesn't look like one," said Hertel, eyeing Scheblick with the scrutiny of a Sherlock Holmes.

"What is he arresting me for, then?" asked Wetz.

"You can search me," said Hertel, smiling at the pair.

Scheblick winked his starboard eye.

"What are you winking about?" demanded Hertel.

"He really thinks I'm a cop," guffawed Scheblick.

"I guess you two might explain this comedy to Captain Harrington," said Hertel.

In court yesterday Scheblick was ordered to pay $5 for his prank.

—The Union County Grand Jury expects to complete its labors next week. There are still a number of cases to be considered, some of interest to Plainfield.

—Michael A. Hinton, of East Third street, returned this week from the South, where he spent the holidays visiting relatives and friends. On the way home he stopped off at Portsmouth, where he enjoyed fresh vegetables which were grown since fall.

GOTHAM'S AMUSEMENTS

Empire Theatre—Maude Adams and "Peter Pan" continue their popular sojourn at the Empire theatre where they have only three weeks longer to remain. The Barrie fantasy completely won the hearts of theatregoers last season, and Maude Adams as the fairy boy Peter made a conquest for her own that will be memorable in American theatrical annals. The new chapter of the fairy boy's adventures which takes him to the mermaids' lair, Marooner's Rock, where he has a fierce hand to hand combat with the pirate Captain Hook adds new thrills and laughs to the fascinating fantasy. Miss Adams and "Peter Pan" are irresistible. Wednesday and Saturday matinees.

Criterion Theatre—The new attraction at the Criterion theatre is Clyde Fitch's new comedy, "The Truth," with Clara Bloodgood. The play was written by Mr. Fitch with Mrs. Bloodgood in view and it will give her an opportunity to appear in a part that is entirely new to the stage. The character in which she will appear is that of a married woman with a weakness for telling lies and who by over indulgence of this habit destroys her own and her husband's happiness for the time being. It is a part that will permit Mrs. Bloodgood to display her comedy powers.

Lulu Glaser will begin her annual New York engagement at the Criterion theatre next Monday evening in Klaw & Erlanger's production of Sydney Rosenfeld's new comedy, "The Aero Club." In his latest contribution to the stage, Mr. Rosenfeld has kept pace with the step of popular interest in extraordinary things and has written a play about ballooning. Incidentally he treats of some very fine points in ethics of aerostatics, which are quite likely to arise in the event this latest diversion of the millionaire sportsman attains to any great magnitude, and women, is well as men, indulge in flights above the clouds. Miss Glaser, in this play, makes her first appearance in what may be termed "a straight comedy" role, and, practically, for the first time in the history of the American stage, the humorous side of a comedy is almost entirely sustained by a woman. Heretofore, Miss Glaser has only appeared in distinctively musical productions. The remarkable versatility she displaye in this performance undoubtedly marks an entirely new departure in her stage career and justifies the confidence of her managers in introducing her to the public in a new field of stage work. In the character of Myrtle Webb she plays a high-spirited, self-sacrificing Western girl, who has projected herself into Lenox society through sheer force of personality. On the day of the balloon and automobile race at Pittsfield, she learns that Jack Chandler, a young millionaire society sensationalist, has agreed to take her chum, Mrs. Edith Vanderwater, married to a man thirty years her senior, in his balloon. To save her friend from compromising herself, Myrtle makes Chandler believe she is in love with him and induces him to take her instead.

In "The Law and the Man," which ends its two months' run at the Manhattan theatre Saturday, February 2, Wilton Lackaye, in the role of Jean Valjean, has given to the stage a character study as classic as its original. In his dramatization of Victor Hugo's great story, "Les Miserables," Mr. Lackaye has succeeded where others failed in the great task of staging a consecutive story containing the salient features and incidents of a tale abounding in virile situations. Artistically a triumph, in character as study, and in human interest intense, with a production one of the best William A. Brady has ever staged. "The Law and the Man" after a tour of the principal eastern cities will be made one of the several lasting plays to be a part of Mr. Lackaye's repertoire.

Rachel Crother's four act comedy, "The Three of Us," now playing at the Madison Square theatre, is safely secure in its position as the dramatic hit of the current season. This fact is evident by the large and pleased audiences that nightly attend this theatre and make manifest their enjoyment of the splendid performances given by the strongest playing company seen in New York for many seasons. Miss Crothers has in this first effort of hers displayed a knowledge of stagecraft that gives promise of her soon becoming one of our best playwrights. It is not difficult to see why "The Three of Us" has so many charming qualities when the character of the comedy is taken into consideration. We all admire the fighting trait especially when it is possessed by a woman and the fight is for her rights and against big odds. In this comedy the heroine is a young girl who battles to conserve the interests of her two young brothers and in doing so is a victim of a circumstance that almost loses her the love of her sweetheart. The comedy interest is well sustained by the clever character drawing given to the old servant woman and the English society man who comes a "crojer" and has to make the best of it in the wild mining camp where a white shirt and evening dress is as much a curiosity as an air ship in heart of Africa.

Few theatrical stars—especially when they have scored a hit—have the patience to wait until the managerial astrologers in the wisdom figure out that the signs are auspicious

Doan's Kidney Pills never fail you.
Plainfield people know this.
Read this Plainfield case.
Read how Doan's stood the test
For many years.

It's local testimony and can be investigated:

Richard Day, of 208 East Front street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I have given a statement which has appeared in our papers for several years. I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills because I know there is no reason why they will not do for others what they did for me. I had a miserable dull pain across my back and a sort of lameness across my kidneys. Standing any length of time or walking any distance aggravated it greatly. I was never sick much and did not like to take medicine, but these attacks grew worse instead of better, and reading frequently about Doan's Kidney Pills I bought a box and used it. After taking two boxes I was cured."

for a Broadway date. But Paula Edwardes, who tried out "Princess Beggar" last spring so satisfactorily that she was immediately offered a summer run in New York, had the good sense not only to dodge that contingency, but also to decline brief Broadway "time" during a doubtful fall season. Now "Princess Beggar" practically opens the new year at the Casino—which was the scene of Miss Edwardes' first big hit in "The Belle of New York," and also of her stellar debut two seasons ago in "Winsome Winnie." Her latest success, "Princess Beggar," is a "comedy opera" by Edward Paulton, presenting a sort of King Cophetua story in a "Prisoner of Zenda" setting, with some genuine "Yankee Consul"-style music by Alfred Robyn.

"Neptune's Daughter" at the New York Hippodrome is now in its third month. The one hundreth performance of this stupendous production took place yesterday. The mermaids seem to enjoy themselves splashing around in the water, and it is a matter of record that all the chorus girls in the company have filed applications as understudies for the mermaids in case any of them should resign. The mermaids realize that they are the hit of the show, however, and all of them intend to keep on mermaiding as long as possible. The water scene of "Neptune's Daughter" continues to be the most sensational novelty ever shown in a place of amusement. The circus acts in the arena are changed at frequent intervals, and Marceline, the clown, has a new automobile act which arouses laughter from the little ones. "Pioneer Days," the big Indian spectacle which is the opening feature of the programme, is well worth seeing.

Care of Baby's Ears.

Few mothers and fewer nurses notice when they lay a baby down whether the soft little ear is crumpled under or lying close back to the head. They rarely take the trouble when they hold a baby to see that its ears are in a natural position, but will hold it for the longest time with the head pressed against their bosom and the ear turned forfard instead of back. "As the twig is bent the tree is inclined" applies with as much force to the physical as to the moral growth of a child.

President G. A. R. Committee.

James Atwood, formerly of this city and a member of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., has been elected president of a G. A. R. subcommittee in Trenton, organized for the purpose of raising funds for the soldiers' and sailors' monument in that city.

The Judge Uses Forceful Language.

Judge W. B. Simmons, of Fincastle, Va., told the reporter that L. & M. Paint was used on his residence in 1882, and held its color well for 21 years; he furthermore said that 3 years ago he was induced to use another paint and is sorry he did, because the other paint didn't make good. The Judge will now always use L. & M., because he knows if any defect exists in L. & M. Paint the house will be repainted for nothing.

The L. & M. Zinc hardens the L. & M. White Lead and makes L. & M. Paint wear like iron for 10 to 15 years.

Actual cost of L. & M. about $1.20 per gallon.

OLDEST MASONIC LODGE HAS AN ANNIVERSARY

TRADITION HAS IT THAT WASHINGTON FREQUENTLY VISITED IT.

Solomon's Lodge Free and Accepted Masons celebrated its semi-centennial anniversary at Somerville Thursday night. Many distinguished guests were present at the banquet in the chapel of the Second Reformed church.

While the present charter of the lodge dates back only to 1857, it is the oldest Masonic body in New Jersey. It dates back to 1767, when its founders were granted a warrant by the Provincial Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania, there being no Grand Lodge in the province of New Jersey at that time.

The headquarters was at Basking Ridge and twenty-three of its members were present at the convention, which met at New Brunswick in 1786 to form the Grand Lodge of New Jersey. The lodge held its meetings at different places in Somerset county. During the Revolution they were held in the Fisher Hotel at Middlebrook, now a part of the borough of Bound Brook, and tradition says that Washington, while encamped in the vicinity in 1777 and 1778, frequently visited this lodge.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

Don't forget that Timbo, of North avenue, can always serve you with the best meals, lunch, promptly and at reasonable prices.

Putnam & DeGraw, the dry goods merchants, will soon take possession of the addition to their store and be better able than ever to handle the increasing trade.

O. M. Dunham, the Park avenue men's furnisher, carries a fine stock of goods, including underwear, shirts, ties, hats, and in fact everything that a man needs.

Clayton M. Naegle, the West Front street druggist, conducts a first-class drug store and his prescription work is second to none. He also carries a complete line of toilet articles and patent medicines.

L. W. Randolph, the West Front street druggist, is always prepared to serve his patrons with the best drugs, medicines, toilet articles, etc., to be found. He gives personal attention to business and you will find his prices to be reasonable.

SENATOR DRYDEN MEETS UNION COUNTY DELEGATION.

Introduced By Assemblyman Moxon He Discusses Improvements For Rahway.

Senator John F. Dryden, who happened to be chatting with County Chairman Frank H. Smith, at the Trenton Station of the Pennsylvania Railroad, while he and a number of citizens from Rahway were waiting for the 4:45 train for home, Wednesday afternoon, expressed a wish to meet the Union county men. They were introduced to him by Assemblyman John R. Moxon.

The improvement of the Rahway river was the subject of conversation, and also the great increase in the number of factories in that city. Senator Dryden showed a familiarity with the question of water-ways improvements.

DRYDEN MISMANAGED.

Poor Politics to Have T. N. McCarter for Guide.

Trenton, Jan. 25.—The campaign to re-elect John F. Dryden Senator has been as badly managed as it possibly could be. The men who are running it are running it "like a truck" The main objection publicly expressed against Mr. Dryden is that he is a director of the United Gas Improvement Company and connected with the trolley interests of North Jersey; and yet when an attempt was to be made to bring about a caucus, on Monday, the most officiols visitor in the corridors was Thomas N. McCarter, president of the Public Service Corporation.

While "Tom" McCarter is a nice fellow, he will never be looked upon as a good political guide while he is at the head of the trolley corporation. His presence really hurt Dryden's candidacy.

Reception for Bride and Groom.

One of the most brilliant social functions of the season will be the reception to be given on Wednesday, February 6, from 4 to 7, by Mr. and Mrs. David Hall Rowland, of West Seventh street, for their son, Rufus Story Rowland and his bride, who were married in Pittsburg a few weeks ago. Mrs. Rowland was Miss Margarita Frew, daughter of William Frew, of Pittsburg, the personal representative of Andrew Carnegie. The reception is given chiefly for the purpose of introducing Mrs. Rowland to Plainfield society.

$104,000 on Col. Pepper's Life.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 25.—The administrators of the estate of Colonel James E. Pepper, the famous distiller and turfman, of this city, who died in New York on December 24, yesterday received checks from two life insurance companies aggregating $104,000 on two policies held by the deceased.

Plainfield, N. J., January 26, 1907.

REPRESENTATIVE GOVERNMENT

If the report be true, it is indeed gratifying to learn that Governor Stokes' ideas regarding the restoration of the old method of electing Assemblymen by districts and not by county at large will be incorporated into the laws during the present session of the Legislature. As it is today, an Assemblyman is not responsible alone to the voters in the vicinity in which he lives but to those of the entire county. The people of his district may or may not favor a certain measure, but at the same time their views may be directly opposite to those of the voters in other section of the county. For instance, Union county has three Assemblymen. Under the present law all three may be residents of one community or all three may live in adjoining places. That is, the trio could come from Plainfield and in such case their ideas might be in harmony with those of the majority of people in this city. But at the same time the people of Elizabeth might hold entirely different views on the given subject. It would be impossible, therefore, for the three to properly represent Union county. If, on the other hand, the legislators came from Plainfield, Westfield and Elizabeth, or from Plainfield, Rahway, and Summit, respectively, and were accountable only to the voters in the district from which they were chosen, there would be more representative government.

"Representative government," says Governor Stokes in his message, "demands that the unit of representation shall be clearly defined, so that the representative may have a distinct constituency to which he shall be responsible for his acts. Under our present system the members of the House of Assembly in those counties that have more than one member are responsible to no district and separate constituency, but rather to a party organization or to a self-appointed committee of party leaders. This condition violates the foundation principles of popular government. It promotes rule by the few rather than government by the many. So strongly wedded is public sentiment to the system of Assembly Districts that it is the custom in many of the larger counties to form imaginary legislative districts and allot the members to be elected by that county to these districts, existing only in the fancy of the nominating convention. The minority party, under present conditions, seldom has any representatives from the county in the House of Assembly. In 1905, in the counties of Passaic, Hudson and Essex, the minority party polled forty per cent. of the vote, but did not have in the House of Assembly a single member to speak for it. Most of the large counties embrace both urban and rural populations and in some sections are communities of commuters. Under the county system of election members of the Assembly these different elements may not have proper or adequate representation. Under the district system they could speak for themselves."

GRAFT IN SEEDS.

During the debate in Congress yesterday over an appropriation for free seeds, a member from Kansas argued that the Government might just as well give away free lead pencils to the people and jacknives to the boys as to distribute seeds. The point is well taken. There is no more reason why the Government should spend its money buying seeds for Congressmen to use to win favor from their constituents than there is for it to give away eggs or milk bottles. If the Congressman do insist that their friends be provided with seeds, they might spend that $2,500 extra salary they get this year for that purpose.

It has been estimated that the eight Republican legislators who oppose Mr. Dryden represent 170,000 Republican voters and that the thirty-six who are solid for him represent about 80,000 Republican voters. These figures are interesting in the light of recent political developments inasmuch as they go to show that it is not exactly a case of the tail wagging the dog.

Having been asked the question—What's the matter with Walter Scholes as a candidate for school trustee, we hasten to reply that there is nothing whatever the matter with him. Mr. Scholes is all wool and a yard wide.—Exchange.

A warm proposition, eh?

An exchange calls attention to the fact that 36 is just 13 more than 23. Such is Dryden's Fate.

Well, "Charley" Fowler didn't get nine votes for United States Senator; did he, "Jim?"

Wings and Flies

By Tom Muir.

Charles Battell Loomis, of Fanwood, has accepted an invitation to appear at the Authors' Reading for the benefit of the Pascal Institute in the grand ball room of the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, Tuesday night, February 28. Others on the programme will be George Ade, Irving Bachellor and Charles Kelin.

Joe Hortiz, an artist familiar to local playgoers, will appear at the New Plainfield next Saturday in a new drama written for him by Langdon McCormick, entitled "Our Friend Fritz." It is in four acts and is a large production in every way. Hortiz has apepared in Plainfield nearly a dozen times with various attractions.

Hammerstein's Victoria theatre was the scene of a remarkable demonstration Thursday night. In the middle of the act given by the Russell Brothers, in which they have appeared recently in this city, 200 men suddenly burst into a storm of hisses, cat-calls and jeers. The two men on the stage, who assumed the roles of alleged Irish servant girls, struggled to make themselves heard, but as the uproar increased they were finally forced to give up and the curtain was rung down on the act. When this was done a man arose in the orchestra and explained the incident. He said that certain societies, whose members resent alleged ridicule heaped upon the Irish race by certain players, had joined in a crusade to stop these acts. About a week ago Oscar Hammerstein was waited upon by a delegation from these societies. He referred them to his son William, who is manager of the house. Young Hammerstein heard the protests, but the Russell Brothers went on just the same.

David Warfield returns to the Academy of Music for his last engagement in New York in "The Music Master" next Monday after one of the greatest tours in the history of the American stage. Since the piece left the Bijou last fall it has never played to an empty seat. The smallest receipts for a week's engagement were $16,001. During the four weeks of the Boston run $72,000 paid in at the box office, an average of $18,000 a week. More than $90,000 was taken out of Philadelphia during a five-week run. Since the play left the Bijou nearly $400,000 has been turned over to the box office men who sold the Warfield tickets. Before the season closes it is believed that $300,000 more will have been extracted from the American people, bringing the total up to a round million. To do this with a three-year-old play enlisting the efforts of only one well-known player and nineteen indifferent actors is, to use "Monty" Brewster's favorite expression, "going some."

Canned Studies.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 26.—Edward Jacobson, a Northwestern University student, has invented a studying machine which not only abolishes the ravages on the body caused by all night sessions with towel encircled brows over books of small print, but also saves, he says, the eyes and the mind. Young Jacobson's device is of a phonographic nature, for which are concentrated the essential points of entire courses. He unstraps his case of records, selects course No. 1, turns out the light, lies down on the bed or couch, and, pulling a cord which is attached to the machine, prepares to absorb learning by the roll. The machine is provided with an attachment on the order of the works of an eight day clock, which will run an indefinite period. Even if the student drops asleep the constant and monotonous recitation of the records has the effect of impressing itself on the seemingly dormant brain, for in the morning the student has the course at his tongues end and goes to his examination, in campus vernacular, prepared "to knock the 'prof's' eye out."

Girl's Taunt Causes Suicide.

Pottstown, Pa., Jan. 26.—John L. Hart, thirteen years old, was found yesterday hanging in the slaughter house of a relative in Stowe, near here. His suicide is attributed to a playful remark made Thursday night by a young girl companion, who said she did not like him. The boy was one of the best scholars in the local high school.

opinions, and a small army of Dryden henchmen were instructed to start out first thing Tuesday morning and go into the highways and byways and into the hedges of Somerset county to get signatures to a petition that set forth the good qualities of the insurance president, and asking Mr. Smalley to vote for his re-election. This was done and, so the story goes, Somerset county was canvassed.

Sorely disappointed, the canvassers returned Wednesday morning with only 18 signers, but the bosses felt that "every little bit helps," and therefore decided to present the petition to the assemblyman. What was their surprise, however, when, having handed the petition to Mr. Smalley, the latter showed them telegrams from six of the signers, stating, that they had changed their minds and would prefer that he use his own judgment in the matter. He also showed them a large bundle of telegrams complimenting him upon the stand he had taken.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Services tomorrow at the Baptist church will be held at the usual hours: Sunday-school, 9:30; morning preaching, 10:45; B. Y. P. U. meeting, 7:15 p. m.; evening service, 8 o'clock.

Miss Josephine Ingram, of the corps of teachers, spent Thursday visiting the Sumner Avenue School, Newark. Miss Agnes Hogan did the same at the East Orange schools yesterday.

Miss Egan, of the corps of teachers, was detained at her home in Plainfield yesterday, on account of illness. Mrs. Thomas M. Paff, Jr., acted as substitute teacher for the day.

The Township Committee met last night in the town rooms. Only the regular routine township business was transacted.

Mrs. Peter Smith, of Lincoln, has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clark, of Front street.

The members of the Epworth League held their monthly social last night in the Methodist church.

The weekly prayer meeting at the Methodist church tonight will be in charge of Rev. A. H. Cook.

The ice on the tracks upset the trolley schedule last night so that cars were running as of old.

Miss Susie Parse was the guest of Plainfield friends yesterday.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Regular services will be held at the Baptist church, tomorrow, Rev. C. W. F. Attlee, the pastor, preaching at both services. In the morning at 10:30 o'clock his subject will be "The Twenty-third Psalm," and the evening subject will be "Daniel Purposed in His Heart." The Christian Endeavor Society will meet at 7 o'clock, the subject being "Indians." Mrs. Attlee will lead.

The Good Government Club will hold a meeting on Friday night, January 31, when further steps will be taken toward securing the incorporation of this place as a borough. The club is much encouraged by the progress made during the past week, and has hope of the ultimate success of its endeavors.

The minstrel committee will hold a meeting next Friday night to outline the plans for the proposed show and arrange for the rehearsals. The committee expects to secure some excellent outside talent for the performanc.

Owing to heavy snows throughout Pennsylvania and New York all of the through trains on the Valley road are late today.

Mrs. Thomas Terrell, who has been seriously ill, has recovered and is able to be out again.

(Additional suburban news on page 2).

Hens Lay Poisoned Eggs.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Jan. 26.—In a suit in Red Hook, Dutchess county, it is alleged that poisoned feed has been given to hens, which has caused them to lay poisoned eggs, and persons eating the eggs have been made ill. Mrs. Lillian R. McCarrick has sued Mrs. Otis to recover $50. She says she has sustained damage to that amount through her fowls being posioned by drugs which Mrs. Otis threw out to poison rats. A veterinary who held an autopsy on the fowls says he found traces of arsenic, but Mrs. Otis declares she never put out any arsenic. Mrs. McCarrick says her whole family was made ill after eating hard-boiled eggs.

Elopes at the Age of 84.

Mount Vernon, N. Y., Jan. 26.—Mount Vernon people were surprised today by the announcement of the marriage of Edward H. Hall, of this city, and Miss Ella Brower, of Pleasantville. Mr. Hall is eighty-four years old and is wealthy. His bride, who was a teacher in the public schools of Mount Vernon, is about thirty-five. Mr. Hall's family is said to have opposed the marriage. He slipped quietly away on Christmas Day and went to Pleasantville, where the Rev. D. A. K. Sanford, of the Methodist church, performed the ceremony. The bride arose from a sick bed to wed.

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County.

OFFICIAL.

Meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, N. J., held in accordance with the provisions of the statute and for the purpose of organization, on Tuesday, January 1st, 1907, at 12 o'clock noon.

The meeting was called to order by S. Rusling Ryno, clerk of the last board, and who called the roll as follows:

Clark Township—Benjamin King.
Cranford Township—E. K. Adams.
Elizabeth City—Thomas J. Pierson, J. Logan Fay, Robert C. Maurer, John J. Donahue.
Fanwood Township—John Robison.
Linden Township—Henry Krouse.
Mountainside—Elston Darby.
New Providence Township—Bradford Jones.
Plainfield City—S. P. T. Wilbur, J. H. Doane.
Rahway City—George B. Cladek, A. H. Gruener.
Springfield Township—Peter H. Meisel.
Summit City—W. H. Swain, John N. Cady.
Union Township—Noah Woodruff.
Town of Westfield—Charles H. Smith, Joseph Perry.

All members were present.

The clerk stated that the first business was the election of Director and called for nominations.

Freeholder Cady in a few remarks nominated Freeholder Benjamin King, which was seconded by Freeholder Woodruff. On motion it was ordered that nominations be closed, and that the clerk cast the ballot. The clerk requested Freeholders Swain and Robison to act as tellers, and upon ballot being cast Freeholder King was declared elected as Director for the legal term by the unanimous vote of the board. He was escorted to the chair by the tellers and briefly returned his thanks for the honor conferred upon him. He said he had no especial recommendation to make except to urge enconomy in expenditures.

By Freeholder Smith: Resolved, That the salary of the clerk of this board be fixed at the sum of six hundred dollars per annum.

Freeholder Gruener moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll call it was unanimously adopted.

Freeholder Cady then nominated S. Rusling Rpno for clerk, which was seconded by Freeholder Cladek. There were no further nominations, and it was ordered that the ballot be cast by the director, who thereupon cast the ballot and S. Rusling Ryno was declared elected as clerk for the legal term. He returned his thanks for the honor conferred upon him.

By Freeholder Darby: Resolved, That the salary of the County Attorney be fixed at the sum of $300 per annum.

Freeholder Adams moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll call it was unanimously adopted.

Freeholder Cady nominated W. R. Codington for county attorney, which was seconded by Freeholder Swain. There being no further nominations it was ordered that the ballot be cast by the clerk, who thereupon cast the ballot and W. R. Codington was declared elected as county attorney for the legal term. Mr. Codington returned his thanks in a most pleasing manner for the honor conferred upon him.

By Freeholder Robison: Resolved, That the salary of the County Collector be fixed at the sum of $2,500 per annum.

Freeholder Woodruff moved the adoption of the resolution and on roll call it was unanimously adopted.

Freeholder Cady nominated Nathan R. Leavitt for County Collector, which was seconded by Freeholder Woodruff. There being no further nominations the clerk cast the ballot for Nathan R. Leavitt for county collector, and he was thereupon declared elected for the legal term. Mr. Leavitt returned his thanks to the board and said that he regretted that he could not fully express the feeling he felt for the honor conferred upon him.

By Freeholder Krouse: Resolved, That the county collector be authorized to have his report printed at a cost not to exceed $100.

Freeholder Gruener moved the adoption of the resolution and on roll call it was unanimously adopted.

By Freeholder Adams: Resolved, That the director appoint a committee of three to revise and redraft the rules governing the board and report their recommendations at the next meeting of the board. On motion of Freeholder Woodruff the resolution was adopted without dissent.

The director appointed as the said committee Freeholders Cady, Robison and Woodruff.

By Freeholder Meisel: Resolved, That when this board adjourns it stands adjourned until Thursday, January 3d, 1907, at 3 p. m. On motion of Freeholder Adams the resolution was adopted without dissent.

By Freeholder Doane: Resolved, That the director be and is hereby constituted a member of all committees. On motion of Freeholder Swain the resolution was adopted without dissent.

By Freeholder Perry: Resolved, That the regular meetings of the board be held on the first Thursday in each month, except when such Thursday falls on a legal holiday, and then the regular monthly meeting shall be held at such time as the board may direct. On motion of Freeholder Woodruff the resolution was adopted without dissent.

The director then announced appointment of following.

Girl Rescued by Devoted Lover Flees with Him in Scant Attire

Daughter of a Chicago Lawn Minister Escapes from Hiding Place, Returns with Sweetheart, and They Are Married.

Chicago.—In her nightrobe, one other garment, a pair of cloth slippers and her young Lochinvar's overcoat, Miss Grace Monroe, the pretty daughter of Rev. Alexander Monroe, of Chicago Lawn, made a flying trip back home. She and her devoted lover, William Lieferman, of Chicago, laughed at locksmiths after the girl had been kidnaped by her father and another man to get her away from Liefman, and a rope ladder and a dash through the country at night in a buggy took the place of a key in freeing the young woman, who had been virtually a prisoner on a farm near Centralia, Ill.

The two young people, after the rescue that was as sensational as the kidnaping, and in which the countryside about Centralia had been enlisted, arrived in Chicago Lawn the other morning, where the young man finally secured a license and they were married.

Monroe took his daughter from the Chicago Lawn parsonage, and, with the assistance of James Shanklin, a dental student from Centralia, forced her into a cab, drove to the Illinois Central station and took her to Centralia. Pastor Monroe has a lonely farm five miles from town, known as the Jett farm, and in the house on this place the girl was kept a prisoner. The minister insisted that she marry Shanklin, and she refused. Lieferman obtained a warrant against the father for threats to kill, and constables waited to serve it. He consulted lawyers, and was told that a habeas corpus proceeding was the only thing.

This was too slow for the girl's admirer. Accompanied by a friend, Frank Parks, he arrived at Centralia the other day. Five well-known Centralia men offered to assist him in rescuing the girl.

The two young men repaired to the neighborhood of the Jett farm, and notwithstanding a heavy downpour of rain, lurked near in the hope of finding a way to appraise the girl of their presence. Finally they secured the services of a neighbor, who taking advantage of his acquaintance with the Jett family, called at the house. When the opportunity was presented he informed Miss Monroe that her sweetheart was in the neighborhood, and that a carriage would be in waiting behind the barn as soon as darkness fell.

In the meantime Lieferman and Sparks and their ally awaited the appointed time. As soon as it became dark enough and all was quiet around the farmhouse, Lieferman stationed his buggy as had been promised, and stood in readiness for the coming of his fiancee.

Two hours after the girl retired Lieferman was under her window. He tossed her a rope ladder, and she descended in her night clothes and slippers. She explained that her wardrobe was under lock and key. Lieferman wrapped her in his overcoat and the driver galloped his horses two miles, when a relay and five friends were picked up. The five miles were covered in 15 minutes. There was just 15 minutes to catch the 11:30 train to Chicago, and on this the elopers departed amid the congratulations and shouts of a small party.

FIGHTS FOR LIFE WITH BEAR

Pet Syrian Beast in New York Zoo Suddenly Turns on Keeper Schlosser.

New York.—Frederick Schlosser, who has been one of the keepers in the Bronx Zoological park for the last three years, is in Fordham hospital suffering from serious injuries as the result of a desperate fight with a big 300-pound Syrian bear. His left hand and arm are badly lacerated, while his left leg is so severely torn that the physicians fear amputation will be necessary.

The Syrian bear was in a den with two large white bears. He was born in the park three years ago, and until his attack on Schlosser he had never shown an ugly trait. He has been a pet of the keepers, and supposed to be without treachery in his disposition.

Schlosser went into the den to clean it and stopped, as usual, to pat the Syrian on the head. The animal seemed to enjoy the petting, and the keeper turned to begin his work.

Suddenly, with a deep growl, the bear sprang upon Schlosser and began clawing and biting. The keeper is a powerful man, but he was almost helpless in the bear's grasp. He fought as best he could, however, and for 15 minutes he kept up the struggle before his cries for help were heard by other keepers.

Then three men, armed with pitchforks and iron bars, ran into the den and at last succeeded in driving the Syrian into a corner and dragging Schlosser from the den.

While the fight lasted the two white bears remained at one side of the den and took no part in the struggle.

GIRLS FIGHT A MAD DOE.

Battle in Park at Paul Smith's, N. Y. —Young Woman Saves Companion by Using Water Bottle.

Paul Smith's, N. Y.—Miss Cella Zehden had an exciting battle with a maddened doe in the park of Thomas Bagden, near this place. By her heroism she saved Miss Lydia Davidson, daughter of George Law Davidson, of New York, from serious injury.

The girls were walking through the park to fill some water bottles when the doe bounded out upon them and made for Miss Davidson, attacking the young woman with its sharp hoofs. Miss Zehden rushed to her friend's rescue, striking the doe on the head with the water bottle. It turned on her, and Miss Davidson ran from the park, calling for help. The doe pushed Miss Zehden back into the underbrush, and she rained blows on its head with the bottle until several men arrived and drove off the enraged animal.

Miss Zehden fainted after the desperate encounter and is prostrated. Her hands were torn and her body was covered with bruises. Miss Davidson is none the worse for the encounter.

HARD LUCK OF A MAN WHO TRIED TO PROPOSE

Wealthy Austrian Proves That Evil Spirits Kept Him from Asking for Widow's Hand.

Vienna.—A rich widow has sued a wealthy landowner named Szabo for damaging her reputation by a long courtship without proposing marriage. Defendant admitted he courted the widow, but pleaded fate had prevented him from proposing to her, and he told the court a touching "hard luck" story. He said he had made strenuous efforts to ask the widow to marry him, but all were unsuccessful.

The first time he was just on the point of proposing when he stepped on the tail of the woman's pet dog. The consequences of this misadventure so upset him he did not dare suggest marriage.

Subsequently his courage again reached the sticking point and he drove to the widow's house in a carriage drawn by four horses. He was determined nothing should prevent him from proposing this time, but fate again reached out its hand and courage and determination availed nothing. The carriage upset and he was thrown into a mud puddle. His plight caused his bravery to wane, and he returned home to await a more favorable opportunity.

The third time he started to walk to the widow's, but, heedless of the ill luck bound to follow such a foolhardy venture, he attempted to pass under a painter's ladder. Fate again had an eye upon him, and just as he got under the ladder the painter upset a pot of green paint over him.

Szabo took his last warning to heart and concluded the widow was not for him. He produced witnesses to prove the statements, which the court accepted, and he was acquitted.

Gleaned at the Capital

Interesting Gossip from Washington by Our Special Correspondent —To Make Alcohol from Corncobs—Rare Act of Army Friendship—To Suppress Bell Ringing.

WASHINGTON.—The manufacture of alcohol may be revolutionized as the result of experiments which have been completed by the department of agriculture. The officials of the department have succeeded in making alcohol from corncobs and cornstalks at a cost so small that they believe it will prove of large commercial value and develop into a new industry. It is proposed at first to manufacture the alcohol as a byproduct in connection with corn-canning factories. In investigations which the department is making at Hoopeston, Ill., it has been proved that the large quantities of corncobs which every year go to waste can be converted into alcohol in sufficient quantities to justify the erection of a distilling plant.

The department sent two chemists to Hoopeston to make experiments at a large cannery there. They have succeeded by simple methods of fermentation in getting a yield of 21 gallons of alcohol from a ton of green cobs and by similar methods in getting six gallons of alcohol from a ton of green cornstalks.

A statement concerning the experiments by one of the scientists of the department reads:

"At different times during the last 25 years the department has conducted experiments along the same line, but with common field cornstalks. These tests show that there are 240 pounds of fermentable substance in a ton of green field cornstalks, which will yield about half of their weight in absolute alcohol. In round numbers a ton of stalks will produce 100 pounds of alcohol or 200 pounds of proof spirits. As a gallon of alcohol weighs nearly seven pounds, there should be 15 gallons of alcohol in a ton of stalks.

"Not only are the cobs a waste product but the irregular and spoiled ears of corn as well. Hand labor is as yet employed in the husking and all ears are put in, as the wage is based upon a measureful. As the measures of ears are emptied upon the conveyors the ears unfit for use are culled as they go by. These culled ears also are waste. The expense of bringing them to the point where they are cast aside is quite as much as the perfect ears. The addition of the corn on the cob adds further to the possibilities of alcohol obtainable from a ton of cobs and will have its influence in bringing the quantity to a greater figure."

THE SACRIFICE OF GEN. BELL.

In sacrificing promotion to the rank of major general in order that a friend may have the coveted honor, Brig. Gen. J. Franklin Bell, chief of staff of the army, has done an act unparalleled in magnanimity and generosity in American military records.

Brig. Gen. Jesse M. Lee, a civil war veteran, the only one left among the higher officers of the army, is to be retired by law early next January. There was a vacancy among the major generals when Lieut. Gen. Corbin retired the other day and Maj. Gen. MacArthur was promoted to succeed him.

Under the usual operation of the regulations Gen. Bell would have been advanced to fill the vacancy, thus giving him rank equal to that of any other officer assigned to departmental duty at Washington, a condition extremely desirable. But Bell stepped aside in favor of Gen. Lee so that the latter might retire with the higher rank. Gen. Lee has an excellent record, but has always refused to allow influential friends to intercede to hasten his promotion.

BELL RINGING MAY BE SUPPRESSED.

Shall church bells continue to peal in the national capital as in the good old times, or shall they be suppressed, is a question which the district commissioners have decided to take up for serious consideration, and all interested in it pro and con have been requested to submit their views.

The Koran says that bells hang on the trees of Paradise and are set in motion by wind from the throne of God as often as the blessed wish for music.

Many of the Christian churches of Washington have dispensed with steeple bells, and now nervous citizens are complaining that their peace and comfort are disturbed by those that remain.

Commissioner MacFarland, who is himself prominent in church affairs, has taken the initiative of bringing the issue for decision. He believes the time has come to enlarge the police regulations prohibiting noises, and in these days, when a timepiece can be found in nearly every household, he can see no good reason why notice of the approach of a service in church should be given by the loud ringing of bells.

All fire alarm bells have been suppressed with the exception of one in the business section of the city, and its doom is sealed. Curfew has not rung for years in the shadow of the capitol and the commissioners will, unless the representatives of the churches can offer some unexpected good reason, restrict the ringing of bells upon those edifices to strict compliance with the ritual of the churches.

STEVENS' UNAPPRECIATED PUN.

John F. Stevens, chief engineer of the Panama canal, has been in various limelights in the capital during the investigations, but he carried his point and has been told at last to go ahead and build the kind of canal he has advocated. He is a man to carry points when he makes them. He is an ideal engineer, rugged and strong, and every motion indicates unlimited reserve power. His face is rather handsome, but determination dominates, from the thick, dark hair and heavy eyebrows to the brief, strong mustache, over lips which close like a punctuation mark when he has said his say. He missed it once, however, and told the story as though he rather enjoyed it. He was sitting on the counter in a western grocery store when a cowboy came in, and taking him for a clerk, said: "Gimme some raisins!"

There had just been a couple of impromptu hangings in the next town, and looking up without moving the young engineer asked:

"Do you want the same kind of raisin's they had over yonder?"

The next instant he was looking into the business hole in the cowboy's shooter. He says that it was as big as a cannon, and he was getting ready to slide off and hunt for raisins when the proprietor came to the rescue, begging the cowboy not to spatter up his place. He took advantage of the pause to apologize.

MAKING A "CITY BEAUTIFUL."

More than $50,000,000 is now being spent upon buildings and bridges of a public character in and around Washington, and when work already undertaken has been completed, Washington will be without a peer as a city of architectural beauty. In addition to the projects amounting to more than $50,000,000 now decided upon and under way, improvements costing an additional $20,000,000 are projected.

When the senate and house office buildings are completed the plaza east of the capitol will be almost surrounded on its four sides by one of the most magnificent groups of public structures in the world, built of granite and marble. The north and south sides of this plaza will be bounded respectively by the senate and house office buildings, which together are to cost $7,000,000. The west will be bounded by the imposing structure of the capitol, the eastern front of which is to be extended in marble at a cost of $1,330,000. The eastern side will be partially bounded by the library of congress building, which has cost the government $6,920,000. The other blocks of ground east of the capitol plaza and just north of the library of congress, will ultimately be occupied by a splendid structure for the supreme court of the United States.

The capitol and its proposed extension, the senate and house office buildings and the library of congress will represent an expenditure by the government of $32,321,849, and this will make these structures the most costly marble frame in the world for so small a rectangle of foliage and grass.

Not far from this splendid series of buildings will be the new union railroad depot, which will front the plaza from Delaware avenue on the north at a cost of $12,000,000, with its approaches, making the five structures in this vicinity cost upward of $45,000,000.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Jane Muldn Feigel's pretty play, "The Girl Patsy," will be presented at the New Plainfield theatre this afternoon and tonight. The cast is headed by Miss Grace Cahill, a young actress of much ability.

The success attained by Mildred and Rouclere, the extraordinary illusionists, has been remarkable when one considers they are visiting many of these cities for the first time. The records of the best of the standard high class attractions are beaten by them, and their immense audiences are made up of wealth, refinement, intelligence and fashion. On their second or third visit this sort of thing might be expected, but somehow they get to the public right away and the delight and novelty of the performance sends good news ahead of them and guarantees great big audiences everywhere. Their appearance here is anxiously looked forward to by lovers of what's new and best in refined entertainment and they will be at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night.

It has long been the ambition of Joe Hortiz, the sweet voiced tenor of minstrel fame, to appear in "The Legitimate," and the opportunity of realizing his ambition has been afforded him by George H. Nicolai and Wm. W. Miller in a new comedy-melodrama by Langdon McCormick, entitled "Our Friend Fritz," which they will present for the first time in this city at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night. Hortiz will play the star role in the production and it is said that he has ample opportunities to use his voice to an advantage in the piece. Those who know say it is like an incarnation of the famous J. K. Emmet days. Joe Hortiz made his name most famous by his yodeling. He is said to be the very best yodler left on the American stage today. So those taking in the performance may expect to see a first class performance and hear a singer that can really sing.

TO THE POINT.

The Subjunctive Mood.

A prominent New York lawyer says that in his earlier professional days he was glad to expand his slender income by bill-collecting. On one occasion he had a bill against a man who, incidentally, has since achieved a success which puts him beyond the necessity of such an indefinite statement as he made on that occasion. The young lawyer found him with his feet propped upon his desk, while he gazed dreamily at the ceiling through a cloud of tobacco smoke.

"But really, sir, I must insist that you give me some definite idea as to when you will settle," the lawyer said, after having been gently rebuffed.

The author consented to lower his eyes and to wave his pipe languidly.

"Why, certainly, sir—though there seems to me to be a rather unnecessary commotion about this trifle," he drawled. "I will pay the bill as soon as I think of it after receiving the money which a publisher will pay me in case he accepts the novel which I will write and send him just as soon as I feel in an energetic mood after a really good idea for a plot has occurred to me!"—Harper's Weekly.

Would That All Bores Were Soldiers

Edward C. Mansfield, late first assistant postmaster of Boston, and secretary of the Republican State Committee, tells this story illustrating one phase of his experience while secretary of the Soldier's Aid Society during the Spanish war. A large relief fund had been collected, and the ever-increasing number of applicants for aid soon convinced Mr. Mansfield that his chief duty would be in finding really deserving ones among the imposters.

One day a young artilleryman from one of the harbor forts visited the office. He was a fine specimen of physical manhood and despite the easily apparent evidence of intoxication his uniform was spick and span. Of course, his appeal for aid was courteously refused.

But the soldier was persistent, becoming a daily visitor. Finally Mr. Mansfield resolved to get rid of him.

"Attention!" he commanded.

The man stiffened up and saluted.

"About face!"

"Forward, March!"

Without a word the soldier turned, marching out through the door and down the stairway, never to return. —Boston Herald.

Horse Takes an Auto Ride.

The Cherrelyn street car line is famous almost the whole world over as being the only one where one can see the novel sight of a horse taking a street car ride. The line is a short one—only about twi miles long, extending from Englewood, a suburb of Denver, to Cherrelyn, a sleepy hamlet on the plains. From Englewood to the further terminus the grade is all up hill, requiring the strength of a stout bronco to supply the motive power. On the return trip, however, no motive power is required beyond that supplied by gravity. The horse, therefore, is permitted to mount the rear platform and ride down hill, while the driver gives his undivided attention to the manipulation of the brake.—Kansas City Star.

CLEAN SWEEP FOR GADDIS AND DILKS

TOURNEY LEADERS TAKE ANOTHER SERIES FROM MALTBY AND THIERS.

One of the largest galleries that has been at McLaughlin's at any time since the tourney started was on hand last night when six of the best teams in the contest struggled for honors. The shooting was of the varied kind as some of the players put up good scores and others did a lot of punky pin smashing. Gaddis and Dilks accomplished their old stunt of taking three straight from Maltby and Thiers and Kiely and Runyon did the same thing to Day and Gahagan. Sheelen and Alberts took two away from Nash and Skelley, one of them by the narrow margin of a single pin.

Chief Kiely's rolling was erratic to say the least and he went from 'way high to 'way low. His first game brought 226 and he finished with 117, the poorest he has posted since the contest started. Judge Runyon was also out of form and if Day and Gahagan had done any kind of shooting at all they would have won out. The latter two bowled like kindergartners except for one score of 180 made by Gahagan. Maltby and Thiers did some nice hitting but if they did good, Gaddis and Dilks did better and the leaders in the contest just wouldn't be caught. Skelley rolled two over the double century mark and then dropped to 146. Sheelen showed up with a 201 and 216.

The scores:

Nash	179	157	179
Skelley	213	218	146
	392	375	325

SECONDS BECOME FIRSTS.

Y. M. C. A. Basketball Fortunes Trusted to Hands of Youngsters.

Through the constantly growing weakness of the first team, the second basketball five of the Y. M. C. A. have become the premier five of the organization. Practically every man on the original first team has been crippled, and the second team, intact and strong in team work and shooting, has been formally raised to the first degree by Physical Director Listman. He announced this morning that the seconds would represent the association in every remaining game of the season.

The exalted seconds line up as follows: Loiseaux, Gilmore, forwards; Collier, center; Schoonmaker, Ted Gavett, guards. They have proved themselves a swift and a promising combination. Fast already, they are a notable group in the promise they give of steady and unusual improvement. Mr. Listman picked the five early in the season and he is enthusiastic over the way they have played up to form.

PARK BOWLERS WIN FROM NEWARK BAYS

TAKE THREE GAMES STRAIGHT IN THEIR OWN ALLEYS.

Rolling strongly and steadily, the Parks cleaned up three straight against the Newark Bays in the Central Bowling League last night. The games were rolled on the Park Club alleys.

The borough bowlers were 116 pins to the good in the first game, 924 to 808, and only one less than that in the second—915 to 800. The third game was close, 859 to 845. Daniel was high man, scoring 216 in the second game. Ball rolled 215 in the third; he saved the game.

The scores:

They were attended by the brides sister, Miss Grace MacBride, and J. Harry Milligan, of this city. A reception and supper followed at the home of Mrs. William Muirhead, of Roselle, also a sister of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Vermeuel will make their home at 339 Park avenue. The groom is a conductor on the main line trolley system.

G. O. P. Committee to Meet.

The Republican City Executive Committee will meet at the Casino on Monday night for the purpose of perfecting the organization left incomplete at the last meeting. Plans of work for the coming year will be taken up and discussed and a full attendance of the committee is urged. William R. Townsend, who is acting secretary and treasurer pro tem, will probably be elected to the position for the year.

Commutors Held up Two Hours.

The train leaving Newark at 6:13 in the evening, which carries a lot of Plainfield commutors, was held up on the meadows for nearly two hours last night because of a mishap to the engine. A part of the mechanism broke while it was running at full speed but the engineer brought it to a stop safely. Charles McCann, of this city, was brakeman on the train.

Young Vandals.

Four young men of this city made today. The little fellow, who is six themselves conspicuous, yesterday afternoon, on the East bound B. and O. train stopping here the cars. When the conductor gave them a little good advice, some of the youths got "fresh." The matter will be investigated and no doubt their fathers will be called upon to settle for the damage done.

The will of Mrs. Sarah M. Miire, who died January 18, at No. 124 West Firty-third street, leaves $25,000 to Frank Curtis, of Plainfield, N. J., a member of the brokerage firm of W. D. Moore & Co., of No. 42 New street, with which Mrs. Moore's son was identified during his lifetime.

Leal's Was Outweighed.

The Collegiate School basketball team defeated the Lel's School five at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon, 27 to 14. The visitors were too heavy to be blocked. Leal's lined up as follows: Averill, Howard, forwards; Bergen, center; Duke, Brown, Lawrence, guards.

Big Orchestra a Feature.

The local members of the Musical Union, A. F. and M., will hold their first annual ball in Saengerbund hall, Monday night. It will embody many new features for an affair of this kind, one of them being an orchestra of twelve men for dancing.

UNCLE SAM JOLTS THE RACE TRACK TIPSTERS.

Former Dunellenite the First to Come Under Ban of Fraud Order.

Uncle Sam has butted in in the horse racing game in New York city, and as a result of his activity hard times are seen ahead by the venders of "inside information," "one best bet hot off the wire," "sure things," "hog killings," etc. This state of affairs all came about after an investigation conducted by Postoffice Inspector A. R. Butler, in which the Postoffice Department sleuth discovered that one C. R. Fagley, of 304 West Fifteenth street, New York, who formerly lived at Dunellen and is well known here, was doing a big business as a tipster on races, operating under the name of the Insiders' Information Company, 134 East Forty-second street. The postoffice inspector made a thorough investigation of Fagely's methods of doing business, with the result that a fraud order has been issued by the Postoffice Department, depriving Fagley the use of the mails.

Fagley's method is an old one, and, like hundreds of others, he was growing prosperous on his little bunk game, which he conducted as a sideline to his grocery supply business, at comparatively little expense. The price and terms for his "inside information" was that the better should send the bereau "the winnings of a dollar bet on the horse given." The manner in which he conducted the business was by a simple system, assigning different horses to different people thus insuring Fagley without doubt some returns, as one of the horses was bound to win. Fagley exploited his business by newspaper advertising and received many bets through the mails.

TRANSPORTING GREAT GUNS.

Enormous Steel Freight Car Made at Lehigh Valley Shops.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Jan. 26.—The largest all-steel freight car ever manufactured was turned out of the Sayre shops of the Lehigh Valley yesterday and sent to South Bethlehem, where it will be used exclusively for the transportation of the big guns made at the works there. The car is 100 feet long, three times the length of an ordinary car, and has four trucks, with thirty-two wheels, while the ordinary car has two trucks and eight wheels.

It weighs about 250,000 pounds, nearly seven times as much as the ordinary car. A gang of men was busy forty days driving the ten thousand rivets in the car.

Mrs. Platt's Libel Suit.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 26.—Mrs. Lillian T. Platt, wife of Senator Thomas C. Platt, of New York, through her attorney, H. Winship Wheatley, yesterday began a libel suit in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia against the Washington Post Company and the Washington Times Company for $300,000 and $200,000 damages respectively.

She recites in her declaration that "she is and always has been absolutely honorable and was a person of good name, credit and reputation and deservedly enjoyed the esteem and good opinion of the community in general and enjoyed a good reputation among a large circle of friends and acquaintances and was and is the wife of Thomas C. Platt, a member of the United States Senate, and was and is wholly free from the matters hereinafter complained of." Mrs. Platt then sets forth the articles as published. She brings buit on three counts against the Post and two counts against the Times. The suits against the Post are based on stories connecting the name of J. K. Hedges, the Platt family coachman, with that of Mrs. Platt.

German Socialists Routed.

Berlin, Jan. 26.—Polling began all over Germany at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, as far as regards Berlin in splendid wintry weather. It was early evident that the country realized fully the importance of the national issues it was called upon to decide. As forecasted Thursday, the votes cast constitute a record and they have won for the government a notable victory. The liberal, radical and conservative parties, supporting Prince von Bulow's colonial policy, have won at least twenty seats, but more important for the government is the defeat suffered by the socialists, who will lose a total of seventeen or eighteen seats. This is the first election since 1887 that the socialists have not increased their representation in the Reichstag by from five to twenty seats. They have lost, especially in several large cities, among these places being Breslau, Halle, Madgeburg, Leipzig and Koenigsberg. The clerical centre holds almost all of its former one hundred seats, having lost one or two to the Poles in Silesia.

Poisoned Bullets In Bomb.

New York, Jan. 26.—Inspector Wolf, of the Bureau of Combustibles, said Thursday that an infernal machine found tied to a door of Patrick McManus' saloon, in Coney Island, two weeks ago, was the most deadly bomb ever found in Brooklyn. There is much mystery concerning the bomb. When it was found the police regarded it as a joke. McManus saw the bomb hanging to a latch on a door and, suspicious of its appearance, called a policeman to remove it. He had never been threatened and knew no reason why it was placed there. Inspector Wolf said the gas pipe of which the momb was made contained powder and guncotton which half filled the tube, and on top of this were found forty-eight bullets of foreign make saturated with a poisonous mixture. One end of the pipe was capped and the other end stopped with a plug.

Road to Raise Cross Ties.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 26.—E. A. Sterling, formerly assistant forester in the Department of Agriculture at Washington, was yesterday appointed forester of the Pennsylvania Railroad. Mr. Sterling will be the first forester of an American railroad. The Pennsylvania Railroad is taking up forestry for the purpose of planting trees systematically to furnish a cross tie supply in future years. During the last five years 1,500,000 trees have been planted on land owned by the company. A government forestry expert was engaged last spring to assist the management in planning its forestry work, which is now to be undertaken officially by the company. Six hundred and eighty-one acres of land near Altoona, Pa., will in 1907 and 1908 be planted with chestnut and red oak seedlings.

Alamanac Proves Him Innocent.

South Orange, Jan. 26.—A patent medicine almanac saved Adam Kreb, of Valley Road, Orange, from being fined. He was arraignend in the South Orange police court yesterday on a charge of violating the bicycle ordinance. A fine of $2 which had been imposed on him was remitted when he showed by the almanac that he had not violated the law. Kreb was arrested last night, charged with riding his bicycle without a light. The law says a light must be used after sundown. The almanac showed that the sun set at 5:07 o'clock last night. Kreb was arrested at 5:05. He was allowed to go free. After he had gone it was discovered that he was also accused of riding on the sidewalk.

Preaches for Her Husband.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Jan. 26.—Netherwood, a village in Dutchess county, always knew the Rev. Elmer Lakin, pastor of the Methodist church, had a worthy wife, but it was more than ever satisfied of her superior worth on the last two Sundays, after she appeared in the pulpit in place of her husband, who is under treatment for appendicitis. Netherwood is far from railroad lines, and it is hard to get a supply minister there. Mrs. Lakin had never thought of preaching, but she had assisted her husband in preparing his sermons. When she took his place she led the congregation in prayer that he might be restored to health. No member of the congregation has arisen to pick a flaw in her theology.

Russells' Sketch Cut.

New York, Jan. 26.—As a result of a demonstration in the theatre on Thursday night by about two hundred representatives of Irish societies John and James Russell did not appear at Hammerstein's Victoria yesterday afternoon in their vaudeville sketch, "The Irish Servant Girls," and at last night's performance their act was considerably curtailed. To guard against further trouble twenty-one uniformed policemen from the West Forty-seventh street station and ten detectives were scattered about the theatre, but when Russell Brothers appeared so far from their being any show of disfavor on the part of the audience they were greeted with a more than ordinarily emphatic round of applause.

Hospital Transfers.

New York, Jan. 26.—Two flagrant cases in one day of dying patients being transferred from other hospitals to Bellevue, where they died soon after their arrival, have resulted in preparations for a searching inquest. Coroner Harburger will subpoena thirty witnesses, including the superintendents of Bellevue, the Presbyterian Hospital and Roosevelt Hospital. The investigation is set for February 5. Growing out of the proceeding it is expected that a bill will be presented to the Legislature providing for a law against the practice of sending patients in a dying condition from the semi-private institutions of the city to die in Bellevue.

Picture Brings $65,000.

New York, Jan. 26.—Ine one of the most notable auction sales of paintings ever held in this country Mr. Herman Schaus, a dealer, Thursday night established a new American record in prices when he paid $65,000 for a Troyon after a spirited contest with Senator William A. Clark, of Montana, whose highest bid was $63,000. Senator Clark was eager to get the beautiful canvas, and he kept along with Mr. Schaus at a merry pace until the well known dealer raised his bid $2,000 instead of the customary $1,000. Thirty paintings, comprising the collection of H. S. Henry, brought the great total of $325,800.

The Funeral of Clinton Neronis.

The funeral of Clinton Neronis, the young colored man killed on the New Jersey Central at Finderne last Sunday, was held at A. M. Runyon & Son's undertaking parlors this morning. It was conducted by Dr. A. C. McCrea and was followed by interment at Hillside cemetery.

MURDERED PHYSICIAN WAS A PLAINFIELDER

Dr. Townsend, Victim of Murder Mystery Removed From Here in 1880.

WIFE REVISES STORY

Added Explanations Only Serve to Make the Case More Complicated.

When further investigation was made yesterday into the circumstances surrounding the shooting on Saturday morning of Dr. Charles Wilmot Townsend, formerly of this city, at his home, 5 Westervelt avenue, New Brighton, Staten Island, many more contradictory statements by members of the doctor's household and immediate family and the revision by some of them of statements previously made to the police added to the mystery.

Dr. Townsend was a native of Plainfield. His father, Charles Townsend, resided in Mercer avenue, many years ago. Subsequently the family lived in East Fifth street. It was about 1880 that Dr. Townsend removed from here. One of his sisters is a daughter-in-law of Dean Rodman, having been married to his son, Randolph Rodman. They reside in Orange. The other sister of Dr. Townsend was married to John Scribner and they live in Philadelphia.

The doctor's wife yesterday changed the story of the shooting she had given to Inspector Schmittberger's detectives the day before, and Nathan Randolph, Dr. Townsend's coachman, added a new version to the story of the events following the assault on the doctor by a masked man in the early hours of the morning.

William R. Janeway, a nephew of the murdered doctor, acting as spokesman for Mrs. Townsend yesterday, gave this version of the shooting:

"Mrs. Townsend says that she was awakened by hearing the voice of a man who was standing by the bedside at the elbow of Dr. Townsend. She heard him say just two words, 'Get up.'

"As soon as he had said that he commenced firing at the doctor, who was trying to rise out of bed. He fired two shots and then hurried out of the room. Mrs. Townsend says that she was mistaken yesterday when she said that there was a light in the hall at the time of the shooting and that she could see the form of the man in that light. There was no light in the hall, and it was by the light of a match he held lighted in his hand that she saw him draw the revolver and shoot.

"She is sure that he wore a peaked hat with a visor drawn down over the eyes and that he had tied under his nose a blue handkerchief with a white dot pattern. She did not notice whether or not the man spoke with a foreign accent nor could she recognize the voice if she were to hear it again. He said only those two words."

This version of the shooting differs materially from the final and revised story Mrs. Townsend gave to the detectives on Saturday. The first story that came from her was that she was awakened by a masked man's demand for money and that she cried out to him not to shoot an unarmed man. Later in the day Mrs. Townsend told the police that it was the first pistol shot that awakened her and that she sat up in bed just in time to see the intruder backing hastily out of the door into the hall, where an electric light burned.

When Mrs. Townsend first related the account of the incidents surrounding the assault on her husband Dr. Townsend, clear minded though weakened by the shock, told the police that an attempt had been made to rob him and that it was a burglar that had shot him. Later, when the wounded man had sunk into a stupor, Mrs. Townsend was persuaded by the detectives that the burglar story was not tenable. Then her mind reverted to her original account of the assault.

John Bell, a surface car conductor, was arrested this morning on suspicion of having committed the crime.

Mid-Winter Tea.

SEEK HEIR TO FORTUNE

Phillip Weinberger Missing Since October Has Inherited Part of Father's Fortune.

HE WAS IN CHICAGO

Son of Max Weinberger Who Died Recently—Boy Last Heard From When Visiting Uncle.

"Philip Weinberger—Your father is dead. Send me your address. William Newcorn. Plainfield, Buffalo, Cleveland and Chicago papers please copy."

The above advertisement appeared in the New York Herald, of yesterday, and inquiry today disclosed the fact that Phillip Weinberger, who is the son of the late Max Weinberger, for many years engaged in the clothing business on West Front street, left Plainfield last October, with the consent of his father, to visit his uncle in Chicago.

It is known that he remained in Chicago for nearly two months, for friends in Plainfield received postal cards and letters from him during that period. The young man, who is about seventeen years old, was pretty well supplied with cash when he left town, and it is now the opinion that he is visiting various places. Max Weinberger left a large estate and the missing boy is one of the principal beneficaries.

Mrs. Weinberger, who is a stepmother and an own aunt to Phillip Weinberger, his father having married his wife's sister after her death, has heard nothing or the boy since December and is now prostrated over his prolonged absence. The lad has always had a roving disposition and this is not the first time that he has absented himself from home for a length of time. Some of his friends feel no apprehension as to his safety and believe that he will return home when he gets ready.

While the advertisement seeks to inform the lad of his father's death, it is believed that he may have previously learned of it through relatives in Chicago and other parts of the west.

GRACE M. E. CONGREGATION TO OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY

CHURCH WILL HAVE BEEN ORGANIZED FIFTEEN YEARS ON FEB. 14.

The congregation of Grace M. E. church will celebrate the fifteenth anniversary of its organization on February 10 and in preparation for the event the pastor, Rev. Dr. C. W. Parsons, preached an appropriate sermon, yesterday. His text was, "Beginning at Jerusalem" and the idea he expressed was that Christianity had its commencement in Jerusalem and that the Master expected something of everyone to aid in spreading the word. It had its beginning in Plainfield 200 years ago and has a great growth and is now beginning over again.

The anniversary of the founding of the church in reality falls on February 14 but the previous Sunday has been set as the date. At the morning service, Rev. Herbert Randolph, the first pastor, now of Hoboken, will preach and in the evening Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll, who supplied during the first year, is to speak on "Hopes in the Beginning." He will be followed by Dr. Parsons, who will talk on "Hopes for the Present and For the Future."

In connection with the celebration, an effort will be made to clear the last remaining debt on the church, a small amount.

Old Glory to the Breeze.

The American flag presented to the Plainfield High School by the Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Plainfield, was flown to the breeze today for the first from the new flag pole in front of the High School. DRYDEN TALK USELESS

Ackerman Declares No Conference With Senator Will Change His Vote.

COLBY WELCOMES IT

Wants to Ask Dryden Some Questions—Letter a Sign of Weakness.

"I shall not recede from the stand I have taken in reference to the re-election of Dryden," declared State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman last night when questioned about the open conference which Mr. Dryden has asked for and which would afford him an opportunity, as he says, to state his claims for a re-election.

"I am thoroughly satisfied in my own mind," said Mr. Ackerman, "that my constituents are against the re-election of Mr. Dryden. There was a time two or three years ago when I refused to commit myself as to the question of abiding by my party caucus, but now I cannot see my way clear to vote for Mr. Dryden when a large majority of my constituents believe that his re-election would mean the turning over of the State to the Democratic party."

When Mr. Ackerman was asked if he would attend such a conference as proposed by Mr. Dryden he intimated that he might refuse, although at the present time he was not prepared to give a decision. He said he failed to see what good was to be accomplished by holding an open conference. He believed that the people had made up their minds on the question, in fact he was sure of it so far as his constituents were concerned.

"Personally," continued Mr. Ackerman, "I have no feeling against Mr. Dryden. I am convinced that the opposition to him is solely because of his close relationship with corporations which seek to control legislation."

That Dryden's letter was a sign of weakness for Dryden to ask for a chance to explain matters and to answer any questions his opponents might desire to ask was the first idea, and seems to be the prevailing opinion. If Dryden was so confident, he would not admit he was in trouble. To ask an interview with his opponents that harmony might be restored, if possible, and he might have a chance to win them over astonishes the practical politicians.

Anti-Dryden men think that not a single opponent of the Senator will pay any attention to his letter nor go anywhere near him. They are quietly laughing over the matter, and assert that Dryden is about to withdraw or try to make an alliance with some other candidate. Possibly, it is said, the whole thing is simply a scheme to stave off for a few days the break that is coming.

The Senator is expected at Trenton tonight and then something tangible may be arranged. It is confidently asserted that in case Dryden and his friends find they can make no progress, the Senator is ready to issue a letter withdrawing from the contest.

The second week of the Senatorship struggle promises to be even more exciting than the first. While there will not be another ballot taken until tonight, the crowd with gather today and the different factions will do the hardest work possible. The Dryden men will try to stem the tide against them and prevent votes from leaving them, at any rate for a few days. They still think they are certain to win in the long run. Dryden's opponents, however, say that the best the Senator can hope for is the prolonging of the deadlock until the session threatens to end with no one elected. The Dryden men think that the independents and anti-Dryden advocates will give in rather than have the struggle go along another year and result, as it very likely would, in the election of a Democratic Legislature and a Democratic Senator.

But the anti-Dryden men are apparently not at all alarmed. Even if Dryden could succeed in blocking an election and hold over another year, he would surely be beaten by a Democrat then. A prominent anti-Dryden leader said yesterday that hundreds of Republicans would prefer to take chances with a strong Democrat than be under control of the big corporations any longer.

But many are strong in the belief that Dryden's successor will be chosen at the present session. The Senator may be able to name him, but he cannot win himself, it is said. It is believed that the break from the Senator will begin not later than on Wednesday, and many think that the stampede will start tomorrow. When the desertions begin to be frequent there will be a vigorous demand for another caucus, and one will doubtless be held.

Griggs, Briggs and Bradley are still the favorites. Some, in talking of them, change the order a little.

WIZARD LOCATES HERE

Frederick Mueller Leaves Singer Factory to Enter Employment of Pond Co.

KNOWN AS "AUTOMATIC"

Inventor of Many Wonderful Devices Used By the Big Sewing Machine Concern.

The Singer Manufacturing Company at Elizabeth received on Saturday the resignation of Frederick Mueller, of that city, better known as "Automatic" Mueller, who has been with the concern for thirty-four years. He leaves in order to become consulting engineer of the Niles-Bement-Pond Company and will be stationed at the plant of the Pond Tool Company in this city. The change took effect today and "Automatic" is now in his new position.

Mr. Muller was head of the construction and drafting departments of the Singer plants. He is better known, however, as the inventor of a large numer of tools, so-called, used for making the parts of sewing machines.

He is first man in the world to make a tool that will turn out a part of a machine complete in one operation. His latest invention of this kind is a machine for finishing bed plates which does in one operation what formerly required thirty-eight. Mr. Muller is the inventor of many smaller machines, the primary characteristic of which is their simplicity. Most of his machines run automatically, which accounts for the sobriquet "Automatic" by which he is known among his associates and even in the technical publications.

He has the distinction of having never made a machine that did not work satisfactorily. It has frequently been said that when a machine came complete from his hands it could not be improved upon. His work suggests the wizard and he has few equals as an inventor in the world today.

SLICK INDIVIDUAL TRIES OLD GAME ON BOROUGHITES.

Was Busy Trying to Sell Plated Rings and Window Glass Spectacles When Cop Got Him.

Residents in various parts of the borough were visited on Saturday by a slick-looking individual with a ready flow of talk who wanted to sell cheap rings and spectacles. The rings were mostly plated stuff and the spectacles were about as good as the band the comic opera character wears to make him look older. The game is an old one and one of the residents asked to buy told Chief Marshal Weiss about the fellow over the telephone.

The officer took him in custody and to Recorder Dolliver he described himself as John Calvin, of Bay City, Mich. He had no license to sell anything and failed to explain why it was that he had asked $3.25 for his rings at first and finally offered them for thirty-five cents. He was committed to jail in default of $10 fine on the no license charge and in the meantime the police will see what they can find out about him.

Chief Kiely looked at the prisoner yesterday but could not place him. He spent the greater part of the day singing church hymns at the top of his voice much to the annoyance of a drunk and pandhandler in adjoining cells.

Patent May Be Generally Adopted.

F. E. Kinsman, of Sherman avenue, the patentee of the Kinsman safety signal device which has been in successful operation on the express tracks of the New York subway since its installation, has returned from Washington, where he appeared before the railroad commission to explain his invention. He received generous treatment during his stay in Washington and while many other inventions were presented, none of them appeared to meet the exacting requirements as found in his device. He says that the outlook is encouraging for the general adoption of his patent in this country.

Preparing to Cut Ice.

The Natural Ice Company is advertising today for a large force of men to cut ice at the company's lake at Watchung. The company expects to begin cutting on Wednesday or Thursday, when it is believed that the frozen water will be of sufficient thickness.

CHILD LABOR A MENACE

Rev. George A. Warner Declares That Employment of Youth is National Peril.

A TERRIBLE SYSTEM

Clergyman Quotes Statistics and Adds That Remedy Must Be Applied at Once.

A powerful presentation of the evils of child labor was made by the Rev. George A. Warner, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, in a sermon delivered to his congregation yesterday morning. The clergyman was armed with facts and figures sufficient to convince the most doubting one that the existing condition constitutes a National peril.

"In a letter dated New York, Jan. 15, I was asked to join with others of my brethren of the clergy all over the United States, in bringing to the attention of Christian people the subject of child labor as a National evil and a menace to good citizenship. It was natural with a decided love for children and a wish to aid them and their cause in any way possible that I should try and inform myself as to the precise facts relating to child labor.

"At the outset we must realize that the evil of employing children at a tender age has back of it the greed of modern capitalists who desire cheap labor, and the avariciousness of the needy parent who thinks to increase the family income—without considering the inevitable result. That it is a National problem is found in the fact that two million children under the age of sixteen are engaged in gainful employment. What these two million children will be twenty years from now is a question which is not only a moral concern but a National one as well. Faulty physical bodies; anaemic, worn out, insufficiently nourished, broken down creatures, taken from the ranks of such workers go to make up the submerged wretched poverty stricken people of the slums, who by unfortunate marriages and in wretched environment hand down to their children diseased bodies and enfeebled mental powers and capacities.

"Our industrial processes are such that children are found very handy and quick with machinery and attempts made here in New Jersey to prohibit boys under sixteen from working in glass factories is opposed by the manufacturers on the ground of utility, and that such work is permitted in Pennsylvania. Seven thousand children are engaged in this work. Boys in glass plants usually work in two shifts—one day and one night. When on a night shift they leave the hot atmosphere of the glass furnace at 2:30 to 4:30 a. m. to wend their way through the darkness of the raw night frequently and travel long distances. They are often found sleeping near the furnaces until the day shift comes on, or in summer they sleep on a friendly doorstep or by the wayside rather than take the dark trip home. The boy who has to tie glass stoppers in bottles has three hundred bottles a day as his task. He sits bent over his low stool for ten hours, the hollow chest, bent back, flabby limbs, sallow face, tired eyes and quivering nerves all tell the story of the child being deprived of his life by the greed of fellow-men. All for the munificent sum of $4.50 a week. Burly men curse their little helpers and leave on them an impress by foul and coarse language that nothing can ever obliterate. One man who had worked in a glass house all his life said: 'I would rather send my boys straight to hell than send them by way of the glass house.' A young fellow who worked in a factory where there were 175 of these boys said there were only ten at the end of the fire who were not confirmed drinkers of intoxicants. On man who was appealed to do something for the education of the boys replied, 'You can't do anything for them. The little devils are vicious from their birth.' The effects are injurious to the moral as well as the physical well being of the boy. It is a striking commentary that the children of the glass workers themselves are seldom ever allowed by the parents to work in the factory.

"In the coal mining industry it is only another form of labor with the same results. The great coal strike of 1902 led to the unearthing of some interesting facts which have been supplemented by eighteen months' patient investigation by a committee appointed to look into child labor in coal mines. From 6,000 to 12,000 boys under fourteen years of age are employed in the hard coal mines of Pennsylvania alone. This is in violation of the law but falsehood on the part of parent and children lying in respect to their age has made the violation possible. These boys work in considerable numbers in the coal breakers, seated on a board laid

RIG TURNS SOMERSAULT

In a Thirty-Foot Drop and Horse Is Uninjured.

SLIGHT DAMAGE DONE

Remarkable Ending to Runaway On Dunellen Avenue—Animal Lands In Sand Pit Upright Between Shafts.

Running at panic speed, a frightened horse attached to one of Marchant Bros'. milk wagons, leaped over the edge of a thirty-foot drop at the end of Dunellen avenue, yesterday morning, turned a complete somersault with the rig, and landed upright and unharmed in the shafts at the bottom. The horse's jump and the lack of damage attending it make the runaway one of the most remarkable on record in this city.

The horse was startled into running away at Albert street and Dunellen avenue, while the driver was in a house there delivering milk at 7 o'clock. It dashed along Dunellen avenue. At the end of Dunellen avenue, just beyond Compton avenue, is an old sand pit, thirty feet in depth on the Dunellen avenue side. Alfred Compton, Jr., heard the wagon clatter by his door and ran out to see what was happening. He saw the runaway pass Compton avenue, the last turn before the pit and he started after it on a run. He knew that a plunge into the pit was the only end to the dash, and he expected to find horse and wagon in a smashed heap at the bottom.

When he looked over the edge he could hardly believe his eyes. The horse was on its feet on the frozen ground between the shafts, the run shaken out of it, but unhurt. The marks on the snow and the place where the rig stood were such as to indicate beyond doubt that horse and wagon had turned over completely. That both escaped being crumpled up is a marvel.

The horse apparently was not even bruised. Broken shafts, a bent axle and a split panel was the total of damage to the wagon. All the bottles, and a lot of eggs, in the conveyance were smashed.

Mr. Compton unhitched the horse, and turned it over to the driver when the latter ran up. It was taken back to its stable to rest up; the wagon was removed later.

PARALYSIS FATAL TO MRS. SARAH LINCOLN

STRICKEN WHILE VISITING FRIEND SIMILARLY AFFECTED.

Mrs. R. C. Fisher, of West Fourth street, suffered a stroke of paralysis a few days ago and has since been confined to her bed. Saturday night, Mrs. Sarah Lincoln, who has lived on Arlington avenue, around the corner from her home, for nearly thirty years, decided to visit her friend and came to Mrs. Fisher's house in apparently as good health as ever, despite her advanced age of seventy-nine years. She had barely reached the patient's room when she was stricken with paralysis and sank unconscious.

She was removed to another room and doctors were called but the attack were a severe one and Mrs. Lincoln failed to rally. She remained in a comatose state until a quarter of 8 last night when death ensued.

Mrs. Lincoln had been a resident of Plainfield nearly all her life and was the widow of Felix T. Lincoln. She was the oldest member of the First M. E. church and attended there regularly. At one time she was a prominent worker in the local division of the Sons of Temperance. She leaves one daughter, Mrs. J. E. Tyrrell, of East Fifth street, and two granddaughters, Miss Mildred Tyrrell and Miss Etta Raybert.

The funeral will be held at Mrs. Tyrrell's home, Wednesday afternoon at 2:30.

Not a Fire Hero.

Dorsey W. Hyde, Jr., was somewhat surprised on Saturday when he read the story sent out from New Brunswick which pictured him as a fire hero. It was all news to him that he had rushed to the third floor of a burning house, at the peril of his life, to rescue a mother and her babe. Mr. Hyde is of the opinion that there are some practical jokers among his mates at Rutgers.

P. P. A. SCORES P. S. C LIGHTING SERVICE

Investigation Made by Its Expert Reveals a Bad Condition of Affairs.

TO ACT ON THE REPORT

Mr. Spice Makes Recommendations Regarding Electric and Gas Lighting Which Will Be Considered at Once.

The report of Alfred Spice, of New York, the expert employed by the Plainfield Protective Association to investigate the lighting service of the Public Service Corporation in this city, was made public today. Mr. Spice has nothing good to say of the street lighting, to which he devoted most of his report. He says there has been gross neglect in renewing worn lamps, that many useless shades have been allowed to remain in place and that very few of the lamps even approximated the 25 candle power ascribed to them. Voltage, he reports, was found to vary much. The gas service is not so strongly criticised. Too much carbonic acid gas is said to be present in the product, and not enough care is used in its preparation. Only three meters were tested, and they were found to be substantially accurate as far as the limited test permissible could show. The lighting tests were thorough, and Mr. Spice submits tables in support of his report on them. He made the examination between December 26 and January 5.

In connection with the report, R. Henry Depew, president of the Association, submits comment on points to which special attention is deemed necessary. The P. P. A. will consider the report at a meeting to be held at the Casino, Friday night.

Mr. Spice's report is, in part, as follows:

"Walking about Plainfield on the afternoon of December 26th, I noticed that the incandescent lamps used for street lighting were not uniform as to size of globe and varied greatly in the matter of age. Along Front stret, near the business section and in North Plainfield, the lamps had the general appearance of being reasonably new and fairly clean. Although there were many lamps apparently in good condition, the great majority showed evidence of neglect in the matter of being kept clean from dust and dirt, and their dark color, from deposited carbon on the inside of the globes, indicated considerable age.

"By far the worst condition observed was on Watchung avenue from the railroad station to Hillside avenue. Nearly all of the lamps were in a deplorable condition, and some were so black that little, if any, light could be expected to come from them. Their general appearance was sufficient evidence of the grossest neglect in renewing deteriorated lamps.

"Many of the enameled shades overhanging the lamps for the purpose of reflecting the light downward were absolutely useless, even for protecting the lamps from rain. A large number of the shades had part of the enameled surface chipped off, and in many cases the enamel was entirely gone leaving an exposed surface of rusty iron. Several of the shades had large holes in them where the iron had corroded and some had so rusted away as to be left hanging by mere fragments and might be expected to fall at any time. This condition is not general throughout Plainfield and North Plainfield, but the number of defective shades is large enough to be particularly noticeable.

"There is considerable irregularity in the heights of the lamps from the road, some being not over nine feet above the road while others are double that distance. The high lamps are not confined to street corners but exist, in many cases, midway between streets. At some corners there are high lamps while at others there are lamps as low as nine feet.

"At night the relative illumination in the different sections of Plainfield and North Plainfield agrees very closely with the observations noted during daylight as to the conditions of lamps. In general, where clean and apparently new lamps were seen the illumination was best, although this rule was not found to be infallible. In some sections apparently new lamps gave poor illumination. This poor illumination, in the case of clean new lamps, was attributed to too low a voltage being supplied for the requirements of the lamps installed.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Capt. Saunders, of Washington Valley, who is deeply interested in boys and young men, has organized a Port Watch Society in connection with the Baptist Sunday-school, the first meeting being held yesterday afternoon in the church parlors. The boys are interested in the movement and the society will no doubt become a valuable adjunct to the church.

The light fall of snow Saturday morning on top of the ice covered roads made fair sleighing yesterday. A number of sleighs were out enjoying the sport while it lasts.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wyckoff, who have been occupying James H. Buckley's property on Stout avenue, for the past year, have removed to Philadelphia.

W. S. Mygrant played a cornet solo at the service last night at the Baptist church. The musical treat was enjoyed by an appreciative audience.

William C. Stanbery, of Mountain avenue, entertained friends from out of town yesterday.

The weekly B. Y. P. U. meeting was held last night in the church parlors.

BOUND BROOK.

While walking in Main street, Bound Brook, Friday, Louis Combs, a former resident of this place, but lately of Plainfield, was stricken with cerebral apoplexy and expired in a few minutes. The body was viewed by Coroner Dr. W. H. Long, Jr., of Somerville, who gave a burial permit, and Undertaker George Cole, of Plainfield, removed it to that city, where preparation for the funeral were made. Mr. Combs was born at Topeka, Kan., and was in his forty-fifth year. He leaves a widow and two children.

The funeral of Mrs. Martha E. Bache, who died Thursday afternoon, was held from her late home this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Services were conducted in the Methodist Episcopal church of Bound Brook, at 3 o'clock, by the pastor, Rev. P. C. Bascomb. Interment was in Bound Brook cemetery. Mrs. Bache had been a member of the M. E. church for many years.

Mrs. George Strathie and daughter, Miss Etta May Strathie, of Plainfield avenue, Plainfield, accompanied by Mrs. John Klesper, of Brooklyn, were guests yesterday at the home of Mrs. Strathie's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. S. Howard Williamson, in Elizabeth street, South Bound Brook.

Mrs. John Dick and son, John Dick, Jr., of Lansford, Pa., are being entertained at the home of Mrs. Dick's sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. P. Eugene Apgar, in Elizabeth street, South Bound Brook.

Miss Bertha Dwyer, who had been suffering with the grip at her home in South Bound Brook, has resumed her duties as clerk in the Bound Brook postoffice.

Miss Sarah Prall, of Ringoes, was recently entertained at the home of her brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Louis C. Prall, of South Bound Brook.

Mrs. Maggie Hoffman, of Somerville, was recently the guest of her niece, Mrs. S. Howard Williamson, of South Bound Brook.

Mrs. Henry Nolty is confined to her home in Main street, Bound Brook, with rheumatism.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

If the Dunellen Republican who sent a communication to The Daily Press favorable to Mr. Dryden will send his name to this office, his letter will be published. The Daily Press does not desire to publish unsigned communications.

HE GAVE BATTLE TO THREE THUGS.

Was Getting Worst of It When Approaching Footsteps Made Them Flee.

Charles Smith had a desperate battle Thursday night with three men near the tracks of the Erie Railroad in the Soho section of Bloomfield. He had made a call at the home of a friend and was on his way along John street when two men stepped from behind a tree. One of them asked him for a light from his cigar. Smith was about to comply when one of the men struck him on the jaw, almost knocking him down. Then the other man pitched in.

The cowardly attack aroused Smith's fighting spirit, and he fought like a demon, with the result that he was soon getting the better of the two. Then a third man joined them and assisted in the attack on Smith. He fought on and delivered blow after blow on the faces and bodies of the three fellows, who evidently meant more than robbery.

His strength rapidly was giving out when the sound of approaching footsteps caused his assailants to cease their attack and flee down the railroad track toward Belleville. Two men found Smith and assisted him back to the home of his friend. He was only half conscious, and he had received terrible punishment. Now he is under the care of a physician.

AGED EDITOR'S BIRTHDAY.

Alanson A. Vance, of Morristown, Is Eighty-one Years Old.

Morristown, Jan. 28.—Alanson A. Vance, the veteran editor of The Jerseyman, Friday celebrated his eighty-first birthday at his home on Ridgedale avenue. Friday night a luncheon was given in his honor, by relatives.

Mr. Vance was born in Newton, and was employed on the New Jersey Herald, and later on the Sussex Register, under the late Benjamin Edsall, who, in his time, was regarded as one of the ablest editors in the State. After working several years on the latter paper, Mr. Vance went to New York and was employed by the American Tract Society, in Nassau street. From there he went to Deckertown, and founded the New Jersey Home Journal.

After publishing the paper for a year, Mr. Vance was asked to take an editorial position on the New Brunswick Fredonian. While there a committee of citizens from Morristown persuaded him to purchase The Jerseymen. He went to Morristown, and in 1847 assumed control of the paper. He retired from active journalistic work in 1895. Mr. Vance was one of the founders of the New Jersey Editorial Association, and was several times its president.

Something New In Spectacles and Eye Glasses.

Commencing Thursday, January 31, The Mills Optical Co., of New York city, will give a three days' demonstration at Frank Rowley's drug store, 219 West Front street, this city, on Jan. 31, Feb. 1-2. This firm, who are manufacturers, dispose of their entire product direct to the wearer, consequently, only one profit from maker to buyer. They are establishing agencies in all the principal towns in the State and to advertise their line are going to make particularly attractive prices, during the above demonstration, which should appeal to all who have trouble with their vision or who need glasses. The Plainfield introductory sale will be under the personal direction of Drs. Mills and Soloman, members of the firm. Their tests and examinations are thorough and as complete in every way as could be had at their New York office. No drops or drugs are used.

Killed By a Falling Tree.

Newton, Jan. 28.—Theodore Hooey, who was seriously injured by a falling tree on the John Pinkney farm in Sparta Township on Monday, died of the injuries Thursday. He did not regain consciousness from the time the tree fell upon him. Dr. H. J. McCloughan, of this place, had been in attendance on the injured man, but found that he was apparently suffering from a compound fracture of the skull. Hooey bled profusely from the ears and sank rapidly. The cause of the fatality was Hooey's neglect, or inability, to get out of the way of the tree, which he and two others were chopping down. They called to him to run, which he did not do in time. Hooey was about twenty years old and unmarried. He was an adopted son of William C. Hooey, of Pinkneyville.

Girls Are His Accusers.

William H. Schenck, a negro, forty-four years old and married, of Englewood, N. J., was committed to the county jail at Hackensack yesterday charged with attacking Bessie Loper, eleven years old, and Essie Goodman, ten. Both are negresses. They say Schenck attacked them a week ago, but they feared to tell their parents because of his threats.

BROAD NEW & HALSEY STREETS

Positively Unprecedented Prices
In These Closing Days of the January Furniture Sale

Up to now this January Furniture business has been the greatest in the history of the store, the record showing sales exceeding the tremendous business done January, 1906, and we now look forward to the four remaining days of the sale to score heavily and add to the grand total of the month's business so much that we will establish a record that will demand our best efforts in future years to excel.

It is not surprising that these annual furniture events receive such generous support from the public. The people know that, unlike most furniture houses, we do not cut prices on only the odds and ends of the stock, but reduce practically every piece of furniture in the house. Walk along the great aisles and note as you go that on every piece you pass, be it chair, couch, table, sideboard, parlor suite, desk or cabinet, the green tag alongside the regular price ticket, indicating a reduction in the cost. It is a great thing to be able to choose from such a tremendous stock—likely the greatest in America—and get anything you want at a reduction of not less than 10 per cent., and in many instances one-half from the usual selling price.

WE ARE GOING TO WIND UP THE SELLING WITH A HOST OF EXTRAORDINARY SPECIAL FEATURES.

Of these we list a great many today, but not nearly all that you will find on our great Furniture Floor. Come in and look around and see what tremendous savings are possible in this great January Sale.

JEWELLER FIRES AT AN ESCAPING ROBBER.

Stops Man Who Tried to Run Away With Jewels, Making Him Give Them Back.

Abram Levow, a jeweller, of No. 51 Montgomery street, Jersey City, reported to the police yesterday an exciting experience he had Thursday night with a man who attempted to rob him. The thief got away with over $200 worth of jewelry, but Levow captured him and made him return the property.

A stranger entered Levow's store Thursday evening and selected a watch fob and a diamond valued at $205. He offered in payment a check for $260 signed "Mrs. Joseph Harths." The stranger said Mrs. Harths lived at No. 324 Lafayette place, Newark. The check was to the order of "William T. Mullin," and the man said that was his name.

Levow called up Mrs. Harth and a woman's voice at the telephone said the check was all right. Still Levow would not cash it, but not wishing to lose a customer, the jeweler had his sister take charge of the store and accompanied "Mullin" to New York, where the latter said he could get some one to vouch for him. The friend was not in and they returned.

It was decided to go to Newark, and they boarded a trolley car. Levow slipped a revolver into his pocket. Near the Hackensack Bridge the car collided with a wagon and the passengers got off until the track was cleared. Levow stuck to the stranger, but when the car was ready to start he got on first. The man turned and fled across the frozen meadows.

Finding he could not overtake him Levow fired two shots. The fugitive dropped. Levow feared he was shamming and pounced upon him. A rough and tumble fight ensued. Two drivers came to Levow's aid and the man was overpowered. He gave up the jewelry and Levow still had the check. The man was allowed to go.

BRAKEMAN IS BURIED UNDER LOAD OF WOOD.

Extricated After An Hour's Work, It Is Feared He Has Suffered Internal Injuries.

John Michaels, employed as a brakeman on a freight train on the Greenwood Lake branch of the Erie Railroad, had a narrow escape yesterday from death at the Walnut street siding leading into Charles J. Murray's lumber yard in Bloomfield, N. J.

A car of lumber was about to be unloaded when the heavy planks shifted, and before Michaels could get out of the way he was buried under the mass, his head alone being visible. The crew of the train, workmen in the lumber yard and passengers waiting at the Beech street station hurried to his assistance, and some of them began to take the planks one by one from the top of the lumber. The work was slow, so this plan was abandoned. Then axes were procured, and after nearly an horu's hard work Michaels was chopped out, badly bruised and unconscious. It is feared he is injured internally.

PRINTERS HAVE HEARTS.

Though on Strike, Would Not Injure Ambulance Service.

The union compositors employed in the newspaper offices of the Oranges are on strike, and the employers in retalliation announced yesterday that hereafter their establishments will be conducted on a strictly non-union basis. The men want an increase of wages, which has been refused.

A concession was granted by the printers to the trustees of the Record Ambulance, of Orange, who maintain an ambulance service. The ambulances are maintained by a series of theatrical performances given every year, and one of them is to be given Saturday. The Orange Journal Publishing Company has the contract for printing the programme, and when the men walked out it looked as if it wouldn't be printed. The ambulance trustees depend on the advertising in the programme for some of their revenue and failure to get the programme printed would mean a heavy loss.

The union leaders got together on hearing of the situation and granted a special dispensation for sufficient of their number to set up the programme.

President's School Trip.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—President Roosevelt has decided to visit his sons, who are at school at Harvard University and Groton, but before arranging the programme he had it distinctly understood that would go as a private citizen and would not receive any courtesies due his high office. In consequence his trip to Cambridge and Groton will be very quiet and informal. He will be at Harvard and February 23 and at Groton on February 24.

Hold Rockefeller's Wig.

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 28.—The new French wig purchased by John D. Rockefeller when he was in Paris last summer is held by the local revenue officers for duty. The wig is a fine affair. The statement of the French wigmaker, Andre Autard, says the wig is worth 5f. This is about $1. The revenue officers say the wig is worth about seventy-five times that amount. Mr. Rockefeller cannot have his wig until he pays duty on the real value.

Plainfield, N. J., January 28, 1907.

SCORES LIGHTING SERVICE

This theory was borne out by subsequent tests of voltage of the street lamp circuits.

"The candle powers of various street lamps in Plainfield and North Plainfield were determined on the nights of December 26th and 28th. No attempt was made to select only the poorer lamps for examination, but a fair number were tested, including those giving most light and those giving least. The lamps were, in the majority, marked as being 25 candle power lamps, but only in a very few instances was this candle power approximated, and even in the case of the majority of what were considered the brighter lamps the observed candle power was considerably below twenty-five. The term 'brighter' is used here to contra-distinguish from the lamps of very low illuminating power and not as indicating giving illumination."

The report at this point goes on into a tabulated statement of lamps tested, over fifty in number. The light at Watchung avenue and Fourth street, where the main line and Fourth street trolley cars converge, was less than four candle power. Many of the lamps were found to give about eight candle power.

The report continues:

"On December 28th a new lamp was purchased at the electric power plant on Second street. The lamp was sold as similar to those used for street lighting purposes and was marked '52 volts, 26 candle power.' During the tests on the evening of December 28th this lamp was inserted in the sockets at the second pole on Watchung avenue, between Ninth and Seventh streets, and also at the corner of Park avenue and Eighth street. The candle power of the lamp was there determined and compared with the candle power of the original lamps found in the sockets. The observed candle power of the lamp in the different locations agreed approximately with that of the lamps found at those places, and yet at the two poles the lamp gaves widely different results. This can be accounted for only by there being a difference in voltage in the two places. At Park avenue and Eighth street the lamp was shown to be capable of yielding nearly 25 candle power, while at Watchung avenue near Ninth street it showed less than nine. At the former place the voltage was found to be over 52, while at Watchung avenue the voltage was too low to produce the higher candle power.

"The voltage supplied at several of the lamps in various locations in Plainfield and North Plainfield were determined on the night of January 3rd. In only one instance did the voltage prove to be as high as the stamp on the lamp globe called for. Every lamp examined was marked as requiring a pressure of 52 volts, and the candle power the lamps were marked to give at 52 volts was in every case either 25 to 26.

"The quantity of current used is measured in watts, and in incandescent lamps the normal rate of current consumption is 3.5 watts for each candle power received. A new lamp made for a 52 volt circuit and run on a voltage lower than 52 will give a lower candle power than it would at 52 volts pressure. With the lowering of voltage there is a decrease in candle power, and also a decrease in amount of current used, but the reduction in current consumption and candle power do not go on in the same ratio, the candle power dropping at a greater rate, and so it follows that with a drop in voltage there is an increase in current consumption per candle power received. On the other hand, if a higher voltage is used than is required for a lamp, the current consumption per candle power is less than normal, but the actual effective life of the lamp is so shortened as to render the cost of running and maintenance excessive.

"Another cause, and a very common one, of lowering of candle power in lamps is the deposit of a dark film of finely-divided carbon particles on the inside of the globe, thrown off by the carbon filament in the lamp. This largely interferes with the transmission of light and in old lamps it becomes a serious matter. Even though the correct voltage be supplied to an old discolored lamp, the light received is so small that the result to the consumer is the same as having the voltage reduced, since the actual cost per candle power received is increased.

"It is very important in a lighting contract that the mere agreement to supply lamps of a specified candle power, such as 25 candle power lamps, be not accepted. There should be a clause requiring the renewal of lamps after a certain number of hours' use, or one requiring that the lamps should give their maximum candle power at all times.

"Determinations of current consumption of lamps found in houses were made on Decemmer 27th, 29th and January 5th. Many lamps were pointed out as giving poor illumination and a number of these were examined. All had been used to some extent, although apparently they were not much discolored. When these lamps were tested on a circuit having a voltage agreeing with that called for by the stamp on the lamp, nearly all failed to give the candle power specified on the stamp. The 16 candle power lamps were in general three candles low. In trying to arrive at the cause of this deficiency in illuminating power some unused lamps were examined, and in every case where the lamp was known to be new the specified candle power was obtained when the lamps was run on the voltage called for.

"I am of the opinion that much better illumination would be obtained if attention were given by consumers to renewing lamps more frequently. It seems to be not well understood that the discoloration of lamps largely depreciates their efficiency. Not all the cause of poor illumination is to be traced to deteriorated lamps, since in several cases the voltage supplied at house circuits was too low to produce the correct candle power. In some cases the voltage was higher than necessary.

"At some of the above addresses there was a drop of as much as 6 volts when lamps were turned on. In one house with few lights on the voltage was 107, and when all the lamps on one floor were in use the voltage had dropped to 101¾. Such reduction as this indicates too small wires for the voltage supplied. To derive the maximum efficiency of the lamps, either the question of wiring should be looked into, or the line voltage increased, or lamps should be supplied to run at such voltage as is found to exist under normal load."

In the forepart of the report on gas, Mr. Spice declares the local plant to be unusually well kept, with close attention to obtaining a uniform illuminating value in the product. His criticisms on the gas are as follows:

"No provision is made for scientifically analyzing the gas produced, its correct generation depending upon the experience and judgment of the men at the producers. The installation of apparatus for this purpose would prove to be a desirable acquisition to the plant and would afford valuable information and be a further safeguard in the matter of controlling composition. Although the determination of illuminating value is very necessary and to be commended a gas might be a very smoky one and still have a sufficient proportion of hydro-carbons present to yield a satisfactory product in so far as an illuminating test would show. The objectionable gases could readily be detected by a comparatively simple analytical apparatus. This would apply as well to the Camden plant as the Plainfield plant.

"The gas at present received from the Camden plant is somewhat lower in illuminating value than the gas as produced at Plainfield. It was stated that a carburettor for the purpose of enriching the imported gas, is shortly to be installed at the Plainfield plant, which will supply this deficiency. The lower illuminating value of the Camden gas is probably due to the condensation of certain hydrocarbons in the transmissions of the gas over so great a distance. The greatest loss would be in cold weather and there would be little, if any, in warm weather.

"Samples of gas were collected for analysis, but at the time of my visits the Plainfield generators had been in operation, so that the samples collected are a mixture of coal gas and water gas, being partly that supplied from Camden. The determination of their composition, however, suffices to indicate the presence of deteriorating gases which could be better controlled and eliminated were more attention given to systematic analysis and advantage taken of the information gained thereby.

"It will be noticed from the average composition of the gas collected at Plainfield that there are present higher percentages of Carbon Dioxide and Nitrogen than should be present in either good water gas or coal gas. The percentage of Carbon Dioxide is somewhat controllable by the method of water gas generation, but seldom entirely eliminated in the process of generation of either water gas or coal gas. It is customary to remove Carbon Dioxide by a system of lime purification. So far as I could ascertain, no provision is made for the removal of this gas at Plainfield. The cost of its removal is small and as its presence largely reduces the illuminating value of a gas the installation of a suitable CO_2 purifier should be considerable importantce."

Mr. Spice makes the following suggestions:

"1st—Voltage of street lamp circuits should be increased, and lamps kept clean and renewed before discoloring.

"2—Defective shades should be replaced by new ones.

"3—Voltage of house circuits should be made more nearly uniform and either increased or lamps supplied to yield greater efficiency at the present voltage.

"4th—House lamps should be renewed oftener by consumers.

"5th—A purifier for the removal of Carbon Dioxide should be installed at the gas works and apparatus for gas analysis should be provided and used."

President Depew says, in his memorandum in the report:

"The table shows that the poor lights are due not alone to deteriorated lamps, but on many circuits, are due also to the fact that the voltage is entirely too low to produce the required 25 C. P. in the lamps used, which shows that gross neglect is general throughout the entire system. The result of this neglect is that not only are our streets very badly lighted, but, if the average shown is a fair average of all lights, and we believe it is, the tax payers of the city and borough appear to be paying together about $7,500 to $10,000 a year in excess of the amount they should pay for street lighting alone.

"To the recommendations of Mr. Spice we would add the following: As we have probably never had lights giving generally 25 C. P., we possibly do not need them, therefore we would suggest that the Common Council, with the aid of an expert, test the effect of lamps giving 16, 18 or 20 C. P. and make a contract for such as shall be found satisfactory, at a proportionately reduced price. The contract should stipulate, not that certain C. P. lamps should be used, but that the lamps used should at all times give the agreed candle power of light, with a heavy penalty to attach when any lamps are found to be giving less.

"Your committee will take up the question of lamps and voltage with the company, but a careful watch by each consumer will certainly result in better lights, and smaller bills by reducing the number of lights used.

"Also the question of the quality of the gas will be taken up, in view of the assurance given your Executive Committee by President McCarter, that the Camden gas would be above reproach."

THE FORUM.

Street Light Out.

Editor, The Daily Press:

As a taxpayer of the city, will you kindly allow me space in The Daily Press to protest against the treatment accorded Essex street residents relative to the light question. For the past six nights the solitary electric globe on the block between Spooner avenue and John street has failed to shine and there has been no indication on the part of the company to remedy the trouble. We are used to the light being out, as the same thing occurs regularly, but as we pay to have the illumination don't you think some one ought to see that we get it?

Yours, etc.,

SUCCESSFUL SALE.

Junior Endeavorers Raise Money for Mission Work.

Under the auspices of the Junior Christian Endeavor Society, of Trinity Reformed church, a successful sale of cake, candy and pop-corn was held in the primary department of the lecture room, Saturday afternoon. The patronage was generous and $14.10 was realized as profit. This will be devoted to missions. Mrs. William G. Tunison, as superintendent of the society, was in charge and Mrs. William Kriney was her assistant.

The room was attractively decorated and there were three tables, cake, candy and pop-corn. Those in charge of the candy table were Edna Oliver, Elsie Tier, Margaret Vandeventer, Rosamond Rogers. At the cake table were Helen Roberts, Edna Cole, Adelaide Fritz, Madeline Strader, assisted by Lawrence French and Theodore Layton. Katie Layton, Ida VanArsdale and Florence Wilson had charge of the pop-corn table.

Library's Exhibit.

The exhibition of children's books at the Public Library was both in point of numbers and interest a complete success. Crowds of children gathered about the tables enjoying the books displayed for them. To many parents this side of the library's work was a revelation. The first result, and one most gratifying, is the petition just sent the librarian from one of the lower grades in a distant public school, that they too might have books sent to them. Of course they will be sent. The books exhibited are today placed in circulation. Through the courtesy of the publishers the original drawings and paintings as well as the picture posters will remain for a few days.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The positions on the shifting engine at this place as brakeman and fireman have been advertised, and Bernard Morgan and John Patten have applied for the jobs as brakemen, leaving two vacancies on the South Plainfield local freight. The shiftisg engine, which has during the past few months remained at Perth Amboy over night, will in the future remain at South Plainfield over night.

Miss Gussie Acken, an elocutionist, of Plainfield, will give an entertainment at the Baptist church Wednesday evening. Everybody is welcome.

The minstrel committee will meet at the home of T. A. Linaberry tonight to set the date for the play to be given in Washington Hall.

Regular Tuesday evening prayer meeting will be held in the Baptist church tomorrow night. The subject will be the 24th Psalm.

Samuel Riddle has taken a position at Phillipsburg, and expects to move there on April 1. Milton Boss has taken his place.

T. A. Linaberry has been spoken of as the possible nominee for justice of the peace at the next election.

DRYDEN TALK USELESS

Briggs has shown such evidences of thought during the last few days, and so many members say they are going from Dryden to the State Treasurer, that Briggs, Griggs and Bradley is now, perhaps, the proper order. David Baird is also mentioned, and it is always to be remembered that Edward Caspar Stokes stands where he can easily be moved to the front.

Assemblyman T. Nelson Lilligore, of Ocean Grove, says he will vote once more for the Newark Senator and then quit. The Assemblyman says only two ballots will be taken. On the second call there will be a general breakaway. Mr. Lilligore says he has grown restive under caucus rule. He has no second choice, but will vote for any good representative one.

State Senator Everett Colby, last night said that he welcomed the appearance of Senator Dryden before the Republican members of the Legislature. "I expect Mr. Dryden's request includes the privilege of asking him questions," said Mr. Colby last night. "I will say now that I intend to say in the open just what I have said in the conference."

The Senator said he is confident that Dryden has now not the least show of re-election, and that many legislators will break away from his standard after one more ballot.

Albert Utzinger to Be Best Man.

Albert V. Utzinger, of Grandview avenue, left this morning for Colorine, Mass., where tomorrow noon he will be the best man at the wedding of Miss Hazel Warner, of that place, and Ralph E. Bullard, of Holyoke, Mass. Both the bride and groom as well as Mr. Utzinger are members of the Silver Bay Jolly Club, a society formed by a party of young people that spent a summer at Silver Bay, Lake George, three years ago. Since that time reunions have been held every year at various places. Since the association was formed several members of the party have been married and Mr. Utzinger is now the only member who is not engaged.

To Travel Over Sands.

Salaam, Temple, Ancient Arabic Order Nobles Mystic Shrine, will hold a ceremonial session at Krueger's Auditorium, Newark, tomorrow night, when one hundred and three candidates will be initiated into the mysteries of the order. Of this large number of candidates, there will be ten from this city. This will be the first session under the new potentate, Palmer H. Charlock, of Elizabeth. Tonight at Shubert's theatre, Newark, the Arab Patrol, of the Shrine, will give a theatre party to witness a performance of James T. Powers in "The Blue Moon." About twenty-five Plainfielders will attend the performance.

FRELINGHUYSEN SAYS DRYDEN WILL STICK

SOMERSET SENATOR ALSO ALLEGES THAT HIS COUNTY FAVORS NEWARKER.

When seen at his home at Raritan yesterday afternoon Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen said:

"Senator Dryden will not withdraw from the contest, and there is absolutely no reason why he should. Over 80 per cent. of the State citizenship are not opposed to him, as indicated by the number of the votes he has thus far received, and those who have offered any opposition give no reason for it. Mr. Dryden was in Trenton all last week while the Legislature was in session, and was willing to answer any and all questions which might be asked regarding his acts as a Senator.

"I want it distinctly understood that my position in this matter is one born of honest convictions.

"There is but very little opposition to the re-election of Senator Dryden among the people of this county. I am chairman of the Republican county committee and made a canvass of the county last fall, during which I took occasion to try and find out what, if any, opposition might exist to the re-election of Dryden. With the exception of a few individual cases, I learned the people of this county were as satisfied with him as they have been with any other Senator that has represented the State at the nation's capitol.

"Assemblyman Smalley was a candidate then, and received letters from three or four persons, demanding that he make known his choice for United States Senator in the event of his election to the State Legislature. Mr. Smalley replied to these letters, stating that he would not commit himself on the United States Senatorship, and would vote for whoever he saw fit.

"These letters were published in the State and local papers two weeks before election day. They aroused no opposition to Smalley's candidacy, and he was elected by an overwhelming majority, defeating W. V. Stell, the strongest man the Democrats could nominate. Smalley's election I regard as an indorsement of Dryden as United States Senator, because an effort was made to organize a Colby wing of the party opposed to him in this county, without success.

"I will adhere to the position I have taken in regard to the re-election of Senator Dryden, and will challenge any one to question the motive that prompts me in doing so."

CHILD LABOR A MENACE

across the chute, the little boy regulates the flow of coal, picking out the slate. Where the coal is cleaned dry the dust is so dense, the light cannot penetrate. Here in these regions too he must constantly meet with that which is coarsening and degrading to childhood.

"The children working in the cotton mills of the south number 60,000 from six to sixteen years of age. Physicians in their State conventions are protesting vigorously against the presence of young children with their delicate lungs and organs in an atmosphere of flying lint, pointing out the frequent cases of throat and lung diseases they treat and protesting against physical injury.

"In closing this brief chapter of facts gleaned as to child labor I may refer you to New York and the New York tenements and sweat-shops. Riis' book will make it so terribly plain that one need only to read it to be convinced of the crimes against childhood in the name of labor. A child of three can straighten out the leaves of tobacco, at four make stems for artificial flowers and cover boxes, at six sew on buttons and pull basting threads all day long; a girl of twelve can finish up trousers as well as an adult. These children earn from 50 cents to a dollar and a half a week at the expense of health and education.

"Every child has a right to the development which play brings, a right to good air, proper food, education and that which we commonly associate with childhood. How are we going to see this ideal for them realized? By enacting the proper laws and by watchful enforcement. In a democracy the great engine of compulsion is public opinion, an educated enlightened public opinion which sees the wrong and is far sighted eough to look into the future. Let us make our representatives in State and National Legislature feel the force of public opinion, let us be consumers of goods with so tender consciences that products of sweat-shop and child labor will not be bought by us. Let us familiar ourselves with the school laws and the law which holds parents responsible for the way they treat their children and in any case under our observation invoke the school law to bring the parent to book.

"Take heed that ye despise not one of these little ones for I tell you that their angels do always behold the fall of my Father, which is in Heaven.

"What is our share of the guilt?
'The chief priests and rulers cry'.

'O Lord and Master, not ours the guilt
We built but as our fathers built;
Behold thine images how they stand

'These set he in the midst of them,
And as they drew back their garments' hem
For fear of defilement, 'Lo, here,' said he,
'The images ye have made of me.'"

—Quotation from James Russell Howell.

INJURED WHILE COASTING.

Harold Marsh Collides With a Sled and Is Knocked Out.

Harold Marsh, the young son of George W. Marsh, of Maple avenue, the borough, was severely injured Friday afternoon, while coasting near the old Scribner brickyard. Young Marsh was going at a lively clip down the hill, when Peter Ryman, another lad, who was coasting at the same time, placed his sled directly in the path of Marsh. The collision threw the latter fully ten feet and in falling he struck his face, inflicting a deep and painful gash.

Young Marsh was taken home and Dr. VanHorn was summoned. It required a number of stitches to close the wound, and at first it was thought that the lad was injured internally. Unless complications set in the boy will be around again in a few days.

ENGLISH TO BE WORLD SPEECH.

All Other Tongues Give Way to Modern Demand for Homely Language.

From the Columbia State.—By "homely" we here mean partaking of the nature of home, and not plain or ugly. Wordsworth thus speaks of "the homely beauty of the good old cause." So often in life we find that it is the homely, the thing soiled and perhaps stained with daily use, rather than the fine thing, the great and the high thing, that endures. Why? Because it is humanized; its very stains revealing to all that it is fit for daily use. Affection has touched it, love has handled it, and it is immortal.

This principle has often been illustrated in history, and it is being illustrated every day by one of the most remarkable phenomena in all history—the endurance of a language apparently the least fitted to survive of all the widely spoken tongues of the human race. We see that in Japan, in China, in India, in France, in Germany—throughout the world—people are learning English. The language that has no grammar, only a mass of exceptions to every rule and principle of human speech; a language that has no system of spelling, that is unspellable, that is harsh, is supplanting the languages of people that outnumber the English speakers as four to one, is driving German from the chancelleries. It seems vain to devise new tongues to render intercourse more facile; they can make no inroads upon our homely English speech. It is homely, and it survives.

All the smooth an beautiful and perfect languages pass away. The exquisite idiom of Iran, or ancient Persia, has lost its tongue; Arabic, the most elastic and, in many respects, the most wonderful of all languages, is passing swiftly from desert and tent and mosque; and Greek, finest of all languages, richest in meaning, in fruits, is spoken in a decadent dialect by a decadent people. The hard, rough languages that grate the tongue like a file, that would have made Quintilian stare and gasp, these have some chance of survival, and of these the English is the most uncouth and chaotic. It will, therefore, endure and it may yet become the speech of the whole civilized world.

THE TRUE ROAD TO SUCCESS

People Who Work for Money Get Nothing Else.

The man who writes solely for money gets nothing else. Game is not for him. By the law of compensation we get that for which we work or get nothing. If we work for money, and get anything, we get money and only money. The writer whose work endures writes for expression, writes because he cannot help it, writes with no object in view save to express a thought that he cannot suppress. And so it is with every kind of work.

The best that is in us will not respond to the call for mere money. If you would succeed you must work because you like to work—you must get in some position where your daily work is your very life, and the compensation is a matter of course. If you can find that kind of position, your salary will take care of itself, and in it you cannot fail, however little you may seem to accomplish. Many successful busines men die quickly when they retire. Their life work is so inseparable from their lives that to sever the ties means dissolution and death. That's the secret of their success. Work was life to them.

The best literature of the world, the classics of all languages, the things that will endure through all time and will thrill generations yet unborn, brought the smallest compensation in money.

On Canadian Soil.

King Edward once said that he spent the most exciting and nervous moment of his life on a prairie in Canada when he visited that country as a youth. He was in no danger of being scalped by a red Indian or eaten by wolves or gored by a maddened bison. His anxiety and nervousness were simply due to his efforts to light a match. The prince and his party were miles away from human habitations; they wanted to smoke and had only one match between them. Lots were cast as to who would strike it. The lot fell on the prince, and with great difficulty he managed to get the light which was to supply them with fire till their return to civilization.

Good London Story.

Occasionally they manufacture a good story in London. One of the latest tells of a family passionately devoted to bridge whist which was plunged into mourning by the loss of the father. A discussion arose as to whether the deceased would have chosen to be buried or cremated. The decision was left to the eldest son, who, looking at his mother, said: "I will leave it to you," to which the lady replied: "I make it spades."

Snappy.

"Why, how d'y do?" began Dunn, meeting Slopay on the street, "I thought I'd call up and see you about that little account—"

"Indeed?" interrupted Slopay, "it's just as easy for me to call down."

"Ah! and when will you call down?"

"I consider this a call down. Do you want me to make it stronger?"—Philadelphia Press.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

A luxury becomes a necessity after you get used to it.

Easy street's sunny side isn't paved with good intentions.

The average woman would rather be married than happy.

Some men get rich because of their ability to separate fools and their coin.

Don't get the idea into your cranium that women have a monopoly of curiosity.

It is unfortunate that all men are liars—but it is fortunate that all women know it.

Many a man's ability to put on a good front is due to his wife's ability as a washerwoman.

The cost of a thing doesn't worry the man whose conscience will permit him to beg, borrow or steal.

It's an easy matter to size up a man if his dog crawls under the house every time he sees him approaching.

When a man tells you how you ought to run your business just take a look at the way he is running his own.

It sometimes comes to pass that a man and his wife refuse to apply for a divorce because they actually love each other

A man who has been married three times says it is almost as easy to please a woman during courtship as it is difficult to please her after marriage.—Chicago News.

BY THE GENTLE CYNIC.

The human race is full of "also rans."

Drinking to drown sorrow is merely feeding a fire with alcohol.

Never bluntly call a man a liar. Break the news to him gently.

Adam couldn't have been a poet, because poets are born, not made.

Fame is sometimes a bubble that comes from blowing our own horn.

Some of us never have an opportunity of knowing when we have enough.

A snapshot photograph often demonstrates that truth is stranger than fiction.

Even when a man has taking ways, he might cultivate a few bringing-back ones.

We never admire a man for the enemies he has made if we happen to be among them.

Some people get such swollen heads from their religion that their haloes won't fit them when they get to Heaven.

SIGNS OF DETERIORATION.

When commonness doesn't trouble you.

When you are satisfied with mediocrity.

When you begin to think your father is an old fogy.

When you can listen without a protest to indecent stories.

When you do not make a confidant of your mother, as you once did, or are ill at ease with her.

When you can work untroubled in the midst of confused, systemless surroundings which you might remedy.

When your ambition begins to cool, and you no longer demand the same standard of excellence that you once did.

When you begin to associate with people whom you would not think of taking to your home, and whom you would not want the mmebers of your family to know that you know.—O. S. Marden, in Success Magazine.

BY THE WAY.

Women and wine disagree on one point; age improves the latter.

Do not let your hatreds get on your mind, keep them on your hands.

DEADLY BOA CONSTRICTOR CAUSES PANIC IN A CAR

Giant Reptile Escapes from Case and Prisoner Passengers Fight to Escape--Snake Finally Subdued by Tamer.

Elgin, Ill.—A huge boa constrictor loose in the express compartment of an interurban car en route from this city to Geneva created a panic among nine prisoners in the compartment under escort of Chief of Police James Younger and officers from this city and was followed by a battle with the prisoners who endeavored to escape.

Harry Thorne, one of the prisoners, narrowly escaped death by the reptile. The python was one of a collection of snakes in three cases being shipped to Joliet, where a street fair is in progress.

Shortly after the car started from Elgin Officer Higgins was disturbed by a movement of the lid of a box on which he was seated. Rising to discover the cause of the trouble he was amazed at the appearance of the head of an enormous snake gradually forcing its way from the interior of the case.

The snake was observed by some of the prisoners at the same time and a general rush was made for the car door. Here the other police officers, headed by Chief Younger, held the men at bay.

A few minutes later the snake stretched its length of 14 feet on the floor of the car. In an instant it had clasped Harry Thorne within its coils. The giant reptile tightened on the unfortunate man and was slowly crushing him when the owner of the snake appeared in the compartment, attracted from another portion of the car by the commotion.

With the assistance of several men the snake was forced to uncoil and was finally urged back into its prison.

The Giant Reptile Wrapped Itself Around Thorne's Body.

In the meantime the prisoners, frightened and realizing in the excitement that they would have an opportunity to get away, made strenuous but futile efforts to escape.

GHOST THAT CREATED TERROR IN A LITTLE NEW JERSEY TOWN

"Brave" Young Men of Nutley Frightened by Shrouded Spectre--Latter Meets Its Waterloo at Hands of Church Section.

Newark, N. J.—Five miles out from this city, in the little town of Nutley, a grove of deep, overhanging elms marks the intersection of Grant and Passaic avenues. Not a house is in sight for blocks around. A gateway leads into a field across which a path takes you off into the backwoods. Few signs of civilization are visible from Grant and Passaic avenues.

Looking down through the avenue of overhanging elms in the direction of the Methodist church, one can see where the elms end and the firs begin; low, stunted fir trees with fantastic shapes and outstretched fingers which appear to reach out ready to clutch the timid passer by after dusk. It is an ideal lurking place for a ghost.

So, at least, thought Elsie Symonds, daughter of George Symonds, the civil engineer, and her brother Royal, Royal is 15. There is only a year or so difference betwen his age and his sister's, and this, combined with the necessity of living in the suburbs somewhat off the beaten path, made excellent chums of them, always eager for the excitement which rarely came to Nutley, and always ready to invent a new amusement when things got fearfully slow.

Returning to the intersection of Grant and Passaic avenues it did not take Miss Elsie and Brother Royal very long to notice this as an ideal lurking place for a ghost and to decide that the spot was worth developing. Their home is not far away from there. It is the nearest house to the corner, in fact, so the children had every opportunity to carry out their plans without much fear of detection.

First it was only a simple little ghost story they told, Royal supplying the curdles, about a wild, flapping specter that moaned and shrieked, somewhere down near the stunted firs.

That was several weeks ago. Nobody else had seen the ghost, and the story didn't make the slightest impression, even in Nutley, at first.

A few nights later two young men belonging to that race which above all others feeds upon superstition, came across the path in the field leading from the backwoods, passed through the gateway and thence down through the grove of overhanging elms toward the stunted firs.

"An' so Ah says," one of them was saying, "'Mist' Small,' Ah says, 'Ah cain't see why yo' carries dat rabbit foot. She cain't do you no good, nohow, no' keep off no hoodoo. Ah done come to de exclusion dere ain't no such thing, no way, as a'—hoo—oo—oo—Lordy!"

The two young men had fled in terror. Not three feet from where they had stopped, turned tail and vanished, stood a ghost. It was medium height, very shapely, and dressed in white. The draped arms flapped somewhat mechanically as the ghost turned from side to side to the accompaniment of most curdling croaks.

Presently the ghost grew tired of flapping its arms. The two negroes were miles away, maybe, and promably still going. Silence reigned again in the vicinity of the stunted fir.

But it wasn't for very long. Whistling gayly as he strode along, came one of Nutley's most prominent young unmarried men.

Somewhere in the dark shadow of the fir something seemed to whisper to something else that it was Mr. So-and-So on his way to call on Miss Sew-and-Sew.

"Yes," the two somethings in the shade seemed to say in unison, "let's see what happens to him."

The ghost arms flapped excitedly, and Mr. So-and-So stopped whistling and sank down. Then he sat up and yelled once—twice. Then he, too, vanished in the wake of the, presumably, still running colored men.

Silence was restored once more in the vicinity of the firs and overhanging elms. Half a mile away Miss Sew-and-Sew sat alone in the best parlor and expected company that failed to show up.

After two evenings of this sort of thing, Nutley knew all about the Passaic avenue ghost. Some believed, others didn't. Among the latter was chief Knabb, of the Nutley police department.

On the third evening Thomas Brandreth, sexton of the Methodist church, was walking home from prayer meeting when the specter essayed to scare him. Sexton Brandreth is a good man. He sidesetpped, let go with a right swing and banged the ghost in the eye. Down it went for the count, a tangled mass of white linen, bed-sheets overspreading one of those nice plump wire dummies on which the dessmakers fit gowns for display. Then Sexton Brandreth, after adressing a few words of advice in the direction of the stunted firs went home.

And that was the end of the Nutley ghost. Caught with the goods on them, as they made their way home that night, the two Symonds conspirators laughed at the joke they had had at the expense of some of the most prominent young people in the town. It is even safe to assert that if she only would, Miss Elsie could give a list of young men who are mortally afraid of ghosts, no matter how brave they look in daylight. But she won't tell. Neither will the victims.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The features of Mildred and Rouclere's performances this year is "Mildredism," which never fails to interest, it is the acme of all mind reading possibilities and has never been solved, and the new imaginative fantasy "The Flight of Princess Iris," an illusion that will cause discussion for many a day of course there are many other bewildering and funny features, but these are the leading ones. The company of associate entertainers have been selected with great care, as the performance is designed for the best class of respectable amusement patrons and nothing of a questionable nature will be permitted. Theatre-goers have the management's assurance of a pure, delightful performance that will be filled with surprises and clean fun. Mildred and Rouclere will be at the New Plainfield theatre tonight.

Joe Hortiz, who appears at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night, is said to be one of the best comedians of the German comedy roles on the American stage today. He has this season a new comedy melodrama, by Langdon McCormick, in four acts, entitled "Our Friend Fritz." Mr. Hortiz, though, is better known to the public as a tenor singer. He is said to have around him this season a strong company of players who have been selected from all parts of the country to fill the parts assigned to them. The action of the play takes place in the beautiful Lehigh Valley and every effort has been made to make the scenery one of the most important features of the production. The first act, represents one of the most important features of the production. The first act represents a country general store and a postoffice. The second represents a country mill, showing the interior This mill is supposed to be haunted, through the fact of its owners having been murdered near it. During the action of this act some very fine electrical effects are worked and one of them is so real that one can almost believe that there are really and truly ghosts on this earth. The third act is one of great splendor, showing a church scene with its grand old pipe-organ and chimes. The last act represents the exterior of the old mill. We can see the water as it rushes by and turns the big wheel that runs the machinery within the mill. This is said to be a grand effect and always gains an applause.

LOST GLORIOUSLY TO MONTCLAIR FIVE

Y. M. C. A. YOUNGSTERS MADE A SPLENDID SHOWING AGAINST VETERANS

Plainfield went bravely down to defeat, 44 to 17, in the Y. M. C. A. basketball league game at Montclair Saturday night. Not seasoned quite enough to stand the gruelling of a full game, the youngsters in the Plainfield five yet made a splendid showing. They won frequent applause by dashing team work, and the promise of an all-conquering gait in days not far off was so plain that Manager Listman took as much satisfaction out of the game as if his colts had won it.

In the first half Plainfield played Montclair to a frazzle in team work and passing. Weak in shooting—a ball lighter than regulation had something to do with that—the Plainfielders didn't cash in on all their chances, but the latter were away and beyond those of their opponents. In that half Plainfield held down the score to 16 to 8. In the second half, the youngsters weakened and Montclair players forged ahead.

Line-up and summary:

Montclair—Rohan, Goodman, Bunton, Waberaliskie, Lummis.

Plainfield — Gilmore, Loizeaux, Collier, Aalholm, Gavett.

Goals from field, Rohan 7, Goodman 7, Bunton 4, Waberaliskie, Lummis 2, Gilmore 3, Loizeaux 2, Collier 3, Adelholm. Goals from fouls, Rohan 2.

Montclair will play here tonight.

BOYS ARE WINNING.

Junior Y. M. C. A. Gets Its Sixth Straight Victory.

The Y. M. C. A. junior basketball five won its sixth straight outing Saturday afternoon, defeating the New Brunswick boys on their own floor by a score of 37 to 27. The contest was nip-and-tuck all the way through. Bohan and Conroy did all the Plainfield shooting.

Score and summary:

Samuels, McElaney, Hoagland, Carman, Smith.

Bohan, Robbins, Conroy, Vail, Richardson, Miller.

Goals from field, Samuels 3, McElaney 2, Hoagland 3, Carman 2, Smith, Bohan 8, Conroy 9; goals from fouls, Samuels 3, McElany, Carman 3, Robbins, Conroy, 3.

"A TRIP TO THE CATSKILLS."

Novel Social Enjoyed by Epworth League of Grace M. E. Church.

The Epworth League of Grace M. E. church gave a sociable Friday night called "A Mid-winter Excursion to the Catskill Mountains." The young people took seats in the main part of the church, supposed to be those on a train, and an imaginary ride followed. Views along the route were shown by stereopticon and during a stop at "West Point," the military march was played on a phonograph. Russel Harden was the conductor and A. E. Miller made a hustling Union News boy who sold postal cards to the passengers. Benjamin Schuck operated the stereopticon and the phonograph.

The committee in charge consisted of Miss Mary Hoagland, chairman; Miss Grace Clark, Miss Lucetta Clark, Miss Adah VanHorn, Miss Nettie Bauersachs, Russel Harden, Raymond E. Miller, George Parsons and Benjamin Schuck.

Re-enter Frank Moncton.

After a protracted period of freedom from jail, Frank Moncton's familiar face appeared in the borough court, Saturday night. He was arrested by Chief Marshal Weiss for his old complaint of drunkenness and disorderly conduct. Recorder Dolliver gave him twenty days at Somerville to straighten out.

EX-COP IN A SCRAP.

McKeon and a Man He Pinched Get Together.

James McKean, a former policeman, and Dennis Kilbride, a man he arrested last summer at the hospital carnival, met on North avenue in the early hours of yesterday morning. Result: A beautiful scrap, in which McKeon's eye was decorated with a saucerlike spread of color. Roundsman John Flynn and Patrolman John Payne stopped the scrap and arrested the scrappers.

In court this morning each of ths combatants said the other started it. The countercharges of belligerent grouch were too tangled for Judge Runyon to unravel and he fined them $8 apiece. They paid.

WAY TO SALVATION.

Scotch Evangelist Tells Of It At Y. M. C. A. Theatre Meeting.

The Y. M. C. A. theatre meeting yesterday was well attended. Alexander Marshall, the Scotch evangelist, held the close attention of the audience with a forceful talk on regeneration through conversion.

He took his text from the visit of Nicodemus to Christ, and argued that every man must be converted before being saved. No man, however carefully brought up, he said, could hope for salvation until he had felt a conviction of his innate sinfulness and accepted Christ as his personal Saviour. Every man, he held, should have two birthdays—for Christ had said, "Ye must be born again."

M'GOWAN'S BODY FOUND.

Remains Supposed to Be Missing Freight Conductor.

The body of Peter McGowan, of Raritan, the Central Railroad conductor who mysteriously disappeared from his caboose in the Elizabethport freight yard over two months ago, was found floating in the water of New York Bay near Tompkinsville, Saten Island, yesterday afternoon. The body was picked up by employees of the Staten Island Rapid Transit Company and was identified by Baltimore and Ohio Railroad employees.

Lewis Coombs' Funeral.

The funeral of Lewis Coombs, who died Friday morning while being taken to his home in Bound Brook by Sergeant Frederickson, was held at Cole's undertaking establishment, yesterday afternoon. It was conducted by Rev. Dr. E. M. Rodman and was attended by a gathering which included a delegation from Perseverance lodge, No. 74, K. of P., of which he was a member at one time. Interment was made in Hillside cemetery, the pall bearers being Edward Bowman, I. N. Wycffok, A. D. Pope, David Bowden, J. A. Moore and William Baker, all members of Perseverance Lodge.

Atypical School's Appeal.

The annual meeting of the patrons of the Groszman School was held on Saturday afternoon and the following officers were elected: Dr. Maximilian P. E. Groszman, president; Dr. Franz Torek, of New YorR, vice-president; Waldemar Heinrich Groszman, secretary and treasurer. The organization of Grozman School included as an eleemosynary association, implies that its work is in need of voluntary contributions and scholarships.

Nabbed Peeping Tom.

Complaints reached police headquarters early Saturday night that a jack-the-peeker was at work on East Second street. Patrolman Higgins was sent out to get him, and caught Talio Fusco, an Italian youth, going through the motions of the traditional Peeping Tom. He was arrested. He seemed harmless enough in other ways and his arrest scared him so Judge Runyon suspended sentence this morning.

Minsters to Meet.

The Plainfield Clericus will intertain the members of the New Brunswick convocation and of the Ministerial Association of this city at Grace church parish house tomorrow afternoon. Lunch will be served at one o'clock, after which the address will be delivered by the Rev. George Hodges, D. D., dean of the Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge, Mass. His subject will be "The Social Work of a Christian Priest."

Forty-five Days from the Borough.

John Jeroloman, well known to the police on both sides of the brook, was arrested in the borough, Saturday, for panhandling. Recorder Dolliver heard his case Saturday night and committed him to Somerville for forty-five days.

PEARY TELLS HIS STORY

North Pole Hunter Describes His Last Dash Through Polar Region.

BEFORE PACKED HOUSE

Reached Eighty-seven Degrees and Six Minutes—Feels Sure He Will Succeed.

Although Commander Robert E. Peary failed to reach the north pole on his last expedition to the polar basin, he could not have received a more hearty welcome from the people of Plainfield if he had accomplished the feat, than the one given him at the First M. E. church, Saturday. Every seat in the edifice was taken and besides many people stood throughout the lecture. It was with a strong desire to see the hero of the arctic region, as well as hear his lecture and see his beautiful pictures, that the large throng gathered at the church. Commander Peary has been engaged for twenty years in trying to reach the north pole, and many will remember his visit to Music Hall ten years ago, when he then described a similar expedition.

The last expedition, which brought Commander Peary to the farthest northern point, 87 degrees and six minutes north, covered a period of eighteen months, and he said that with his knowledge of conditions and previous experience he feels sure that he could reach the pole in a single season. Although he talked a little less than an hour he traversed considerable ground from the time he sailed from the north on July 16, 1905, until his return home last Christmas Eve.

At the commencement of his lecture he said that some of the results of his trip were that a new line to the pole had been established, a new degree to the polar region been added, new lands discovered, new coast lines found and a greatly widened horizon. He also explained that the last expedition was conducted under the auspices of the Peary Artic Club, of New York, of which Morris K. Jessup is the president. He, with his party, sailed away on July 16, 1905, in the Steamer Roosevelt, built especially for the trip. Everything about the vessel was made of American material and was manned by Americans.

The first object point was Cape Breton, and on November 23, 1905, Cape Sheridan was reached. He then described by the aid of pictures his perilous journey from the farthest northern point his ship was able to go to Cape Morris Jessup, which was 87 degrees and six minutes north, where the American flag was placed and a record of the trip buried in ice and snow.

Commander Peary said that there is no time, such as we have, at the north pole, it is measured only in days and years, and his description of the long night from early fall to March 21 was one never to be forgotten. This he considered to be the greatest drawback in any attempt made to reach the pole. The temperature was as low as 72 degrees below zero, but the artic explorer declared that he did not mind the cold there as much as he had some of the temperatures in this part of the country, because it was extremely dry.

When he reached the farthest north point, Commander Peary said that he experienced keen disappointment, because he was unable under exisiting conditions to continue his journey. His Esquimaux were ready to drop from exhaustion and his dogs were no longer able to go on. To be within less than 200 miles of the long hoped for pole and not able to reach it gave him a bad attack of the blues.

Another important question to be considered was that of finding the Roosevelt and the explorer knew that he must turn back before weather conditions changed so as to prevent a safe return, as it was proved to be extremely difficult and hazardous to follow the trail back. Ice had separated at a certain point and at one time it looked as though it would be impossible to cross. Finally snow shoes were pressed into service to cross over a thin stretch of ice, the only hope left. After great hardship the party reached the ship.

The lecturer said that he and his party lived chiefly on the raw meat of the musk ox and the Esquimaux dog. He told of the trouble in returning home because of the damage to the Roosevelt, the rudder was broken by the ice and it was necessary to make one that would answer the purporse.

In conclusion a series of views picturing the Esquimaux of the most Northern tribe, of which there are 200 members, were shown. These gave an excellent idea of the people inhabiting th polar regions. All of the sixty views were exceptionally good, one being that of the Roosevelt penned in the ice on a December moonlight night. It required three hours xposure of the camera to take it.

Aside from the value to science in reaching the pole, Commander Peary said that there is a National prestige to be considered which would be shared in by every American if the flag of this county can be planted at the north pole.

The lecture was given under the auspices of the Brotherhood of the church, a men's organization that has been very active in religious work, and the success of it is gratifying to the members.

PENNSY BUYING LAND.

Acquiring Property Along Its Line in Middlesex.

Joseph Greer, a real estate dealer of Elizabeth, has been in New Brunswick for the past week searching for the Pennsylvania Railroad along the line where the company intends to build its new road. The company has been buying up property in Middlesex county during the past year. Of late there has been much more buying than usual, and it seems as if the railroad was trying to complete the purchase of a right of way in as short a time as possible. The title department of the Pennsylvania Railroad is doing the searching of titles of property in New Brunswick and the rest of the county.

When property was being searched in Elizabeth it was done for the company by the Fidelity Trust Company, of Newark. At that time a complete copy was taken of the records of Union county and the searching was done in the offices at Newark.

Juvenile Court for Middlesex.

New Brunswick, Jan. 28.—Middlesex county is to have a juvenile court. Every Friday, at 4 o'clock, the court will convene for the specific purpose of handling cases against children, or in which children are involved. As far as practicable juvenile defendants will be parolled in the custody of Mrs. Emily E. Williamson, the probation officer. No case against a juvenile defendant will be permitted to remain pending for over a week. Judge Theodore B. Booraem made these announcements in court Friday.

Arranging Elks Show.

Word has been received by the Elks Benefit Committee that the list of artists who are to appear at the show February 6 will be ready tomorrow. Agent Hennessey, who does the booking for the Keith & Proctor houses, has been making up the bill and he has secured a bunch of good acts that will make local folks sit up and take notice.

COMMISSION HEARS REED

Borough's Corporation Counsel Tells Probers Why Consolidation is Desirable.

NO LEGAL OBSTACLES

Investigators Get Facts On Borough Saloons — United Plainfield More Populous Than Somerset County.

For over an hour yesterday afternoon, former State Senator Chas. A. Reed championed the consolidation of North Plainfield and Plainfield before the bi-municipal merger commission in session in Mayor Fisk's office in the Smalley building here. He produced some startling facts and figures, which, it is said, made a marked impression on former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, the chairman, and the other member of the commission.

"You need not worry about the legal end of any consolidation of the two municipalities," said he. "All you gentlemen have to do is to investigate the desirability of the proposed merger." Mr. Reed stated that in his opinion such a community as the united Plainfields could have the Legislature straighten out any legal entanglements that might arise through the carrying out of the plan and that all that was necessary was for the people of the two municipalities to be convinced that the scheme was for their best interests. "Somerset county," said he, "will have a smaller population than the united Plainfields, strange as it may seem. There will be 26,000 population in the Plainfield that is to be while Somerset without North Plainfield will not be able to show such numerical strength." Consequently, he argued, with such a population, the Legislature ought easily to be convinced that the territory embraced within the borders of North Plainfield should of right be in Union county and would allow a bill to be passed carrying with it a referendum. Mr. Reed spoke long and convincing and when he had finished the commission thanked him for his services.

Figures were produced to show that while North Plainfield has approximately one-third of the population of Plainfield, it has eight barrooms while the city has but twelve. Moreover the retail license fee in the borough is only $700 while in the city it is $1,000. Saloons on this side of the brook close promptly at 11 o'clock although in North Plainfield they are allowed to keep open all night. These figures are interesting, it was alleged, when note is made of what happens when the Plainfield saloons close. Evidence was produced to show that there is a steady stream of habitual drinkers at that hour to the borough resorts and that some of those places are packed after 11 o'clock. Scenes that occur in a few of the drinking places are not such, it was alleged, that speak well for the good name of the borough. These borough saloons are licensed as hotels and as such only pay a fee of half what is paid in this city. Under present conditions, North Plainfield has no control over its drinking places. Were it a part of greater Plainfield it would have absolute say for the jurisdiction of the Somerset county court would be removed.

President of the Plainfield-North Plainfield Board of Trade Woolston was among the interested spectators at the meeting. Like Reed, he favors consolidation, believing that annexation would be a natural result. Mr. Woolston says it is a plain business proposition. He declares that the tendency of the times in business is towards amalgamation, making it possible to get better results from a larger body working together than from small bodies continually fighting one another.

At the next meeting on Monday afternoon, City Engineer Andrew J. Gavett will appear to explain the sewer end of the scheme. He will be called upon to tell how North Plainfield may be benefitted by the installation of a complete sewage system connected with the Plainfield beds, or otherwise, provided it becomes a part of a greater city as proposed.

Anawanda Fair Closes.

The Anawanda Club's fair was brought to a successful close at T. A. B. hall last night. A large crowd was in attendance and all the articles were disposed of and the contests decided. Interest centered in the vote for the most popular policeman which finally went to Dennis O'Keefe. He was closely followed by Dan MacDonald and "Jack" Payne. The club will net a nice sum to be applied to its treasury.

To Build Cottage.

J. B. Guttridge is securing figures for the erection of a cottage on South avenue, near where he built before. The plans have been drawn by architect F. L. Lancaster.

JESSAMY HARTE, PAUPER

A Former Plainfield Society Woman Ill and Penniless in a Poor House.

FAMILY IS IN LONDON

Ethel On Variety Stage and Frank a Playwright Live With Mother —Jessamy's Strange Career.

"And isn't it nice to have riches,
And diamonds and silks, and all that?
And aren't it a change to the ditches
And tunnels of Poverty Flat?"
—Bret. Harte's "Her Letter."

Bret Harte's eldest daughter Jessamy, beautiful, talented and with the wardrobe of a society queen, is in the poorhouse at Portland, Me. Her mental condition is such that the doctors keep her under the strictest surveillance. Apparently she has no friend on earth.

At the solicitation of many Portland society women Mrs. Steele, who as Jessamy Harte in this city, gave early promise of the talent which her illustrations and sketches afterward proved she possessed, came to Portland to give an evening of character readings from her father's works. The select audience was disappointed. The reading was not artistic. It was crude. The reader had to be prompted repeatedly.

Mrs. Steele has not left Portland since that time. Her actions have been unconventional, not to say startling to the society folk who invited her there. All that was learned about her husband was that he was an engraver for a New York publishing house when she was married to him in Plainfield six years ago. It is said that he is now somewhere in the West and refuses to have any communication with his wife except through his attorney.

Steele's claim was that his wife's extravagant tastes led to their estrangement. At one time he offered to give her $15 weekly. She spurned this offer indignantly, and with a toss of her proud head declared that the sum was insufficient even for pin money.

After her fiasco at her elocutionary debut she went to the fashionable Sherwood family hotel and remained for several months. She paid her board in promises. Then she took a summer cottage at Cape Elizabeth for a few weeks. Here again she neglected to pay the rent. Then she took rooms at the Lafayette Hotel. She had no funds, but from proprietor down to hallboy and chambermaid she received every attention, so great is the charm of her manner and her beauty.

A few weeks ago the hotel-keeper felt he could no longer afford to entertain his talented but expensive guest, and she was asked to leave. A sympathetic society woman offered her a home temporarily, but Mrs. Steele's peculiarities made it impossible to harbor her long, and for the past few weeks she has been at the Portland poorhouse. She is penniless, but she possesses beautiful gowns and every toilet accessory.

Her father after living abroad since 1878 died there about two years ago and left nothing. His wife and one son, with Miss Ethel, the sister, had joined him in London in 1900 after many years separation. Mrs. Steele says she wishes to go to London where her mother is, but the city does not feel that it is its duty to pay for the ocean voyage, and attending physicians as Mrs. Steele is in no condition to travel alone.

Soon after Jessamy Harte was married to Mr. Steele in 1900, the Bret Harte family removed from Plainfield to London to meet the novelist, who had not seen his family since he went to Dusseldorf, Germany, as American Consul in 1878. Miss Ethel there made her first appearance on the concert stage, and is now said to be singing in a vaudeville house in London.

About a year ago Miss Harte and her mother were in this city for a short while and then returned to the home of Frank J. Harte, the son, who is a playwright and maintains a house in London.

Of Jessamy Harte's future as an artist George Wharton Edwards, with whom she studied when she was twenty-one years of age, said:

"Everything she has done thus far has been the work of a genius, not that of the student. She has a wonderful future before her if she will but apply herself."

At that time she was thus described:

"In appearance Miss Harte is a beauty. She is tall and graceful, with a remarkably fine carriage. Her head, small and exquisitely shaped, is perhaps a trifle imperious in its pose. She has blue eyes, set under straight black brows. Her coloring is the daintiest pink and white. Her neck and arms are beautifully molded and she has beautifully shaped

COMPETE WITH P.S.C.?

Hall Signal Company to Build a Huge Power House.

WILL SPEND $1,000,000

Reported to Have Planned Light Service to Garwood and Other Municipalities—Plainfielder Interested in Bond Issue.

The Hall Signal Company, of Garwood, is planning to make extensive improvements to its factory property which will incur an expenditure of $1,000,000. A wealthy Plainfielder will be interested in the financing of the project. Operations will be started in the spring and in addition to enlarging the present plant and equipping it with electrical machinery, a large electric power house will also be erected, for the purpose of supplying power to the machinery in the different buildings occupied by the mechanes.

Considerable importance is attached to the contemplated erection of a large power house. It is the general belief that it is the intention of the company to become a competitor of the Public Service Corporation in supplying light to private parties as well as to the different municipalities in Union county.

This information comes from a reliable source and from a man connected with the company. It is understood that bonds of $1,000,000 will be floated to provide the money for the work. It is reported that the company has assurances from several sources of patronage when the plant is installed and ready for business, which time it is expected will be next fall. It is also understood that Garwood, which is now lighted by the P. S. C., will withdraw its contract from that company when the agreement has expired. It is the general expectations that a rate much lower than the one at present predominating will be established.

The company is now rushed with orders for its patent switch and signal arrangement and gives employment to 300 hands. The company is at the present time working on large contracts for the Pennsylvania and other railroads. When the contemplated improvements are completed it is expected that 200 additional men will be given employment.

BUSINESS MEN TALK OF MUTUAL INSURANCE

CO-OPERATIVE CONCERN SUGGESTED TO AVOID HIGH RATES.

The recent advance in fire insurance rates have set local business men a-thinking. Since the San Francisco earthquake and fire, and even before that calamity, the various companies which underwrite here, have been boosting the rates with apparent total disregard of the fact of this city being equipped with one of the best fire departments in the State. Past records show that the fire loss in this city in past years has been comparatively small, when contrasted with losses in other municipalities in the State, or in the country at large.

In view of these conditions the business men, and citizens generally, of this city, it is reported, may take the matter in hand, and investigate the feasibility of organizing a local fire insurance company and conducting it on co-operative lines. Fred Ivamy, fish dealer, of West Second street, has hatched out the idea of organizing such a mutual benefit concern. He declares that such a course is the only solution of the matter, and the only preventative Plainfielders can take from being imposed upon by these grasping corporations.

Mr. Ivamy declares that it is unjust for the companies to assess this city's property owners to help cover the losses in other places, referring especially to the San Francisco disaster. "With the good protection afforded by our efficient fire department, Plainfield should be given minimum rates. It is simply a case of robbery and local business men couldn't do a better thing than to get together and organize a home fire insurance company. I for one favor this course as the proper manner to secure justice."

At different times, following advances in rates, there has been desultory threats made by indignant citizens to take some steps toward mutual protection, but nothing has ever come from the talk. Now it begins to look that definite steps will be taken to bring about the desired results.

SEVENTH BALLOT; DEADLOCK CONTINUES

Dryden Gets 35 Votes—No More Balloting Until Next Tuesday.

Three more ballots were taken in joint session of the Legislature today for United States Senator and there was no material change. Mr. Dryden dropped from 36 to 35, on account of the absence of Assemblyman Davidson, of Monmouth, whose wife died last night. John W. Griggs, Republiban, got six votes and Justice Mahlon Pitney, Republican, received 2, the same as they had on the four ballots cast last week.

After the third ballot had been cast without result, President Minch announced that the next ballot would be taken on Tuesday next; in the meantime the members from Mercer will meet daily in order to fulfill the requirements of the law. On Monday night, Senator Dryden will be given a hearing by the Republican members in compliance with his request.

The first ballot:

Dryden	35
Griggs	6
Pitney	2
Stevens	16
Wilson	12
Martine	9

The second ballot:

Dryden	35
Griggs	6
Pitney	2
Stevens	16
Wilson	13
Martine	3

Third ballot:

Dryden	35
Griggs	6
Pitney	2
Stevens	16
Wilson	12
Martine	8
Krueger	1

After the second ballot had been taken Leader Hillery moved that the joint session arise. The move was lost by a vote of 41 to 39, the Democrats and Independent Republicans voting in the negative. Senator Lee moved that the door be locked and the members keep on voting until midnight if necessary. He was told by Senator Hillery that the doors were locked.

After the third ballot had been taken a motion to arise was carried by a vote of 49 to 30.

Senator Ackerman continued to vote for Griggs on each ballot. On the first ballot, Martine, Democrat, made a gain of three votes. Van-Blocken, of Passaic, changed his vote on every ballot. Senator Cornish did not arrive until the second ballot was about to be taken.

Delegations from both Plainfield and North Plainfield are in Trenton today and the big majority of them are shouting against Dryden. Senator Reed, however, will not give his opinion, although Mayor Smalley is quite outspoken in his opposition to the insurance president.

MISS VAIL SURPRISED.

Birthday Party Given in Her Honor Last Night.

Miss Ethel Vail, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Vail, of Elmwood place, was given a birthday surprise party at her home, last night. The affair was arranged by Miss Elsie Tier and Russell Vail. The young people met at the home of Miss Cora Gray, on West Front street, and then proceeded to the home of Miss Vail. The party was given in honor of the fourteenth anniversary of Miss Vail's birthday. The evening was spent in dancing, music and games, after which refreshments were served. Miss Vail received a number of gifts.

Assisting those who arranged the affair were Mrs. Edward E. Vail, Mrs. Ira Vail, Mrs. John Tier, Jr., and Mrs. George E. Valk. Those present were the following:

The Misses Cora Gray, Adelia French, Ethel Searing, Elsie Tier, Agnes VanNorden, Beatrice Tier, Gretta Trembley, Helen Ryder, Grace Vail, Theodocia Vail, Anna Vail, and Ralph Martin, Charles Kregar, Arthur Grisley, Harold Blazier, Russell Vail, Ira Vail.

Building Continues.

Building Inspector T. O. Doane reports that notwithstanding the uncertain weather conditions there is no let-up in the requests for building permits. A majority of them are for dwellings.

BOYS FORCE TEACHER OUT

Miss Steele Couldn't Curb Unruly South Plainfield Youngsters.

TRUSTEES DIDN'T HELP

Even After One of the Boys Hit Her the School Authorities Are Said to Have Withheld Support.

Because, it is alleged, she was not supported by the school authorities in her efforts to curb disorderly boys, Miss Steele, a South Plainfield teacher, has resigned. Miss Steele is said to have suffered physical violence at the hands of an unruly pupil without receiving protection against future occurrence of the sort.

Several of the boys in the school, it is said, became possessed of the idea that they and not Miss Steele were in control of the school. Her efforts to have that idea corrected are said to have failed of support from the Board of Trustees, and the boys became more unruly than ever. Matters reached such a state that Miss Steele, as a last resort, called a conference of the boys to talk over the situation. It was her hope that some agreement to make the school more orderly might be obtained from the boys through an appeal to their chivalry. The appeal is said to have resulted in an increase of insolence, on the part of one boy at least. This boy is said to have shown his contempt for pedagogic authority in general, and Miss Steele in particular, by striking the latter a half a dozen times on the body. The blows were hard enough to bring tears to Miss Steele's eyes.

The boy was ordered to the principal's room, and went. It is alleged, he was not, as Miss Steele expected him to be, sent home. That was not the first time, it is alleged, incidents of the sort terminated in that way.

Discouraged, and almost ill from her struggle with the pupils, Miss Steele finally gave up and arranged to return to her home in Owego, N. Y. Residents of the village are indignant over the treatment to which Steele is said to have been subjected, and demands are being made that the boys be punished severely. Miss Giles, of South Plainfield, has been placed in charge of the school, pending the appointment of a new schoolma'am.

A NEW CONSTITUTION FOR CITY COMMITTEE

THE PRESENT ONE UNSATISFACTORY—CHAIRMAN NAMES COMMITTEES.

Being convinced that its present constitution is totally unsatisfactory, the Plainfield Republican City Committee at a meeting in the Casino last night arranged to have it radically amended or a new instrument substituted. With this in view, Chairman Iremonger appointed Messrs. Hanniford, Tracy and Moy to undertake the work. The present constitution makes its mandatory for the chair to name all committees during January, a most unseasonable time. There are countless other defects which must be remedied.

The following were appointed members of the body: First ward, J. T. McMurray, W. L. Gloak, S. P. T. Wilbur and Charles S. Sminck; Second ward, R. Henry Depew, F. L. Holt, R. H. McCready and William R. Townsend; Third ward, George A. Beaton, G. B. Fletcher, Orra S. Rogers, Robert L. Lee and Duncan W. Taylor, the last named to fill the unexpired term of Mayor Fisk; Fourth ward, J. H. Cook, C. H. Dunham, Frank deW. Randolph, Winfield S. Angleman, William G. Hunt and Fred H. Firstbrook.

William R. Townsend was chosen secretary and treasurer of the body and then the following committees were announced by the chair: Executive, Messrs. Iremonger, McCardell, Townsend, Buckle, Tracy, Moy and Smith; naturalization, Messrs. Wilbur, Hanniford, Fletcher and Randolph; finance, Messrs. Tolles, Depew, Taylor and Buxton; legislattion, Messrs. Moy, Sminck, Holt and Angleman; registration, Messrs. Townsend, Andrews, McCready and Dunham.

Gold Medals at New Market.

The Gold Medal minstrel troupe, of this city, is billed for appearance at Friendship Hall, New Market, tonight. The show will be given under the auspices of the New Market school and will be for the benefit of its piano fund. Manager Muir has had the troupe add several new features to the usual excellent bill and promises one of the best entertainments he has yet put out.

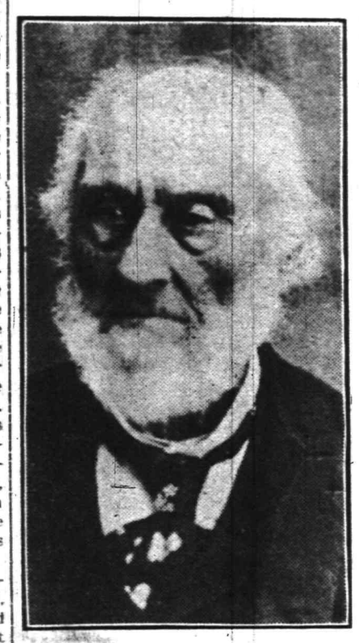
HALSEY H. BAKER DEAD

Teacher-Preacher-Author-Inventor Succumbs at Ripe Age of 94 Years.

ACTIVE TO THE LAST

He Retained All His Faculties and Was a Familiar Figure About Town Despite His Advanced Age.

Halsey H. Baker, considered to be Plainfield's oldest and probably best known citizen, died at his home on East Fifth street from paralysis last night. He was stricken in one side Friday afternoon and sank rapidly, his advanced age aiding in its progress. He was perfectly conscious to the last and the wonderful brain that had accomplished so much remained active until within a few moments before the end. Death came at 7:30, his aged wife, only four years his junior and his companion for seventy years, being at his bedside, together with their only daughter, Mrs. Charles Crawford, of New York.



H. H. Baker.

Halsey H. Baker was born at Schroon, Essex county, N. Y., July 4, 1813, and lived there until he was twenty years old, attending the district school. He then went to Madison county, New York, where he helped to build DeRuyter Institute. A little later he was licensed by the M. E. church to preach. Afterward he located at Alfred, N. Y., where he became interested in starting Alfred University. He also organized a singing school which grew to a successful organization. It was about this time that he identified himself with the Seventh-Day Baptist denomination.

It was while preaching at Berlin, N. Y., in 1836, he met Miss Cynthia Green, to whom he was married a year later. Soon after he engaged in holding evangelistic meetings in different States. His first pastorate was at Waterford, Conn., where he remained two years. He then returned to Berlin, where he engaged in the wood carving business for several years.

Mr. Baker received a call to the pastorate of the Seventh-Day Baptist church at New Market, where he remained for five years, after which he moved to Plainfield. He and Mrs. Baker had resided here ever since, thirty-five years. Before the Civil War he invented a planer that met with much success. The factory was located at Westerly, R. I., and the business was afterward sold to a Southern concern.

During the last few years of his life Mr. Baker devoted much time to literary work, a notable achievement being "The Pearl," a Scripture library of sixteen volumes. Last year he wrote a book "The Creation Described," illustrating the first week of time. This book has had a great sale. Mr. Baker was also a regular contributor to The Sabbath Recorder and his scientific articles have attracted widespread attention. He published the Plainfield city directory for many years.

Mr. Baker's wife, who survives him, was born at Berlin, N. Y., in 1817 and on August 22 last, the couple celebrated the seventieth anniversary of their marriage. It was observed in a quiet way but many neighbors and friends brought flowers and spent a little while chatting and offering congratulations.

KITCHELL FOR CAPTAIN

Report Has It That Second Lieut. Will Succeed Major Martin.

RUMORED PROMOTIONS

Peterson for First Lieutenant and Littell For Second—Martin Passes His Examinations.

Lieutenant-Colonel Nelson Y. Dungan and Major William B. Martin have been examined in the various parts of the drill regulations from the school of the soldier up to the evolution of the brigade. Both officers passed the examination with practically 100 per cent.

The examining board, Colonel Freeman, First Regiment; Lieutenant-Colonel Andrews, Fifth Regiment; and Lieutenant-Colonel Brinkerhoff, Fourth Regiment, were unanimous in their congratulations to these officers. They also congratulated the regiment upon having field officers as proficient as Colonel Dungan and Major Martin.

These officers will receive their commissions today, and after they are sworn in an election for brigadier-general to fill vacancy caused by resignation of General Gilmore will be ordered, in all probability within the next ten days.

Should Col. Collins be elected brigadier-general, Col. Dungan will, without doubt, be elected colonel of the Second Regiment. This will cause the promotion of Major George L. Forman to the lieutenant-colonelcy; making Major Horace Reading senior major and commander of the First Batallion. Major William B. Martin will then become second senior major and will command the Second Batallion (colored batallion), and Capt. John H. McCullough will undoubtedly be elected major to succeed Major Forman, promoted to lieut.-colonel, and will command the Third Batallion.

The record of Major Martin's batallion in so far as the officers are concerned, is well worth special mention. After the reorganization of the National Guard in 1899, Capt. Collins was elected major May 23, 1899. He became lieut.-colonel April 9, 1900, and colonel of the regiment July 8, 1902, and is now acting brigadier-general. Major Packer succeeded Major Collins as major of his batallian and held the office until appointed a first lieutenant in the Regular Army.

Major J. F. Cline succeeded Major Parker in command and held the position until he became lieutenant-colonel, July 8, 1902, which position he held until his death December 26, 1906.

Major Dungan succeeded Major Clime in command and remained as such until he took command of the regiment after Col. Collins took command of the Second Brigade on Jan. 17, 1906.

Major Martin will take command of the batallion as soon as sworn in and his first duties will be to accompany the regular army officer on his tour of inspection.

The first companies to be inspected will be companies C and I, of Elizabeth, on Feb. 8; Co. K, Plainfield, Feb. 11; and Co. M, Somerville, on Feb. 12.

This duty will be followed up by armory rifle practice, which will embrace aiming, sighting and position drill, which will be under the personal supervision of Lieut.-Col. William Libbey, assistant inspector-general of rifle practice.

With such a rifleman as Major Martin to assist him it is expected that the number of marksmen in this batallion will be increased by at least 200 per cent.

It is reported that Harry B. Kitchell, of Westfield, will probably be chosen to succeed Major William B. Martin as captain of Co. K. Mr. Kitchell is at the present time second lieutenant of the company and is popular with the men. It is also said that it is not unlikely that Chas. Peterson will be promoted to the first lieutenancy and that Albert I. Littell will take Mr. Kitchell's place as second lieutenant.

Y. M. C. A. Dinner.

All arrangements for the Y. M. C. A. dinner to be held in the association auditorium tonight have been completed. Covers for 150 will be laid. Dr. A. V. V. Raymond, president of Union College, will deliver the chief address. C. C. Michner, a prominent Y. M. C. A. worker, will also speak. Women will be admitted to the gathering when the speech-making begins.

Invitations Recalled.

Mrs. Joseph Webster Sandford, Jr., of West Seventh street, has recalled the invitations to the tea and reception which she planned to give on Wednesday afternoon, February 6, in honor of her sister, Mrs. A. A. Tilney, owing to the illness of Mrs. James Murray, of New York.

THE CONVENIENCE

of having one's credit good possibly at this time of the year, is a little more noticeable than at any other. Perhaps yours is in excellent shape, but you have already used it as far as you can e to go, and are still a little short. Then step in and let us assist you. We're taking care of winter's needs for hundreds whose credit is good, but who hesitate to obligate themselves any further to their friends, and particulary for a loan of a little cash. We loan any sum for any time and accept return payment weekly, semi-monthly or monthly.

We give you a written statement showing the exact cost of a loan, also the exact discount we allow every month the loan is paid before contract time. You will find us always willing to give you facts at our office. If you cannot call, write or 'phone us, and our confidential agent will call and give you full particulars.

The possession of household goods, piano, organ, horses and wagons are sufficient evidence of your ability to pay.

Rev. Charles Fiske, rector of St. John's church, is now in San Francisco, Cal.

Mrs. William H. Arkenburg is the guest of relatives in Sterling, Ill.

LAUNDRY LINES.

Colored goods should be ironed on the wrong side.

A little borax in the last rinsing water will make handkerchiefs easier to iron and look better when done.

Never pin delicate materials on to the clothes line without placing a piece of clean paper between the fabric and the clothes pin.

When coarse lawns or other cotton fade white a dainty pink color can be given them by using the petals of an old artificial rose in the starch water when laundered.

By putting an ounce of sal ammaniac in the last water in which muslins or cottons are rinsed or a similar quantity in the starch in which they are stiffened they will be rendered uninflammable.

When the water is too muddy to whiten the clothes it can be cleared very quickly by stirring in a little corn meal. The meal will go to the bottom and as soon as it is thoroughly wet and will carry the solid particles with it.

To Grill on Closed Range.

If the bars of a grate are too small or too near together for grilling remove the boiling ring and lift up the hot plate over the fire. Then place the gridiron in a horizontal position over the coals instead of attempting to grill in front of the fire, and the effect is just as good. Great care must be taken that the fire is bright, clear and quite free from smoke before the gridiron is placed over it, otherwise the operation cannot be successful.

Balky Bureau Drawers.

What is more tiresome than a bureau drawer that balks and sticks and goes in sidewise or refuses to go in altogether? But rub the edges lightly with sandpaper and see how bright the world looks, or rub laundry soap all around the top of the drawer and on the little wooden shelf it runs on. Simple "homemade" remedies, both of them, but worth trying.

The topic will be "Immigration." Some of the members of the Mission Study Class will be present and will have something to say about their work.

Instead of Ribbons.

The mother of a small girl whose ability to lose hair ribbons was a source of constant worry solved the problem by using strips of plain or flowered muslin. These she hemmed neatly, making them the width of ordinary hair ribbons. They laundered nicely and always looked fresh and clean, while the loss of one of them did not mean so serious a thing as if a brand new hair ribbon had disappeared. Of course these little muslin ties were not used for "dress up" occasions, but for ordinary home wear they were inexpensive.—New York Press.

PICK SEVEN SPEAKERS FOR JR. O. U. A. M. BANQUET.

Governor Stokes, Judge Scott and Senator Frelinghuysen Among the Number.

Possibly the greatest interest at the second annual banquet to be held at the Casino on Thursday night, under the auspices of Franklin, Somerset, Benevolent and Plainfield councils, Jr. O. U. A. M., will be centered in the appearance of Governor Edward C. Stokes, who will speak on "Our State." Another prominent speaker will be Judge Frank Scott, of Passaic county, a member of the State Board of Education, who will have for his toast "Immigration and Naturalization."

Samuel St. John McCutcheon, of the borough, president of the State Board of Education, will be the toastmaster and the programme of speakers together with their toasts, follows:

State Council Secretary William H. Miers, "Our Order;" State Councilor Frank R. Sharp, "Our Future;" Dr. Dray, member of the State Council, "Public Schools;" Governor Edward C. Stokes, "Our State;" Mayor Charles J. Fisk, "Our City;" Judge Frank Scott, "Immigration and Naturalization;" Senator Joseph Frelinghuysen, "Citizenship."

Mrs. Lena Helstrom will be the caterer for the banquet. The committee has arranged to have the banquet room appropriately decorated for the occasion and excellent instrumental music will be provided during the evening.

SMELLED SMOKE ODOR; PUPIL IS DISMISSED.

Boy's Clothing Saturated With Cigarette Aroma and Principal Arts Quickly.

The edict has gone forth from the Plainfield High School that young men will not be allowed in class rooms whose clothing contains the pungent and penetrating odor of tobacco smoke. Complaints were made by young women whose dainty nostrils were assailed at some by nothing less than the aroma of pure Havanas that they "simply could not stand those horrid cigarettes," and the order went out that male students who indulged in the practice should eradicate all traces of the little rolls when they entered school.

The rule was put into effect yesterday when a young man whose home is in South Plainfield swung onto his seat. The teacher, Miss Gilbert, smelled cigarette smoke, and when the student was asked if he was the one who had brought it in he readily replied in the affirmative. He was sent to Principal Travell's office and the latter official told the student to go home and get rid of the odor. He spent the day in the office of a friend, however, and when he started for South Plainfield he had smoked three times the number of cigarettes he did ordinarily.

Will Observe Tenth Anniversary.

The Young Women's Mission Band, of Trinity Reformed church, will meet in the church Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock and elect officers. It being the tenth anniversary of the band the event will be observed appropriately, and after the election and other business there will be an address by Mrs. J. S. Allen, of New York, who will tell of her recent visit among the Mountain Whites of Kentucky. Tea will be served afterward. No admission fee will be charged and everybody will be made welcome.

"The Daughter of Jairus."

"The Daughter of Jairus," John Stainer's cantata, will be given by Grace church choir Thursday night, under the direction of William E. MacClymont, organist and choirmaster. The public is invited to attend the service.

TRUSTEES NOMINATED FOR THE COUNTRY CLUB

AMENDMENTS TO CONSTITUTION TO BE CONSIDERED ON FEB. 5.

The annual meeting of the Plainfield Country Club will be held at the Casino Tuesday night, February 5. The nominating committee has selected Stuart H. Patterson, Henry J. Cochran and James P. Murray to be voted upon at that time for trustees. The nominating committee for 1907 consists of Charles W. McCutchen, Charles F. Abbott, Howard W. Beebe.

These amendments will be presented and voted upon:

Section 3, of article five of constitution to be amended as follows: Notice of the annual meeting shall be given to the members entitled to vote, at least thirty days prior thereto. The notice of the annual meeting shall include the names of the candidates nominated by the nominating committee. If independent nominations are made, an addition notice shall be sent out as required by article eight. Special meetings may be held on one week's notice to all members entitled to vote. The notice shall state the purposes for which the special meeting is called and no other business shall be transacted at that time.

Nominations. Nominating committee: There shall be a nominating committee to be composed of five active members of the club. Three members shall be elected at the annual meeting of the club in each year; the other two shall be elected by the board of trustees, not later than November in each year, from among the trustees whose terms of office shall not expire at the ensuing annual meeting of the club. Any vacancy occurring among the three members chosen by the club shall be filled by the remaining members or member. A vacancy occurring among the two members chosen by the trustees shall be filled by the trustees.

The nominating committee shall nominate three candidates for the three vacancies in the board of trustees to be filled at the annual meeting, and three candidates for the next year's nominating committee; and shall report such nominations to the secretary not later than the twentieth of December. The notice of the annual meeting shall contain the names of the candidates thus nominated.

Section 2. Independent nominations: Independent nominations of candidates for election at the annual meeting may be made by a letter, signed by ten active members, and delivered to the secretary at least three weeks before the annual meeting. Th secretary shall give notice thereof to all members entitled to vote, at least two weeks before the annual meeting.

Section 3. No nominations shall be made at the annual meeting; and no person shall be eligible for election to any office at said meeting unless nominated as provided in this article.

Article nine of the constitution to be amended to read as follows: "The use of alcoholic drinks in the club house or on the grounds of the club is prohibited. All play on the grounds of the club on Sunday is prohibited. The club house shall be closed on Sunday except to members, guests and transients occupying rooms as boarders at the club."

NO CHANGES FOR A YEAR.

Lease on D. T. Kenney's New Buildings Good for a Year.

Owing to the fact that the leases on the buildings purchased by him on North avenue, have a year to run, David T. Kenney, of the borough, will not be able to make the extensive improvements planned by him until the expiration of that time. The buildings concerned are now occupied by E. H. Cleveley, as a restaurant, also a dwelling directly back of them on East Second street.

Mr. Kinney proposes to tear down the old buildings and erect an arcade with stores on either side, extending from North avenue to Second street. Elaborate plans have been prepared by Mr. Kenney and with some minor changes they will probably be followed as now drafted. The possibilities of a street being opened from North avenue to Front street are now remote, and it is not believed that the Common Council would look with favor on the improvement.

Bank Directors Purchase Property.

The People's Bank, of Westfield recently organized, has purchased the building at Broad and Elm streets, Westfield, through the agency of Elston M. French, of this city. The building is at present occupied by a grocer and it is the meeting place of the town council. Extensive improvements will be made to the property and it is hoped to have everything in readiness to open the new bank within the coming two months. The directors of the new bank are chiefly Westfield men, and they have sought the aid of The Plainfield Trust Company to get started. There is every indication that Westfield is to have another strong financial institution to meet the growing needs of that place.

The annual meeting of the Plainfield Exchange for Women's Work will be held in Grace church guild room on Tuesday morning, February 5, at 11 o'clock.

Mildred and Reuclaire to Return.

The performance of Mildred and Reuclaire at the New Plainfield theatre, last night, proved an interesting and mystifying entertainment. It made such a hit with the audience that Manager Counihan secured a return date and they will appear at the house again within a short time. The company includes and array of vaudeville artists who add diversity to the programme with high class numbers. Mildred and Reuclaire are world-renowned artists themselves and they have an act that is little short of marvellous in its illusions.

SUGGESTS ANNUAL CHILDREN'S CENSUS

BOROUGH SCHOOL BOARD PASSES RESOLUTION ADDRESSED TO LEGISLATURE

At last night's meeting of the borough Board of Education, a resolution was introduced by Samuel Townsend, requesting the Senate and Assembly of New Jersey to have a law passed calling upon the district school boards to take a census of children between the ages of twelve and fourteen every year just before school opens. Mr. Townsend's reason for doing so, he explained, was to learn just how many children there are in a district who should be attending school and in this way the authorities can tell whether any are being kept home. The borough has experienced a great deal of trouble in this way and has frequently had to adopt extreme measures in order to learn the number of children in its confines of school age. The resolution received the approval of the board and was passed.

A proposition was received from a borough resident whose name was withheld, stating that he would give the board any number from one to thirty of Lincoln photogravures, provided the trustees would frame them and have them hung in the Somerset school. After a discussion it was decided to accept five and they will be ni position by February 12 when appropriate exercises will take place. In talking over the boroughite's offer, the members stated in deciding to ask for five that a greater number would give Lincoln much more prominence in the building than any other man of history and this was not desired.

The remainder of the session was devoted to matters of a routine nature.

EQUAL SUFFRAGISTS HEAR PAPERS READ.

Mrs. Champlain Riley and Miss Anne Murphy Discuss Lives of Great Women.

The Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield, yesterday afternoon, met at the home of Mrs. Champlain Riley in Myrtle avenue. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, Mrs. Samuel Huntington presided. A short articles on the suffrage question in relation to the recent agitation in London was read by Miss French. An article on the famous English woman, Mrs. Butler, who devoted her life to the cause of purity, was read by Mrs. Chaplain Riley. Mrs. Butler at one time entertained the late Aaron M. Powell and Mrs. Powell, and her recent death called for the article yesterday.

In pursuance of the plan of giving short sketches of the pioneers of woman's suffrage the principal paper of the afternoin was read by Miss Anne Murphy on Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton, daughter of Judge Cady, of New York State.

After the meeting tea was served and a social time enjoyed.

In Memory of McKinley.

In memory of President McKinley, today being the anniversary of his birthday, many of the teachers at the Plainfield High School wore red carnations, this being his favorite flower. Principal Ira W. Travell read an article, written about the time of the assassination of President McKinley, telling of the private life and character of the late President. At the suggestion of Charles L. Lewis, patriotic songs, and the two favorite hymns of the martyred President, "Lead, Kindly Light" and "Nearer My God to Thee," were sung by the school.

Will Discuss Formation of Club.

The men interested in the formation of a club and the purchase of the Casino property will meet at the Casino Saturday night to further consider the matter. It is expected that a committee of three appointed the night the college smoker will also meet at that time with a view to determining what steps are to be taken in the organization of a "Universal Club," as proposed at the smoker.

EVIDENCE AGAINST MURDER SUSPECT SLIGHT.

Authorities Are Still Much at Sea in Townsend Murder Mystery.

The third arrest—that of John Bell, a conductor—in connection with the murder of Dr. Charles Wilmot Townsend, of No. 5 Westervelt avenue, New Brighton, Staten Island, and formerly of Plainfield, has convinced the police and the coroner that they are near a solution of the strange shooting of last Saturday morning. A different view of the case is taken by District Attorney Kenny, who thinks that the evidence against the prisoner is exceedingly weak. He does not believe that Bell could be held for trial unless a stronger case is made against him.

Bell was formerly a conductor employed on the Staten Island Electric Railway, and until several months ago lived at No. 72 Montgomery avenue, Tompkinsville, Staten Island. The police say his arrest came about late Sunday night through a conversation which was overheard by a detective. He was arrested at the home of his parents, at No. 648 Hart street, Brooklyn. The police say that when he was arrested he protested ignorance of the Townsend murder, and readily agreed to accompany the detectives to police headquarters in Manhattan. Later he was taken to the Tombs court and held on suspicion of having committed homicide.

Coroner Cahill, of Staten Island, immediately communicated with Inspector Schmittberger, who has been in charge of the case, after Bell was arrested. The coroner thought the description of Bell fitted that given by the surgeon and his wife. He believed that there might be a motive for the murder, as Mrs. Bell, who was one of Dr. Townsend's patients, died at the S. R. Smith Infirmary exactly a year before the surgeon was shot. Mrs. Bell was admitted to the hospital on the recommendation of the surgeon on the evening of January 25 of last year, and at 4 o'clock on the following morning she died.

Captain Gallagher, of the West Brighton police station, went to New York with instructions to take Bell before Coroner Cahill. When the captain reached the Tombs court yesterday morning Bell had already been committed for examination by Magistrate Baker until tomorrow. After Captain Gallagher explained that the prisoner was wanted as a material witness at the inquest, he was rearraigned and immediately discharged. Captain Gallagher at once rearrested him. He was searched, and the police say they found a silk handkerchief which corresponds in part to the one which Mrs. Townsend said was worn by the man who did the shooting.

SEAT SALE FOR ELKS' SHOW BEGINS TOMORROW.

General Public Will Have Same Opportunity as Lodge Members in Making Selections.

The sale of tickets for the Elks' big vaudeville show on February 6 will commence at the box office of the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow. The committee has declared that no favoritism will be shown in the selection of seats and the general public will have the same opportunity as members of the lodge. Those holding the card tickets will be allowed to exchange them at the same time the sale of house coupons begins.

Manager Counihan and his associates on the committee, and Maze Edwards have passed upon the artists secured for them by John Hennessey, booking agent for Keith & Proctor, and they have made up a bill that will surpass anything of the kind ever seen in the city. Every artist will be a "headliner," that is, one who has been featured above all the rest in the programme at some well known house. The full lists is to be made known tomorrow.

The committee decided upon the vaudeville show after mature deliberation, believing that it would be a novelty for local people and one that would draw a full house. From the interest manifested already there is no doubt bht what their expectations will be realized.

HOSPITAL WANTS INCREASED APPROPRIATION OF $500.

Asks Councilmanic Finance Committee to Give $1,500 Annually for Care of City's Poor.

The finance committee of Muhlenberg Hospital met with the Councilmanic Finance Committee, last night, to discuss the appropriation to be made by the city to the hospital for the coming year. Last year $1,000 was appropriated, it being held at that time that while the councilmen would like to make it $1,500, the amount asked for, the law would not permit it.

Now the committee from the hospital maintains that changes in the law will permit an appropriation of $1,500 and a request for that sum was made to the finance committee of the Common Council. It was finally decided to refer the matter to Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh for an opinion.

The appropriation has been made for the purpose of caring for the indigent poor of the city, in fact it was Corporation Counsel Marsh's opinion a year ago that it was only with this understanding that the city could make an annual appropriation to the hospital.

A "Twenty-three" Sleigh Ride.

A party of borough young people, numbering twenty-three in all, enjoyed a sleighing party to Westfield last night. The start was made from the home of Miss Edith Mantz on Jackson avenue and good time was made both ways, probably because of the "skidoo" number in the conveyance. Supper was enjoyed at Westfield and the trip ended at the starting place. The affair was arranged by Miss Edith Mantz and Miss Mabel Hamilton.

You will find the goods of the best quality and the prices reasonable.

ATLANTIC CITY ANGRY.

That Congress Decided on Harbor at Its Rival, Cape May.

Atlantic City, Jan. 29.—Yachtsmen, hotel proprietors and business men interested in a movement to have the United States Government help to pay for widening a channel into the thoroughfare here, so as to make a harbor of refuge in heavy storms, were dumfounded when they learned that the Rivers and Harbors Committee of the National House of Representatives had refused Atlantic City's plea.

They were angered, of course, when it dawned upon them that $1,200,000 had been recommended to be appropriated for the rival port of Cape May. The plea for Atlantic City had always been that it is the best place for a port of entry or harbor of refuge between Sandy Hook and the Delaware Breakwater, because it was nearly equidistant from each.

The Board of Trade will take up the matter with Representative Gardner, who is sick at his home here, as soon as the Congressman is able to receive a delegation.

DIES OF GRANDSON'S SHOT.

Dugan's Quarrel With Aged Relative Has Moral Ending.

Morristown, Jan. 29.—William Hager, of Mendham, who was shot by his grandson, James Dugan, January 11, died in All Souls' Hospital Saturday of his wounds. Dugan is held for the murder. He is now in the county jail, having surrendered after the police and detectives had failed to find him. The Grand Jury is now investigating the shooting. The County Prosecutor will ask for an indictment for murder in the first degree.

Dugan, it is alleged, quarreled with his grandfather over money matters. After the aged man refused to listen to the boy's threats and had gone to a neighbor's house, Dugan hunted up a shotgun and went to the house. Seeing his grandfather's shadow in a window, the grandson fired, the shot entering Hager's breast.

Buy Your Own Paper.

A man who was too economical to subscribe for his home paper sent his little boy to borrow the paper taken by his neighbor. In his haste the boy ran over a $4 stand of bees and in ten minutes looked like a warty summer squash. His cries reached his father, who ran to his assistance, and, failing to notice a barbed-wire fence, ran into it, breaking it down, cutting a handful of flesh from his anatomy and ruining a $5 pair of pants. The old cow took advantage of the gap in the fence and got into the cornfield and killed herself eating green corn. Hearing the racket, the wife ran, upset a four-gallon churn of rich cream into a basket of kitten, drowning the whole flock. In her hurry she dropped a $25 set of false teeth. The baby, left alone, crawled through the spilled cream and into the carpet, ruining a $20 carpet. During the excitement the oldest daughter ran away with the hired man, the dog broke up eleven setting hens, and the calves got out and chewed the tails of four fine shirts.—From the Kansas City Journal.

New Providence Men's Club.

New Providence, Jan. 29.—A number of the young men of the place met at the home of Rev. Carl P. Metzler Saturday night and formed an organization to be known as the New Providence Men's Club. The object of the club is to become a branch of the Y. M. C. A. and have its own building, with gymnasium, reading-room, library and games. For the present, however, the club will content itself with social weekly meetings at the homes of the various members. Montly meetings will be held, at which prominent speakers will address the men on the subjects of the day. The officers elected were Rev. Carl P. Metzler, president; Amos Potter, vice-president; Herbert High, secretary, and P. S. Prower, treasurer.

Up Against a Farmer.

With a capitalist and a college president in the field James E. Martine, of Union, seems to have a small chance for United States Senator in a Democratic caucus. And yet who can say that he is not more deserving.—Unionist-Gazette.

HEAD HUNTERS OF FORMOSA.

Race of Man Eaters Whose Cry Is for Blood.

The mountainous interior of Formosa is inhabited by a race of bloodthirsty savages, whose chief delight is to sally forth on head hunting raids. Few strangers (the exceptions being some intrepid Japanese explorers) have ever penetrated far into the wild mountain country which is the home of these savages.

They appear to be akin to the Dyaks of Borneo, but no definite study of their language or habits has yet been made, though interesting details will be found in Consul Davidson's voluminous book on Formosa. For hundreds of years the tribes, eight in number, have withstood their enemies, who have never been able to penetrate to their fastnesses. It remains to be seen what success the more systematic Japanese will achieve.

It seems almost incredible that the station of a military force should not be safe from the raids of these head hunters, but it was the case a few years ago. At that time one of the tribes crept in the night upon a post of the Japanese and made off with a score of heads.

Their more usual method is to stalk the Chinese of either sex when they are engaged in tea picking. The savage creeps up unobserved to his victim, transfixes him with his spear, secures his head and he is lost in a moment in the neighboring jungle.—Macmillan's Magazine.

WHY HE WANTED TO KNOW.

Had a Reason for His Request for Information.

The steamer Morning Star, commanded by Capt. Brown, in the summer of 1904, while on a trip up the Maine coast with a party of excursionists, was caught in a severe storm, and the waves washed the decks repeatedly. The captain assured the passengers that there was no immediate danger. Most of the passengers were satisfied with this answer, but a little gentleman with an excited face stepped forward and asked the captain, time and time again, the same question: "Do you think we shall be wrecked?"

After the captain answered many times, he at last became tired at the persistent passenger, and said: "Don't you hear what I say? Look at the other passengers, they do not seem at all disturbed. If there should be danger, I will inform you in time."

The passenger, in reply, said: "I want to know in time, if we are going to be lost, because there is a friend of mine on board."

"Do you want to say good-by to him?" inquired the captain.

"No, not exactly that," answered the frightened man. "You see, the thing of it is, he has shamefully deceived me, and if we are going to the bottom I just want to tell him what I think of him."

Care for the Birds.

During the last year the Audubon society of Louisiana has rented some 17 bird-breeding islands, located in the waters of the gulf. Last year the islands were watched by two wardens whose wages were paid by the national committee of Audubon societies, and although they were not wholly able to prevent trespassing and egg-stealing, nevertheless the result sattained were well-nigh marvelous. On their own and the neighboring islands of Breton reservation, owned by the federal government, by these simple preventive measures there were hatched and raised all of 40,000 birds, composed of the following species: Common terns, forsters, terns, royal terns, laughing gulls, black skimmers.—Country Life in America.

Robes of the Pope.

The outward robe of the pope is red and made from the wool of the lambs of the convent of St. Agnes, near the Porta Pia. The cloak and cape are lined with purple and trimmed with gold lace; the sombrero, or hat, is red, and has a gold cord and tassel. Beneath the cloak is worn an alb, made also of wool of the lambs of St. Agnes, and girt about the waist with a sash of white moire antique, garnished with gold fringe. The pope's hands are burdened with kit mittens, and his feet are burdened with a pair of slippers worn over his ordinary shoes. The total value of his wardrobe is said to be $150,000.—Kansas City Journal.

Pugilistic Honors.

In the days when he was at Harvard Frank H. Hitchcock, first assistant postmaster general, was champion heavy-weight boxer of the university. At that time he was not quite the stalwart, broad-shouldered chap he is now. Many less notable athletes in Washington would like to see President Roosevelt and Mr. Hitchcock in a bout, which could hardly help being a lively one.

It Catches Him.

"Pa," said little Willie, looking up from his book, "what does 'mantrap' mean, anyway?"

"A 'mantrap?'" repeated the old man. "Well, my son, I don't know any more effective mantrap than an old-fashioned rocking chair in the center of a dark room."—Philadelphia Ledger.

PAYING CANAL LABOR

DIFFICULT TASK HAS FINALLY BEEN PERFECTED.

Thirty Thousand Employes on Panama Waterway Work Who Receive $1,000,000 Every Month—Official Who Handles Funds.

Panama.—There has been much said and written about the pay department of the Isthmian canal commission, but now the system is almost perfect. In the early days of the work, when navy methods prevailed, the delay with which pay periods were met was one of the greatest causes of dissatisfaction. Sometimes a whole month would go by without a pay period, and actual suffering among the canal employes frequently resulted. It has been a difficult matter to surround the payment of nearly 30,000 men, taking the vast sum of $1,000,000 monthly, with the safeguards demanded by the United States government and to give to the labor that great necessity—payment of wages. It has also been difficult to adjust the methods of corporations with the precedent regulated system of paying required by the bureau at Washington, but it has been done.

The employes of the Isthmian canal commission are to-day paid with more regularity and at an earlier time after pay periods than United States government employes in any part of the world, and, what is more creditable, the laborer is paid earlier after earning than the workmen of any big railroad system in the United States. In the selection of E. J. Williams as disbursing officer Chairman Shonts had the pick of a host of men, and the result shows that he made no mistake. In addition to handling the vast sums of money used in paying the men Mr. Williams is local auditor and treasurer of the canal zone funds.

All of the handling of the money is done by three paymasters and five pay clerks. There is also a cashier, who, under the disbursing officer, has control of the paying. The day laborers are paid every 15 days, with Panama silver, the weight and bulk of which add materially to the work. At points where the pay car is not required the payments are made within three days from the middle and end of the month. The pay car belongs to the Panama railroad, and is used first to pay the railroad laborers. After that it is turned over to the canal pay force, and within from 12 to 15 days from the pay period all of the men have received their money. When the canal gets its own pay car the time will be shortened by half. In the United States the pay car gets around 15 to 25 days after the pay period. The four canal clerks and other "gold rate" men are paid promptly on the first of the month.

The timekeeping system is elaborate, but effective. Each big division allots one timekeeper to the disbursing office. The original time is taken by the foreman of each 50 men. Each man is numbered and is represented by three cards in the possession of the foreman. Foremen turn their time books over to a timekeeper, who makes up a time sheet, which he sends to the chief timekeeper of the division, who in turn makes out the pay roll. The time book turned in by the foreman, the time sheet and the pay roll, which is signed by the division chief, are all sent to the local auditor's office, where they are carefully checked by a corps of expert clerks. The three evidences of earning are then turned over to the division known as the personal corps, where they are again checked from an index card system, thus eliminating any chance of duplication.

Short Life of Man-of-War.

How short lived is the modern war vessel has been shown three times within the last few months, the Philadelphia after 16 years of service, the Bancroft after 13 years and the Texas after 11 years, having all been relegated to the ignomy of either harbor or revenue service. The Bancroft is the last to go. Its cost, exclusive of repairs and maintenance, was but $300,000, while the Philadelphia cost about $1,500,000 and the Texas over $3,000,000, exclusive of repairs. As the Texas has been the only one of the three to have much strenuous service, its most important engagement being the attack upon Cervera's fleet off Santiago, the expensiveness of the modern navy may be better understood.

Gibraltar is the smallest British possession. It measures less than two square miles. Canada is the biggest, with 3,746,000 square miles.

INTERESTING EGYPTIAN FIND.

Statue of Ancient Goddess Discovered Undisturbed in Shrine.

London.—One of the most striking discoveries that has ever been made in the history of Egyptian exploration has just been made at Deirel-Bahri by the Egyptian Exploration Fund. The digging in this particular district had been under the immediate superintendence of Dr. E. Naville, and it is owing to his endeavors that the unique statue of an Egyptian goddess has been found undisturbed in her sanctuary. Deir-el-Bahri, where the statue was found, is in the neighborhood of Thebes, the famous historic site of middle Egypt. To the west there rises a line of hills at a short distance from the banks of the Nile;

Statue of Amenhetep.

it is in this low line of hills that the unique discovery has been made. After the removal of a few stones a complete and undamaged chapel was discovered, the roof of which was vaulted and painted blue, and dusted over this blue ground were numbers of yellow stars. Inside this miniature temple stood the undamaged presentation of the goddess, Hathor, who was represented as a beatiful cow just stepping between a conventional group of lotus stems.

So lifelike was the representation of the cow that the goddess seemed to be actually emerging from the chapel at the moment that the discoverers had removed the stones which had hidden the entrance since the days when the eleventh dynasty reigned in Egypt. The figure of the cow goddess is executed life-size in painted limestone, the body being a reddish-brown with black spots; the head, horns and part of the body had been gilded. The walls of the little sanctuary are covered with bas reliefs of Thothmes III., which are expected to reveal many aspects of the Hathor cult which have been previously unknown, and behind the head of the statue is the cartouche of Amenhepte II., the son of Thothmes III. So priceless was the discovery that Dr. Naville at once communicated with the Egyptian government, who proceeded to effectually guard it before removal to the Ghizeh museum at Cairo. The sacred cow has been declared by many critics to be the most perfect specimen of animal life on modern or ancient sculpture.

DISPENSES JUSTICE AT 91.

Aged Jurist Tells How He Keeps Up His Working Vigor.

Boston.—What do you think of a judge who defies time and sits on the bench and actively dispenses justice when he has passed his 91st birthday?

That is Justice Charles Field, one of the kindliest of gentlemen, who is on the bench at Athol, Mass.

JUDGE CHARLES FIELD.
(Although Near Century Mark He Is Still in Good Condition.)

He was a presidential elector in the time of Lincoln.

Recently he disposed of three cases in one morning, then went to Gardner, 13 miles away, and disposed of eight cases. He walked a mile from the courtroom to the railroad station. His figure is erect and his step firm.

His regular bill of fare is something like this: Morning, oatmeal and rich milk, the oatmeal being cooked for at least eight hours; at noon, beefsteak, roast mutton or roast lamb, with a single hot, mealy baked potato, no other vegetables; at night, a simple gruel made from an infant's food.

"This rigid care in regard to diet seems to be necessary to keep in good working order, and I much prefer to forego the pleasures of the table in order to keep the bodily powers in excellent working condition. Formerly I drank strong coffee, but now drink no coffee at all. Throughout my life I have made it a point to get great abundance of outdoor exercise. I have always walked a great deal, and played outdoor games."

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

It is recorded in the world of facts that through the silent working of the senses the soul is taught and mostly impressed by the contemplation of the ideal creations of art. A beautiful picture, an exquisite reading or a place of sculpture has often changed the course of human lives, often gives hope to the despairing, rest to the wearied soul and never fails to uplift the mind. Great lessons are taught in the dramatic tenses of the wordless images. To appreciate this, one should see that little moving picture play Kathleen Mavourneen that strikes the minor key of the heart and brings harmony out of life's discords. This little unspoken playlet is one of the most touching dramatic subjects ever created in the animated reproduction and is given in conjunction with many others, of as many varieties, with Archie L. Shepard's high class exhibition of moving pictures at the New Plainfield theatre Friday night.

The appearance of Joe Hortiz, at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night, is something that the patrons of the house have long been looking for. The play is a new one by Langdon McCormick and is in four acts written up in the shape of a comedy melodrama. Mr. Hortiz is said to be one of the sweetest tenors and yodlers on the American stage today, and in "Our Friend Fritz," the title of the play plays a German comedy role to the delight of the audience. The story of the play is written around the love affair of Fritz and his sweetheart Nora, who is seen in the first act being turned away from home, because of being accused of robbing her father's store. Every one believes her guilty but Fritz and he still trusts her. The second act, shows a mill scene where Nora has been enticed by the villian of the play in order to get her under his control, he also loving Nora, which love has never been returned as she knew him not to be of good character. During this scene Fritz makes his appearance disguised as a woman and with his sweet singing of "I'm So Sleepy, Sleepy Now," puts the villain and his accomplice to sleep and escapes to a place of safety with Nora. The third act, gives a church scene where the principal characters are seen attending a prayer meeting. During this meeting Nora comes along and is seen by the villain as he comes out of the church, where he goes with a regularity that hides his villainy and places him in the eyes of the others as a moral young man. He orders a policeman to arrest Nora as the one that robbed the store, which would have been done had not Fritz made his appearance and succeeded in getting her out of the clutches of the law. The fourth and last act of the play takes place outside of the old mill and shows some very nice water effects, such as the water running over the grand old wheel that turns the machinery within, also a very effective rain storm. In this act the villain is at last run to the wall and proven to be the real thief. Nora taken back, of course, Fritz is to become her partner for life. The cast is made up of very capable actors and the scenery is said to be simply grand.

Formally Made a Monsignor.

Perth Amboy, Jan. 29.—The ceremonies incident to the elevation of Rev. B. T. O'Connell to the rank of monsignor were held in St. Mary's church Sunday by Bishop McFaul. Monsignor O'Connell has been in poor health for several months, and he was visibly affected by the strain incident to the services. The church was crowded, and Bishop McFaul was listened to with deep interest as he told of his visit to Pope Pius, when Monsignor O'Connell and other priests in this diocese were honored. At night San Salvador Council, Knights of Columbus, attended church, and Monsignor O'Connell addressed them. More than 200 members of the order were present.

THE MISSION OF LIFE INSURANCE.

"To make the homes of the millions pure, to render sweet and strong those human relations which constitute the family—this is her mission and her work." The above words were spoken of a distinguished philanthropist. They are strikingly applicable to Life Insurance as conducted by a Company like The Prudential.

A TRUST COMPANY is the logical depositary for temporary idle or dormant funds.

This company allows 3 per cent. on such accounts if subject to check, and 3½ per cent. if left for stated periods of 3 months or longer.

MONTCLAIR AGAIN WINS FROM PLAINFIELD.

Y. M. C. A. Have Beaten On Its Own Floor Worse Than In Montclair.

With the memory of defeat at Montclair Saturday night still keen in their minds, the Y. M. C. A. basketball team got another dose of the bitter medicine at the hands of the Montclairians on their own floor last night. Score, 54 to 18; worse than before.

Montclair is too beefy for the Plainfield combination. The latter can't stay with an aggregation like that. They fought gamely last night, and kept their opponents busy, but there was never anything to it but Montclair.

After the game the visitors were entertained. Edible sandwiches and potable lemonade were served in abundance.

The line-up and summary:

Plainfield.		Montclair.
Loizeaux	forwards	Rohan
Gilmore	forwards	Goodman
Collier	center	Button
Schoonmaker	guards	Wiberalskie
Gavett	guards	Lummis

Goals from field—Loizeaux, 2; Collier, 4; Schoonmaker, 2; Rohan, 10; Goodman, 2; Button, 9; Wiberalskie, 2; Lummis, 3. Goals from fouls—Collier, 2; Wiberalskie, 2.

HOPE TEAM WINS.

Boys' Club Basketball Team Takes Games from Rahway Y. M. C. A.

The Hope Boys Club basketball team met a five from the Rahway Y. M. C. A. on the Hope court last night and defeated the visitors after a hot contest by a score of 32 to 31. At the end of the first half the score stood 20 to 16 in favor of Hope and it was only by the hardest kind of play that the home team kept in the lead. The line-up was as follows:

Hope—Mortimer, right forward; Rimmer, right guard; Snyder, center; Kinney, life forward; C. Firstbrook, left guard. Rahway—Davis, right forward; Oppel, right guard; Stevens, center; H. Kenney, left forward; Gehring, left guard. Referee, McComb; scorer, Eckert; timer, Walter Firstbrook.

The game was one of a series in which each side has taken a count, Rahway having won the first by a score of 27 to 24. The rubber will be played on February 12 at Rahway.

Y. M. C. A. 2ds Win.

Without any particular trouble, the Y. M. C. A. second team defeated the North Plainfield High School five last night, at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, 40 to 22. The first half was played snappily, but the second early indicated whither the bird of victory would flit. The line-up: Y. M. C. A.—Templin, Shepard, Aalholm, Martin, Hoagland; N. P. H. S.—Conroy, Overton, McClintock, Powlison, Steiner.

Lecture For Teachers.

The next lecture in the course being given to the eachers of Plainfield and North Plainfield will take place in the auditorium of the City High School, Thursday evening. Dr. J. M. Tyler, of Massachusetts, will speak on "Boys and Girls in the Grammar School."

Sentence Suspended.

Robert Alexander, colored, was arraigned in the city court this morning, charged with being disorderly by raising a row, while drunk, in the shoe shop of Raffe Niagi, Liberty street, yesterday afternoon. Sentence was suspended.

Among those interested were George Meredith, Sir George Newnes, Sir Francis Burnand, Sir Gilbert Parker, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Hall Caine, Anthony Hope and George H. Sims.

Bret Harte's family is now receiving a handsome royalty on the play "Salomy Jane," which Eleanor Robson is presenting at the Liberty theatre.

MADE HANDCUFF KEY.

Horace Adams Rescues Colored Man from Unpleasant Fix.

To rescue a man who had got himself into a fix by fooling with an unfamiliar device, District Court Clerk Horace Adams performed a remarkable bit of handiwork yesterday. He filed a common desk key down and made it over into a key that operated a pair of patented handicuffs, and released Charles Eaton, colored, from their grip.

Eaton dropped into the clerk's office to make a call, and found the handcuffs lying on the desk. He snapped them on his wrists to see how they felt, and pulled them as tight as he could to learn just how fast a prisoner could be held. Then he tried to work the key in the lock, and snapped it off.

When Mr. Adams came in a few minutes later he found Eaton gazing helplessly at his manacled hands. Mr. Adams decided that the only thing to do was to make a new key. He is an expert with tools. The handcuffs are of peculiar make, and designed to work only when fitted with the key furnished by the makers. With an old file and a hammer, that had seen beter days Mr. Adams made an old desk key into as neat a handcuff key as the cuffs required. It took him two hours to do it, and Eaton never spent two more uneasy hours in his life.

Substitute Bishops' Bill.

In the Assembly at Trenton last night, Mr. Blohm, of Hudson, introduced by request a repealer of the Wert's liquor of 1889 and the bishops' of 1906. Sunday selling is permitted after 1 o'clock on said day, when determined by the vote of the legal voters of any township, town, borough, village or city wherein any license to sell liquor has or may be granted.

MARY CONNORS' WAGES

Servant Wins Suit Against S. W. Rushmore In District Court.

HE HAD HER ARRESTED

Testimony On the Incidents That Led to the Arrest Include Charges of Choking—Lawyer On the Stand.

Mary Connors, the servant girl arrested several weeks ago on complaint of S. W. Rushmore, of Putnam avenue, on a charge of disorderly conduct, afterwards withdrawn, appeared in the District Court this morning as plaintiff in two actions against Mr. Rushmore. She sued for $20, wages said to be due at the time she left the Rushmore house, on contract; and for $50, in tort, the latter action being based on the alleged trover and conversion, by Mr. Rushmore, of $25 in money and $10 worth of clothes left by her at his house.

The contract action brought out for the first time the incidents that led to the girl's arrest. In the course of her testimony, the servant declared that Mr. Rushmore ejected her from the house with such force that she has been incapacitated from working since. She alleged he choked her.

Mr. Rushmore's defense was that the girl's action justified her summary dismissal, and that she was not entitled to the wages claimed. He alleged that the servant created the disorder, charging that she threatened his wife.

In his testimony, Mr. Rushmore said he had found a pint bottle that had contained laundanum, empty, in the girl's room. The plaintiff denied that she drank laundanum; she said the bottle had contained "indigestion medicine."

Judge Newcorn gave a verdict for the plaintiff. Execution was issued.

In the second action, a nonsuit was granted the defendant, on the ground that a full legal demand for the goods and money in question had not been made. W. S. Angleman, counsel for the plaintiff, had asked G. W. V. Moy, lawyer for Mr. Rushmore, as to the goods and cash three weeks ago, and was told that the girl had better not go to the house for them herself. After waiting, in vain, for the delivery of them, action followed. Judge Newcorn ruled that there was no evidence before the court to show that Mr. Moy was acting as authorized agent of the defendant in the matter, or that the return of the goods had ever been refused. In the course of that action Mr. Angleman himself went on the stand to testify as to his conversation.

Mr. Angleman took an exception to the ruling, and then made formal demand of Mr. Rushmore, in the presence of the court, for the goods and money. Mr. Rushmore said he was willing to give them up at once. Mr. Angleman left with his client to go to the house. The servant said she was afraid to go alone.

PRIMARY AND JUNIOR TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

Discuss Plans for Increasing the Interest Among Children in Sunday-school Work.

Under the apspices of the Primary and Junior Sunday-school Teachers' Union, an institute was held at the Congregational church, last night. The meeting was held to promote new ideas for primary and junior Sunday-school work. There was a large attendance of workers from the various churches of the city and borough.

Rev. C. L. Goodrich, of the Congregational church, conducted the devotional exercises, after which William D. Murray, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, taught next Sunday's lesson for primary pupils. Then Miss Edith Cairns gave a talk on "How to Train the Juniors," and conducted a round-table during which time various questions of particular interest to the primary and junior work were asked and answered. D. D. Murray and George E. Hall also took part as leaders in this part of the programme.

Before the meeting adjourned Miss Nettie Beeching, president of the union, made an earnest plea for the organization of senior Sunday-school teachers. She stated that while the primary and junior teachers are banded together she thought it was quite as important that the senior teachers should organize. No action was taken. The matter will probably be taken up later.

DUNELLEN YOUNG MEN PLAN FOR A Y. M. C. A.

Idea of One Grows Out of Athletic Club Smoker.

Announcement of plans for the development of a Y. M. C. A. for Dunellen made was at a smoker held by the Dunellen Athletic Club last night. The affair was the first one of the newly organized club, and in the general discussion as to the organization's future a definite aim to build the club up into a Y. M. C. A. was born. The evolution, it was recognized, was not likely to occur in the very near future, but the members were assured that the growth could be accomplished, and they agreed that the organization be conducted with that object in view.

The smoker, which was held in the club rooms in Apgar's hall, was largely attended by Dunellenites. Speeches of encouragement were made by School Superintendent Lester Meseroll and Councilmen L. T. Churchill. A. A. Lake gave humorous recitations, and boxing matches between Russell Garretson and Harry Eising, Frank Fletcher and Will Giles, John Logan and John Dineen were enjoyed. Charles Lake defeated William Dealaman in a potato race. Sandwiches, coffee and cigars were served in abundance.

AUXILIARY TEA.

Y. M. C. A. Women's Affair in Association Hall.

For the purpose of promoting sociability and stimulating an interest among the members of the Ladies' Auxiliary, of the Y. M. C. A., a tea was held in the large hall of the association building, yesterday afternoon. In addition there were addresses by State Y. M. C. A. Secretary L. E. Hawkins and Joseph W. Gavett, in which they set forth the needs of the work and told of the encouragement afforded by the assistance of the women.

The flower committee of the auxiliary decorated the hall with palms, tulips and other flowers. There were about 125 women present during the hours from 3:30 to 5:30 o'clock. During the tea there were violin selections by Mrs. Violet Truell-Johnson, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Frank J. Hubbard.

Mrs. Joseph W. Gavett and Mrs. LeRoy Gates arranged the affair, and those in charge of the serving of tea and lemonade were Mrs. H. W. Marshall, Mrs. F. R. Stevens and Mrs. Nelson Y. Hull, assisted by Miss Beatrice Miner, Miss Jessie Stevens and Miss Bond. A silver offering was received and a considerable sum was realized to assist the auxiliary in its work.

GRAND JURY AFTER BOARD.

Members of Elizabeth's Liquor Licensing Body Asked About "Bishops' Law" Enforcement.

The Union County Grand Jury is after the Elizabeth Board of Excise as to the manner in which it enforces the "bishops' law" in that place. The excise commissioners were subpoenaed to appear before the grand inquest, and were closeted with it for more than an hour yesterday.

The Newark officials of the Public Service Corporation were also subpoenaed before the grand jury and had an audience with it yesterday in reference, it is supposted, to the instructions given by Supreme Court Justice Francis J. Swayze last Friday to the grand jury. The result of the c onference was not made public, but will probably develop when the grand jury makes its final report this week.

ASK LIGHT AT CROSSING

Rock Avenue Residents and Business Men Prepare a Petition.

TO LESSEN THE DANGER

No Light On the Block At All At Present Time—Another Petition For Grading South Second Street.

Ready to accept any amelioration of the dangerous conditions that obtain at the Rock avenue grade crossing, pending the time when the perils there shall be entirely eliminated, the residents and business men of the vicinity have joined in an effort to induce the Common Council to have an electric light placed at that point. A light would do much to lessen the night-time dangers.

At the present time there is not a light on Rock avenue between Front and Second streets. A petition for the light was drawn up yesterday, and it will be presented to the Common Council at its meeting next week. The J. D. Loizeaux Lumber Company and the Ransome Concrete Machine Company lead the signers. The petition in full, and the signers, are as follows:

"Your petitioners, freeholders and taxpayers, residing on Rock avenue, West Second street, Third street and Fourth street, that travel across the Central Railroad tracks on Rock avenue, between Front street and Second street, would respectfully petition your honorable body to locate an electric light on the pole at the crossing of the above tracks, located on the south side of the railroad track at Rock avenue.

"We would respectfully call your attention to the fact that there is not a light located between Front street and Second street in the above territory, and as there is a great deal of traffic at this point, and it is very dark, it is very much needed by the public at large.

"Trusting your honorable body will give this petition favorable action, we remain,

"Yours respectfully,

"J. D. Loizeaux Lumber Company, Ransome Concrete Machine Company, Fred L. Lancaster, U. B. Crane, Charles K. Kellaway, Henry S. Phillips, Thomas J. Wearren, C. J. Christianson, M. Bowden, Mary E. Stutz, W. E. Pine, J. E. Pine."

Accompanying this petition, which was sent to Councilman Charles C. Randolph today for presentation to the Council, will be one for the grading of South Second street, between Clinton and Rock avenues. The residents say the condition of the street holds back necessary improvements. They want the thoroughfare graded so they may learn their curb lines. The residents are ready to assure the Council that as soon as the street is macadamized curbing and sidewalks will be laid immediately.

The roadway is so heavy as it is, the residents say, that the fire department would find it impossible to go through the street with apparatus. they argue that that point alone should be sufficient to induce prompt improvement.

The section affected is rapidly growing as a residence center. Houses are springing up all about, and the new concrete machine factory will lead to an increase in them.

Annual Trip of Inspection.

Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of this city, together with a number of directors of the Lawrence Cement Company, left Plainfield this morning in a special Pullman coach, attached to the 9 o'clock express for Siegfried, Pa., where the company has a large plant. PLAINFIELD CLERICUS ADDRESSED BY DR. HODGES

NEW ENGLAND MINISTER TALKS ON SOCIAL WORK OF A CHRISTIAN CHURCH

The Plainfield Clericus, together with ministers of other denominations, who were present as guests, listened to an instructive and highly entertaining talk by Rev. Dr. George Hodges, of Cambridge, Mass., in the parish house of Grace church, yesterday afternoon. Dr. Hodges is dean of the Episcopal Theological School at Cambridge, and he spoke on the subject of "The Social Work of a Christian Parish."

After briefly reviewing the great changes in church work during the past twenty-five years, showing the marked difference between the earlier days and today and the gradual passing away of the more conservative methods for the progressive one, he referred to the great work of Dr. Rainsford at St. George's church, New York, and spoke of the social side of church life.

Dr. Hodges said that it is now recognized that a man's body needs almost as much attention as his mind, and he added that there is a great deal of temporary value in the parish house, where things other than spiritual can be considered. There has always been a theatre, said the speaker, and there always will be one, and it is the duty of the people to make it better and have it represent the very best things.

The speaker said that a parson should not be like one he heard of who was invincible six days of the week and incomprehensible on the seventh day, yet he is not expected to be a caterer, a lecture manager. His defined duty is to be a priest and prophet, with time to say his prayers and read his Bible. If the parish house interferes with that work better let it burn down. It is the spiritual dealing with the souls of men that a clergyman has to do and he has no right to let anything interfere with that work.

Dr. Hodges said that the parish house is expensive, and it must not be considered that it is always money that means success in Christian work. It has been said that the church is the strongest in the days of her poverty. He urged honest and straightforward dealing on the part of the minister and his people and that the church and business should be carried on the same high plane. The accounts of the parish treasurer, he said, should be examined as carefully as those of any large corporation.

He cautioned his brethren not to overwork the sexton. He believed that ordinarily he was the hardest individual to convert, because he knows the Christian so well. He then spoke of the tendency some parishioners have of sleeping in church, but he did not believe that it was always due to the preacher or the sermon. He characterized it as a hypnotic sleep in which the sexton has a large part in the arrangements of the various lights in the church and he believed a really good converted sexton a help.

Dr. Hodges said that he was a great believer in the sacrament of the glad hand, the effort to see that everyone is made welcome in church and he added that the Christian Social Parish should be fair, friendly and philanthropic and that every effort should point toward social betterment, a fair and proper conception of the questions of rent and wages on the part of employer and employe. He said that in this Democratic government he was glad to know that public opinion still rules and will have its way, and quoting Gov. Winthrop, who said, "When you don't know what to do don't do it," he closed his remarks.

At the suggestion of Rev. E. M. Rodman, rector emeritus of Grace church, a vote of thanks was given to Dr. Hodges. Prior to the address the ministers enjoyed a lunch prepared and served by women of the parish, including Mrs. H. M. Stockton, Mrs. James E. Martine, Mrs. T. W. T. Maxwell, Mrs. Charles King, Mrs. Hyatt, Miss Tweedy, Miss Titus and several others.

ASSOCIATION MEN DINE

Annual Dinner of the Y. M. C. A. Attended by 150 Members.

SPEECH BY DR. RAYMOND

Union College President Tells of the Debt Men Owe to One Another —C. C. Michner Also Speaks.

Y. M. C. A. men to the number of 150 sat down to the annual dinner of the association in the auditorium last night. The hall was handsomely decorated with flowers. The stage, on which the speakers' table was placed, was banked with palms and ferns. The table was decorated with flowers.

Seated about President Joseph W. Gavett, the toastmaster, on the platform, were Rev. Dr. A. V. V. Raymond, president of Union College; C. C. Michner, secretary of the Young People's Forward Missionary Movement; L. E. Hawkins, State secretary of the Y. M. C. A.; Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, and the following former presidents and vice presidents of the association: H. O. Newman, George Cornwell, C. W. McCutchen, J. D. Spicer and D. E. Titsworth. Dr. Lewis said grace.

The following menu was served, under the direction of Mrs. Lena Hellstrom; the first course was served at 7:15 o'clock:

Blue Points
Celery Saltines Olives
Soup Juliene
Rolls
Roast Turkey, Cranberry Sauce
Mashed Potatoes Sweet Potatoes
Peas
Waldorf Salad
Cream Cheese Crackers
Neapolitan Ice Cream Assorted Cakes
Coffee

Music by the Vivo Trio was an accompaniment to the courses.

Dr. Raymond and Mr. Michner were the speakers. Dr. Raymond is a former pastor of Trinity Reformed church, and he was cordially greeted when he arose to speak. His address, on the independence of men, produced a deep impression. In substance, he spoke as follows:

"I am a Plainfielder tonight (applause). I look around me and see my contemporaries still to the fore, doing the good work yet. There is something about Plainfield that keeps men young. I am glad to be among your again; very glad.

"A text fits everywhere and one of St. Paul's statements seems to be applicable here. 'I am a debtor,' he said. Paul had something in mind when he called himself that. I have an idea that what we need is the application of a higher principle of obligation.

"Take that idea of debt. Only one idea is fundamental, yet men apply it so differently we can judge a man by the way he applies it. With one man the debt has to take the form of exact words, in writing. That is lowest form of commercial honesty. Another man is satisfied with the word of indebtedness. There is still another man who recognizes the fact of debt, and feels his duty to meet the debt whenever he receives a benefit. He recognizes value received. Gratitude, as we know it, is simply that.

"Every divine command must rest on something that is recognized. The idea of Christian stewartship rests on the idea of obligation. Now, Paul doesn't say he is in debt to God. Some things go without saying.

"We hear of self-made men; I am getting very tired of hearing of self-made men. No man lives by himself. We are debtors to every class of men; our lives represent value received from many sources. There is nothing more finding on the conscience of an honest man than the support of all the institutions in his community; no man ought to hesitate in his support of the Y. M. C. A.

"Debt includes the obligation of one to discharge that duty which comes to us as a trust. The man who receives a message for another must deliver the message or be false to his trust. Paul recognized that the message of the Gospel had come to him not for himself alone, but for all the world, and he went about the world paying that debt.

"Money is not the most precious thing you possess. It is the thing that is least strongly yours. It is more easily parted from you than anything else. Your character, your ideals and your stout heart are worth more to you than your money.

"No man is quite so foolish as he who fails to recognize the trust that comes with possession. No race so foolhardy as that which fails to recognize the duty that lies in the recognition of obligation. The idea of mutual interest, of brotherhood, of community of interests, is making the history of the twentieth century. We can't look at the Bible without seeing our duty to all the world writ large. 140 PLAYERS IN PARK CLUB'S ANNUAL EUCHRE

MILITARY IDEA CARRIED OUT IN A NOVEL WAY.

The annual military euchre at the Park Club, last night, was largely attended and a great success. There were thirty-five tables and 140 people engaged in playing the game. The military idea was carried out in a novel way. Each table was made to represent a fort and was decorated with American flags. The players were expected to defend the various forts.

The playing opened with bugle call and drum beats and the changes throughout the game were announced in the same way. There were two sections—A and B. Those winning prizes in section A were as follows:

First—Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lyman. Second—Miss VanDeventer. Miss White, H. K. White, Mrs. G. G. Davidge. Third—Dr. and Mrs. Frank W. French, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. White. In section B the prize winners were as follows: First—Mr. and Mrs. T. W. T. Maxwell, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lyon. Second—Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Abbott. Third—Miss Adelaide Ball, Miss Elsie Brokaw, Rowland Rice and Charles Faber.

The affair was under the auspices of the entertainment committee and the direction of Frank D. Swayney, who arranged the euchre last year. After the play social features were enjoyed and refreshments were served.

GRAND JURY PUTS BAN ON GIFT MAKING CUSTOM

PASSES RESOLUTION ABOLISHING THE PRACTISE IN VOGUE FOR YEARS.

According to a resolution, adopted by the Union County Grand Jury, today, the custom of presenting gifts to the foreman and clerks upon the conclusion of a session of the Grand Jury, is to be abolished. It has always been customary for members of the Grand Jury to make presentation to its foreman and clerk, and in many instances the gifts have been expensive. The practice had reached such a stage it began to be an important financial item to the juries.

When the Grand Jury returned to court this noon, thirty-five indictments were presented, making fifty-two in all during the session. While the body has completed its labors, the members are held subject to the call of the court in cases of emergency.

GOLD MEDAL MINSTRELS GET ANOTHER BIG CROWD.

S. R. O. Sign Out at New Market Where the Local Troupe Played An Engagement Last Night.

Stormy weather proved no barrier to the drawing powers of the Gold Medal minstrel troupe at New Market, last night, and the local black face artists were greeted by an S. R. O. audience when the curtain went up at Friendship Hall. The programme was practically a new one throughout and the artists made individual hits in various numbers. One of the features in the olio was the first appearance with the troupe of George Bennett, of Netherwood, for two seasons cornet soloist with LaBarre Brothers' minstrels. He performed upon the instrument, last night, in a manner that won him hearty applause and established him as a favorite.

The performance was given under the auspices of the New Market school for the benefit of its piano fund and will be repeated for the same purpose in a few weeks at South Plainfield and also Bound Brook, both places being in the district presided over by School Superintendent Metz.

A joker in last night's audience let loose a large dose of new pepper preparation, being worked to death in Plainfield at present, and the first part of the programme was interrupted by continued sneezing. The performers got it as bad as the audience and some of the singers could hardly proceed with their numbers.

Lodge of Elks at Rahway.

Plans are about complete for the institution of a lodge of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks in Rahway. There are now twenty-one members of the order residents of Rahway who belong to the Elizabeth lodge, and with the institution of the new lodge they will withdraw to affiliate with it.

Word has been received from Stanton, Hunterdon county, telling of the serious illness, with appendicitis, of Mrs. Peter B. Laire, a former resident of Plainfield.

YEAR IN THE Y. M. C. A.

President J. W. Gavett's Review of Association Activities.

MEMBERSHIP GROWTH

Still Short of the 1,000 at Which the Workers Have Been Aiming— Praise for Physical Director.

The annual review of the years' work in the Y. M. C. A. was presented to the members at the annual dinner last night by President Joseph W. Gavett. His statement included all the departments of activity. It was as follows:

To the members of the Young Men's Christian Association of Plainfield.

The work of the past twelve months has been in the main the same character as in former years. We have not accomplished all we desired, but we have been successful in some new ways. Our membership is 505 men, 124 boys, a total of 629.

August 1st we called Mr. G. L. Listman to take charge of our physical department, and under his direction the gymnasium has been put in first class condition. He has advanced the work beyond lines yet attempted, and has all the classes in good running order. Besides the regular work, he has organized—basketball leagues, and—separate teams giving many more members a chance to play the game. Mr. Listman has also organized an Intercity Baseball League with five teams—Bound Brook, Clinton Avenue, Dunellen, Scotch Plains and Y. M. C. Each team to play sixteen games; a pennant to be given to the winner.

A new feature inaugurated by him is the Sunday-school Athletic League; eight Sunday-schools have entered, and a meet is to be held in our gymnasium on February 1st. These leagues have been very successful in larger cities, and we believe they will be a help to the Sunday-schools and our Association as well as to the members of the league. Mr. Charles McCutchen is president of the league, and has offered a silver cup to the Sunday-school winning the most points.

We have six classes in our gymnasium with a total average attendance of 109.

The Interschoiastic Basketball League has been one of the features of the year's work. We are sure many people that need the exercise do not avail themselves of our well equipped gymnasium, and the scientific instruction given by our physical instructor. In speaking of athletics, we cannot but wish we had an athletic field on which we could have all our out-door sports, and also have a place for our Sunday-school Athletic League to have its games.

Our Association has been represented this year at Northfield, Silver Bay, and Lake George. We have contributed both to the State and International work.

A new feature was the automobile class, organized by our secretary, Mr. Robbie. Eighteen men enrolled in the class, and C. B. Brokaw, of New York, a very proficient instructor, had charge. We hope to have this class again this year.

We have assisted about sixty men to find boarding houses, and positions of employment, and are increasing our usefulness this way more every year.

The department of religious work has been given a prominent place in the Association's activities during the year, and while results possibly have not been all that could have been wished, yet the labor has not been bestowed in vain.

Various methods have been employed to reach men, and much effort expended to make the meetings attractive and helpful.

There have been several men who have publicly professed Christ, united with the church, and who have been greatly helped in their religious lives.

The meetings have been more varied in character the past year than usual. Several meetings having been held in the New Plainfield theatre at which eminent speakers have addressed the meetings, and we hope with good effect.

In place of our regular Sunday afternoon meetings in the hall during the summer, we tried holding some open air meetings in Concert Park, and some of which were largely attended by men, women, and children, and they seemed to enjoy them.

Several Sunday afternoon conferences on religious themes were conducted by our general secretary which were helpful.

The Bible class work has not been as well supported as we had hoped, though considerable effort had been made to enlist the interest of our members in this work.

The shop meetings have been one of the most promising fields of the

GRANDSON OF TRUSTEE STRUCK MISS STEELE

UNRULY PUPILS SAID TO HAVE BEEN CONDONED BY PRINCIPAL.

Additional facts relative to the resignation of Miss Margaret Steele, the South Plainfield school teacher who was forced to resign on account of lack of support from the school authorities in her efforts to curb unruly pupils, were made public this morning. Miss Steele's resignation is the culmination of trouble which began last September. Lloyd Harris, grandson of J. F. TenEyck, a trustee, has been especially annoying, and every effort made by Miss Steele to discipline the youngster met with a rebuke from the Board of Trustees and Principal Meskill, it is said. Harris is the boy who is said to have punched the teacher until she sank to the floor weeping.

Other boy pupils followed the example set by Harris, and openly defied their teacher. When the disorderly pupils were sent to Principal Meskill for punishment they were treated kindly, it is alleged, and told to return to their class-room and pay no attention to the teacher. It is charged that a member of the Board of Trustees circulated the report that Miss Steele was abusing her pupils, and many parents advised their children to act as they thought best. As a consequence they sneered at their teacher and talked out loud during the school hours. When she rebuked them, they laughed at her.

Mrs. Joseph Harlow, who has three children in the school, declared last night that the conduct of the Board of Trustees and some of the parents who encouraged their children to defy Miss Steele, was outrageous.

"I have known Miss Steele ever since she came to South Plainfield, and I always regarded her as a splendid teacher and an especially nice young woman," said Mrs. Harlow last night to a reporter. "I had no fault to find with the way she handled my children. Some of the trustees say she was cruel, but I know better."

Mrs. Harlow called her son Joseph to testify as to the kindness and capability of Miss Steele. Residents of South Plainfield are now talking of making a complaint against the boy to the Board of Trustees. When Trustee Ten Eyck was seen last night he said:

"I cannot see what interest there can be in the resignation of a teacher. She had no reason to resign except that she wanted to go home for a rest."

CHOIR'S LAST MEETING.

Trinity Church Chorus Body Passes Out With Social.

The members of Trinity Reformed church chorus choir, which was given way to a quartette, held its last meeting at the home of Horace J. Martin on Watchung avenue last night. The attendance numbered forty in all and the usual features of a social gathering were enjoyed.

During the evening the "last will and testament" of the choir was read and by its terms all the affairs are to be wound up at once. Horace J. Martin and Arthur L. Titsworth were made executors. The will was read by Mrs. Fred J. Huff and it occasioned a great deal of amusement.

Death of Rev. Robert Miller.

Rev. Robert Miller, of Clinton, Iowa, died in the hospital at that place, yesterday. He had been ill with valvular heart trouble for over a year. He leaves a wife and daughter, Grace. The remains will be brought to the family plot in the Rahway cemetery on Friday. Mr. Miller married Miss Louise Johnson, of Duer street, a sister of Miss Grace and Charles W. Johnson and Mrs. Sarah Randolph, who at present reside at 103 Duer street.

Plainfield Ministers Meet.

Following the meeting of the Plainfield Clericus at Grace church parish house, yesterday afternoon, the members of the Plainfield Ministers' Association, including the ministers of all denominations here, held a meeting to discuss matters of more or less importance.

Rev. H. H. Baker's Funeral.

The funeral of Rev. Halsey H. Baker, who died at his home on East Fifth street, Monday night, will be held at the house tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis and Rev. George B. Shaw will have charge. Interment will be at Hillside.

TALKS OF DRYDEN LETTER

Senator Ackerman Expresses His Opinion Relative to the Candidate's Statement.

"WHY DOES HE PERSIST"

Asks If There Are No Other Deserving Republicans in the State of New Jersey.

Referring to the letter which he received from Senator Dryden, Saturday, Senator Ernest R. Ackerman expressed himself as follows in conversation with a Daily Press reporter this morning:

"Senator Dryden in his letter admits the force of public opinion and practically concedes that it is not a 'will o' the wisp' thing which one of the papers supporting him says it is—to that extent there is division between them. Senator Dryden grants its power while his followers are indifferent to its existence as shown by the position of some of his supporters.

"Mr. Dryden thinks that the public opinion against his re-election is based upon a misapprehension. He concedes the existence of the opposition but feels that it is in error. Any man is strikingly daring and supremely self-satisfied who will chance the future and the principles of his party on the strength of his individuality, and particularly so when some other gentleman may be selected upon whom we can unite thus bringing harmony of action within party counsels.

"The voters who have endorsed my position are men of character, representing a powerful element of the party and they are not of that type who change with the direction of the wind. Senator Dryden will admit to be true the statement that we can select a Senator other than himself, who will stand with directness and enthusiasm for all the principles and advanced thoughts of Republican Statesmanship. Why then should he insist that our action must narrow down to only his re-election? Are there no other deserving Republicans in the State of New Jersey? Does Mr. Dryden wish to say 'I am Alpha and Omega' of the Republican party?

"If the prosperity of the country is due to the wise Statesmanship of the Republican party, as I think it is, then we all owe in some measure a debt of gratitude to the Republican party and that also includes Mr. Dryden. Does the gentleman take exception? If so, why? Are we under obligation to him or is he under obligation to the Republican party?

"Mr. Dryden is even under greater obligations to the party than the great majority of the people, for while all have benefitted and shared in the general prosperity, his portion, has perhaps, been larger owing to his many and extended interests in the various corporations of the State.

"I am not questioning the legitimacy of his profits, but merely stating a fact. Who will deny that some of the voters cast their ballots at the September primaries who were influenced by local conditions and without any thought of the Senatorship?

"Who will be so bold as to assert, in the absence of a popular vote for United States Senator, that the office belongs to one man and that we must foreclose a mortgage as a personal asset?

"What is public opinion? Do the friends of Mr. Dryden think that it is merely a 'will o' the wisp' thing? In the absence of a vote how are we to gauge it? Perhaps no one can say with authority that the people of a county or a State are unanimously against this or that man or measure, but it does not require a very quick eye or keen insight to see and know that there is an opposition among the people to the election of Mr. Dryden which is both bitter and serious. Mr. Dryden thinks that it is based on a misapprehension. Does Mr. Dryden wish us to go forth among the people and tell them that they are indulging in visions and false notions and misapprehensions? Does he wish to put the Republican party on the defensive?

"Does he think he can make an address which will convince the people that they are totally wrong on their line of thought? The people are not opposed to men of affairs and to men of success—if they were, the future of our great country would be very despairing.

"What the people do object to is the idea of a group of men controlling powerful public corporations, reaching out with the object of political domination, and Mr. Dryden's candidacy seems to personify that thought among them. It appears like a case of vaulting ambition overleaping itself.

"The opposition to Mr. Dryden within Republican ranks, is not of a socialistic character in any of its tendencies.

"It comes from good, true Ameri-

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

RAHWAY.

A conflagration was averted in the Vanderhoven block on Main street last night. A Russian has opened a store in one end of the block, occupying rooms in the rear. Last night Mrs. Oscar Schwarze, passing through the main hall, saw a blaze in the rooms, and knowing that the family had gone to New York, called her husband, who broke into the apartments and found that a candle had been left burning, from which papers had caught fire. The woodwork was beginning to blaze when Mr. Schwarze extinguished the flames.

Daniel Schweitzer, fourteen years old, was the recipient of a birthday reception last night from about fifty of his playmates at his home in Clark township. Music was furnished by the Schweitzer orchestra. Supper was served. William Schweitzer was toastmaster, "Eddie" Grube won the potato prize. Miss Freda Schweitzer was prize winner in the beauty contest.

The funeral of Mrs. Elizabeth A., widow of William Green, was held last night at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Wright, in West Grand street, where she died Saturday night. Interment took place today in New York.

David Lane, injured by falling on the railroad track Saturday night, did not recover consciousness until yesterday. He is now believed to be out of danger.

Mrs. Francis McAvoy, of Cherry street, is visiting in New Brunswick.

NORTH BRANCH.

The funeral of Henry H. Covert, sixty-eight years old, was held yesterday. He was a son of the late Minna F. Covert, and was a veteran of the Civil War, having been a member of Company I, First New Jersey Cavalry. He was wounded at Hatcher's Run, Va., February 7, 1865, and discharged from the United States General Hospital in Baltimore at the close of the war. He leaves a widow, four children and two sisters. He was a Republican in politics, and cast his first vote for Abraham Lincoln.

Peter McGowan, the missing freight conductor, whose body was found Sunday at Mariner's Harbor, Staten Island, was a brother of Michael McGowan, of North Branch Depot.

Rev. W. W. Conner, pastor of the Belleville Reformed church, will preach Sunday in the Reformed church in this place.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Chauncey Brokaw, of this place, spent Sunday with friends at Bedminster.

BOUND BROOK.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Apgar, of Elizabeth street, South Bound Brook, entertained over Sunday their daughter, Miss Nora Apgar, of Newark; Raymond Stryker, of Newark; Miss Bertha Brown, of Flemington, and Miss Brown's grandmother, Mrs. Brown, of Somerville.

Milton Apgar, who has been confined to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Apgar, in Cedar street, South Bound Brook, for several weeks with rheumatism, is convalescent.

Ice nine inches thick is being harvested by the icemen of this vicinity. No ice had been cut here this season until yesterday.

Mrs. William Long is laid up at her home in Canal street, South Bound Brook, by illness.

WESTFIELD.

The Roads Committee of the Board of Freeholders is trying to break up the custom of farmers along Plainfield avenue leaving loaded wagons over night by the roadside, without any warning light on them. These wagons have been a terror to automobilists and have caused several accidents.

Harry Milligan has been appointed assistant superintendent at the Westfield car barn, in place of H. J. Higgins, who resigned. The date of closing the junction shops has been deferred, on account of delay in completing the buildings at Dunellen.

Mrs. Charles F. Harper will entertain the Social and Literary Circle of the Westfield Methodist church at her home, 198 Prospect street, tomorrow afternoon, at 3 o'clock.

Notice has been given that the annual meeting of the Immediate Aid Association will be held next Thursday night at Arcanum Hall.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Mayor Wyckoff has not yet appointed a recorder for 1907. He has been acting as recorder, and may continue to do so to save money for the borough. If the borough can afford a recorder, there is none better fitted for the place than the present incumbent, D. S. Campbell.

The Methodist church will make an effort to lift the last remaining debt on Sunday. Dr. Krantz, of the Book Concern, and Presiding Elder Halloran will be present.

The landlord and tenant case of Pauline Ruhl against Jacob Stuckler has been settled. It was to have been heard in Justice Von Minden's court.

Reliable Money Lenders

of having one's credit good possibly at this time of the year, is a little more noticeable than at any other. Perhaps yours is in excellent shape, but you have already used it as far as you can e to go, and are still at little short. Then step in and let us assist you. We're taking care of winter's needs for hundreds whose credit is good, but who hesitate to obligate themselves any further to their friends, and particulary for a loan of a little cash. We loan any sum for any time and accept return payment weekly, semi-monthly or monthly.

We give you a written statement showing the exact cost of a loan, also the exact discount we allow every month the loan is paid before contract time. You will find us always willing to give you facts at our office. If you cannot call, write or 'phone us, and our confidential agent will call and give you full particulars.

The possession of household goods, piano, organ, horses and wagons are sufficient evidence of your ability to pay.

His Ruse Didn't Work.

New York, Jan. 30. William Mpasley, who was indicted for grand larceny and escaped sentence to a long term in jail by telling Judge Dike, in the County Court last week that he was a deserter from the battleship Rhode Island, now in Boston, and was turned over to the New York Navy Yard officials, was taken back to the Raymond street jail yesterday and will be resentenced next Monday. Under guard of four marines the young man was taken before Captain Bowman, of the Rhode Island, where he could not be identified as a member of the crew, and he was brought back to Brooklyn yesterday and given over to the Sheriff.

South American Killing.

Caracas, Venezuela, Jan. 30.—Dr. Luis Mata Illa, Governor of the federal district of Caracas, with a body of troops, surprised Monday night a secret meeting, which was being held in the coach house of General Juan Vicente Gomez, First Vice President of the republic. In the fighting which ensued Dr. Mata Illa received wounds from which he has since died, several men were killed outright, and many others were wounded, among them General Uzcategui, commander of the government troops in the Federal district. Serious trouble is anticipated.

Lehigh Men Musn't Drink.

Wilkesbarre, Pan., Jan. 30.—It is reported here that in a few days the Lehigh Valley Railroad will issue a formal order for every employe in the telegraph department and on trains to take the pledge of total abstinence and to keep it in force during the time of employment by the road. Having for some time encouraged employes to be total abstainers, and having observed the steady and reliable work of such employes, the officials have decided to make the total absitnence order obligatory.

Leaped Into a Furnace.

Uniontown, Pa., Jan. 30.—Tired of life, owing probably to mental troubles, Tony Sain, a foreigner, went to a coke oven at Oliver No. 1 yesterday, deliberately undressed in the cold and threw himself naked, head first into the bed of fire and was burned to death. Sain was wandering about the streets several days ago and the officers locked him up to investigate his sanity, but his brother obtained his release.

Mine Explosion Kills Scores.

Charleston, W. V., Jan. 30.—More than sixty persons are known to be dead as a result of an explosion in the Stewart mine, near Fayette county, last night. Forty bodies have been found and identified while over twenty more bodies await identification. At the time of the explosion there were about two hundred men in the shaft, and there is grave apprehension that most of them perished.

Opposes Osteopathy Bill.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 30.—Resolutions were adopted at the annual meeting of the Medical Society of the State of New York yesterday directing the Legislative Committee to oppose the so-called osteopathy bill now pending before the Legislature, which would provide for the regulation of osteopathy as other recognized schools of medicine.

The Plainfield Trust Company ranks among the best institutions of its kind in the metropolitan district. The business is growing every day, because the banking and saving public recognize the value of the Trust Company.

CLOSED PORTALS.

On account of the Junior banquet at the Casino tomorrow night, there will be no meeting of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M.

Friday night, February 15, will be "ladies' night" at Salaam Temple, Ancient Arabic Order Nobles Mystic Shrine, in Krueger's Auditorium, Newark.

H. H. Webb has resigned as financial secretary of Plainfield Council, No. 293, Jr. O. U. A. M., and Joel Pennington has been elected in his place. At the meeting Monday night one candidate was initiated.

Ten Masons from this city were among the 1,119 candidates who were initiated into the mysteries of Salaam Temple, Ancient Arabic Order Nobles Mystic Schrine, Newark, last night. A banquet followed.

Swettenham Takes It Back.

London, Jan. 30.—Governor Swettenham, of Jamaica, has formally withdrawn his letter to Rear Admiral Davis, ordering the American war ships withdrawn from Kingston and has expressed his regret for having written it, thus closing the international phase of the incident. Governor Swettenham's withdrawal of his letter, and his apology followed voluminous telegraphic communications to him from the Colonial office. The despatch which has now closed the incident was sent by the Governor to the Colonial Office, whence it reached the State Department, through the Foreign Office and Charge d'Affaires Howard, in the usual course.

Hit Murphy's Pocketbook.

New York, Jan. 30.—What was regarded as the hardest blow that has been dealt direct to Charles F. Murphy in his fight with Mayor McClellan was the cancellation yesterday by Dock Commissioner Bensel of a dumping permit which Mr. Murphy's contracting company had on the pier at East Twenty-third street. Over the action of Mr. Bensel the followers of the Tammany leaders were thrown into a state of mild panic, and their fears were heightened by the announcement by the Dock Commissioner that he intends to break all pier leases held by the Murphy concern if it is possible to do so.

Fine Production Is Promised.

The rehearsal of "The Chimes of Normandy," to be given at the Casino on Thursday night, February 7, by the Plainfield Operatic Association, was one of the best and there is every indication that the production will eclipse all previous efforts. It is by far the most ambitious attempt made by the association and as the opera is a popular one it should not fail to please. The music is catchy and all the parts are well taken. The chorus has attained a satisfactory degree of proficiency. As the production has been put on a subscription basis, naturally some seats have been taken already. However, there are many good seats left.

Mrs. Fisk, wife of Rev. Charles Fisk, of Somerville, accompanied by her son, is stopping in Plainfield during the absence of Mr. Fisk on a missionary trip in the West.

ONLY ONE DAY LEFT YOU.

The Last Day of the January FURNITURE SALE.

If you have failed for any reason to participate in this annual distribution of High-Grade Furniture at greatly lowered prices we would urge you to come tomorrow, for there is but one day left of the January Furniture Sale.

Few stores in America carry fuller stocks at any time than we have here today, and though at the close of the year's biggest furniture event, the stock is far from being depleted.

The variety of styles, despite the biggest selling we have ever done, is still immense and satisfying.

Many of the special things advertised, a number of which we had duplicates, are still here for you, and any number of the odd pieces and samples are here to choose from.

If you have a furniture need supply it now while you can save at least 10 per cent., and in many cases one-half the usual purchase price.

We mention only a few of the good things that may be taken advantage of tomorrow—the last day of the sale.

Plainfield, N. J., January 30, 1907.

An exchange has "discovered" that the agitation among some prominent residents of Washington Park for the separation of that section of the borough for the purpose of making another borough does not exist. "A borough within a borough would be somewhat new" is its comment though it is not made quite clear just how this would happen especially when the plan as suggested is to have all that territory west of Grove street included in the proposed separate municipality. There is no doubt that the scheme will never be realized but to say that there has been no agitation along that line is a confession of ignorance of local affairs.

SPALDING GETS HOUSE AFTER MUCH LITIGATION.

Obtains Possession of Sea Bright Cottage, for Which He Long Fought David Lamar.

Sea Bright, Jan. 30.—A. G. Spalding is in possession of his Rumson road cottage, after several years' litigation with David Lamar, the Wall street broker, who figured conspicuously in the Monk Eastman case. Mr. Spalding yesterday got a verdict in the Court of Chancery before Vice-Chancellor Eugene Stevenson, and last night Edmund Wilson, Mr. Spaulding's counsel, with a small party of constables and detectives, surrounded the Spalding house.

Lamar had left two men in charge, with instructions to allow no one to enter. The house had been stripped of its furniture. After the house had been surrounded the back door was bursted open and the men in charge taken captive. The two were taken to Red Bank and sent to New York. Mr. Spalding is now in possession of the house.

GAS AFFECTS WHOLE FAMILY.

Phillipsburg Couple and Their Six Children Nearly Killed.

Phillipsburg, Jan. 30.—Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Storms and their six children were discovered in an unconscious condition from coal gas at their home, that place, yesterday. Neighbors saw no one about the Storms home, and on going to the house detected coal gas escaping from every crevice.

The door was forced open and a smothered coal fire in a heater on the first floor, which was throwing considerable gas, told the story. The neighbors rushed to the sleeping apartments of the family, and then summoned Dr. H. A. Shemer, who gave immediate aid to the afflicted family. The condition of two of the small children is the most serious, although the entire family will be confined to their home several days before completely recovered.

Engine Works Swept By Fire.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 30.—Threatening the entire plant of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, fire destroyed the paint, jacketing and tool department of the works at Broad and Spring Garden street last evening, entailing a loss of half a million dollars. The lives of six hundred men were endangered. A terrific explosion, caused as far as could be ascertained by spontaneous combustion in the paint department, raised the roof off the four story building clear into the air.

Sues for Fourth Divorce.

Central City, Neb., Jan. 30.—Married four times to the same man within three years, three decrees of divorce granted from him within that time and one divorce suit now pending, is the record of Mrs. Patrick Fagan, who yesterday filed suit for divorce against her husband. Divorce has become such an ordinary event in the Fagan household that it is no longer a subject of scandal or even comment among the friends.

—The Sesame Club will meet tomorrow morning at the residence of Miss Ida Cook, 144 Crescent avenue.

UNION FREEHOLDERS ATTEND ASSEMBLY SESSION.

Talk With Hudson Men of Proposed Bridge Connecting Elizabeth and Bayonne City.

Trenton, Jan. 30.—The Legislative Committee of Union County's Board of Freeholders was in Trenton last night and attended the session of the Assembly. Those in attendance were: County Collector N. R. Leavitt and Freeholders Charles H. Smith, of Westfield; Noah Woodruff, J. Logan Fay, Henry Krouse, Thos. J. Pierson and Director of the Board Benjamin King.

A matter that came up for discussion between the committee and a number of the Hudson county Assemblymen was the building of the proposed bridge connecting Elizabeth with Bayonne City. The Hudson county men are in favor of the bridge and it is likely that a bill will be introduced at this session allowing the two counties of Hudson and Union to build the bridge if they so choose. Valentine Holzapfel, of Bayonne, is the Assemblyman who has the matter in hand. He proposed to the Union county Freeholders that a conference be held in Elizabeth at an early date to consider the question and probable cost.

Freeholder Woodruff expects to have a bill introduced regulating the amounts to be paid to election officers for their services on Election Day.

ITALIAN SOCIETIES QUARREL.

Nonsuit Granted So that Elizabeth Case Can Be Taken to Newark.

Elizabeth, Jan. 30.—A fight is on here between two rival Italian beneficial societies, with the result that their quarrel will now be settled by the court. Four years ago St. Lucy's Italian Catholic Society was organized, and Salvator Manette, a leader in the Italian colony in Elizabeth, was elected treasurer. The society was incorporated and an article in the incorporation paper stated the society should meet in Treasurer Manette's hall. This was done for two years, and then the members began to find fault with the treasurer because he rented the hall to others on the society's regular meeting night.

A majority of the members then decided to meet elsewhere. When they went to get their paraphernalia and other property Manette refused to give up the goods, and formed with a minority of the members an opposition St. Lucy's Society. Then the members of the original organization appealed to the Elizabeth District Court to recover its property from Manette. The case came up yesterday afternoon.

The plaintiffs, after a conference with their lawyer, decided to ask for a non-suit so that the matter could be carried to the Court of Chancery in Newark. Judge Swift granted the application.

LITTLE GIRL BADLY BURNED.

Tot Plays with Matches and Result Is Almost Fatal.

South Bound Brook, Jan. 30.—While playing with matches, Evelyn Morecraft, about four years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Morecraft, of this place, was seriously burned at her home in Franklin street yesterday. Mrs. Morecraft had left the child upstairs while she was attending to some work below. Hearing the child scream, Mrs. Morecraft rushed to the room above and found the little one enveloped in flames.

Mrs. Morecraft seized a quilt and wrapped it around the child and extinguished the fire. The child's limbs, body and face were terribly burned. Mrs. Morecraft's hands were badly burned in her endeavor to save the child. Dr. Robinson, of Bound Brook, who was called in to dress the child's burns, said that she was in a serious condition, but he thought she would recover. Mr. and Mrs. Morecraft had a child burned to death four years ago.

Transfers and Contracts.

across every page, so plain is the injunction.

"Do not let us talk of the difference between the church and the Y. M. C. A. The Y. M. C. A. draws its strength from the churches. Le the churches lose their vigor and the Y. M. C. A. would wither and die. You can't divorce the Y. M. C. A. from the church in any way. The Y. M. C. A. does the work in a practical way. I believe in doing good work in a direct way, without striving always to win communicants to the church. Christ did not feed the hungry just to preach to them afterwards. He fed them because they were hungry. We cannot reach the souls of men through their bodies so let us not be looking too much for spiritual results through physical ministries, but let us keep up our physical ministries because they are of the spirit of Christ, if they are done in Christ's spirit."

Mr. Michner spoke on the work of the Y. M. C. A., in part as follows:

"The story of the Young Men's Christian Association reads like that of great conquest. Every conquest has conflict, and the Y. M. C. A. has not been without it. The workers have had their struggle with the deadly influences that surround them in the cities.

"The methods of this institution are often misunderstood and criticised by men who should be its friends. The work of the organization is that of reaching the unchurched men for the church. It has the most difficult task to be given Christian men.

"There are reasons for the success of the movement. It has succeeded because it is a layman's movement. The young man's point of view has changed in thirty years. Thirty years ago the ideal man was the clergyman, today it is the business man. I wonder if the business men realize the impression they are making on young men.

"This is a movement of young men for young men. The association has been working along scientific lines that produce results. It has had as the center of its work always the city association. It has met the problems of saloons, boss in politics and the other evil influences of the city. Much of the unrest of present time because of lack of advancement may be traced to lack of early educational advantages in the city young men. The educational work of the Y. M. C. A. scores and scores of trained men, in specific lines of work, enabling them to do work in a better way. Our physical departments give them better bodies, a service of high value in the city communities, where physical weakness is so prevalent. Further in the line of classes it has tried to help the solution of the industrial problem. It has done something to help overcome the awful conditions sometimes found in factory towns. The idea that workingmen do not care to listen to religious talk is not sound. I have found workingmen earnest listeners. The socialists have been putting tons of rot in factory towns. There is no way to counteract those teachings but through the Y. M. C. A.

"I must say just a word about the foreign work. The large majority of the men in the Christian church at home have not seen their duty in the spread of the Gospel throughout the world. The Young Men's Christian Association has seen its duty in that field, and has put as many secretaries there as at home. The Y. M. C. A. believes that Christ gave the Gospel for all the world, and not merely for the United States.

"We have laid emphasis on personal work. Man by man, the faithful men win souls to their Saviour. The association has sought in a quiet way to lead men into a practical belief in the Scriptures. The Scriptures will rise or fall by what they do for the lives of those who apply their teachings, not by what is or is not said about them.

"The suburb is one of the best promoters of selfishness that exists. Its restfulness is tempting to men who should be working for the advancement of their fellows."

The dinner committee was made up of James E. Kimball, chairman; G. M. Rittenhouse, Curtis M. Thorpe and Duncan W. Taylor.

YEAR IN THE Y. M. C. A.

religious work. Five shops have been opened to us, and the response on the part of the men has been most encouraging. This work seems most nearly like following the Master's great command—"Go yet into all the world and preach the gospel, etc." While it is sometimes difficult to get men to the Sunday meetings there is little difficulty in getting their attendance and interest at the noon hour in the shops.

Interest in the foreign work has been maintained though not advanced as far as we had hoped. Mr. E. T. Colton gave us a Saturday evening address on the subject. It is the desire of the Association to place a secretary of our own in the foreign field as soon as we can possibly do so.

Summary — Thirty-eight gospel meetings in large hall, Sunday afternoon, total attendance, 3,087; average attendance, 81; five theatre meetings—total attendance, 2,061; average, 412; four open air meetings, total attendance of men (beside women and children) over 600; four Sunday afternoon conferences, average attendance about 16; total 5,829; Mr. Murray's Bible class, eight sessions, average attendance about 15; Mr. Manning's Bible class, eight sessions, average attendance about 7½.

A business men's Bible class was organized in the fall, with Dr. Jesse Lyman Hurlbut as teacher. Subject, Outline Studies Old Testiment History. It was hoped that this class would be very attractive but only about fifteen persons have been present at the various sessions, though the lessons were extremely interesting and helpful.

The Association is under obligation to our local singers and instrumentalists who have kindly assisted in our meetings.

During a week in April, the Rines Bros., Canadian evangelists, conducted meetings in the hall and at some outside places, which were productive of good though the attendance of men was small.

Special meetings for conference and prayer have been hold at various times, having in mind the interest of our work.

Eight men from the Association went to the Northfield Bible study conferences October 18th. Dr. A. F. Schauffler gave a most helpful talk on Bible study, and the work of prayer was observed by holding the meetings in the parlor.

The Ladies' Auxiliary, numbering 200, has in the past years been a great help to us in taking care of part of our building, and arranging our banquets and entertainments.

A very important work we do is the work for boys which embraces nearly all our lines of activity grouped together in this one department. They have in this branch of our work four Bible classes, and have had cross country runs, and outings of many kinds. The summer camp was attended by seventeen boys. Bible training class is also carried on.

Our boys' manual training school has been conducted about the same as last year, teaching carpentry, molding, and mechanical drawing.

We have had our regular Star Course that has always furnished clean and attractive entertainment free to our members.

Mr. J. H. Manning, who had been secretary of our Association for nearly twenty years, resigned September 1st, and a reception was given him in October, at which time his numerous friends spoke many words of praise about his long and faithful service.

The treasury has a deficit of $1,525. A total of $8,711.84 was received during the year. The $1,000 note due on our engine amount was paid off this fall. We have had an unusual number of necessary repairs to make, new floors, plumbing, heaters, etc., and expended on these $735.99. Of the deficit $475 has been subscribed, leaving $1,150 unprovided for.

Both Mr. Robbie and Mr. Listman have been energetic, progressive, and have done a great deal of hard work, and what has been accomplished by the Association has been largely due to their fidelity to their occupation.

In addition to the foregoing, the large amount of time devoted to personal work of many kinds by our general secretary and others must not be passed over unnoticed, it goes on regularly 365 days in the year, does not get in the papers, and is known to very few.

We extend a cordial invitation to all the men of Plainfield to frequent our building. It is fitting to recognize here the faithful services of our employes, and to acknowledge the many favors for which we as an Association are indebted to many whose gifts and services rendered have so encouraged those engaged in this enterprise. We wish there was a general acquaintance with our work, and that more of our supporters would visit our building, and see what we are doing.

The only great need now is for more active Christian workers to help advance our work.

J. W. GAVETT, President.

Plainfield, N. J., Jan. 29, 1907.

Dislocated His Shoulder.

The regular meeting of the P. O. S. of A. will be held in Washington Hall tomorrow night. Routine business will be transacted.

(Additional suburban news on page 2).

Get In, If You Can.

"Enough said," as reads the Y. M. C. A. advertisement in another column, is sufficient in announcing the Lotus Glee Club and Minnie Marshall Smith as the next Star Course attraction. The name of the company assures the public of a most pleasing programme. No great effort will be necessary on the part of the association to sell the few remaining reserved seats. Already requests for reservations has been received by the secretary. The reputation and popularity of these entertainers has long been established in Plainfield.

Series of Religious Talks.

Rev. E. E. Roberson, pastor of the Monroe Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, will deliver a series of four talks, weekly, beginning February 3, at the Sunday afternoon meetings of the Y. M. C. A. His subjects will be as follows: "The First Question God Ever Asked a Man;" "A Refuge Destroyed by Hail;" "An Enemy from Which it is Impossible to Escape;" "Bright Spots on the Bridge of Sighs."

All Ready For Junior Banquet.

Nearly two hundred tickets have been sold for the Junior banquet to be held at the Casino, tomorrow night, and fully 250 are expected to attend. The details for the affair are completed and the speakers have all assured the committee that they will be on hand, including Governor Stokes, who will be entertained by Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, while in town.

—Many headaches are caused from eye strain. If you are suffering from them look to your eyes. Consult Stiles & Co., eye specialists, at 105 East Front street, tomorrow, Thursday, for examination.

—White Label asparagus and Maine corn make a splendid dinner combination. They can be had at Neuman Brothers' store, the firm being the local selling agents for the entire line of White Label goods.

TEST TO BE MADE OF EQUAL TAX LAW.

Railroads Take Appeal From Perkins Act—Main Stem Tax at Old Rate to Be Paid.

The constitutionality of the railroad tax law of 1906, commonly known as the Perkins act, which revised the method of assessing main stem property, is to be passed on by the Supreme Court within the next few weeks. Counsel representing the various railroad corporations affected by the law secured from Chief Justice Gummere, in Newark, Saturday, a writ of ceritorari to have the legality of the provisions of the statute reviewed and judicially determined. Arrangements have been made to have the questions at issue settled before the legislature adjourns sine die so that in the event the act is found to be defective in any respect remedial legislation may be enacted.

The railroads, by an arrangement with Attorney-General McCarter, will pay immediately their main stem tax at the rate of $5 per $1,000 of valuation on the assessments made by the State Board of Assessors, instead of paying at the rate of $18.01 per $1,000, as provided for by the act in question. There is to be a speedy termination of the matter for the further reason that the revenue for the school funds is involved. If the act is decided as unconstitutional, it will mean a loss of $2,540,000 for the support of public schools, that sum representing the difference in the tax at $5 per $1,000, the rate fixed by the old law, and $18.01, the rate provided by the Perkins act.

The railroads base their objection to the Perkins act on the contention that it is a violation of the prohibition of the State Constitution, which which provides that property shall be taxed according to law under uniform rules. It is asserted by the railroads that the act of 1900 intrudes on the tax law of 1884, and violates the theory held in the latte ract that all railroad property shall be assessed because of its use, and the State board no longer assessed all railroad property used for certain purposes, but only parts of it.

FOUR "ADMIRALS" MAY LEAVE.

The Dewey, Schley, Farragut and Sampson, Fruit Steampships, Likely to Go to the Pacific.

Perth Amboy, Jan. 30.—The four "Admirals" of the United Fruit Company's fleet, the steamships Admiral Dewey, Admiral Schley, Admiral Farragut and Admiral Sampson, all of which hail from this port, although they trade to the West Indies from Boston and Philadelphia, are reported to be going away from here and have their charters registered from Seattle. The four "Admirals" have been engaged in the fruit and passenger trade for the past eight or nine years, and were popular among tourists.

They figured prominently during the Kingston earthquake excitement. They were all built at Philadelphia in 1898, and are all of the same tonnage and general build. The first of the vessels that is expected to go to the Pacific coast is the Admiral Sampson. She, as the others, is 2,104 tons, 280 feet long, 36.1 feet beam and 22.7 feet depth of hold. E. E. Caine, of Seattle, is negotiating for the purchases.

Million in Seed Oil Corner.

New York, Jan. 30.—When March cottonseed oil declined yesterday from 48 to 44½ cents a gallon on the Produce Exchange it signified to the trade that one of the most shrewdly manipulated "corners" in recent times had been ended for himself and his friends more than $1,000,000 in five months. To do this he had fought such operators as N. K. Fairbank, of Chicago, and members of the big packing companies, the Southern Cotton Oil Company and all its affiliations and a host of individual dealers. The man is John Aspregren, who is barely thirty years old and a Swede of good family. With his brother Adolf he has accumulated a large fortune in this country in seven years. The means which he took to manipulate his "corner" were money and the first accurate knowledge of crop conditions. He said last night it was so easy after the founndation was laid that there was little more for him to do than obtain settlements. He is president of a firm of which his brother is a member and of the Portsmouth Cotton Oil Corporation of Virginia.

$1,000,000 Auto Fire.

New York, Jan. 30.—Spontaneous combustion in the paint shop in the garage of the New York Transportation Company at Eighth avenue and Forty-ninth street, caused a fire with a loss of more than $1,000,000, one-half of which was for electric cabs. It was impossible to get 300 of these out of the building, so rapidly did the flames spread. Three men were injured, and thousands of persons going home from the theatres left the cars and watched the firemen fight the blaze.

Justice Swayze Changes Programme.

Elizabeth, Jan. 30.—Supreme Court Justice Francis J. Swayze, of Newark, who sits in this circuit, sent notice yesterday to County Clerk Calvert, of Union, to make public that he will not be in the Union county court next Saturday to hear motions made by lawyers. As a rule he always appears on the first and third Saturdays of the month. All motions, therefore, will go over until February 16.

BIG MILITARY BALL PLANNED BY TRENTON.

Capital City of State to Be the Scene of the Reception on February 7.

Trenton, Jan. 30.—Upon the night of February 7 Trenton will have but one object in view, the extending of the courtesies of the capital city of the State to its guests, assembling in honor of the memory of the heroes of Mercer county who were killed in the Civil War. It is proposed that that there shall be erected in this city a monument commemorative of the dead. For this purpose $5,000 has been raised by subscription; $10,000 more is needed. As one of the agencies to secure this result, a military ball will be given in the Second Regiment Armory.

Some idea of the magnitude of the affair may be gathered from the fact that 12,000 tickets have been sent out to every part of the State. This morning acceptances have been received from Governor Stokes and his staff, Senators Dryden and eKan, the entire delegation of the House of Representatives, State and municipal officials, practically all the officers of the National Guard, and civilians prominent in Trenton, and for a reign thirty miles around. The music will be an especially prominent feature: Two military bands, the Secind of Trenton and the Third of Camden, will alternately play.

Scores Standard Again.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—Another government excoriation of the Standard Oil Company and its methods has been sent to Congress in the form of a report from the Interstate Commerce Commission. Under the Tillman-Gillespie resolution of March 7, 1906, the commission was directed to inquire into the question of combination in restraint of trade between railroads and oil or coal interests. The commission has found no evidences of such combinations, but has found much to criticise in the operations by which the Standard company has extended its business. The vigor with which the administration has entered upon prosecution of the Standard Oil Company under the Sherman Anti-Trust law is reflected in the terms with which the commission report abounds. After declaring the pipe line is the greatest cause of the oil monopoly, that the profits are excessive, and that such ideas as the public holds of the benefits derived from the Standard company in the way of cheaper and better oil have been derived from paid advertising disguised as reading matter, the commission makes no specific recommendation.

Woman Hunter's Prowess.

New York, Jan. 30.—After fourteen months in the interior of Africa, during thirteen of which he lived under canvas, Carl E. Akeley, of the Field Columbian Museum, Chicago, and Mrs. Akeley have arrived in this city on their way home, and on a Fabre line steamship yesterday there came eighty-four cases of skins and skeletons, weighing seventen tons, the results of their expedition, which will be added to the museum collection. Intending to be gone only a few months, Mrs. Akeley remained with the expedition to the end, it being the longest African hunting trip ever taken by a woman. She took an active part in all the hunting, and two of the eight elephants ane one of the four rhinocroses were shot by her.

New York Sunday Reform.

New York, Jan. 30.—With strong resolutions, petitions and speeches, many of the foremost clergymen of New York yesterday made plans in the Marble Collegiate Church, Fifth avenue and Twenty-ninth street, for an aggressive campaign against Sunday theatres and concerts. They attacked the production of "Salome" and the promoters of Sunday performances, and took flings at Tammany Hall, open saloons, poolrooms, gambling, Jerome and lawlessness in the city generally. They named a committee to visit the Mayor forthwith, drafted petitions to Governor Hughes and pledged themselves to continue the fight until an orderly Sunday shall have been restored in New York.

Fall Restores Sight.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 30.—A fall on a slippery pavement, when the razor like edge of a piece of ice performed an operation for which some oculists charge $1,000, has restored the eyesight of the Rev. Samuel H. Cummings, a minister, who has been totally blind for twenty-five years. The Rev. Cummings states: "I slipped on one of those sliding places the boys have and fell heavily on my face. A piece of ice or snow on the ground hit my eye with awful force. I lay stunned for a moment. Then I arose and found to my astonishment that a strange new light was visible through the eye which the ice had struck."

Three Firemen Entombed.

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 30.—An eight story brick building at Nos. 101 and 107 Seneca street and extending through the block to Carroll street, was destroyed by fire yesterday. A score of firemen were caught under a falling wall while fighting the fire. Three are still buried in the ruins and there is no hope of rescuing them alive. Twelve others were injured, six of them seriously. The missing are William J. Naughton, a lieutenant, and John R. Hinky and Stephen J. Megan, firemen. The financial loss is estimated at $500,000.

HEAD OF ARMY QUITS

LIEUT. GEN. CORBIN GOES ON THE RETIRED LIST.

Has Been in Active Service for 44 Years—Will Be Succeeded by Gen. MacArthur, Another Veteran of Two Wars.

Washington.—Lieut. Gen. Henry C. Corbin, U. S. A., chief of staff and lately in charge of the northern division of the army, with headquarters in St. Louis, has been placed on the retired list. Gen. Arthur MacArthur will succeed him as lieutenant general and chief of staff and Gen. A. W. Greely will succeed him in command in the western city.

Gen. Corbin succeeded Gen. Bates as lieutenant general of the army in April last. He has been in active service since the year 1862, when he entered the volunteer army as second lieutenant of the Eighty-third Ohio infantry.

During the civil war the Ohio soldier rose to the rank of brevet brigadier general of volunteers. When the forces were recalled from the field Gen. Corbin was appointed to the regular service as a second lieutenant of the Seventeenth infantry. In 1880 he was transferred to the adjutant general's department, and he remained attached to that branch of the service, in name at least, until he became a lieutenant general.

For several years Gen. Corbin was stationed in Chicago. He was a lieutenant colonel and assistant adjutant general of the then division of the Missouri, when Gen. Miles commanded, with headquarters in Chicago.

The last Sioux war broke out in December, 1890, and Col. Corbin accompanied Gen. Miles to South Dakota, where headquarters were established in the field. At this time Miles and Corbin apparently were good friends, but afterward, when the former was promoted to the command of the army and the latter was made adjutant general, they clashed, and their differences at the Spanish war time were the subject of public comment.

Lieut. Gen. Corbin was the first officer of that rank since the general staff was formed who did not take the position of its chief. He preferred to take command elsewhere than in Washington, and he was assigned to the northern division of the army, with headquarters in St. Louis.

The general married a few years ago for the second time. He has built a handsome residence in Washington and will reside in this city in the future.

By direction of the president commissions have been prepared for Gen. MacArthur to be lieutenant general, Brig. Gen. Jesse M. Lee to be major general and Capt. John J. Pershing to be brigadier general. These promotions are made to fill vacancies incident to the retirement of Corbin.

Gen. J. Franklin Bell, who is the senior brigadier general, waived the promotion to the higher grade in order to give Gen. Lee an opportunity to reach it before he retired. Gen. Lee will retire next January and there would have been no vacancy in the grade of major general before that date had Gen. Bell been appointed. Gen. MacArthur is now commanding the division of the Pacific and will continue in that position.

Gen. Lee is now in command of the department of the Visayas. His promotion makes three major generals in the Philippines. It is expected that he will be given a command in the United States. Gen. Pershing is now the military attache at the American embassy in Japan and it is expected that he will be given another assignment. He is a son-in-law of Senator Warren of Wyoming.

Gen. MacArthur is a veteran of two wars, having won distinction in the civil war and in the Philippines. He was born in Massachusetts, was taken by his parents to Milwaukee in his infancy, and there attended the public schools. At the age of 17 he was made first lieutenant in the Twenty-fourth Wisconsin, and when the civil war ended he was brevet colonel. For heroic actions he won promotion at various times, and for bravery at Missionary Ridge received a congressional medal. Entering the regular army, he was made brigadier general of volunteers in 1898 and speedily was promoted to be major general. From 1898 until 1901 he commanded in the Philippines, and later was at the head of the department of the lakes, subsequently commanding the division of the Pacific. He will be retired under the age limitation statute June 2, 1909.

FINE DOG IS STUNG TO DEATH BY ANGRY BEES

Caught Fast in Trap Near Log Used as Hive Animal Could Not Escape.

Carver, Ont.—Patrick Rooney, who has a farm six miles northeast of here, lost a valuable collie dog recently in a most unusual manner. The animal was a female and was such a great pet of the farmer that he buried her in a casket such as would be used for a child.

Rooney is a hunter and trapper as well as a farmer, and on his expeditions Sally, the collie, was his constant companion. The dog had been taught to retrieve his game, run foxes and make herself generally useful. She knew where all the traps were set as well as did Rooney, and on more than one cold morning last winter she made the trapper's rounds for him, barking excitedly at the door when she found game, and taking her master to the trap containing it.

At night Sally had the range of the farm, and so when about two o'clock one morning Rooney heard her barking, he concluded that she had discovered a skunk and was keeping it away from the hen house. He therefore turned over to sleep. But the barking kept up and after a time Rooney became thoroughly awake and realized that his pet was in trouble.

Getting into his trousers and grabbing his rifle he hastened across the meadow to the edge of the woods whence the sounds came and blundered upon the dog, caught by the foot in a forgotten mink trap, set months before. As he bent over to release the spring Rooney heard an angry buzzing in the air and felt as though he had been priced by a thousand needles.

He instantly realized that he was beset by a swarm of bees and that they were stinging the dog to death. He worked desperately and released Sally and then, taking her in his arms, fled to the shelter of his house, followed clear to the door by the bees. Sally seemed to rally for a time, but at daylight she died and Rooney was heartbroken. He later found that the bees had hived in a log to which he had fastened the chain of the trap. When Sally pulled on the chain she brought them out.

JOKERS PUT SNAKE IN JUG.

Scheme to Save Draunkard Makes Him a Maniac.

Spokane, Wash.—By placing a live snake in a water jug, fellow harvest hands made a raving maniac of Peter Deuser, on the farm of Joseph Andover, near Waterville, Wash.

Deuser has been in America but three months. He left Germany while under the effects of liquor, according to his explanation, and he had been trying to drown his disappointment over his escapade in drink. He was just recovering from a spree when his companions conceived the idea that to place a snake in the water jug might teach Deuser a lesson. A harmless reptile was captured, deposited in the jug, and corked up.

Deuser's thirst caused him to seek the jug, and the jokers watched his actions with great interest. He removed the cork and had the jug within two inches of his lips when the head of the reptile emerged. With a wild scream Deuser hurled the jug to the ground and ran until he reached the Columbia river, six miles distant. He plunged into the stream and lapped the water like a dog. He was wading into deep water when his pursuers captured him.

Bull in School Dormitory.

Philadelphia.—A big bull went on a rampage on the University of Pennsylvania grounds and did much damage before it was finally lassoed. The bull found its way into the quadrangle of the dormitories. It became frightened, and in a frantic effort to escape charged upon several doors leading to various sleeping quarters of students when the university is open. After the bull had battered down several doors a policeman's attention was attracted to it. Special Policeman Madden responded to a riot call and bravely undertook to subdue the animal single-handed. He succeeded in flinging a noose over the beast's head and then, with the assistance of several men, dragged it out of the quadrangle. The animal was exhausted and was easily driven to the stockyards.

LITERARY.

As usual, Lippincott's Magazine for February opens with a first-quality complete novel—"Nance," by Robert Adger Bowen. This is a fascinating, rapid-acting tale of modern society in the South. The men and women who figure in its pages are bright and agreeable and well-bred, and not the so-called "smart" people of questionable reputation—though of course there is the inevitable commingling of saint and sinner one expects to find in a well-balanced story. The leading character is a young and handsome widow, who has come into possession of her late husband's millions, and how she uses them and the power they bring her is told by the author in a manner which is both ingenious and realistic.

The February Everybody's makes a wide appeal to Americans—to every one, in fact, who is "awake." There is a remarkable group of six special articles, and for entertainment seven fiction contributions of the highest order or excellence. In addition, there are special drawings, poems, and the usual departments of book reviewing, humor and publishers' "straight talk." "Our Industrial Juggernaut," by Arthur B. Reeve, is an astonishing exposition of the yearly sacrifice of life in America to the twin gods of speed and greed. "Dollars vs. Pedigree," by George Barr Baker, is a sane discussion of international marriages, particularly of the sort which have recently gained notoriety. "Shall We Give Tips?" by Theodore Waters, is a powerful arraignment of the growth of the tipping evil in America.

OVER THE TEACUPS.

"The one thing that most husbands need to make their home life supremely happy is a little well administered 'jolly' now and then at the hands of their wives," declared a matron whose long and happy married career is proof positive that marriage is no failure. "Most men are vain," she continued, "and so susceptible to flattery that the wife, if she only handles him the right way and uses a little judgment, will be able to work wonders with him, even when he is in the mood that suggests a tempest.

"We all know that a man wants his dinner when it is due, and though the heavens fall, dinner comes first, according to his way of thinking. Now, dinners by some uncertain mischance have an inexplainable trick of being late. So when he asks, 'Is dinner read?' it is only a foolish, tactless woman who will blurt out the truth, saying, 'No, it is not ready, nor will it be for a good half hour.' One could hardly blame the man if he would fly in a temper to be compared to the rage of a hungry lion.

"But the woman, wise to her own deceit," continued the experienced matron, "will answer in her sweetest tones, 'It but now awaits the dishing, but tell me dear, what have you been doing today, you look so well and rosy?' Who can blame me for being proud of you?' accompanying her remarks, made to give him time to forget his hunger, with a seductive embrace around the neck and a kiss offered with the proper degree of studied sweetness."

Under such circumstances a man more than likely forget his dinner for a few minutes, to think of the superior creature he is to be able to command such praise and flattery from his simple little wife, while she, wise woman, goes about serving the belated meal without he being any the wiser. There are more ways than one, as every woman knows, of keeping these men creatures thinking the are happy, and that is really, after all, our best and most paying lot in life.

The "little hat" for the theatre has scored a success in Paris, it is said, and the anti-hat brigade is quite satisfied that it should be so. Very small, cap-like in shape, the tiny hats are, and they do not interfere with the view of the "man behind" any more or quite as much as some of the elaborate hairdressings in vogue. They are distinctly becoming, too, worn as the Paris woman knows how to wear hats, with a due regard for her own peculiar style, and flowers and jewels make them a decorative feature of the audience that is generally admired. They may be seen here in a year or two, though no one is ready yet to assure their coming. We are not yet tired of seeing our women hatless at the theatre.

Has Dog's Body Embalmed.

Washington, Pa., Jan. 30.—The embalmed body of Trix, a valuable water spaniel owned by Mrs. Laura E. Drum, of Washington, is on its way to New York, where it will be buried in a private lot. He had been the property of Mrs. Drum's husband, who died several years ago, and was carefully kept in accordance with a request of Mr. Drum's will.

Don't Want Flat-wheeled Cars.

BLATZ AND VAN EMBURGH TAKE THREE STRAIGHT.

Other Teams Have Varying Luck in Tourney Games at McLaughlin's

Three sets of games were played in the bowling tourney at McLaughlin's last night. Blatz and VanEmburgh took three straight from Leland and Thompson; Kiely and Runyon took two from Sheelen and Alberts and Mullen and Conklin bested the Schaub brothers two out of three. The Schaubs were to have rolled Day and Gahagan but the games were declared forfeited because of this team dropping out. Their action was made necessary by Gahagan's contemplated removal from Fanwood, where he resides.

The scores:

TALKS OF DRYDEN LETTER

can men of affairs, doctors, lawyers, business men, the farmer, the clergy and the wage earner, and it represents a strength and a political power which the Republican party cannot afford to ignore.

"Is Mr. Dryden seeking a vindication? For what? Certainly not for any of the great measures with which the Republican party is identified. The State government is honest and without scandal. The National administration is doing its duty and is popular. Why then all this persistency? Can it be purely personal? Why should the Republican party be called upon to vindicate any one of its members if a storm of protest arises, not because of public policies but merely from personal affairs for which the Republican party should not be held responsible?"

NEWARK DOCTOR LOSES SUIT.

Somerset Jury Gives Full Verdict Against Horseman.

An interesting dispute over a horse deal was tried in the Somerset courts at Somerville before Judge Lloyd, of the Circuit Court, and a jury. The plaintiff was Gilbert A. Van Doren, a horse dealer, of Bound Brook, and the defendant Elias Bodenweiser, of Newark.

The son of the plaintiff, Enoch VanDoren, sold a horse, as agent for his father, to the defendant for $210. Afterward Enoch VanDoren traded one of his own horses for one of Bodenweiser's. There was a hitch in the trade, but the latter claimed $65 on the former deal. Suit was to recover the $210. The jury rendered a verdict for the full amount, with interest and costs.

Roosevelt May Get Freight Terminal.

The Jersey Central Railroad, it is said, is considering the establishment of a freight terminal at Roosevelt. It will be used for trains that run over that branch of the Central known as the Sound Shore Railroad. This line skirts along the north side of Staten Island Sound from Elizabeth to Roosevelt. At present the Sound Shore road runs no further than Rosevelt, but for a long time the Jersey Central has felt the need of enlarging its accommodations for freight and trains at that point.

Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Weightman, of Philadelphia, who have been spending several days with Mrs. Rowland Cox, of West Seventh street, returned home yesterday.

TALES OF THE NURSERY.

Bright Sayings by Some Modern Mites of Humanity.

Sunday-school Teacher — What would happen now if people were struck dead for lying, as they were in ancient times?

Bright Pupil—There wouldn't be anybody left to bury 'em.

Uncle George—Tommy, here's a dollar to buy your mamma a birthday present next week. Have you any idea what she would like?

Small Tommy—No, but I know what I'm going to buy for her.

Uncle George—What?

Small Tommy—A toy drum.

Little Elsie (in the country)—Oh, mamma, look at those Leghorn chickens!

Mamma—Yes, I see them, dear. But how do you know they are Leghorns?

Little Elsie—Why, don't you see those little horns on their legs?

Small Edith was visiting in the country for the first time.

"What do you think of our rural scenery, dear?" asked her grandmother.

"Oh, it isn't so bad," replied Edith. "It looks almost as natural as real theatre scenery."

Little Elmer—Mamma, won't it do just as well if I take a bath Sunday instead of goin' to church?

Mamma—Why, what do you mean, dear?

Little Elmer—Well, takin' a bath is the next thing to goin' to church if cleanliness is next to godliness.—Chicago News.

On the Job.

At a recent public meeting of retiring councilors in a certain ward in a country town one of the speakers was boasting that he could bring an argument to a "p'int" as quick as any other man.

On hearing this one of the audience who was acquainted with the speaker shouted out, "Aye, man, Sandy, and ye can bring a quart tae a pint a guid bit quicker."—London Tit-Bits.

She'd Change It.

"Really, now," said Meekley, "I think I ought to tell you that while my disposition is good enough at times it's rather finicky. That's the worst of it."

"Ah," significantly remarked Miss Strong, his fiancee, "I'll make the best of it."—Philadelphia Press.

Colossal Precaution.

"I suppose you have put something by for a rainy day?"

"Certainly," answered Mr. Dustin Stax. "I have several millions put away in gilt edged securities."

"You must be looking for a deluge."—Washington Star.

Cigars and Cigars.

Customer—I want a cigar.

Dealer—Yes, sir. Here's a good cigar. Five cents straight.

Customer—I want a cigar.

Dealer—Beg your pardon, sir. Here's our special fifteen cent straight.—Catholic Standard and Times.

Careful of Herself.

Mistress—Mary, why didn't you finish winding the clock? You only gave it a couple of turns.

Mary—You must remember that I'm leavin' you tomorrow, mum, and I'd not be after doin' any of the new girl's work!—Smith's Weekly.

The Conversation of Coin.

"Money talks," said the succinct person.

"Yes," answered Miss Cayenne, "and some of it at present seems to be quite gossipy and scandalous in its remarks."—Washington Star.

His Experience.

"After all," said the philosopher, "the real joy of a thing is in the anticipation of it."

"Well," replied Henpeck, "if there's any joy in matrimony that must be it."—Chicago Standard and Times.

GREAT TALENT FOR THE ELKS VAUDEVILLE SHOW

ONLY HEADLINERS AND STARS ON THE BILL ANNOUNCED TODAY.

The artists for the Elks' big vaudeville benefit to be given at the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday night was announced today and it shows one of the greatest combinations that has ever been billed for the city. Every one is a headliner while several have been stars at the head of their own companies. The complete list of artists is as follows:

The Five Musical Nosses, late of "The Earl and the Girl," in which they appeared at the New York Casino for one year; James Harrigan, the tramp juggler, who was seen in Plainfield a short time ago with "Panhandle Pete;" Eddie Gerard and Jessie Gardner, in their famous sketch, "Fun in a Monkey House;" the Fitzgibbon-McCoy trio; La Petite Mignone, the clever little imitator; Keno, Walsh and Melrose, comedy acrobats; and Harriett Southerone and her four "Johnnies" Comedy moving pictures will also be shown.

The seat sale for the performance opened this morning and the tickets went so rapidly the committee immediately decided upon a matinee. The best seats are being taken quickly and those who have planned to attend the show are warned to lose no time in getting tickets.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. William Wyckoff, of Fritz place, are parents of a son born to them this morning.

E. A. Tichenor, of Newark, a former resident here, is the guest of F. L. Lancaster, of South Second street, today.

Avoiding Trouble.

"Do you have any trouble with your janitor?" asked Mrs. Flatleigh.

"Oh, no. Both my husband and I believe in devoting all our spare moments to the pursuit of pleasure."—Chicago Record Herald.

DRYDEN BOLT EXPECTED

Small Hope That Senator will Convince "Band of Eight" Next Monday.

STOKES IN NEW PLAN

His Election and Continuance to Serve Out Term As Governor Now Talked Of.

Just what course will be pursued by the Republican legislators in regard to the election of a United States Senator after John F. Dryden has been given a public hearing next Monday afternoon is a matter of conjecture, not only with the public, but also the legislators themselves.

That Mr. Dryden will be able to convince the eight men that have opposed him since the balloting started, only the most ardent of the Dryden supporters pretend to believe, as these men have repeatedly stated that while they may attend the hearing there is nothing that Mr. Dryden may say that can persuade them to vote for his re-election.

There is also considerable doubt as to whether Mr. Dryden's arguments will be able to convince the 11 men that opposed him in the caucus that they should continue in their allegiance to the caucus decision.

In view of these facts many of the legislators believe that after hearing Mr. Dryden a conference of the Republicans will be called to discuss the situation, and if it is found that the opposition to his candidacy is unabated, they will decide upon some one else.

If such a conference is conducted there seems little doubt but that the men opposed him in the original caucus will join with the "band of eight" in the demand that Mr. Dryden withdraw.

Mr. Dryden has declared that he has no intention of retiring from the race. If he should continue to hold this view, even in the face of a majority of the legislators requesting that he step out, he may precipitate a most embarrassing situation.

It would only be necessary for Mr. Dryden to have absolute control over five of the Republican votes to cause a deadlock that would continue to the end of the present session and in that way prevent an election until next year.

The contemplation of such a program, or even a reference to it, is sufficient to throw the Republican leaders into a state of consternation.

"What assurance have we that the State will go Republican next fall?" said a prominent Republican leader yesterday. "As a matter of fact, the indications are that we will have to put up the fight of our lives to keep a Democrat out of the Governor's chair, let alone to retain the small majority in the Legislature.

"With the Legislature deadlocked over the Senatorial situation throughout the present session, the prospect would be far from present," he added. "A Democratic mapority in the Legislature next year would then mean a Democratic United States Senator," he concluded.

Even the State leaders who are most strongly urging Mr. Dryden's election consider the future of the party paramount to Mr. Dryden's return to Washington and it is pointed out that any attempt to deadlock the Legislature for the session would be quickly defeated.

Should Mr. Dryden by remaining in the race continue the deadlock for any length of time, it is said that this would afford an opportunity to the men who have been urging that Governor Stokes be elected to the Senatorship to land the prize for their candidate.

It has been pointed out that the leaders would not stand for the chance of the election being postponed for a year and would then unite their forces on the Governor, and, as his candidacy is favorably regarded by the anti-Drydenties, his election would be assured. Then the Governor could serve out his term as chief executive of the State and assume his new position next January.

Senator Ackerman, who has been voting for former Attorney General Griggs, leads the list on roll call. If he should next Tuesday change his vote to Mr. Stokes, Senator Avis, who has been voting for Dryden because bound by the caucus decision, would undoubtedly follow Senator Ackerman's lead, and Senator Colby, who is also an anti-Drydenite, being well up in the list, would do the same. This would probably result in a Stokes stampede that could not be stopped.

However, the Governor is not a candidate and his name has not been put forward thus far in the balloting and there are some who believe that either Mr. Griggs, or State Treasurer Frank O. Briggs will be decided upon as Mr. Dryden's successor, if a conference follows the Dryden hearing.

MISS DAISY ANNA DUNN BRIDE OF NEW YORK MAN

WEDDING CEREMONY PERFORMED AT HOME OF HER PARENTS YESTERDAY.

Miss Daisy Anna Dunn, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Dunn, of Sandford avenue, and Henry Nicholas Feley, of New York, were married at 5:30 o'clock, yesterday afternoon, at the home of the bride's parents in the presence of about sixty guests from New York, Winsted, Conn.; Newark, Elizabeth, Trenton, Philadelphia and Washington. Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, of which the bride is a member, performed the ceremony.

The bride wore a brown chiffon broadcloth travelling gown and carried a bouquet of white fresia. Her sister, Miss Lorraine W. Dunn, who was bridesmaid, was gowned in white silk and carried a bouquet of roses. The best man was Harry Ash, of New York, and the ushers were Wesley J. Dunn, brother of the bride, and Wilbur R. Dyson, of Winsted, Conn., brother-in-law of the groom. The bride was given in marriage by her father. The wedding marches were played on the piano by Charles Suhr.

The decorations throughout the house were especially attractive. In the dining room the prevailing colors were pink and green and white in the reception hall. The parlor decorations were most effective, consisting of North Carolina long leaf pines and roses.

After the cermony and congratulations supper was served and at 7:30 o'clock the bride and groom left for a wedding journey. Upon their return they will reside in New York. A large company of young people followed the couple to the North avenue station, where they showered them with rice. They entered the train and announced to all the passengers that Mr. and Mrs. Feley had just been married.

The bride was the recipient of a large array of valuable gifts, including solid silver, a substantial bank account, china, furniture, linen, etc.

The groom was formerly a resident of Winsted, Conn., and is now engaged in the wholesale stationery business in New York. Among the guests were his mother, Mrs. Julius Feley, and his sister from Winsted. The bride is well known here in a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

HARTRIDGE SCHOOL PUPILS ENTERTAIN.

Present a Varied Programme Before a Large Audience at the Casino.

An excellent programme of singing, calisthenics and gymnasium work was given at the Casino, yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock by the pupils of the Hartridge School, showing the progress made during the first quarter. The pupils acquitted themselves with much credit and the programme was greatly enjoyed by the large audience present.

The vocal selections were as follows:

"To Thee, O Country," Eichberg, academic and elementary departments; "On the Wild Rose Tree," E. Smith, academic and elementary departments; "My Playmate," Abt, third, fourth, fifth and sixth elementary; "Hark! Hark! the Lark!" Shubert, academic and third, fourth, fifth and sixth elementary; "Firemen," Nevin; "Morning Glory," Chadwick, first and second elementary; "Gypsy Life," Schumann, seventh elementary and academic; "All Through the Night," Old Welsh, academic and elementary departments.

The calisthenics exercises were as follows: March, second, third, fourth, fifth grade elementary; sixth grade elementary, wand drill; seventh grade elementary, first and second grades academic, Swedish dance; third, fourth and fifth grades academic Russian Polonaise.

The programme closed with the gymnaisum work which included dumb-bells, Indian clubs, dance and heavy work. Each part of the programme was in charge of the several teachers and their careful training was shown to good advantage.

Water Commission to Meet.

The water investigating commission which is taking up the question of the advisability of Plainfield purchasing its present source of water supply or establish one of its own, will meet in the office of Mayor Charles J. THE HORSE CUT LOOSE

Machine Was Driven By Sigfreid Arens and Had To Be Taken to Repair Shop.

Sigfreid Arens, driving his Jackson touring car south on Park avenue, at a lively clip this morning, ran into Dr. J. H. Carman's rig at the corner of Sixth street. The force of the collision was so great that the rig was carried up on the sidewalk, the coachman, Bert Cuff, colored, was thrown out, and the horse which was cut loose from the carriage, ran away and was caught an hour later in Netherwood. The front of the automobile was greatly damaged and had to be taken to the repair shop. Mr. Arens luckily escaped injury.

Dr. Carman's rig was on its way from Blair's livery stable to his office when the accident occurred. The coachman was driving through Sixth street toward Watchung avenue, and was crossing Park avenue, when the automobile approached. Mr. Arens evidently thought that he would have no trouble in clearing the carriage and did not slacken his speed. The coachman, it is said, was given no warning of the approaching machine and did not see it until he was thrown out in the roadway. Aside from a good shaking up he received no injury.

The carriage was a complete wreck, the wheels and body being reduced to kindling wood and the shafts broken. The horse, a spirited animal, became unmanageable and before he could be caught made a wild dash through Sixth street.

Cuff, the driver of Dr. Carman's rig, claims that he was not responsible for the accident. He says that from his position in the carriage he was unable to look either to his right or left, but that when he started to cross Park avenue the road was clear. The roadway is rather slippery from ice and snow and it is believed that the automobile may have skidded a little and prevented Mr. Arens from steering clear of the carriage. Mr. Arens was alone in his car and was returning to his home on Rahway road. That neither he or the coachman in the carriage was not seriously injured is considered remarkable.

SURE TO BE SUCCESS.

"Chimes of Normandy" Will Be An Advance in Local Amateur Opera Work.

The first subscription performance of "The Chimes of Normandy," by the Plainfield Operatic Association will be given at the Casino Thursday night, February 7. In presenting this opera the society has made a decided advance step in local amateur opera work, and the excellent rehearsals prove that the undertaking will be an agreeable surprise to music lovers.

The cast of soloists include Miss Hortense M. Sheldon, who has been heard so acceptably in previous operas; Miss Ethel Moore, who as "Germaine," makes her debut; City Judge William N. Runyon, William F. Tallamy, Joseph C. Martin and Elmer D. Cutting. Great care has been taken with the chorus work. The orchestration is the most delicate of any opera given in Plainfield and with the full orchestra of thirteen and complete chorus of sixty, and fine soloists, "The Chimes of Normandy" promises to eclipse all previous efforts of the association.

Trolleys Every Half-Hour.

Many complaints are heard about the new rule adopted for the operation of cars on the Arlington avenue line in the evening. After 8 o'clock the trolleys run every half-hour, which is contrary to the provisions of the franchise. It was understood that when the receipts of that line amounted to so much per day the cars were to be run every fifteen minutes, and this was done. Recently, a change was made to the half-hour schedule and patrons are finding much fault.

Engagement Announced.

The engagement has been announced of Miss Matalie C. Kastner, daughter of F. J. Kastner, of Clinton avenue, Newark, to Williiam B. Henry, of Somerville. Miss Kastner is a frequent local visitor and has many friends in the city and borough.

Fined in City Court.

John Smith, arrested for helpless drunkenness, and Mike Tatta, charged with fighting on Arlington avenue last night, were arraigned before Judge Runyon in the City Court this morning. Smith was fined $3 and Tatta $5.

COLLEGE WOMEN HAVE CLUB OF THEIR OWN

GET AHEAD OF THEIR BROTHERS IN ORGANIZING.

Plainfield college women as well as the college men are to have club life. They moved more swiftly toward the goal than did their brothers, having organized already. The object of the club is that of similar organizations elsewhere—sociability and the furtherance of the interests of college women.

The college women planned the club at the home of Miss Katherine F. Ball, Rockview avenue. Graduates of Smith, Wellsley, Parnard and Mt. Holyoke attended the meeting. At that meeting Miss Margaret McCutchen was made temporary chairman.

The first regular meeting of the club will be held on Tuesday, February 5, at the home of the Misses Goddard, East Ninth street. At this meeting a committee composed of Miss McCutchen, Miss Ball, and Mrs. H. C. White will submit a constitution, and permanent officers will be elected.

STREET COMMITTEE DISCUSSES IMPROVEMENTS.

West End Avenue One of the Thoroughfares to Receive Attention This Year.

The Councilmanic street committee met last night to discuss matters pertaining to street improvements, which it is proposed to take up early in the spring. Reports were received concerning a number of streets which the committee want to improve according to the usual custom, that is the property-owners to pay two-thirds the cost of macadamizing and the city the remaining one-third.

Councilman Buxton brought up the question of putting West End avenue, between West Front street and Green brook, in proper condition and macadamizing it so as to conform to the grade of the new bridge over the stream. It was stated that it would require considerable filling to put the street to grade, but it was decided to include that avenue in the number of streets to be improved. By doing this it will probably be possible to connect the dwellings on the street with the sanitary sewer. Further reports on the matters discussed will be made public at a future Common Council meeting.

HORSEMEN ANXIOUS FOR A BOROUGH SPEEDWAY.

Meeting Will be Held Shortly to Discuss Establishment of One on Greenbrook Road.

Horsemen of Plainfield and North Plainfield are greatly interested in the establishment of a speedway and a meeting will be held within a short time to take steps in the matter. The owners of property on Greenbrook road, between West End and Rock avenues, have dedicated the same to the borough, and it is considered ideal for a speedway.

The thoroughfare in question is eighty feet wide and with the expenditure of a little money could be put in fine condition forspeeding. There are a large number of owners of fast horses in this section who have at various times attempted to establish a speedway, but failed. The prospects are now better than ever and there appears to be no obstacles in the way of accomplishing the desided purpose.

Fell Five Feet and Fractured Leg.

James McCormack, employed as a plasterer on the new building of the New York and New eJrsey Telephone Company on East Fourth street, fractured his right leg just above the ankle, today, forenoon, and had to be removed to Muhlenberg Hospital for treatment. He was at work on the third floor of the building and made a misstep on a scaffold, falling a distance of five feet. McCormack resides at 803 East 134th street, New York. He is fifty years old and married.

City Bank Declares Extra Dividend.

The Board of Directors of the City National Bank, today, declared the usual semi-annual dividend of four per cent. on the capital stock of the bank out of the earnings for the past six months, and in addition an extra dividend of one per cent. on the capital stock, payable after Tuesday, February 5.

Freeholder's Wife Robbed.

Mrs. S. P. T. Wilbur, wife of the freeholder, took a shopping trip to New York yesterday that cost her $20 in a way she did not expect. A handbag containing that sum was stolen from her by one of the thieves who have been operating in the New York shopping districts for months.

GET CLEVER BIKE THIEF

Police Capture Young Man Who Has Operated For a Week.

HE STOLE FOUR WHEELS

Makes Written Confession—Came From New York With Man Hurt At Bound Brook Last Week.

In a young man who gives his name as James Wilson the police have the one they believe guilty of the half-a-dozen bicycle thefts committed here in the past ten days. He was arrested last night after trying to sell a stolen wheel, and confessed to stealing four within a week.

Wilson went into Clarence Thorn's repair shop on Park avenue early last night, with a second-hand wheel. He offered to sell it for a dollar. The bicycle man recognized the bicycle as one belonging to a customer, and his suspicions were aroused. He told the young man to come back in an hour, and telephoned to the police when Wilson left.

Wilson didn't come back, but Chief Kiely got a description of him and located him in the city later in the evening. He was arrested and locked up.

Chief Kiely put him through an inquisition this morning and obtained a signed confession. The prisoner said he left New York about a week ago with a young man named William Racine, riding on a passenger train. At Bound Brook Racine fell from the platform and was hurt so badly that his removal to the hospital at Somerville was necessary. Wilson says he went with him and stayed in Somerville over-night. He came to Plainfield next morning.

According to his statement he got busy at stray bikes at once. He says he stole two from in front of the Babcock building the evening of January 25, and two others from in front of the Jr. O. U. A. M. Hall.

He said he sold two at Harry Dreier's sporting goods store, West Front street, for $2 apiece. A third he says he sold to Thorn.

Harry Dreier made a statement to the chief this morning, relative to the wheels alleged to have been sold to him. He said he bought one from Wilson for $2. The other bicycle, he said, was bought the next day by his assistant, William McGregor, for himself. He paid $3 for it. McGregor told the chief that he did not tell Mr. Dreier the wheel was purchased from the same man, so that the sporting goods dealer had no reason to be suspicious of the seller. The wheel bought by McGregor belongs to Dr. R. W. Emerson. It was taken from in front of the Babcock building. The ownership of the other bicycles will be established, it is expected, today.

Wilson describes himself as a junior drug clerk. Chief Kiely is convinced that he is an experienced and clever crook. He will be held here pending investigation. Racine's record will receive attention, although there is nothing against him so far excepting his association with Wilson.

Wilson said he had been staying at the Hotel Kensington. He was not a patron there, the hotel management said.

Party for Emily VanWinkle.

In honor of the sixth anniversary of her birthday, Emily VanWinkle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson VanWinkle, of West End avenue, entertained a number of her young friends yesterday afternoon from 4 to 7 o'clock. The affair was arranged by Mrs. Van Winkle. During the afternoon the children played games, after which refreshments were served. A feature was a birthday cake bearing six candles which were lighted during the supper hour. Little Miss VanWinkle received a number of gifts from relatives and friends including a photograph of her mother when she was twelve years old. Those present were Flossie Ryder, Helen Ryder, Lillian VanWinkle, Adele Bye, Helen Wood, Erma Gordon Dobbins, Emily Van Winkle, "Teddy" Ryder, Nelson VanWinkle, Jr., Herbert Wood.

Rescue Mission to Move.

The Rescue Mission, which has been meeting in the Christian church on Grove street for some time, has decided to secure another place of meeting. John LeMatty has been appointed a committee of one to make arrangements for the proposed change and it is quite likely that arrangements will be made with the Women's Christian Temperance Union to meet in the rooms of that organization on Madison avenue. Later the mission may purchase a lot and erect a building.

Police Examinations.

Examinations of candidates for the police force will be held at the Y. M. C. A. this afternoon. There are nine young men anxious to don the blue. The vacancies number four.

JUNIORS READY FOR BIG BANQUET TONIGHT

GOVERNOR STOKES 'PHONES HE WILL POSITIVELY BE IN ATTENDANCE.

Aside from the fact that Governor Stokes will speak on the toast, "Our Country," instead of "Our State," there will be no change in the announced programme for the Junior banquet to be held at the Casino, tonight, under the auspices of Franklin, Somerset, Benevolent and Plainfield Councils, Jr. O. U. A. M. The committee has every assurance that Governor Stokes will be present. He telephoned to Senator Ernest R. Ackerman last night that he would attend the banquet.

While it is not known just what the Governor will have to say, it is expected by many that he may have something to say concerning the Senatorial situation which is of so much interest at present.

S. St. John McCutchen will be the toastmaster, and in addition to short speeches by State Councilor Frank Sharp and other prominent officers of the order, Judge Frank Scott, of Passaic, a member of the Sate Board of Education, will speak. There are about twenty tickets left for the banquet and they can be secured of H. C. Runyon. The banquet will begin promptly at 7:30 o'clock and the speechmaking at 9 o'clock.

KING'S DAUGHTERS MAKE PLANS FOR A JOINT FAIR.

All the City Circles Will Unite to Clear Debt on Day Nursery.

The various circles of King's Daughters of the city which are interested in the plans for a large fair to be held in the spring for the benefit of the Day Nursery were represented at a meeting held this morning at the home of Mrs. Frederick W. Butler, on East Ninth street. There are now eleven circles and all were represented. Reports were received showing that every circle is willing to assist in carrying out the plans and it was decided to hold a fair at the Casino on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, April 10, 11 and 12, and the details will be announced later.

The purpose for holding the fair is to raise $1,000, which is now due on the purchase price for the Day Nursery property on West Third street. When the King's Daughters purchased the property for $2,600, $600 was paid down. $1,000 of the $2,000 remaining is now due. At the meeting this morning Mrs. E. F. Feickert was elected treasurer. Another meeting will be held on Wednesday morning, February 20, to complete the details for the fair.

Denies School Stories.

J. F. TenEyck, who is a member of the Piscataway township school board, declared this morning that the stories relative to Miss Clara Steele leaving the South Plainfield school were misrepresenting. There had been some disorder, he said, but no more than occurs in any school room. None of it was countenanced by the trustees, he said, and the report that she had been assaulted is not true. She had caught hold of Lloyd Harris by the hair at one time and he had shoved her but merely to make her leave him alone. She resigned her place because she wished to return to her home.

May Be Western Crook.

Chief of Police Weiss, of North Plainfield, learned something of interest today in connection with his investigation of John Calvin, the man who is serving ten days in the borough jail for working the fake eyeglass and gold ring game, without having provided himself with a peddler's license. The Jersey City police, to whom inquiry relative to the prisoner was sent, say he answers the description of a well known Western crook, known as "Flat-nose Jones," wha was chased out of Jersey City a year ago.

Indictments Public on Monday.

It was announced in the Union County Court, today, that the reports on the indictments returned by the Grand Jury, would be presented on Monday, when it will be known who were indicted. There is much speculation throughout the county as to who are included in the list. There is an impression that a bill may have been returned against the Excise Board of Elizabeth, but this is merely surmise. It was also announced today that the trial of criminal causes will begin next Thursday.

Henry Clark Sergeant.

Henry Clark Sergeant, a prominent resident of Westfield, died at his home yesterday. He was seventy-two years old and recently retired from the Ingersoll-Sergeant Drill Company, now in the merged Ingersoll-Rand Company, of which former Mayor William L. Saunders, of the borough, is president. The funeral will be held at St. Paul's church, Westfield, tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock.

BOARDER WOULD NOT GO

And Landlady Had a Policeman Come to Shoo Him Away.

LAWYER GETS IN CASE

Landlady Says He Made Threats in an Effort to Get Her to Drop Complaint.

On complaint of his landlady, Fred D. Seeley, a dry goods clerk, was arraigned before City Judge Runyon this morning because he raised a ruction at his boarding house yesterday and refused to leave when she ordered him out. The landlady is Mrs. Robert Stiles, of West Front street.

She sent for an officer yesterday afternoon, to have Seeley taken from the house, but would not order his arrest when Patrolman Overbaugh responded to the call. She appeared in court this morning, and said she couldn't stand the racket any more, and wanted Seeley arrested. She said he refused to leave the house, and had had her threatened by a lawyer. Chief Kiely sent Overbaugh after Seeley and had the man arraigned under a charge of disorderly conduct.

Mrs. Stiles told the magistrate that Seeley had drunk heavily yesterday afternoon with another boarder named Johnson, and that he started on a rampage. She says he thrust her from in front of her kitchen table, where she was working, and raised a chair to strike her when she protested. She says he assailed her thirteen-year-old daughter with foul language.

Last night, she said, Attorney Fred J. Huff, came to her house and asked her to promise not to appear against Seeley. She says she refused, and that her refsal was met with threats to make trouble if she presisted. She swore Mr. Huff said that if she appeared against Seeley stories reflecting on her and injurious to her business would be brought out; she said she couldn't remember the lawyer's exact words, but she gathered the impression that things were to be made hot for her if she pressed a complaint. She said Mr. Huff came to her house twice. There was nothing in her life, she testified, or in the conduct of her house, that she feared to have made public. Seeley, questioned as to that, said he hadn't a word to say that might reflect on Mrs. Stiles.

He said he knew nothing of the lawyer's moves in the affair until after he came home last night. He said Johnson must have got Mr. Huff into the case. He said the lawyer was a friend of his.

Mrs. Stiles told Judge Runyon that she would be satisfied if Seeley was kept away from her house. Seeley said his trunk was all packed, and the magistrate told him to send for it. He was warned to stay away from the house, and released under suspended sentence. Mrs. Stiles was told to inform the police if Seeley appeared at the place again.

According to the testimony of both of them, Seeley and Mrs. Stiles have known each other for years. He is said to have boarded with the Stileses for five years, and was a friend of Mrs. Stles' husband, who, according to the complainant, went to California last May. Stiles is a bricklayer, and is said to have been attracted to the Pacific coast by the reports of high wages paid in the vicinity of San Francisco after the earthquake.

Told of McAll Auxiliary Work.

Mrs. Frederick Goodhue Mead, who is greatly interested in the McAll Auxiliary work in Limoges, France, gave an interesting aaddress before the Women's Society for Christian Work at the Seventh-Day Baptist church, yesterday. There was a large attendance of members of the society and all were deeply impressed with the details of the work being carried on in Limoges under the patronage of the Plainfield Auxiliary, which supports two missionaries there. After the address the society served tea and there was a social time which afforded all an opportunity to meet Mrs. Mead and learn even more about the auxiliary work.

ASSEMBLYMAN WANTS REFORMATORY FOR WOMEN.

Alexander, of Hudson, Introduces a Bill Calling For Its Establishment.

Trenton, Jan. 31.—Assemblyman A. S. Alexander, of Hudson, has introduced a bill to have a woman's reformatory established in this State. Two years ago, when he was in the Assembly, he secured the passage through the House of a bill providing for the reformatory, but it failed in the Senate. Last year the friends of the project succeeded in getting it through the Senate, but it stuck in the House.

Mr. Alexander's bill provides that the reformatory for women shall be governed by eight commissioners, not less than four of whom shall be women, who shall be appointed by the Governor and whose term of office shall be for four years. The Senate shall confirm. This board shall select a site which shall consists of a farm or farms. It likewise has power to condemn lands and shall erect thereon on the cottage plan as many cottages for inmates and superintendent and such other buildings as the board shall advise is expedient. The board shall appoint a superintendent, who shall manage and control the property, and establish all needful rules and regulations for the management of a reformatory. All the officers shall be women. The superintendent shall reside within the precincts of the reformatory, and shall give a bond for the faithful performance of her duties. The courts in sentencing shall not fix or limit the duration of the sentence. Forty thousand dollars is appropriated for the purposes of the act.

Mr. Alexander intends to make a strong fight for the passage of his bill.

Large Addition to Press Works.

The Alumnium Press and Plate Company has approved plans for a large extension to be built to its present works at Dewey Park so that it can handle the large increase in business that has come to it because of the strike among lithographers in the west. The extension is to be covered with over 5,000 square feet of Ruberoid roofing. The building is to be completed early next spring.

Reliable Money Lenders

of having one's credit good possibly at this time of the year, is a little more noticeable than at any other. Perhaps yours is in excellent shape, but you have already used it as far as you care to go, and are still a little short. Then step in and let us assist you. We're taking care of winter's needs for hundreds whose credit is good, but who hesitate to obligate themselves any further to their friends, and particularly for a loan of a little cash. We loan any sum for any time and accept return payment weekly, semi-monthly or monthly.

We give you a written statement showing the exact cost of a loan, also the exact discount we allow every month the loan is paid before contract time. You will find us always willing to give you facts at our office. If you cannot call, write or 'phone us, and our confidential agent will call and give you full particulars.

The possession of household goods, piano, organ, horses and wagons are sufficient evidence of your ability to pay.

WATER DEAL NOT KEAN'S.

Middlesex Water Co. Buys Up Land Along Robinson's Brook.

Metuchen, Jan. 31.—The Middlesex Water Company, of this place, which supplies water to practically all the northern part of Middlesex county, with the exception of the city of Perth Amboy, has purchased a tract of land along Robinson's brook, a branch of the Rahway river, near Rahway, in Union county, and will build a pumping station there to increase its supply. Close to $300,000 will be spent in developing the property.

At present the company supplies the towns of eMtuchen, South Plainfield, Sewarren, Roosevelt, Woodbridge and Carteret from twelve 200 foot trtesian wells at South Plainfield. The supply has proven inadequate. At times the entire force of water is used up in the factories at Carteret and Roosevelt and one of these alone has occasionally monopolized the entire flow of the wells.

The company will dam up Robinson's brook and pump the water from there through a sixteen-inch main to the factories, which will use the entire flow from the brook. The rest of the company's district will continue to be supplied from the South Plainfield wells.

There have been numerous rumors lately of a deal in water land near Rahway, and it has been generally believed that Senator John Kean's companies were behind the deal. Mr. Kean, however, has no connection with the Middlesex Water Co., whose principal stockholders are ex-Governor Foster M. Voorhees and Frank Bergen, of Elizabeth, and Charles H. Corbin, of Metuchen.

It is said to be among the probabilities that the Middlesex Company will take a contract to supply water to Mr. Kean's Elizabeth company and pump water to that city. Robinson's brook has a capacity of several millions of gallons a day.

WOMEN IN SCHOOL FIGHT.

Fourth Vote On Proposition Revives Metuchen's Factional Strife.

Metuchen, Jan. 31.—Led by two of Metuchen's best-known women, two factions in the borough are engaged in a fierce struggle over the question of where the new school shall be located. The fight will culminate next Tuesday, when a vote of Metuchen residents, women as well as men, will be taken.

Two propositions will be voted upon. One is that the borough shall buy a lot on Home street for $5,000 and erect a $40,000 school building on it. Mrs. F. A. Pattison, well known as a society leader here, is the champion of this proposition. The other is that of a portion of the present building be torn down and a $20,000 addition be put up. Mrs. J. T. Jackson, an extensive property-owner, leads the advocates of the latter plan.

Debating over the problem has become so acrimonious that in a number of cases lifelong friends have become enemies.

The school question has agitated Metuchen for two years. Each time the matter has come to a vote all action has been blocked because of a failure to agree on whether to keep the present site or more to a new one. It is alleged money has been paid to voters of both sexes.

SUES TWO PHYSICIANS.

Former Elizabeth Man Says that, Though Sane, He Was Committed to Asylum.

Elizabeth, Jan. 31.—George W. Ramsey, formerly of this city, has sued Dr. Frank Johnson, of Stanton, Hunterdon county, and Dr. Henry H. Miller, of Lebanon, Hunterdon county, for $10,000. He asserts they committed him to the State asylum in Trenton as insane when he was not. Ramsey had a suit pending against the Public Service Corporation and negotiations to settle it were under way when relatives, it is said, interfered to prevent such action.

Ramsey says he went to A. J. David, his counsel, and told him relatives were planning to send him away as insane. It is said that Dr. Charles Schlichter, on the advice of David, examined Ramsey and declared him sane, but that two days afterward he was taken away and kept for eight months in the asylum. He is now living in Macon, Ga.

$50,000,000 Note Issue.

New York, Jan. 31.—Note issues totalling $50,000,000 by the New York Central and two of its subsidiary lines were announced this week. The entire issue has been sold to J. P. Morgan & Co. The notes all bear interest at 5 per cent., and will run for three years. They were being placed yesterday by the bankers at par, payable in five equal installments in the first day of the months of March, April, May, June, and July. Of the total issue, $25,000,000 are notes put out by the New York Central itself, $15,000,000 by the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern, and $10,000,000 by the Michigan Central.

Grandfather Rowed Washington.

Honesdale, Penn., Jan. 31.—David Pulis, whose grandfather was a Revolutionary soldier and was in the boat in which George Washington crossed the Delaware, died here this week, at the age of 93 years. Pulis trapped the last panther seen in Wayne county, and in his forty years' service as a raftsman ran millions of feet of lumber to Philadelphia on the Delaware River.

Big Sample Hosiery Event.

Stockingings for Women, Socks for Men, Much Under Price.

Two of the largest hosiery houses in New York have disposed of their sample lines to us and we have organized these two purchases for a Sale of Hosiery that will make the town talk.

We are not going to confuse you with a multiplicity of lots at many different prices but have grouped the women's hosiery into two lots and the men's into two lots, making the choosing extremely easy, and make it a simple matter to appreciate the values we are offering.

The most experienced stocking buyer will be the most liberal patron of this sale, for equally good Hosiery has not been offered in many a day at anything like the prices we have planned to sell these at.

These lots include both imported and domestic makes of stockings and half hose, and they are Spring and Summer samples. The variety of styles and colors is very large, and by odds the greatest lots are in black, making them much more desirable.

WOMEN'S STOCKINGS.

Imported Full Fashioned Stockings of Lisle and Cotton, in plain and lace effects; many exceptionally pretty styles in the lot; blacks, tans, white and fancy colors to choose from—hosiery that would sell in the regular way at from 39c to 50c a pair (some of them the 75c kind), all to go at..... .25

Women's Lace Stockings of fine Lisle and Cotton, in many charming lace effects, as well as plain weaves, in black, white, tan and fancy colors; most of them black; the regular 25c grades, to go in this sale at..... .19

MEN'S SOCKS.

Men's Imported Half Hose of Lisle and Cotton; some in solid colors; some prettily embroidered and some in two-toned effects; some solid blacks; grades that would regularly sell at from 25c to 29c to go in this sale at..... .19

Men's Imported Socks of Lisle and Cotton and quite a number of the silk plaited sort in pretty silk-embroidered styles, and many other fancy effects which we cannot here describe—grades that would sell in the regular way at from 39c to 50c (some of them worth even more than that) will go in this sale at only..... .29

$2 White Lawn Waists $1.

New 1907 Models of the smartest sort—the Gibson, Christy and other novel effects—are included in this great purchase of two hundred dozen waists which we are glad to be able to offer you at a price we are sure represents but half their real value.

These waists are made of beautiful sheer Persian Lawn. We haven't seen finer lawn in waists sold at $2, $2.50 and even as much as $3. We are not going to attempt to describe the many styles. Suffice it to say that some of these beautiful models are made with yokes of Valenciennes and Cluny laces in the most exclusive patterns and designs; some in square, pointed and round effects; others with fronts of all-over embroidery; still others with dainty pin tucks and fancy beading and rich lace collars. Sleeves are in many styles—half, three-quarter, seven-eighths and full length, and many are prettily lace trimmed. Some of the waists button in back; others in front. There are styles suitable for all figures, and the sizes run from 32 to 44. These waists have never been out of the boxes, being fresh from the factory, and we are sure they would sell very readily if we asked $2 for them. Yet, to make this sale a notable event, and to start the month of February with a rush, we will offer them, beginning tomorrow morning, at only..... $1.00

The popular Shepard moving pictures continues to draw good crowds and grow in popularity. The reason is the general satisfaction rendered and the policy of constant change and high class novelties given. On Friday night at the New Plainfield theatre an extraordinary bill will be offered wherein more novelties of a sensational type will be seen than ever before in a moving picture performance. Comedy, humor, pathos, sensation, drama and travel will be the special inducements that will vie for favor. All new and interesting subjects will make an exceptionally fine program. The Stolen Will, a thrilling melodramatic study, is the subject of one of the most interesting picture dramas ever presented to the public. The story founded on fact, has many details of general interest, relative to such proceedings. It is a story finely told and clearly pictured, a train of highly sensational climaxes carefully graded are rounded in a sensational finish of startling proportions. The picture is one that will please and only one of a great series of high class subjects that go to make an attractive bill.

Joe Hortiz, who is to be at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night, is said by the press to be America's sweetest tenor and yodler and is said to be given many chances to use his voice in his new play, "Our Friend Fritz," a new four act comedy melodrama by Langdon McCormick. The story of "Our Friend Fritz" is the tale of the love of two young people who have their own troubles trying to live in happiness, through the villainous work of a young man who is afterwards proven to be a villain of the blackest nature. The scenery of the production is said to be far above the average, in fact it is grand.

One of the few plays now before the public which has received the unqualified endorsement of the clergy, regardless of denomination, is "The Law and the Man," a dramatized version of Victor Hugo's famous novel, "Les Miserables," which Wilton Lackaye is presenting this season under the direction of Wm. A. Brady and which comes to the New Plainfield theatre on February 12, matinee and night. The character of Jean Valjean is one of the most powerful in all literature, and the lesson of his life has been said to be of "more value than many sermons." After serving nineteen years in the gallery for stealing a loaf of bread, he is liberated, robs a bishop of his plate, escapes, is captured and brought before the man of God charged with the theft. The latter hands him a pair of silver candlesticks saying, "Here is a gift you forgot—you no longer belong to evil, but to good. I have bought your soul and given it to God!" That is the keynote of the future life of the ex-convict.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Junior Epworth League of the First M. E. church will meet in Vincent chapel this afternoon.

The Men's Club of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church will hold a "ladies' night," February 7, and a special programme will be presented.

The covenant meeting of the First Baptist church was held last night, and on Sunday morning there will be communion with reception of members.

Studies in the life of Christ before His ministry will commence at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church tomorrow night, under the auspices of the Young People's Association.

John M. Whiton, of Central avenue, will give an illustrated lecture before the Men's Club of the First Presbyterian church, tonight, on Sicily. He will tell of his recent trip to that country.

While you are enjoying the turkey supper at Trinity Reformed church on Thursday and Friday nights, February 7 and 8, Kenneth Stuart's orchestra will enliven the occasion with popular selections. The affair will be held under the auspices of the Ladies' Christian Work Society.

Rev. Dr. Henry Stout, of Somerville, has received and accepted a call to the pastorate of the Reformed church at South Bound Brook. The pulpit of this church has been vacant since last September, when the Rev. C. T. Anderson resigned to accept a charge in Brooklyn. Dr. Stout is a returned missionary, having spent the last thirty years in Japan.

RURAL MAIL SERVICE.

Hunterdon County Routes Were Successful, According to Report.

Califon, Jan. 31.—Rural free delivery service has been a success from this postoffice during the past year. When the routes were established one year ago there was objection from many sides. With the exception of one section, the farmers round about have rural free mail delivery. For the year just ending the following number of pieces were carried over the routes:

Route No. 1—Carrier George Hildebrant delivered: Registered letters, 39; letters, 11,273; postals, 6,386; newspapers, 17,435; circulars, 2,683; packages, 1,480; total, 39,296. Collected: Registered letters, 52; letters, 6,760; postals, 4,177; newspapers, 53; circulars, 15; packages, 70; total, 11,127; money orders, 76. Route No. 2—Arthur Youngs, carrier, delivered: Registered letters, 36; letters, 10,216; postals, 7,504; newspapers, 12,358; circulars, 1,441; packages, 1,209; total, 32,864. Collected: Registered letters, 107; letters, 7,846; postals, 6,633; circulars, 9; packages, 161; total, 14,799; money orders, 153. While the postoffice department require 3,000 pieces of mail matter a month, or 36,000 pieces a year, as the minimum number for the retention of rural free deliveries, routes No. 1 and No. 2 have exceeded the requirements by several thousand. During the period Rural Free Delivery Carrier Arthur Youngs never lost a trip. Owing to illness, Rural Carrier George Hildebrant lost four trips during the year.

MUST RETURN WAR TAX.

Circuit Court So Directs in the Case of J. I. Blair, of Blairstown.

Trenton, Jan. 31.—By a decision handed down by Judge Joseph Cross yesterday, in the United States Circuit Court, the government is directed to return to the estate of John I. Blair, of Blairstown, Warren county, $29,729.97, the amount of a tax declared to have been illegally imposed under the law of 1898, known as the "war revenue act."

The action was commenced by Dewitt Clinton Blair, son of the late John I. Blair and executor of the estate, and was directed against Herman S. Harold, collector of Warren county, to recover the tax with interest. The tax was imposed on Mr. Blair's interest in a copartnership, which he agreed that his son should have at the elder man's death. Judge Cross held that, as a consideration was paid, the matter did not come within the act of 1898, and ordered the tax, with interest, returned.

Will Sell Skin to Save Family.

New York, Jan. 31.—"Starving family wish any work to do for winter; clothing and shoes wanted; landlord will put them on the street; I will give my skin and blood before they go homeless. Janitress, 112 East 88th street." His wife having put the foregoing advertisement in the Herald, Alois Hoffman, a baker, who lives in the cellar of the flat house at the address given, declares as his last resort, that he will sell his skin for grafting purposes and his life fluid for purposes of experiment for money to keep his wife and two children from starving. Mrs. Hoffman has until recently managed to get her rent, gas and coal free of charge by acting as janitress of the building, while her husband, travelling from one end of the city to the other, has endeavored to earn enough pennies to buy his family their meagre daily fare.

Carrie Nation Turned Away.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—Carrie Nation, attended by two friends, called at the Executive Offices of the White House today. She was denied admission and then began to harangue the crowd which had gathered regarding the treatment she had received. After speaking about a minute she voluntarily retired.

REVIEW OF LOCAL Y.M.C.A.

Historical Sketch Prepared by J. D. Spicer and Presented to Board of Directors.

COVERS FORTY YEARS

First Meeting Was Held on October 28, 1867, at Home of Alexander Gilbert—List of Presidents.

The following very interesting historical review was prepared by J. D. Spicer, and presented to the Board of Directors of the Y. M. C. A. at their annual meeting on Tuesday evening.

Mr. Spicer was for many years an officer and active member of the association, and since it has been necessary for him to forego official responsibilities has been one of the most valuable counselors and friends of the association.

The board highly appreciates the interest which has prompted Mr. Spicer in the preparation of so thorough a review, and it will be preserved among the permanent records of the association.

"On the evening of October 28th, 1867, an informal meeting was held at the residence of Alexander Gilbert, corner of Sixth street and Madison avenue. The object of the meeting was stated by Mr. Gilbert. Francis E. Marsh was appointed chairman, and H. Otis Newman, secretary of the meeting. Mr. Gilbert also presented the following preamble:

"'We, the undersigned, actuated by a desire to promote evangelical religion among the young men of Plainfield and vicinity, and impressed with the importance of concentrated effort to aid in accomplishing this object, do hereby form ourselves into an association to be known as 'The Young Men's Christian Association of Plainfield, New Jersey,' and we hereby agree to labor earnestly and unselfishly together in behalf of the great end proposed, and to be governed by such laws as may hereafter be adopted by the association.'

"There being only eight persons present, it was decided to adjourn for one week, hoping to have a larger attendance at that time.

"On November 4th, the adjourned meeting was held in the same place, at which Mr. Gilbert presented a copy of by-laws and constitution, which was duly considered and adopted. This was signed by the following fifteen persons present:

"Alexander Wiley, Jr., Henry Smith, Francis E. Marsh, H. Otis Newman, Robert E. Brand, Theodore Y. Bainbridge, Elston M. Dunn, Nelson Runyon, Charles H. Horton, M. D., James W. Jackson, Alexander Gilbert, C. H. Morehouse, A. F. Campbell, Randolph M. Stelle, A. T. Shotwell.

"Adjourned for one week.

"Met again on November 11th, Mr. Marsh in the chair, and Mr. Newman secretary. The first board of directors was elected as follows: Alexander Gilbert, F. E. Marsh, Henry Smith, J. W. Jackson, R. E. Brand, A. F. Campbell, H. O. Newman, Nelson Runyon, E. M. Dunn, T. Y. Bainbridge, C. H. Morehouse, Charles H. Horton.

"A meeting of the board of directors was held on November 18th, when the following officers were elected:

"Alexander Gilbert, president; J. W. Jackson, vice-president; H. Otis Newman, recording secretary; Nelson Runyon, corresponding secretary; T. Y. Bainbridge, treasurer.

"At that meeting it was deemed advisable to secure suitable rooms for the use of the association, which resulted in the leasing of the second story of the 'Woodland building,' on Cherry street, now 126 Park avenue. The first meeting held there was on February 11th, 1868. In the intervening time the Gazelle Engine Company tendered the use of their room nearby.

"After that the association occupied rooms in the 'Flagg & Mundy building,' on Front street, in which the Dime Savings Bank has been long located. From there they moved to the 'Vandeventer building,' and from there to the 'Vanderbeek building,' at Park and North avenues, where they remained until their own building was completed at East Front street and Watchung avenue, in 1894.

"The following officers have filled the respective positions during the forty years:

"Presidents — Alexander Gilbert, 1867-8; A. F. Campbell, 1869-70; C. W. McCutchen, 1871-75, 5 years; J. W. Jackson, 1876-77; C. E. Tyler, 1879; H. A. McGee, 1879; H. R. Munger, 1880-84, 5 years; H. O. Newman, 1885; F. J. Miller, 1886; W. D. Murray, 1887-97, 11 years; Stephen Cahoone, 1898-04, 7 years; J. W. Gavett, 1905-06.

"Vice-presidents—J. W. Jackson, 1867; A. F. Campbell, 1868 and 1874; C. W. McCutchen, 1869-70; J. D. Spicer, 1871-73, 3 years; C. E. Tyler, 1875; E. L. Bonny, 1876-78 and 1894-05, 15 years; J. M. Lee, 1879; George R. Cornwell, 1880-81; George A. Chapman, 1882-84, 3 years; F. J. Miller, 1885; E. St. John, 1886-87; D. E. Titsworth, 1888-93, 6 years; George M. Rittenhouse, 1906.

"Treasurers — T. Y. Bainbridge 1867; Francis E. Marsh, 1868; H. O. Newman, 1869-84 and 1892-98, 23 years; W. D. Murray, 1885-86; W. M. McGee, 1887; E. St. John, 1888-91, 4 years; C. M. Thorpe, 1899-06, 8 years.

"Recording Secretaries — Nelson Runyon, 1867; J. K. Meyers, 1868; William Raymond, 1869; John J. Perine, 1870; E. St. John, 1871-73, 3 years; S. F. Kimball, 1874-76, 3 years; George R. Cornwell, 1877; E. E. Anthony, 1878-79; W. M. McGee, 1880-82, 3 years; L. S. Mulford, 1883-86, 4 years; J. A. Robinson, 1887-88; T. Rushmore, 1889; James R. Joy, 1890-91; E. L. Walz, Jr., 1892-93; F. W. Yates, 1894; A. B. Beers, 1895-96 and 1899-06, 11 years; Curtis M. Thorpe, 1898.

"Corresponding Secretaries—H. O. Newman, 1867; A. T. Shotwell, 1868; A. F. Campbell, 1874-77, 5 years; J. W. Jackson, 1869 and 1873; T. C. Aldrich, 1870; John J. Perine, 1871; D. E. Davis, 1872; Wm. H. Sampson, 1878-79; E. C. Hoagland, 1880; H. J. Runyon, 1881-84, 4 years; C. E. Tyler, 1885-86; J. B. Drayton, 1881-84, 4 years; James R. Joy, 1888-89; J. A. Robinson, 1890; A. C. La Boyteaux, 1891; R. H. Radford, 1892-94, 3 years; John Valiant, 1895-97, 3 years. None elected since 1897.

"J. H. Manning, general secretary, February 28, 1887, to October 1, 1906, 19 years."

Says He "Spiked" Motor.

New York, Jan. 31.—Ability to run an electric motor is considered an art in Long Island City, and until yesterday Anthony Smith was the artist in that line in the iron foundry of Bell & Fyfe, at the foot of Halsey street, Astoria. Yesterday Smith was held in $500 in the Magistrate's Court, charged by Superintendent Harris with "spiking" the motor and putting the foundry out of commission several hours. It was stated that Smith operated a motor which drives all the machinery in the place and was the only man in the foundry who understood it. Recently one of the foremen learned to handle the motor. This was not to Smith's liking and yesterday morning he refused to start the motor at the usual hour. The plant was tied up in consequence and 135 men were made idle. Investigation showed that the motor had been tampered with. An expert electrician repaired it after the foundry had been tied up two hours.

Gives $22,000 to Yale.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 31.—John Hays Hammond, of New York, a mining engineer, has given to Yale University $22,000, in addition to a building and equipment for the study of mining metallurgy. The gift, announced last night, is to install machinery to crush and analyze ores and to do other analytical work. Mr. Hammond's total gifts to Yale now amount to $122,000.

Chicago Fever Wave.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 1.—With 10,000 to 15,000 cases of contagious diseases, mainly scarlet fever, in Chicago and the suburbs, extraordinary precautions are to be taken to check the spread of the epidemic. Alarmed because they have been untable to control the situation and prevent new centers of contagion, the city health authorities today apepaled to the public for aid by asking a temporary suspension of all social activity in the city. No order yet has been given for the closing of the public schools, the theatres and churches, but it is quite within the probabilities that if the epidemic spreads as rapidly during the rest of this week as it has for several days that precautions will be resorted to.

Dies at the Age of 106.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 31.—Nancy White, a negress, one hundred and six years old, the oldest woman in Western Pennsylvania, is dead at her home in New Haven, Pa., near here. Mrs. A. R. Banning, who died eight years ago at the age of eighty-five years, was as a child nursed by Mrs. White. The deceased was born where Merrittstown, Pa., now stands. Three years ago, it is said, she did work as a washwoman.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Miss Gussie Acken received hearty applause from the audience at the Baptist church entertainment last night. There was a full house and her selections were very interesting. She held every one breathless in her "Pied Piper" selection and also in "The Golden Wedding," which was also very interesting. The programme was as follows: "Pied Piper," "The Little Western Man," "The Golden Wedding," "Crippled Mercury," "The Race for the Flag," and "The Green Mountain Justice."

It is rumored that John Higgins and William E. Kinney have resigned their positions as baggage agent and towerman at the Lehigh station to take positions as battery men with Milton Boss.

The regular monthly meeting of the Good Government Club will be held in Temperance Hall tomorrow evening. Several important matters will be discussed.

A meeting of the borough committee will be held in Temperance Hall tonight.

Mrs. Milton Major is visiting relatives in Newark.

TOOK ALL THE BLAME.

Said Man Indicted with Him Had No Hand in Killing.

When August Heinz, Jr., and Chas. Wicklow, two Hoboken men, were called for trial yesterday in the Hudson county Court of Oyer and Terminer on an indictment charging them with the murder of John H. Basse, last August, Wicklow asked to be allowed to make a statement. Permission being granted he declared that Heinz had nothing to do with the killing of Basse.

"I killed him," Wicklow said, "and I did it in self-defense. Basse attacked me, and believing my life to be in danger, I stabbed him several times. Heinz was present, but did not take part in the affair."

With the consent of the Prosecutor of the Pleas both men pleaded guilty to the assault and battery. They will be sentenced today.

For Export Zone.

Concord, N. H., Jan. 31.—Secretary of the Treasury Leslie M. Shaw made a notable address last night before the New Hampshire Board of Trade. In addition to making a plea for a merchant marine, he advocated a plan whereby manufacturers might, under certain conditions, import raw material for their factories, without the payment of duty. Secretary Shaw suggested that it would be well to do away with the bonded factory and to substitute for it a bonded zone of large area, within which a large number of factories would be built. Into this zone, in which articles for export only would be manufactured, he would allow coal and every other element of manufacture, except labor, to be entered free. Should, however, the product of this zone's factories be removed for the purpose of domestic consumption, Secretary Shaw said that it should pay the same duty as if imported from abroad. He said that there should be such a zone on the North Atlantic coast, one at Norfolk, Va., and another at the Gulf.

Wings and Flies

By Tom Muir.

For the Lincoln's birthday matinee and night performances Manager Counihan has secured what will undoubtedly prove one of the most pretentious dramatic offerings that have yet appeared at the New Plainfield. It is Wilton Lackaye's own dramatization of Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables" called "The Law and the Man." The play is in a prologue and four acts and calls for the services of forty persons in the cast. The scenery and costumes are historically correct, having been made from plates, pictures and drawings in the possession of the French government. The production was put on at the Manhattan theatre, New York, early in the winter and is still playing to capacity business. Mr. Lackaye appears as "Jean Valjean" and the part is said to fit him admirably. He was last seen in Plainfield in "The Pit," the play based on Frank Norris' novel dealing with speculation in the Chicago wheat pit.

That great interest is manifested in the forthcoming Elks' vaudeville show was demonstrated by the sale of seats yesterday. Though it began yesterday morning the receipts had passed the $500 mark by night and the calls for tickets came in this morning with unceasing regularity. It was not the plan of the committee to have a matinee at first but the latter expedient was decided upon after it was seen that the demand would exceed the capacity for the night performance.

A midsummer plague of mosquitoes has stared behind the scenes at the New York Hippodrome, and now all of the mermaids and chorus girls of "Neptune's Daughter" are slapping their wrists and scratching as a result of the visit of the insects. Where they come from in the midst of winter was a mystery until the mermaids reported that the mosquitoes were more numerous under the stage than anywhere else. Investigation disclosed the fact that the water tank of the Hippodrome, in which the water is constantly kept at a midsummer temperature, was breeding the mosquitoes at a marvelous rate. Some of the mosquitoes escaped from the tank and invaded the dressing rooms, much to the discomfort of the chorus girls. The tank will at once be thoroughly cleaned and kerosene will be sprinkled wherever the mosquitoes appear. The phenomenon of the appearance of mosquitoes in midwinter has attracted much attention at the Hippodrome.

Millions for Schools.

New York, Jan. 31.—"It is estimated that the total expenditure for all forms of education in this country, public and private, in the year 1905 reached the truly colossal sum of $376,996,472. This amount equals twenty-six per cent. of all expenditures for governmental purposes in this country—National, State and local, while the expenditures in all of the States for publicly supported education constituted in the same year twenty-two per cent. of the total expenditures of all the States, counties and lesser political units for all purposes whatsoever." This statement was made by Elmer E. Brown, United States Commissioner of Education, in an address at Cooper Union last night under the auspices of the Department of Public Lectures of the Board of Education.

13 Wives, Gets 6 Years.

Toledo, Ohio, Jan. 31.—Charged with bigamy and credited with having thirteen wives by the court officers, Albert Holden, a minister of the gospel, pleaded guilty, and was sentenced by Judge Barber to serve six years in the penitentiary. Holden was love mad and married every time the spirit moved him. His courtships always took place during one of his revivals, and his victim was always one of those whom he had taken into the fold. Just before sentence was passed Holden said to the Judge that years ago he had been a victim of spinal trouble, which had created a pressure on the brain and because of this affliction he was simply driven into the willing arms of the women. He said that he had struggled against the sin of bigamy, but that all his prayers had availed him nothing.

Murderer Reaches Prison.

Trenton, Jan. 31.—Harry Leddy, of Paterson, the murderer of his sweetheart, Miss Mamie Ricker, entered the State prison here lat yesterday afternoon, in charge of Sheriff Frank Van Noort and Detective-Sergeant Otto Keppler. He was taken immediately to the office of the warden of the prison, measured for his suit and later escorted to the barber shop. Later he was transferred to the portion of the prison reserved for new arrivals, and there he will be kept in quarantine for fifteen days, after which he will be regularly assigned to his duties in the prison. Leddy is going to get a job in the engine-room, where they are in need of a man of his mechanical ability.

TOT'S BURNS PROVE FATAL.

Little South Bound Brook Girl Will Be Buried Beside Brother Who Met Similar Death.

Evelyn Morecraft, the four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexandrew Morecraft, of Bound Brook, who was severely burned while playing with matches, at her home in Franklin street, Monday morning, died from her injuries yesterday. Her external burns, while severe, would not have caused her death, but she had inhaled the flames.

Her funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon, at her home, and will be conducted by Rev. C. J. Culp, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Bound Brook. Interment will be in Bound Brook cemetery, by the side of her little brother, who met a similar death about four years ago. The family is well known in Plainfield.

Tried to Rob Postoffice.

An attempt was made Tuesday night to rob the postoffice at Ford's Corner. The office is in the store of S. H. Clum, the postmaster. The robbers bored a panel of the door full of holes with an augur secured at the blacksmith shop of John Liddle nearby and got into the store in this way. They took a coat, some glasses and other small articles, but were unable to break the safe open.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Feb. 3.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—What Christian Endeavor means to me and to the world.—Phil. ii, 1-13. Christian Endeavor day. Consecration meeting.

On the evening of Feb. 2, 1881, or twenty-six years ago, the first Christian Endeavor society was organized in Williston church, Portland, Me., by the pastor, the Rev. Francis E. Clark. It was simply expected to be an aid to the local church by interesting the young people in the work, but God willed otherwise. There had been hundreds of young people's societies before, but in the providence of God this was the one selected as a model for thousands of other societies and destined to bring about a revolution in the relationship of the young people to the church. No human vision could penetrate the future and reveal what Christian Endeavor was to become to the world, and as we look back over the past twenty-six years and review the marvelous history of this movement we can only say, "It is the Lord's doing and is marvelous in our sight."

The meaning of Christian Endeavor to the individual and to the world is today essentially what it was at the beginning. It stood for certain definite principles of Christian life and service, and, while it has always been progressive and added new and attractive features to its foundation principles, yet these fundamental principles made Christian Endeavor what it is and are still today its strength and inspiration. Methods and forms may change, but principles are eternal. This is true of Christianity itself and also true of Christian Endeavor, one of the best products of Christianity. In reviewing these essential principles let us celebrate this anniversary by a renewed consecration to them and a new dedication of ourselves to "Christ and the church."

1. Christian Endeavor stands for Christian fellowship. "If there be any consolation in Christ, if any comfort of love, if any fellowship of the Spirit," any one who has had any part in the Christian Endeavor movement can have no doubt that there is "fellowship of the Spirit." Christian Endeavor has fostered fellowship from the beginning. Fellowship in the local society under the supervision of the social committee has been one of its chief features. Nor does it cease here. Under the inspiration and influence of Christian Endeavor an interdenominational and international Christian fellowship such as the world has never seen before has been developed. Many feared in the early days that Christian Endeavor would loosen or destroy denominational ties. But such was never its aim, and history has proved that it has only strengthened them. We love not our own less because we love others. The very opposite is true. The man with largeness of heart enough to love the world will have all the more affection for his own. No better proof of this fact is needed than the history of Christian Endeavor.

2. Christian Endeavor stands for humility. This passage from Paul's letter to the Philippians is an appeal for the humility exemplified in Christ, and Christian Endeavor has possessed it to an unusual degree. It is remarkable how little personal pride and boasting have characterized this movement, in spite of its rapid and wonderful growth. Its development has been so great and marvelous that it might have been expected that many at least who were associated with it would have been filled with pride and boasting. But not so. From Dr. Clark down the hosts of Endeavorers have only seen the hand of God in the movement and have always given to Him the glory. "Not unto us, O Lord, not unto us, but unto Thy name, be the glory," has ever been the Christian Endeavor sentiment in relation to this great movement.

3. Christian Endeavor stands for self denying service. It has ever emphasized work for Christ and the church, which means service for those who are Christ's.

4. Christian Endeavor stands for worldwide missions. It has ever shown as a light in the world, and it is still a bright and shining light, spreading its rays into many heathen lands and doing much to win the world for Christ.

Deut. xxxi, 1-8; Judg. vii, 15-25. Neh. iv, 1-14; Zech. iv, 6; Matt. xxviii, 19, 20; I Cor. iii, 7-15, xv, 58; Gal. vi, 9, 10; I John iii, 14.

A Society With a History.

The old Mount Vernon Congregational church of Boston had a young people's society as far back as 1850. Among the members of this society were Dwight L. Moody, John B. Gough and Joseph Neesima. Owing to the small number of young people that society lapsed, but last fall Rev. A. P. Fitch reorganized it as a Christian Endeavor society, the full name being the Mount Vernon Young People's Association of Christian Endeavor. It has a membership of forty-five, with an average attendance of thirty-two, meeting on week day evenings. The pledge consists of the first sentence of the customary pledge, "Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ, I promise Him to do whatever He would like to have me do." The pastor takes no active part in the meetings and usually is not present, but is in his study in an adjoining room, where the Endeavorers often drop in to see him. Mr. Fitch says that the society has already become helpful in church work, and, in addition, they have become responsible for the partial maintenance of a school for colored people in Virginia.—Christian Endeavor World.

Feb. 3: "Wise and Foolish Building."

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

Matt. vii, 21-29; Rom. ii, 13; I Cor. iii, 11; II Tim. ii, 19.

"The firm foundation of God standeth, the Lord knoweth them that are His, and let every one that nameth the name of the Lord depart from unrighteousness."

We come into this world an undeveloped piece of humanity, a little bundle of possibilities. We have capacity for the exercise of power. We begin life with a cry. But the fact that we have power to cry indicates that we may grow and acquire ability to put forth greater power.

Around us is a world with fixed forces and things, the materials with which we may work and make other things and at the same time develop our thoughts and characters. This world into which we come has vast physical forces working according to unchanging rules. If we will build material structures with stone, brick, wood, iron, we must do so with proper regard to the rules which govern these materials or we shall bring disaster and suffer loss. We must have adequate foundation, and the wall raised must be plumb, the tensile strength of the material sufficient to carry the burden placed above it, or the building collapses, the bridge falls, the labor is thrown away, and we ourselves may lose life in the ruins.

It is also a world governed according to fixed laws of thought and accurate rules of right and wrong in human conduct. Over these eternal principles we have no power so that we can change them an iota or hinder their inevitable results. All we can do is to act according to their laws and receive all possible benefit or act contrary to their ways and suffer the consequences. Throw a stone up in the air, and it will fall. If you get under it, you will get hit by it. If you don't want to get hit, either do not throw the stone or else stand from under.

The laws of character building are as firmly fixed as those of physical nature. "He that committeth sin is the servant of sin." We gradually wake to the consciousness that we are doing things. We get ideas of different kinds of doing. With some there are pleasing sensations and emotions, and we come to like to do those things more than the ones that are less pleasing. Some we come to regard as right and others as wrong and at the same time to feel I ought or I ought not to do this. We also are certain that we can do either the act we ought or the one we ought not. If we do the way we know we ought, we approve our action and have satisfaction, become stronger to do that way the next time and grow in that direction, so that we are more likely to do that way rather than the opposite. We build character in the direction of righteousness and reach increasing happiness and satisfaction and stability.

Why are things made thus? Because they were made by God and, according to His nature, of eternal truth and rightness and goodness.

If we stay in this world we will have to accept things as they are made by Him. We can take our choice either to do our building with proper regard to the way He has made things and so come out gainers and receive the reward of working with Him, or we may become contrary in spirit to Him and do contrary to His way of doing. The result is certain to be failure and loss. Human happiness cannot be built firmly on the sand of unrightness. No foundation but that of God's eternal truth is adequate. Then the materials must be good with which we build. Gold, silver and precious or durable stone are vastly better than hay, wood and stubble.

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, Jesus Christ. But let every man take heed how he buildeth thereon, for every man's work shall be tried by fire."

Are you building wisely or foolishly?

God's Bounty.

In the heart of every hardship is a blessing. In the bosom of every hindrance is a help. If we live humbly and faithfully and do not worry, if we only believe in God when things seem contrary, we shall all find, in ways mysterious, that the Lord has given us twice as much as we had before.—George H. Morrison, M. A.

Salt of the World.

The Christian in the world is the world's salt, our Lord says. Can we not now discover some of the significances of our Lord's similitude?—Christian Work and Evangelist.

The Little Things That Help.

The sunny smile, the word of cheer,
The kind deed done another,
The touch that sometimes checks a tear—
All little things, my brother,
And yet, believe with me, although
We fail to understand it,
They're all far mightier than we know
For good, for so God planned it.

If we can speak a word today
To make some sad heart lighter,
As when the soft wind blows away
A cloud the whole world's brighter,
Oh, let us speak it and make glad
The soul that sits in sorrow
And help the downcast and the sad
Hope all bright things tomorrow.

If we by just a kindly deed
Can make a weak one stronger
And give the help for time of need,
Let's not withhold it longer.
Now, when we see a brother stand
Disheartened and sore weary—
Ah, now's the time to lend a hand
And speak the word that's cheery!

There's sunshine for the cloudiest day
In smiles if we but know it.
They weep the [illegible] away
Until the sun looks through it.
Our little acts are [illegible] with cheer
Beyond [illegible]
A rainbow's [illegible] tear
By looks of love [illegible]

TURNS BUTCHER INTO A MONKEY

YOUNG HYPNOTIST CREATES SENSATION IN NEW YORK.

MAKES THE VICTIM UNDRESS.

Unfortunate Man Then Ordered to Climb Pole, Where He Does Simian Stunts to Delight of Big Crowd.

New York.—While a butcher who had been led by an amateur hypnotist to believe that he was a monkey, climbed a 50-foot clothes pole in the rear of a Ludlow street tenement the other night, 5,000 men, women and children craned over house roofs and fire escape rails and peeped from windows at him. Everybody in the East side seemed trying to get into some of the houses whose rears afforded a view of the spectacle, and the uproar sounded so much like a first-class riot that the police turned out to suppress it.

But it was only amateur, correspondence school hypnotism. Louey was the hypnotist. He is 17 years old, and works in a grocery store in Ludlow street. No one would tell his last name. Morris Resnick, 35 years old, a kosher butcher, was his subject. Louey has been studying hypnotism and found he could influence Resnick.

He met the butcher, and told him he was a dog. Resnick dropped on all fours, barked and snapped when ordered to "sic" one of Louey's friends. This attracted a big crowd. Then Louey threw a stick into a puddle, and made Resnick retrieve it. The butcher played Fido to the life, all but the wagging of his tail.

"Now, you're a monkey. Come with me," said Louey, and Resnick followed, springing along and chattering. Louey led the butcher through the hall of a tenement house to the back yard and told him monkeys did not wear clothing. Resnick took off all his garments and began to prance around, making a noise like an ape and scratching himself.

Scores came out on the fire escapes and the windows were jammed. Hundreds pressed through to the yard and so filled it that the human monkey had no room to continue his performance.

"Climb that pole. Up to the top, now," said Louey. The unfortunate butcher leaped on the tall clothes pole and began to shin up. Roars of delight greeted his struggles to reach the top. When he got there, 50 feet above the ground, he chattered some more and waited for further orders. Women, offended by Resnick's disrobed condition, sent for Policeman Moylan. When some one said "Here comes a cop!" Louey fled.

This left the butcher up in the air. "Come down." "You're all right." "Just slide," and other advice was hurled at Resnick. He chattered and scratched his sides. Policeman Moylan walked to the foot of the pole and commanded: "Come down out of that, if you don't want to be pinched."

Resnick chattered at him, danced around on top of the clothes pole and made motions like a monkey throwing cocoanuts at a Filipino. Moylan nearly burst his uniform hurling commands at Resnick. Resnick only screamed and chattered at him. Men nearly fell off their various perches laughing.

Then some one told Moylan about Louey and the hypnotism. Moylan sent word to Louey to come around and take the curse off Resnick or he would get a warming he would remember. Louey went to a window from which Resnick could see him, ordered him to climb down the pole, and when he was safely at the bottom made some mysterious passes, said "All right, now you're a butcher again," and fled. Resnick looked dazed, suddenly realized that he was bare, grabbed his clothing and put it on.

Moylan called for an ambulance and sent Resnick to the psychopathic ward of Bellevue.

CRYING SHELLS OF CEYLON.

Sounds They Make Like the Notes of an Aeolian Harp.

Sir J. Emerson Tennent, having heard a story about musical sounds issuing from the lake at Batticalea, in Ceylon, paid a visit to the place, says Chambers' Journal. The fishermen told him that the sounds, which resembled the faint sweet notes of an aeolian harp, were heard only at night and during the dry season, were most distinct when the moon was nearest the full, and proceeded, they believed, not from a fish, but from a shell called the "crying shell."

"In the evening," says Tennent, "when the moon rose I took a boat and accompanied the fishermen to the spot. We rowed about 200 yards northeast of the jetty by the fort gate; there was not a breath of wind or a ripple except those caused by the dip of our oars. On coming to the point mentioned I distinctly heard the sounds in question. They came up from the water like the gentle thrills of a musical chord, or the faint vibrations of a wineglass when its rim is rubbed by a moistened finger. It was not one sustained note, but a multitude of tiny sounds, each clear and distinct in itself; the sweetest treble mingling with the lowest bass.

"On applying the ear to the woodwork of the boat the vibration was greatly increased in volume. The sounds varied considerably at different points as we moved across the lake, as if the number of the animals from which they proceeded was greatest in particular spots, and occasionally we rowed out of hearing of them altogether, until on returning to the original locality the sounds were at once renewed. This fact seems to indicate that the causes of the sounds, whatever they may be, are stationary at several points, and this agrees with the statement of the natives that they are produced by mollusca and not by fish.

"They came evidently and sensibly from the depth of the lake, and there was nothing in the surrounding circumstances to support the conjecture that they could be the reverberation of noises made by insects on the shore conveyed along the surface of the water, for they were loudest and most distinct at points where the nature of the land and the intervention of the fort and its building forbade the possibility of this kind of conduction."

Against Hard Proposition.

Herbert Knox Smith, the brilliant deputy of the bureau of corporations, said in Washington apropos of certain illegal acts: "Those acts are illegal, but the question is: Can the law get at the perpetrators? I am afraid it can't. For these men are poor, and monetary punishment is the only one the law can take. The law, I am afraid, is in the position of a certain housewife I heard of the other day.

"This housewife, a strict woman, said to a new maid: 'I forgot to tell you, Maude, that if you break anything, I'll have to take it out of your wages.'

"But Maude, whom two days had heartily sickened of her berth, replied with a merry laugh: 'Do it, ma'am, do it. I've just broke the hundred-dollar vase in the parlor, and if you can take that out of four dollars—for I'm leavin' at the end of the week—why, you'll be mighty clever.'"

Honey Is Nutritious.

"Honey, one of the most nutritious and delicate of foods, should be eaten more than it is," said a cooking expert. "Bought in the comb, it is bound to be unadulterated and this pure honey will keep its friends free from sore throat and bronchial troubles. I have not had a sore throat for six years and I attribute it to eating honey. My doctor tells me he often recommends honey, with excellent results, for diseases of the throat. Honey is excellent to use instead of sugar for sweetening cakes. It gives the cakes a most delightful flavor. It is also excellent in place of butter on hot biscuit, on toast and on buckwheat cakes.

"I know a number of women who use honey as a cosmetic. They apply it to the skin, rub it in well, then wash it off with hot water. The result is a finer-textured complexion, a glowing fresh look."

John Doyle's Generosity.

The late William Plummer, of Newburyport, who was a contractor and mason, had in his employ as a tender an Irishman named John Doyle One day John went to Mr. Plummer and said he was in trouble, as he had lost his account book.

"Why," said Mr. Plummer, "you cannot read or write, and how could you keep an account book?"

"Well," said John, "I had a nail keg in the cellar, and when I worked a whole day I put a potato in the keg, and half a potato for a half-day. My pig got into the cellar and ate the potatoes."

"Very well," said Mr. Plummer, "I have your account, and will look it over." On doing so, he found that John had overdrawn 50 cents. He told John that he had drawn 50 cents more than was due him, when John said: "Well, Mr. Plummer, it's a small amount, and you are welcome to it."

Always One End.

It's easy to name the winner of an argument in which a man's words are pitted against a woman's tears.

The Muck Raker.

The man who contends that the world is growing worse always goes about armed with a muck rake.

WHY THE PASTOR RAN.

Wise Action That Greatly Astonished Congregation.

One of the traditional stories of the town of Fairchild, Conn., recounts a wild dash from the pulpit made by a worthy and beloved pastor of the Episcopal flock, Dr. Labarre.

It was on a Sunday more than a hundred years ago. The service had been read. The prayers said, the hymns sung and the parson began his sermon. As he proceeded his gestures become more energetic. He brought his right hand down with great force. Then he turned pale, cleared the pulpit stairs at a bound, dashed out the church door and ran toward the pond a short distance away.

The congregation followed in bewildered pursuit, and saw their venerable pastor with flying robe rush into the water until it came to his neck. Then turning round he faced his astonished audience and said:

"Dearly beloved brethren, I am not crazy, as no doubt many of you think, but yesterday at the drug store I bought a bottle of nitric acid and carelessly left it in my pocket today.

"My last gesture broke the bottle. I knew the suffering the acid would cause when it penetrated my clothing, and rushed for the water to save myself pain."

He drew several pieces of glass from his pocket in witness of the tale. Then he dismissed the company and hurried home.—Youth's Companion.

DOG JEALOUS OF A GANDER.

Goes to Extreme Lengths to Show His Animosity.

Martin Hannan, of Joy street, Orange, has a dog which has developed the supposedly human trait of jealousy to such a degree that he will eat grass to spite his enemy, says the New York Press. The dog, a big, 50-pound brindled bull terrier, is ordinarily chained in the back yard. Close beside him a peaceful old gander is penned in with wire fencing. The gander is the last of a flock, and has survived as a pet.

The dog is so inordinately jealous of the gander that if any one goes up and talks to it he will bark angrily. If the visitor adds to the insult by giving the poor old bird something to eat, the terrier will leap the fence like lightning, snatch the food and gobble it down. To such incredible lengths will his jealousy go in this respect that the neighbors have tested it by throwing grass to the gander. The dog will seize the grass and actually swallow it in his anxiety to keep it from the gander. The gander gives one lamentable squawk as he sees the dog leap the fence, and then retires shudderingly to a corner.

Bird Criminals.

A subject which has exercised me this summer has been as to what bird it is with a bill seemingly smaller than a jay's which plunders other's nests, breaking and sucking the eggs, says a writer in Country Life.

In one small piece of hedge I found one blackbird's and two thrushes' nests all treated in the same way, the three showing among them the wreckage of eleven eggs all similarly pierced and emptied. The missel thrush has been suspected of the offense and in this case I should suppose it to be the missel thrush if it were not that of a pair of butcher birds nested in the same hedge.

It is perhaps unjust to suspect the butcher bird on no better evidence than its mere proximity to the scene of the crime and it may be questioned if the shrike would dare to rifle the nest of either a blackbird or a thrush. A suggestion which I have not seen made and which I throw out only as a possibility is that the culprit is no burglar but neither more than less than one of the parent birds themselves.

"Drowned Rivers."

In nearly every case these natural bottles are what the geographer calls "drowned rivers." That is to say, the coastal lands in the vicinity have subsided, allowing the sea to flow in and convert what was a lowland valley into a partly inclosed marine area.

Divers have gone to the bottom of New York bay and have found there the ancient bed of the Hudson river, as that stream flowed before the mouthward part of its valley subsided into the sea.

The old bed reaches through the narrows and well out into the floor of the Atlantic. Of course, as the sea water entered the sinking valley, any hills rising thereabout would become islands, in the new order of things. And there we find them to this day, in almost any of these inclosed inlets.—St. Nicholas.

Perforated Sails.

Although the assertion recently made by an Italian sea captain that the power of sails was increased by their being perforated was ridiculed, it has just been proved that he was right.

His theory was that the force of the wind cannot fairly take effect on an inflated sail because of the cushion of immovable air that fills up the hollows. To prevent the creation and presence of that cushion, he pierced his sails with many holes, through which the wind blew, the balance of the air pressure striking against the canvas and exercising its full effect.

Several experiments have been made on these lines, and the results are declared to have been eminently satisfactory.

PARKS AND ELIZABETH TIED IN BOWLING TOURNEY.

The Teams Will Meet On the Local Alleys Tomorrow and Hot Game Is Expected.

The Park Club bowling team, which is now tied with the Elizabeth Club for first place in the Central Journal Bowling League tournament, will meet the aggregation from the county seat on the local alleys tomorrow night. At that time the Parks will do their utmost to regain their lead and judging by their work at present they should have no trouble in doing so.

The Elizabeth Club now holds the highest team score, 970, and the Parks are second with 947. Tenney, of Elizabeth, holds the highest individual score, 246. The leading twelve men in point of average follows:

Leal's Nine.

Leal's school will be represented by a strong nine next season. There is a lot of good material in the school, with three or four veterans to furnish a nucleus for the combination. Berger, Howard and Rushmore, who gave promise of fast work last season, are still at the school.

BOWLING

The Park Club bowling team will roll the Westfield Club at the latter place on Thursday night, February 7, in the Central Journal Bowling League tournament.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL MEET.

Entries Expected to Number 125; Interest in Trophy.

Entries for the Sunday-school athletic meet are coming in rapidly and the competition promises to be chock full of interest. Secretary Listman expects 125 entrants to appear.

Interest among the entrants centers about the handsome silver trophy offered by President McCutchen. It must be won three times to be held by a Sunday-school. All the scholars in the league are hurringly anxious to get the first leg on it.

P. H. S. WON.

Takes Third Straight Victory In Interscholastic Basketball.

The Plainfield High School five won its third straight game in the Interscholastic Basketball League yesterday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A., defeating the borough schoolboys 21 to 16. It was a passably good game, but not of the thrilling variety. The city lads had the better of it in team work by just about the degree indicated by the score.

Plainfield High School has not lost a game since the league started. The five has apparently struck a championship gait.

Naval Reserve Coming.

The Jersey City Naval Reserve five will play the Y. M. C. A. basketball team here next Monday night. It will be a return game; the first was won by the Y. M. C. A.

Y. M. C. A. Competition.

The all-around championship competition will be continued at the Y. M. C. A. tonight. The running high dive will be the event. Walter McNaughton holds the record in that. His mark is practically the amateur record in the United States.

LITERARY.

The railroads are no longer able to get their freight cars in and out of the yards and terminals of the larger cities. They cannot get their cars loaded and unloaded or returned to the place where they belong. The business of the country has been to a great extent paralyzed for weeks past on account of what is called the "freight-car famine." Yet freight cars by the hundreds of thousands are standing on side tracks and packed into freight yards, all in one weltering chaos of hopeless mismanagement. We have simply reached the climax of a situation that has been coming on for years, and that could have been met without very serious difficulty. The situation cannot be justified by any honest answer from the business standpoint to the question why railroad facilities should not have kept pace with the growth of other business enterpises. Lack of terminals is hard to excuse.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for February.

It is safe to say that the February Atlantic will make its first claim upon the reader's attention because of its unusually effective array of serial features. May Sinclair's novel, "The Helpmate," which goes this month into its second installment, has already proved its right to be counted among the "big" novels of the year, evincing, as it does, a remarkable insight into one of the most dramatic and vital situations of modern life. Edith Wharton's "Motor Flight Through France" comes to its end—all too soon for the reader's satisfaction. Lastly, "The Spirit of Old West Point," by General Morris Schaff, begins its publication this month; and if one may judge from the opening chapters, we are to have in this series the most graphic, spirited, and sympathetic account which has yet appeared of life at the great Military Academy during the momentous February contains the following articles: "Glacial Erosion in Alaska," by years jus preceding the Civil War.

The Popular Science Monthly for Professor Ralph S. Tarr; "The Relation of School Organization to Instruction," by Professor Wilbur S. Jackson; "In Search of Truth," by President David Starr Jordan; "Is Man An Automaton?" by Professor George Stuart Fullerton; "A Vocabulary Test," by Professor E. A. Kirkpatrick; "Magical Medical Practise in South Carolina," by John Hawkins; "The Value of Science," by M. H. Poincare; The Convocation Week Meeting; The Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching; The Sanddunes of the Desert of Islay.

CUPID TALKS OVER THE TELEPHONE WIRES.

Now Woman Operator Is Wife of Man Who Took Messages From Her.

Miss Annie Mulligan, of No. 280 Sixth street, Jersey City, and John Murphy, telephone operator at Jersey City Police Headquarters, were married Tuesday in St. Mary's R. C. church by Rev. Father Terwoert. The bride was employed as chief operator in the New York and New Jersey Telephone office, at Erie street, and Patrolman Murphy took care of all the telephone calls that came over the headquarters wires.

Two years ago, while Murphy was still at headquarters as telephone operator, a fire started that threatened to destroy all the tenements along Henderson street. Two alarms came in, and Murphy got busy. He was struck with the sweet voice that came over the telephone from central. Numerous calls for ambulances, doctors, etc., were sent in rapid succession. Murphy liked the voice.

"I wonder who she can be," he said, in a reverie, "but I am a poor detective if I cannot find out."

It was a custom of the Central girls to call up each subscriber and say, "good morning," as a polite way of testing the wires. Naturally Police Headquarters was one of the first calls. Policemen often wondered why Operator Murphy would enter his office nearly an hour before he had occasion to do so by the rules of the department. He was there for that telephone good morning.

Subsequently he attended a fair at St. Michael's R. C. church and while near one of the booths he recognized a voice that struck him as being familiar.

"Won't you take a chance on this?" asked a sweet faced young woman.

It was the voice that had captivated the Police Headquarters, operator.

"Sure!" he said. "How much?" Murphy almost filled up the blank pages of the book.

He hung around several hours and finally got an introduction to the young woman, who is now Mrs. John Murphy.

CLOSED PORTALS.

Somerset Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet tomorrow night and receive several applications for membership.

Friendship Degree Lodge, Daughters of Rebecca, will hold a social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Kettenring, of Race street, tonight.

CUTTING ICE AT WATCHUNG.

Force of 100 Men Now at Work Getting in the Crop.

With a force of over one hundred men the Natural Ice Company began cutting ice this morning on the upper pond at Watchung. The ice is between eight and nine inches thick and the company believes that with the weather remaining at the present temperature it will be able to gather a good harvest. Ephraim Carman, of this city, is running the stationary engine at the pond and no time is being lost in putting the ice crop into the large storage houses of the company.

The low temperature of yesterday and last night materially helped to thicken the ice. When the company advertised for men to assist in the ice cutting a large number of applicants were received. Everyone who applied for a job was put to work and if the weather remains cold no doubt a larger force will be needed.

BAKER OBSEQUIES SIMPLE.

Aged Preacher Laid to Rest Without Funeral Display.

Simple ceremonies marked the funeral of Rev. Halsey H. Baker, the veteran preacher and writer, this morning. The service was held at his late home on East Fifth street.

It was opened with the chanting of the 23d Psalm by Mr. and Mrs. David E. Titsworth and Elmer E. Runyon. Rev. George Shaw, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, read the Scriptures. Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis delivered the sermon, speaking briefly. He offered the closing prayer.

The burial was at Hillside. Porters acted as pall bearers.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Martine, the Ideal.

It will be seen that the Democratic vote is also disunited. James E. Martine, of Plainfield, the eloquent and untiring champion of true Democratic principles, is, supported by both representatives of this county, correctly voicing the united sentiment of Democrats in this county and of many Republicans, too. Senator Gebhardt presented his name in the Democratic caucus, and as no choice was made there he nominated him in the Joint Meeting of the Legislature. Mr. Martine had not been a candidate; but the expressions of favor which his name elicited on all sides showed that Mr. Gebhardt had made no mistake as a true representative of his party and people, in presenting the name of the great Commoner, the "Farmer Orator" of New Jersey, in bright contrast to the plutocratic Trust-servers who have made the Senate of our country so odious to those whom Lincodn called its "plain people." If the Democratic caucus agree on a nominee now, Mr. Martine is quite likely to be the honored one, as the candidates of both the Hudson and the Essex leaders seem hopelessly defeated, while Mr. Martine has so warm a popular support in those counties as well as the rural districts of the State that the supporters of either of the other candidates could be withdrawn in his favor and add strength to the leader who does so first.—Clinton Democrat.

New Jersey's Roll of Honor.

All honor to the Republican Senators and Assemblymen of the New Jersey Legislature who have stood firm in their opposition to the return of Dryden to the United States Senate! It is difficult for those who have not been placed in a like position to appreciate the terrific pressure which a powerful party machine can bring to bear on insubordinate members. It is easy enough to find fault with public men who yield to please of regularity; who permit themselves to be imposed upon by representations of the dire consequences of a split in their party; who are impelled to go with the majority by the whisperings of ambition and hopes of future preferment. But by putting one's self in the place of the men thus exposed some estimate may be obtained of the force of character required to stand up under the strain. Here is New Jersey's roll of honor:

SENATORS.
Ernest R. Ackerman.
Everett Colby.
Edmund W. Wakelee.

ASSEMBLYMEN.
James DeVine, Jr.
William R. Drake.
Guy L. Fake.
Randolph Perkins.
William W. Smalley.

Some of these are new men, brought for the first time face to face with the overmastering influence of an almost omnipotent machine; others are older in experience, but have given the best years of their lives to the attainment of positions which they were justified in believing to be stepping stones to still higher places in the public service. It is hard to decide which deserve the greater credit, the untarined novices or the veterans, who could look forward only to blighted careers in the event of the triumph of the machine, either through the election of Dryden or of some serviceable creature as a substitute. We rightly expect moral courage in public men, but it is a rare virtue; how rare it is is indicated by the fact that out of forty-four Republicans in the New Jersey Legislature only eight (less than one in five) are possessed of it. The proportion is probably no greater in any legislative body. A manifestation of moral courage such as is given by New Jersey's eight truly honorable representatives, therefore, should not escape notice and due commendation. The Record salutes the honorable eight who have thus distinguished themselves.—Philadelphia Record.

Masons Fear Concrete.

New York, Jan. 31.—The members of the Bricklayers and Masons' International Union, 65,000 in number, who are for the third time taking a referendum vote on the question of joining the American Federation of Labor, are practically certain, it is said, to vote in the affirmative this time. The reason given is that the question of the use of concrete has become a serious menace, and that the bricklayers must be prepared for it by becoming allied with the other unions. The question came up recently in a new way in some of the towns near New York. The bricklayers employed on some contracts in these towns where part of the work was to be of concrete wanted to do the concrete work. The reply of the contractors was to discharge the bricklayers and make all of the structures of concrete. The bricklayers admit that they can no more stop development of concrete construction than the unions in the shop trades can stop the use of labor-saving machinery.

Funeral of Mrs. Lincoln.

The funeral services of Mrs. Sarah Lincoln were held yesterday afternoon from the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. E. Tyrrell, of East Fifth street. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends, including many of the older members of the First M. E. church, of which she was the oldest. Rev. A. C. McCrea, pastor of the First M. E. church, conducted the services and the interment was in the Methodist cemetery on Plainfield avenue.
